SITUATION SERIOUS.

Aguinaldo, Empowered by the Deity, Issues a Proclamation.

FILIPINOS WILL FIGHT YANKS.

Hot Talk of War in France Between That Country and Great Britain—A Perverted View Aggravated on Every Occasion—Germany May Yet Be Welcomed as an Ally.

Manila, Jan. 9.—Within a few hours of the proclamation issued by Major-General Otis in behalf of President McKinley, the agents of Aguinaldo billed Manila with a manifesto which attracted considerable attention. The revolutionary president protested against General Otis signing himself Military Governor of the Philippine Islands.

Aguinaldo then solemnly protested, in the name of the Deity, who empowered him to direct his brethren in the difficult task of regeneration against the intrusion of the American Government, and reiterated that he could produce proof that he was brought here on the understanding that the Americans promised him their co-operation to attain independence.

The revolutionary leader then called upon all his followers to work together with force, and assured them he was convinced that they could obtain independence and urged them never to return "from the glorious road" on which they had "already so far advanced."

The Streets Barricaded.

Col. Potter, the special emissary to Gen. Otis between Manila and Iloilo, arrived yesterday afternoon with despatches from the latter point. The situation when he left there was practically unchanged. The streets were barricaded, and it was reported that the principal buildings had been "kerosened," the insurgents having threatened to destroy the whole business situation by fire at the first shot of bombardment. The banks were shipping their treasure to the United States transport Newport and other vessels. The family of the American vice-consul had gone on board the Newport.

Col. Potter reports that President McKinley's proclamation had to be typewritten aboard ship, as the printers on shore declined to do the work, and when the text of the proclamation was read to them ridiculed the notion that conciliation was possible.

The United States gunboat Petrel arrived at Iloilo on Friday and Col. Potter reports that the United States troops will probably land on Guimaras Island, about midway between the Island of Panay and the Island of Negros, where a camp will be established.

A Spanish Report.

Madrid, Jan. 9.—Advices were received here yesterday from a leading merchant at Iloilo, capital of the Island of Panay, in the Visayas group, to the effect that agricultural operations in the vicinity of Iloilo have not been interrupted, and that all the insurgents respect the Europeans, both at Iloilo and in the Island of Negros.

What Is Said at Washington.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The War Department received another despatch yesterday from Major-General Otis, commanding the United States troops in the Philippines. So far as the officials are willing to admit, the despatch shows no material change in the conditions existing at the time of previous advices.

Cabinet officer said last night that the despatch contained nothing alarming, serious or exciting. There had been no collision with the insurgents, he added, and not a shot had been fired. The despatch, however, is believed to have been sufficient importance to bring to the immediate attention of the President and the latter, Secretary Alger, and Secretary Long and Adjutant-General Corbin were in conference for some time at the White House during the afternoon, presumably on that matter.

WAR TALK IN FRANCE.

Great Britain Determined, According to Paris Papers, to Find a Cause for War—U. S. and Germany.

Paris, Jan. 9.—Shall France become friendly with Germany or with England? La Liberte asked the question last evening, and adds that such is the dilemma with which the republic is brought face to face to-day as regards the foreign situation. If one may judge, however, from the tone of the press of London and Paris, it is toward Berlin that France is more likely to turn.

Apropos of the rumor of Monson's recall, M. Salesy, one of the ablest of French writers on foreign affairs, said yesterday morning: "Whether he stays or goes makes little difference. We want only one thing—to be let alone. Let England, among others, busy herself a little more with her own affairs and a little less with ours, and let her not seek to pick a quarrel with us every time the occasion offers. Whether this result be sustained with or without the present ambassador is of slight importance to us."

The well informed London correspondent of Le Matin says the negotiations between England and France, to regulate the difference between the two countries, are now to begin, and he adds that if they do not succeed in essential points war between these neighbors is not far off. He says that if France renounces her claims in Newfoundland, England must make some similar concession. He suggests the cession of the Channel Islands as an appropriate quid pro quo.

Denis Guilbert closes his article in yesterday's Figaro on Anglo-French differences in Siam by expressing the belief that England is seeking an occasion to declare war on France. This mistrust of England, perfectly natural under the circumstances, is reflected everywhere, and it often leads to the most extraordinary conclusions. Thus one journal, in referring to the American desire for the revocation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, says: "If England shows herself in this affair as intractable as in the case of Fashoda war will be certain, but it is pretty sure that England will yield, making up for any loss she may suffer at our expense."

The suggestion of an alliance between the United States and France came from an unexpected quarter yesterday, and presented in a very different light. The Jew-baiting Libre Parole in a diatribe against England makes this rather astonishing assertion: "If it were not for the friendship of the United States England would not dare put on such airs with us, and Fashoda probably would have been impossible; but, even as it is, the United States will not let England exploit American friendship so as to endanger the safety of France. Their own interests and their ancient relations draw together the two great republics of the world. The White House has nothing to fear from us. Why should it let the British lion use it to our detriment?"

CZAR TALKS OF PEACE.

But Goes Right on With Preparations for War.

London, Jan. 9.—The Sebastapol correspondent of The Times, who has been touring in European Russia for two months to discover, if possible, some evidence on the part of the Russian Government to give effect to the disarmament proposals of Emperor Nicholas, says all his observations were quite to the contrary. The correspondent remarks: "All the naval dockyards I found feverish with activity. Not a man had been withdrawn from the frontiers. The Ministers of War and Militia have been inspecting all the important military and naval stations, urging an acceleration of the preparations for defence, but apparently never mentioning the Czar's manifesto. The number of men enrolled in the army and navy during the months of October and November last was larger than ever. Reinforcements are being sent to the far east as fast as they can be transported, while all the garrisons along the Russo-Turkish frontier are being largely increased."

CROMER'S SPEECH.

Egyptian Consul-General's Bold Declaration Attracts Attention.

London, Jan. 9.—Lord Cromer's speech at Omdurman attracts great attention in political circles. It is taken to amount almost to a declaration of an English protectorate over Egypt, for the Soudan, which is a part of Egypt, Cromer says, will be governed by the Queen of England and the Khedive of Egypt, though on the other hand this is offset by the further declaration that the Soudan will not be governed from Cairo. This probably may be relied on. If other nations try to force the situation by resenting the "Queen and Khedive" passage, it will be said that the Soudan will merely be governed as a conquered province, with the Sirdar as the despotic ruler. In any case, however, this probably is not the last that will be heard of the Egyptian consul-general's bold declaration.

KHALIFA MAKING TROUBLE.

The Sirdar Will, Therefore, Send Strong Force Against Him.

London, Jan. 9.—According to a despatch to The Daily News from Cairo, General Lord Kitchener, the Sirdar, has decided to send a strong expedition against Khalifa Abdullah, who is now in Darfur with a large force of Dervishes, and has been taking the aggressive against the local tribesmen.

Irish Fusiliers for Khartoum.

A despatch from Alexandria, Egypt, announces that 250 men of the Irish Fusiliers, have been ordered to Khartoum. As the Soudan has hitherto been garrisoned only by native troops, the step is variously interpreted.

Mrs. Arnold Had Money.

Kingston, Jan. 9.—No one would have supposed that Mrs. Arnold, who died of heart disease during the St. George's Cathedral fire, had money. However, it has been learned that she had a bank account of nearly $1,500. In an old trunk was also found $300 in gold. This woman had for years been an object of charity.

Toothless Woman's Suicide.

Quincy, Ill., Jan. 9.—Miss Kate Richter, aged 28, committed suicide at the home of Louis Ebert last night. She used a revolver, the ball entering her right temple. The cause assigned by herself was that she suffered from melancholia due to her inability to have a set of false teeth fitted to her mouth.

TO MEET FEBRUARY 1.

Ontario Legislature Has Been Called for Business.

VARIOUS OFFICIAL CHANGES.

Mr. J. S. Cartwright Succeeds the Late Mr. Alexander Grant—Mr. J. A. McAndrew Becomes a Registrar of the High Court of Justice of Ontario—Other Changes at Osgoode Hall.

Toronto, Jan. 9.—The Ontario Legislature has been called to meet on Wednesday, February 1, for the despatch of business.

It is understood that Mr. James Strachan Cartwright, Q.C., for some years a registrar of the High Court of Justice for Ontario, has been transferred to the registrarship of the Court of Appeal, lately made vacant by the death of Mr. Alexander Grant.

Mr. John Alfred McAndrew, one of the taxing masters at Osgoode Hall, has been transferred to the position made vacant by the appointment of Mr. Cartwright.

Mr. George M. Lee, clerk of records and writs, has been transferred to the office of taxing master, in place of Mr. McAndrew, and Mr. Michael J. McNamara, chief clerk of the judgment bench, central office, has been made clerk of records and writs.

Mr. Bernard B. Hughes, for many years in the wholesale dry goods business in this city, and a brother of Mr. Patrick Hughes, has been appointed a clerk in the central office of the High Court of Justice, in the room and stead of Michael J. McNamara, transferred to the office of the clerk of records and writs.

KILLED AT A FUNERAL.

County Treasurer Cowan, His Son and Man the Victims.

Ottawa, Jan. 9.—A deplorable calamity happened on Saturday during the funeral of Mr. Charles O'Gara, and two more funerals will shortly follow. Amongst the numerous rigs present was a sleigh containing Mr. Cowan, the county treasurer, his son, Mr. Holmes Cowan, and a driver called St. Germain. As the funeral cortege started the horses became unmanageable and bolted on to the Canada Atlantic and Ottawa, Arnprior & Parry Sound Railway tracks. Before the driver could recover command of his horses the outgoing Parry Sound train swept round a sharp curve, dashing into the sleigh at full speed. County Treasurer Cowan was killed immediately, and Mr. Holmes Cowan only survived his father for a few minutes. St. Germain, terribly injured, was removed in the ambulance to St. Luke's Hospital, only to die soon after entering. Both the horses were killed. Mr. Cowan, sr., leaves a family of daughters and Mr. Holmes Cowan a widow and one daughter. Mr. Holmes Cowan was a brother-in-law of Hon. N. C. Wallace of Woodbridge, Mrs. Cowan being a sister of Mrs. Wallace.

Mr. Cowan made his last will on Friday. Owing to the approaching marriage of his daughter, Miss Maggie Cowan, he found it necessary to add a codicil, and had it witnessed by Mr. Charles McNab, county clerk and Mr. John Dawson, Court House custodian. Mr. Cowan remarked that he had changed his will many times, but that would be the last.

Team Ran Into the Train.

Mr. M. Donaldson, general superintendent of Canada Atlantic and O. & P. S. Railways, makes an official statement relative to the fatal accident at the Russell road crossing, in which he states that Mr. Cowan's team ran into the side of the train, striking it between the tender and baggage car. Mr. Cowan and his son were instantly killed, and the driver, whose name is Dumis, was seriously injured. The train was immediately stopped, coming to a full standstill a few car lengths past the crossing, and the facts, as given above, were reported to my office. It would appear the driver lost control of his horses, which was the cause of the accident.

ONE YELLOW FLAG FLYING.

The Beaver Line Str. Tongariro Arrives Off Halifax With Sickness.

Halifax, Jan. 9.—The Beaver Line Tongariro has anchored at quarantine with the yellow flag flying for sickness among the passengers.

The steamer Tongariro, which arrived Saturday afternoon from Liverpool, met with terrific weather on the passage. On the 26th, 27th and 28th December the wind blew with hurricane force, with frightful cross seas, the decks were swept fore and aft, and everything moveable carried off. One lifeboat was lost and another smashed, and seven ventilators washed away. The crew had many narrow escapes, and all are more or less bruised and cut by being knocked about the deck for three days. The steamer was only able to average 80 miles a day. Oil was put out in bags to try and calm the sea, but, notwithstanding that the bags were weighted with the pieces of chain, they were blown aboard again almost as soon as they were put out. The Tongariro brought five cabin, ten second cabin and 330 steerage passengers. Of this number 128 landed here, the remainder being destined for Portland, Me.

ANOTHER POSTAL CHANGE.

Rates on Money Orders Between the U. S. and Canada Reduced.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The Postal Departments of the United States and Canada on Saturday reached an agreement providing for a considerable reduction of the rates on international money orders. This action is the result of plans furnished by First Assistant Postmaster Heath to change the fee system in the drawing and payment of international money between the United States and Canada so as to reduce the price of such orders to the same rate which exists in domestic money orders in each country.

Pullman to Be Annexed.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—The directors of the Pullman Palace Car Company, which owns the town of Pullman, have agreed to annex that model town to Chicago.

Acute Rheumatism

Pains in the Feet and Limb—A Complete Cure Accomplished by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"For a number of years I was afflicted with acute rheumatism in my left side and all the way down my limb into my foot. I live five blocks from my work and had to stop and rest several times in going and coming. I could get no relief from my trouble and was on the point of giving up my job when I happened to hear of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I purchased a bottle of this medicine and a vial of Hood's Pills and began taking them. Before I had half finished them I was relieved and it was not long before I was completely cured. I never lose an opportunity to praise Hood's Sarsaparilla, for my cure meant a great deal to me, as I have a family and must always be at my post." WILLIAM HASKETT, yardman, Grand Trunk Railroad depot, Brantford, Ontario.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

EDITORIAL NOTES.

POSTAL improvement still continues. The Canadian Post Office Department has come to an agreement with the United States postal authorities whereby the rate on postal orders between the two countries are placed upon the same basis, as to rates, as domestic postal orders.

MR. TARTE'S great hobby is transportation. Transportation is something that has various applications. Mr. Tarte's enemies say that he should be transported to some political Botany Bay. Many of the regions affected by his propositions are transported with the ideas he wishes to develop. After all, transportation is one of the most important problems that Canada has to solve. Her prosperity, her very life as a nation, depend upon facilities for transportation of the varied products of her rich soil and her teeming mines. A great advance step is being made in the deepening of our canals, now well on to completion, and though these things cost money, the best judgment of commercial experts is that money spent for perfecting our means of transportation is a good investment.

A RESIDENT of Jamaica who has been staying in Montreal says that the most delightful spot on earth is Jamaica. There the eye feasts upon a tropical luxurance unequalled for splendor and prodigality. The air is laden with balm and healing. The sun is warm and golden. The climate is equable, and life may be spent should one desire it, in a long and unruffled repose. Chiefly, Jamaica offers hope to the consumptive. It wards off pulmonary tendencies. It cures in the advanced stages. It has literally given life to scores of people who were given up by friends and physicians. This information is of moment at a time when increased attention is being devoted to the problem of overcoming the victorious inroads of the terrible ravages of consumption.

VALUE OF TREES.

The subject of forestry will grow in importance with each passing year. The woodman's axe is ever busy, and the sound of the saw is heard in increasing numbers of lumbering hamlets. In the wooded portions of the United States there are river beds which during the major portion of the year are as dry as a well-constructed roadway, but which hold raging torrents during the Spring. In some instances these dry river beds are flanked by high banks which bear the marks of torrential erosion. It is difficult to believe that such streams can fluctuate between actual disappearance and a state of flood, but there is plenty of evidence that such is the fact. Western streams have risen in a night, and overwhelmed camps which were unwittingly placed in their dry beds of only a few hours before.

In an article entitled "The Curse of a Treeless Region," in the January number of the Atlantic Monthly, President Charles W. Eliot, of Harvard University, refers to a fine Roman bridge, which he had admired in Tunisia. The bridge stood about thirty feet above a dry river bed, and he asked a French station-master if the river rose to the arches which crossed the roadway. He was informed that during the three or four years in which the station master had been at that post of duty, the river had run over the parapet of the bridge.

Although there is a difference of opinion in regard to the influence of deforestation on the climate, it cannot be denied that a country well provided with timber resources is preferable to one that is treeless. Where timber abounds the rains are more regular, and the soil retains the moisture for a longer time after the precipitation from the clouds. Consequently the rivers have a more even flow and torrents are infrequent. An argument advanced against this assertion is that many rivers which formerly caused damage by annual freshets, now flow harmlessly between their banks. This is probably due to the fact that the rivers have shrunk in volume on account of the removal of the trees, and the tillage of the soil along their banks and the banks of their tributaries.

AFTER LaGRIPPE

The Heart and Nerves are Often Left in a Very Weak and Debilitated Condition.

Mrs. John O'Brien of Peterborough tells how Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills Restore the Health Which has been Broken Down by this Disease.

LaGrippe is responible for more weak hearts, shattered nerves and broken-down health than any other disease of modern times. People who are recovering from an attack should not fail to fortify their system by taking a few boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. The timely use of this remedy may be the means of preventing serious complications later on.

Mrs. John O'Brien, 390 Downey Street, Peterborough, Ont., says that LaGrippe was the starting point of her trouble.

"I had a very severe attack of LaGrippe, said she, which left my head and heart both in a very bad state. So intense were the pains that I often could not work. My nervous system was shattered, and I felt completely run down. My blood was impoverished so much that I became very weak and debilitated.

"Although I tried many remedies, I received no benefit from them, and dispaired of a cure, until I got Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. They put new life in me. From the very first their splendid renovating power were manifested. My nerves became steady, the distressing symptoms disappeared; and to put the matter shorter I was completely restored to first rate health in a short time by the use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills."

THE TRAGEDY OF AN EMPIRE.

True Story of the Death of Prince Rudolph of Austria.

Edward A. Steiner contributes to The Woman's Home Companion this interesting fragment of Austrian history which is a prohibited topic in that country:

"The carnival was at its height in gay Vienna. The noisy masqueraders were returning from their revelries and were making the old city ring with shouts and laughter. The sun was struggling through the mists of the January morning, but almost before it had risen high enough to touch the golden cross of St. Stephen's cathedral all Vienna knew that there would be no more dancing during that carnival. The word had gone round that the crown prince was dead; murdered, some declared; fallen in a duel, others conjectured; accidentally killed, said the papers.

"Six years prior to this unhappy night Crown Prince Rudolph was forced by the circumstances of his station to marry Stephanie, the daughter of the king of Belgium, whom he did not love, while his heart was given to the Baroness Vetsera, the most beautiful woman in Vienna. What her character was I do not pretend to know, but the favor of a crown prince is enough to turn the head of almost any Austrian woman, particularly if she has been reared in Vienna, under the demoralising influence of its court. His disappointment drove him to dissipation, the crown princess wept and scolded, the city was scandalised, and the emperor had to seek a way out of the difficulty. Count Hoyos, an officer in the Austrian army and one of the numerous admirers of the young baroness, was promised promotion in the army and the assistance of the emperor if he would gain her consent to marry him. This the count succeeded in doing. Then came the end. The count and his fiancee were invited to spend the evening of Jan. 30, 1889, with the crown prince in his hunting lodge at Meyerling. Wine flowed freely, and the hours were full of mirth. But suddenly, without warning, Rudolph drew a revolver, shot the count, then the baroness and at last drove a bullet through his own heart."

Another Discovery has been made, and that too, by a Lady of this Country. 'Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. She finally discovered a way of recovery, by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking first dose, that she slept all night; and with two bottles, has been absolutely cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz.' Thus writes W. C. Hamnick & Co., of Shelby, N.C. Sold by all Druggists at 50 cents and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed.

A NEW INVENTION

The Newcombe Piano Has It.

It consists of a Patented Practice CLAVIER or STOP which diminishes the tone when required and saves wear on the Piano; it also does away with the old way of having to press down the pedal with the foot in order to soften the tone when running the scales or practicing. Oftentimes the young pupil on the piano cannot press down on the pedal without throwing themselves out of the proper position when they should sit erect. This invention in the NEWCOMBE PIANO will enable children to begin two years earlier on the piano. In addition to the above, the NEWCOMBE PIANO is the finest made in Canada. Children often complain about practicing; they like it if they have a NEWCOMBE PIANO. 1898 styles are gems of art, containing every late improvement; they possess that beautiful full sweet tone which delights the singer, and so pleases every musical ear. Organs of every description at Wholesale Prices.

FIRE ON A COLD MORNING.

The Home of Mr. D. Shanks, Paisley, Destroyed Early on Sunday.

Paisley, Ont., Jan. 9.—About 4 o'clock yesterday morning fire was discovered in the dwelling above Mr. D. Shanks' grocery and boot and shoe store, wherein dwells Mr. Shanks, who has been confined to his bed for about three months by illness; Mrs. Lamont, who has also lately recovered from an attack of lung trouble, and who was visiting a few days in town; Mrs. Shanks, mother of the proprietor, about 82 years of age; Mr. R. Anderson, the proprietor's nephew, and his niece, Miss Mary Shanks. With the exception of Mr. Anderson, all the occupants had to be removed by means of a ladder to the upstair window. It was impossible to save clothing, etc., as the whole house was full of smoke and not until the firemen had been there for 15 minutes was there a blaze to be seen, when suddenly the whole roof seemed to break into flames. Rafters were licked up like kindling and a strong southwest wind blew volumes of smoke and sparks. About 6 o'clock the fire was declared out.

The fire is supposed to have caught from a defective chimney. Mr. Shanks' loss on household goods will be about $600; insured for $100 in Northern Insurance Company; on stock of groceries, etc., by fire and water, about $1,200, insured in North British & Mercantile for $900; on the building, loss about $800, insured for $600 in Northern. Mr. W. Patterson's tailor shop, which is adjoining, suffered loss, but chiefly by water; no insurance. A. Sinclair's stock will also be damaged by water; insurance unknown.

Peterborough, Dec. 26.—This town is famed throughout the Dominion as the most go ahead, progressive, wealthy and up-to-date on the continent. Among those cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills is Mr. J. M. Donovan, who reports that this remedy cured him completely of Urinary troubles, indicating the first stage of Diabetes.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only remedy that has ever been known to cure this disease. They never fail.

The imports for the year amounted to £470,604,198, as compared with £451,038,960 in 1897. For the corresponding periods the exports were £233,390,793, as against £234,919,-793.

FAST TRAINS IN THE STATES.

Railway Magnates of Great Britain Say That They Do Not Show Better Than English Tests.

London, Jan. 9.—Cable reports of the railroad race between Chicago and Omaha are causing abundant comment here in railway circles, while the papers take the opportunity of reviving the ancient question of the comparative merit of the English and American systems. Traffic Superintendent Turnbull of the London & Northwestern, one of the roads which three years ago took part in the celebrated races from London into Scotland, has spoken to

"I have carefully read all the published reports of the great race," he said, "and I fail utterly to see that the English roads—or our own, at all events—have any cause to feel ashamed. It appears from the report that the average speed for 500 miles was 54½ miles an hour. Here is the record of our own run from London to Aberdeen, Aug. 22, 1895. The journey was divided into two halves—London to Carlisle and Carlisle to Aberdeen. We covered the first half—299 miles—in four hours and thirty-five and one-half minutes, maintaining an average speed between Euston and Crewe of 64.3 miles an hour, and between Crewe and Carlisle of 67.2 miles an hour. We covered the second half—Carlisle to Aberdeen, 241 miles—in three hours and 54 minutes. The average speed from Carlisle to Perth was 60.5 miles an hour, the average from Perth to Aberdeen 55.4 miles an hour. The whole journey from Euston to Aberdeen—540¼ miles—was made in eight hours and 89 minutes, including all stops.

"No exact record was taken of particularly high speeds, but while upon this subject I and all my experts believe the reported top speed of 120 miles an hour on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy and Chicago & Northwestern must be a cable error. At the same time, we used on ordinary journeys to exceed 80 miles an hour on one portion of our route, but stopped owing to objections from our passengers. I may add finally that the grades on the Euston-Aberdeen route in some places are tremendous, and I should think it hardly possible that they could be exceeded on the Chicago-Omaha route."

These are the views generally of English railway men, who are tenacious of their opinion that English railroading is not to be beaten, despite all statements to the contrary.

RAILWAY THROUGH JUNGLE.

The Most Difficult Part of the Great Uganda Line Completed.

London, Jan. 9.—The African mails bring news that the most difficult part of the great Uganda Railway is completed, and that before another year is ended Lake Victoria will be connected by rail with the coast. Thus ocean and lake will be linked across the hottest wilderness of the Dark Continent. It is a daring dash for the riches of Central Africa.

As now planned, the whole length of the railway will be about 500 miles. Its lake terminus will be a sheltered harbor in Ugowe Bay, on Lake Victoria, from where steamers will run across the great lake to Uganda, the headquarters of trade in Central Africa. British enterprise will thus penetrate the Dark Continent from the east, while the Sirdar pushes down from the north and Cecil Rhodes up from the south.

Massacre Story Denied.

Hong Kong, Jan. 9.—According to the statements of people who have just arrived here from the Island of Balabac, south of the Island of Palawan, there is no truth in the report that the Spanish have been massacred by the Filipinos. They say that the story is an invention of the priests to prejudice the Filipino cause, declaring also that there are not more than half a dozen Spanish in the island, and that all who have been killed fell in warfare.

Glorious News.

Comes from Dr. D. B. Cargile, of Washita, I. T. He writes: "Four bottles of Electric Bitters has cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula, which had caused her great suffering for years. Terrible sores would break out on her head and face, and the best doctors could give no help; but her cure is complete and her health excellent." This shows what thousands have proved—that Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It stimulates liver, kidneys and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion builds up the strength. Only 50 cents. Sold by all druggists, every bottle guaranteed.

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA

To Gain Flesh, to Sleep Well, to Know What Appetite and Good Digestion Mean.

MAKE A TEST OF STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS.

No trouble is more common or more misunderstood than nervous dyspepsia. People having it think their nerves are to blame and are surprised that they are not cured by nerve medicines. The real seat of the mischief is lost sight of. The stomach is the organ to be looked after.

Nervous dyspeptics often do not have any pain whatever in the stomach, nor perhaps any of the usual symptoms of stomach weakness. Nervous dyspepsia shows itself out in the stomach so much as in nearly every organ. In some cases the heart palpitates and is irregular; in others the kidneys are affected; in others the bowels are constipated, with headaches; still others are troubled with loss of flesh and appetite with accumulations of gas, sour risings and heartburn.

It is safe to say that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure any stomach weakness or disease except cancer of the stomach. They cure sour stomach, gas, loss of flesh and appetite, sleeplessness, palpitation, heartburn, constipation and headache.

Send for valuable little book on stomach diseases by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., Mar hall, Mich. All druggists sell full-sized packages at 50 cents. Prof. Henry W. Becker, the well known religious worker and writer of St. Louis, Secretary of the Mission Board of the German Methodist church, Chief Clerk and Expert Accountant for the Harbor and Wharf Commission, Public Secretary for the St. Louis School Patrons' Association, and the District Conference of Stewards of the M. E. church; also takes an active part in the work of the Epworth League, and to write on religious and educational topics for several magazines. How he found relief is best told in his own words:

"Some weeks ago my brother heard me say something about indigestion, and taking a box from his pocket said "Try Stuart's Tablets." I did and was promptly relieved. Then I investigated the nature of the tablets and became satisfied that they were made of just the right things and in just the right proportions to aid in the assimilation of food. I heartily endorse them in all respects, and I keep them constantly on hand."

A False Alarm.

"Oh, John, dear," said Mrs. Nervous, "I'm so glad you've come home! I want you to go right out and have that new neighbor of ours arrested. He has been beating his wife and family all the morning, and the way they moan is too horrible for anything! It has thrown me into hysterics and a nervous headache, and—there, there! Do you hear that? Isn't it awful?"

But John, dear, looked out the window and only smiled.

"Why, what do you mean?" screamed his wife. "Are you as heartless as he? Will you, too, look on and hear a poor woman and her innocent children beaten to"—

"There, there, my dear, calm yourself! It's only the pulley on the new building that's going up on the next corner. It needs a little oil."—Detroit Free Press.

Carlyle Hears Dickens Read.

April 29, 1868, Carlyle wrote thus of one of Dickens' readings, says C. T. Copeland in The Atlantic: "I had to go yesterday to Dickens' reading 8 p. m., Hanover rooms, to the complete upsetting of my evening habitudes and spiritual composure. Dickens does do it capitally, such as it is; acts better than any Macready in the world; a whole tragic, comic, heroic theater visible, performing under one hat and keeping us laughing—in a sorry way, some of us thought—the whole night. He is a good creature, too, and makes £50 or £60 by each of the readings."

Putting in the Sting.

Clara—I understand that Mr. Featherley paid me a very pretty compliment today?

Ethel—Yes. What was it?

Clara—He said that among the most beautiful young ladies at the party was Miss Clara Smith.

Ethel (with a cough)—Yes, I noticed you among them.—London Fun.

The gradual cooling of France is proved by its vegetation. The Italian poplar, common in early French etchings, is now seldom seen in the country, while the lemon has disappeared from Languedoc and the orange from Roussillon.

It is intimated that the incandescent lamps in use in all parts of the world have over 400,000,000 candle power.

To all who find themselves with health gradually slipping away, kidneys and liver so disorganized that they are incapable of keeping the system free from poisonous waste material, stomach disordered, bowels constipated, head aching, back paining, take Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. The quick way they help you back to health will surprise you.

Children Cry for CASTORIA.

TWO NEWSPAPER STORIES.

Young Men Who Were Ready to Dare Anything For Fame.

Over in Vincennes, Ind., there lived a young man who, on reading of the destruction of the battleship Maine, became filled with a desire to invade Cuba with the first batch of war correspondents. His name is J. Willoughby Weep, and he is said to have written to Bob Paine, managing editor of the Cleveland Press, as follows:

"For $10 per week I want to go to Cuba as your correspondent and will live with the Cubans, camp with the Cuban army, and, if necessary, fight by the side of General Gomez."

The recipient of the letter is a wit, and in a caustic reply to Mr. Weep inquired what sum would he demand to go and die with the Cubans. He was amazed a few days later to be handed a letter from Vincennes in which the would be war correspondent made this answer:

"Fifteen dollars per week and expenses."

It goes without saying that Mr. Weep was employed, and, most strange to record, he was one of the best men in the field. He is now numbered with the regular writers for the Cleveland Press and at more than "$15 per week and expenses."

About the same time Managing Editor Paine was surprised to reach his desk one afternoon and find a telegram awaiting his arrival on which $1.80 was due. It was a carefully worded application for a job from a young man who resided in Zanesville, O. Such assurance appalled Paine, and he sat down and dashed off an answer in keeping with a popular song he had heard the night previous:

"Read your answer in the stars," read the dispatch, and it was sent "collect."

But on the following day he tore open a second telegram from Zanesville. Here it is:

"The stars say come." Within 24 hours the applicant was on hand in Cleveland, and the editor gave the young man a position on the paper.

Flower of the Family.

Mr. Watson, the postmaster of Willowby, has four sons who inherit their father's amiable disposition, but are wanting in "faculty," that characteristic of the successful New Englander.

"What are your sons doing, Mr. Watson?" inquired a former resident of Willowby, who had not seen the postmaster before for 12 years.

"Well," was the answer, "Jack, my oldest boy, he's a minister without a pulpit. Fred, the next one, he's a lawyer without a client, and William, the third one, he's a teacher without any school.

"But I've got some hopes of Sam, the youngest of the lot," said the head of the Watson family, with commendable cheerfulness. "He's set out to be a farmer without any land, but he's hired out a piece and worked it to halves, and we ate vegetables off it all summer.

"I paid him for supplying our family, and when he'd settled his bill for what he put into the ground to start with, he had within 50 cents of what he owed the boy that had helped him hoe and so on all summer.

"And I handed him over that 50 cents with a real light heart and told him he needn't ever think of it again. Yes, his mother and I feel to be encouraged about Sam; we think in the course of time he'll make a likely farmer."—Youth's Companion.

The Happiest Man In the World.

The more nations I make the acquaintance of the more deeply confirmed I get in this conviction that the Frenchman, with all his faults and shortcomings, is the happiest man in the world. Of course the wealthy classes have everywhere found the way of enjoying life more or less, but to the observer of national characteristics these classes are uninteresting. Good society is good society everywhere. For a study give me the masses of the people, and it is among the masses in France that, after all, I find the greatest amount of happiness. The Frenchman is a cheerful philosopher. He knows best of all how to live and enjoy life. Moderate in all his habits, he partakes of all the good things that nature has placed at his disposal without ever making a fool of himself.—Max O'Rell in North American Review.

WONDROUS REMEDY,

Is what a London Doctor Calls Dodd's Kidney Pills.

London, Jan. 9.—A large decrease in the number of cases of Kidney Disease has been noted in this city during the past year.

"There's only one thing to be said about it," said a prominent physician speaking on the subject the other day.

"This falling off is due solely to the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills by the people. Dodd's Kidney Pills are the most wondrous kidney remedy ever known. They are used in nearly every household, which accounts for the great decrease of Kidney Complaint."

Meant What He Said.

"Yes," said Mr. Jones, when a certain girl's name had been mentioned, "I know her to speak to, but not by sight."

"You mean," out in the prompt corrector—"you mean that you know her by sight, but not to speak to."

"Do I?" asked Mr. Jones anxiously.

The welcome announcement is made that E. H. Little need be said concerning the play, as its fame has been established since its initial presentation by Mr. Sothern at the Lyceum Theatre, New York, over two years ago. The cast that will present "An Enemy to the King," in this city was selected with special care, and rehearsed under Mr. Sothern's personal supervision. It is said that company and play have been greeted by most enthusiastic audiences. Seats now on sale.

A SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

Narrow Escape From Death of Mr Nathaniel Carew.

On Saturday night Mr. Nathaniel Carew, a blacksmith, of Emily, about a mile from the boundary of Eastmore, met with a severe accident, which by great good luck was prevented from ending fatally. He had been to town for a load of coal, and was driving a spirited team belonging to his brother-in-law, Mr. Thomas Hickey, of Eastmore. When descending a hill on the Communication Road near Mr. Sanderson's, it is supposed the vehicle ran forward upon the team and frightened them. They ran away and threw Mr. Hickey out, and it is supposed the vehicle passed over his thigh, breaking it. Of course Mr. Carew was helpless. He made an attempt to move, but the agonizing pain from his broken thigh prevented him, and he sank back helpless, with death staring him in the face, for it would not take long at the temperature that then prevailed to freeze a man to death. But after lying helpless for about an hour Messrs. Alex. Elliott and Thomas M. Hamilton, coming to town from Omemee, fortunately discovered him and, carrying him to Mr. Sanderson's, were the instruments of saving a human life. A telephone message was sent from the Chemong hotel to his brother, Mr. J. Carew, of the Carew House, and a hack was sent out, in which the injured man was brought to the Carew House, where Dr. McGrath attended to his injuries. Mr. Carew suffered less from the exposure to which his helpless condition subjected him than would be supposed—only his ears were frost-bitten, but it is morally certain that had he not been discovered at the time he was found in the highway with a broken thigh, he would have been in great danger of freezing to death.

OBITUARY.

The Late Maurice Londregan, of Otonabee.

Mr. Maurice Londregan died at his residence lot 29, 8th concession, of Otonabee on Saturday afternoon, Jan. 7th, after an illness lasting only from the previous day. A short time since he was kicked on one of his legs by a horse, but recovered so as to be able to move about. On Friday he was seized with an attack of heart disease and died on Saturday afternoon. The deceased was sixty-seven years of age, and was probably the oldest Canadian-born resident of the township. He was held in very high esteem by his neighbours and all who knew him. The very large number that followed his remains to the Roman Catholic cemetery in Peterborough Monday morning, was an evidence of the high place he held in the esteem of the community.

INAUGURAL MEETING OF THE TOWN COUNCIL.

ALDERMEN ELECT BECOME ALDERMEN DE FACTO.

The First Session of the Council of 1899—Mayor Davis Outlines a Civic Policy—The Needs of the Town—Russel Roller Bylaw Repealed—Auditors Appointed—Routine Business Transacted.

The first meeting of the new council was held this morning at 11 o'clock, according to statute, when the clerk announced that the declarations of qualification had been duly signed by Mayor Davis and Aldermen Henry Best, John Corkery, T. H. G. Danne, R. S. Davidson, E. H. D. Hall, Robert Neill, J. B McWilliams, W. Langford and John Sawers.

All the members were present.

THE MAYOR WELCOMED

the new council and expressed his pleasure at the result of the election. Judging from the personnel of the council, he thought he would have very little to do this year, as the council was composed, in his opinion, of such men as could handle the affairs of the town most capably without any interference from him. He said he congratulated the members on the high esteem in which they must be held by the citizens as shown by the large vote which had been polled. From all he had heard the people well pleased at the change in the formation of the council, and all the members must feel that it was far more honour to be elected as representing the whole town than a single ward.

There were two matters in particular to which the mayor wished to direct the attention of the council of 1899, viz., streets and manufactures.

In respect to the former, he stated that the town thoroughfares were not in proper shape. The work of the Sewerage and Street and Bridge Committees clashed, as did the duties of the street inspector and the town engineer. There was certainly a way of putting the streets in proper shape with more satisfactory results and a smaller expenditure of money. A policy had been laid down in respect to the sidewalks, and they could now be changed from boards to granolithic without increasing the assessment. The new steam roller would be of vast assistance in the improvement of the roadways. This year the Street and Bridge Committee would begin the year $4 500 richer than last season, as $1,500 of the 1897 account for lumber had to be paid last year, as well as $1 500 for lighting the streets and $1,500 for breaking stone. This year every account had been settled up to date.

As to the question of manufactures the Mayor expressed himself very strongly. This was a live question all over the country, and was one most vital one that Peterborough had to deal with. With so much power going to waste in the river, there was no reason why the population of Peterborough should not reach twenty or twenty-five thousand in the next five years, and the town made to hum with industry. He commended the question to the earnest consideration of the council.

were received and referred as follows:—

The council adjourned to meet this evening in regular session, and during the afternoon met in Committee of the Whole to strike the standing committees for the year. It is understood that a number of the committees will be amalgamated this year.

THE LAST RITES.

The Funeral of the Late Thomas Beavis Took Place on Saturday.

The funeral took place on Saturday afternoon of Peterborough's oldest resident, in the person of Thomas Beavis, aged 95, who has long been credited with having lived in the town longer than any other citizen.

The deceased was born in Ireland in 1803 and came to Canada with his parents, arriving in Peterborough in 1825. His father settled in 1828 on property where King street is now situated. In 1826 the deceased was married, and as there were no clergymen resident in Peterborough of that day, the ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Thompson, a Church of England clergyman of Cavan. Mr. Beavis was a shoemaker by trade, and having married he settled here and lived a quiet, industrious life, watching the settlement grow until it became Canada's most thriving town. He always was versed in municipal affairs, and many anecdotes and incidents of Peterborough's early history he could relate as an eye witness or a participant. In the early eighties the deceased was town constable, inspector of local licenses and janitor for the town buildings, these offices being combined in one man. After retiring from office he has not been actively engaged. He resided at the corner of Bethune and Simcoe streets for seventy years, and only left there a few months ago. He leaves six children, three sons and three daughters. The deceased was a Methodist in religion and always a strong Conservative.

After the ceremony was over an instructive address was given by Bro. Wm. Robinson, setting forth the duties of officers to their courts, and the importance of such offices; also from Bro. Hardwick on "How to make a Court successful." Good solid advice, which all may take, was given. Several others also spoke.

REV. THOS. MANNING IN GEORGE STREET CHURCH.

HE PREACHES TO LARGE CONGREGATIONS.

Sunday School Anniversary Sermons—Special Music Presented.

Rev. Thos. Manning, B.A., of Lindsay, preached both morning and evening yesterday in the George street Methodist church, the occasion being the observation of the Sunday school anniversary.

Large congregations were present at both services, the church being particularly well filled in the evening, when Mr. Manning delivered a most interesting sermon on Jesus Christ, as considered from a standpoint other than that of a Christian. In all the chronicles of the actions of Christ whilst upon earth, the speaker pointed out, no evidence of ignorance could be found. He was never at a disadvantage and appeared to be learned on all subjects. Other men could be selected who had been great statesmen, philosophers, teachers or warriors, but the attributes of all seemed to have been combined in Jesus Christ. Honour and admiration fell to the lot of some men because they were possessed of a certain virtue. How much more honour, therefore, should fall to One who possessed all of the virtues. He was the inspiration of genius, because He possessed the spirit of the poet, statesman and warrior combined.

Narrow minded persons were apt to express an adverse opinion in regard to Christianity, when its laws were transgressed by those who professed to follow the leadings of Christ.

Christ's own example should be followed, not that of others. Those who criticised the faith through this reason, should go to the Bible and then state what they think of the Saviour.

The choir assisted by the Sunday school orchestra, provided music at the morning service. The anthem "Praise ye Jehovah," was nicely rendered by the choir. The solo was taken by Miss Clara Belleghem in excellent style. During the offertory a duet was rendered by Misses Bertha Parnell and Irene Grey. Their singing was very sweet and expressive and was much appreciated. The anthem in the evening, entitled 'I will Lift up My Eyes," was excellently rendered. The solo and obligato were sung in excellent voice by Miss Clara Belleghem. The solo, "The Holy City," was rendered during the offertory by Miss Hammel of Whitby Ladies' College. Miss Hammel possesses a mezzo-soprano voice characterized by a noticeable fulness and richness of tone and the manner in which she gave Adams' beautiful composition was fully appreciated.

MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION.

Meeting this Morning—Christian Unity Considered—Visits to Hospital and Protestant Home.

The Ministerial Association met in the Y. M. C. A. parlour this morning. Apologies were received from Rev. Messrs. C. C. Elliott and J. C. Davidson, M.A.

Arrangements were made for the visitation of the hospital and Protestant Home for the month as follows:

NICHOLLS' HOSPITAL.

Jan. 9 h—Rev. Wm. Bennett.
Jan. 16 h—Rev. S. J. Shorey.
Jan. 23 d—Rev. J. G. Potter.
Jan. 30 h—Rev. H. Symonds.

PROTESTANT HOME.

Jan. 11th—Rev. Wm. Bennett.
Jan. 18 h—Rev. H Symonds.
Jan. 25 h—Rev J. G. Potter.
Feb. 1st—Rev. O. C. Elliott.

Rev. Mr. Symonds gave a very interesting and forcible address on "Christian Unity," and made reference to the work and purpose of the Canadian Society of Christian Unity, in which he has taken such a deep interest.

On motion of Rev. Dr. Torrance, seconded by Rev. Mr. Symonds, it was decided to arrange for a public meeting to be convened in the Y. M. C. A. building on Thursday, January 26 h, for the purpose of organizing a local branch of the above named society. Revs. Messrs. Symonds, Shorey and Potter were named as the committee to arrange a programme.

The meeting adjourned at 11 o'clock to give members an opportunity of attending the inauguration of the new town council.

CHURCH CHIMES.

A mission will be held in St. Luke's church beginning on February 3rd. The mission preacher will be Rev. G. Osborne Troop, of St. Martin's church, Montreal.

The Y.P.S.C.E. of St. Andrew's will have an open missionary meeting to night, when the Rev. J. G. Potter will give a talk on "India," to be illustrated by stereoptican views.

Mrs. A. G. Parker sang "Shepherd of Souls" in St. Luke's church last night. The words of the beautiful song are from Mr. Wilson Barrett's tale of the early days of Christianity, entitled "The Sign of the Cross."

At St. John's last night, in the course of an excellent sermon on the subject of "Sacrifice," Rev. E. V. Stevenson paid an eloquent tribute to the late Bishop Sullivan, whose life was a grand example of self-sacrifice in the promotion of the interests of the Church and for the benefit of his fellow-men.

The members of the Guild of St. Luke's church meet at Mr. R B Rogers' house on Tuesday evening of this week. All members of the congregation are invited to attend. Next week the congregational social under their auspices will be given in the school house.

Sergt.-Major Schoof gave an address last evening in Charlotte street church on mission work in South Africa. The large congregation was highly pleased and profited by the address, a foretaste of the treat in store for those who attend his lecture to-night.

St. Luke's Sunday school entertainment was held last week, when about fifty prizes were distributed. Three children attended fifty-two Sundays, and nine, fifty-one. Handsome special prizes presented by Mr. Spence, the Superintendent, were awarded to Bessie and Rossie Price, each fifty-two Sundays; to Keith Rogers, fifty-two Sundays, and Hugh Mackey and Sam Whittaker fifty-one Sundays each.

NEW WAY TO SAVE THE BUTTER FAT.

IMPORTANT TO DAIRYMEN.

Two Recent Inventions Which may Revolutionize the Dairying Industry.

Lancaster, Ont., January 6.—It is well known that the dairy industry of Canada is capable of almost limitless expansion. In the matter of cheese-making Canada did not enter very early into the race for position, but to-day Ontario alone produces more cheese than the total cheese exported by all the States in the Union. The manufacture of cheese and butter constitutes one of the most important industries of the province; hence it is of great interest to a large number of people. Any device that promises to facilitate the manufacture of butter or cheese and augment the ability to compete in the world's food market will be considered with eagerness. Two such inventions are submitted for consideration.

Mr. D. M. Macpherson, ex-M. P. P., for Glengarry County, has made what promises to be a valuable contribution to the dairy industry. Mr. Macpherson is a large cheese and butter manufacturer; he has manufactured cheese for upwards of thirty years by the most progressive and up-to-date methods. He has often given indisputable proof of possessing accurate and complete knowledge of all the details, difficulties and needs of the enterprise. Mr. Macpherson has studied to meet the following

REQUIREMENTS OF THE INDUSTRY:

1. A more simple, compact and economic arrangement of cheese and butter-making. 2. To provide a pump that will lend itself to ease of manipulation and perfect cleanliness. 3. To secure a process by which the butter fat now retained in the whey from cheese making may be extracted and incorporated into the milk of the following day, and made into cheese without extra cost. 4. To devise a combination factory outfit that will permit the manufacturer to respond and take advantage of the fluctuations in the ruling prices of butter and cheese in the open market.

It is generally conceded that the combination factory, that is, one fitted to make either cheese or butter is destined to be the only factory fully serviceable. To equip a cheese factory for this requirement means, according to the existing methods, disarrangement of present plant, extra cost of machinery, building space, a larger boiler and engine, extra shafting, belting, piping, fuel, etc., and this involves an expense of great consideration. In order to secure this ideal outfit at less cost, Mr. Macpherson utilizes a small, plain steam engine as motor, attached to and operating three pumps, one for elevating whole milk, another for elevating skimmed milk, or skimmed whey, and the third pump is used for pumping either cold or hot water into the boiler, or water tank.

FURTHER DETAILS.

This engine has two drive pulleys, which drive the curd mill, churn and butter works. The entire apparatus, engine, pumps, shafting, pulleys, etc., are portable, the engine and pumps are attached to one upright plank, with one end resting on the floor, while the other end is fastened to the upper ceiling. The proper and economic position of this apparatus and separator is at one end of the cheese or milk vat, and takes up only 20 inches of floor space across the width of the vat. The working of all the pumps, shafting, etc., can be carried on at the same time; any one or all parts can be worked together when necessary while butter or cheese is being made. This does not interfere with heating or stirring of the curd, because the heating is done by means of the exhaust from the engine and separator. This makes it possible to have the fresh whey immediately passed through the separator, and secures the whey cream in the best possible condition. The exhaust steam does all the heating of the curd and milk. This same cheese vat, without any displacement of apparatus or vat, can be used as a receiving vat when the cream is being separated and manufactured into butter.

It is well known to all dairymen that there is a

of butter fat incidental to cheesemaking. How to save it in a practical and profitable way has been an unsolved problem for some time. The amount of butter fat lost in making cheese is about three to five pounds of butter fat in every 1,000 lbs. of milk. This loss of butter has the effect of reducing the richness, texture and quantity of the cheese produced from a given quantity of milk. This loss is said to be about five to ten per cent. of value per 100 lbs. of milk according to the good or bad condition of the milk at the time of making cheese. The aggregate loss in this way to the entire Dominion is upwards of a million annually. These figures do not include loss from reduced richness or impaired texture. Mr. Macpherson claims to have solved the problem of how to collect and incorporate in the cheese the butter fat now lost in the whey. By actual experiment he extracted from the whey of 3,000 lbs. of milk 32 lbs. of cream, which is equal to 10 lbs. of butter fat, and on the following day incorporated the 32 lbs. of cream into 1,000 lbs. of fresh milk, ready to be converted into cheese. The tests were satisfactory, especially in showing a large increase of yield of cheese per 1,000 lbs. of milk.

The estimated and attested benefits of these inventions may be as follows:

1. Cleanliness in the pumping operations is made possible, without encroaching upon other desirable features expected in a pump. The lack of such a pump in the past has lost thousands of dollars to the milk producer.

2. They permit the manufacturer to install suitable apparatus for butter making or cream separation in any ordinary cheese factory, with the least possible expense, in regard to machinery or building requirements, etc., even without displacing vats, boilers or steam piping.

3. They provide a convenient method of saving the butter fat now lost in the whey while making cheese, and afford a simple process by which the butter fat may be incorporated in the cheese without any additional fuel and with but slight labour.

4. They give a large increased value to milk owing to increased yield and quality of cheese, also from the ability to make either cheese or butter, whichever pays best, during all seasons of the year.

5. The small steam boiler required such as is used by the average cheese factory, a boiler about four or five horse power is sufficient to handle ten or twelve thousand pounds of milk daily for either cheese or butter making or cream skimming.

6. The saving in equipping a creamery or skimming station is from $50 to $400, in such items as machinery, building space fuel, labour, etc.

7. It provides for the utilization of the exhaust steam, in heating milk, whey curds, water and building.

RECKLESS HORSEMANSHIP.

Italian Cavalrymen Wonderfully Expert in Daring Riding.

Although the Italians as a nation are rather indifferent horsemen, the cavalry of the Italian army has during the last few years cultivated the art of riding horseback to a much greater extent than heretofore. The improvement was mainly brought about by the creation of the high school of equitation for officers of the army at Tor di Quinto. This institute has achieved remarkable results. Of course it is a model riding school, as only such officers of the army who are already good riders are allowed to enter. The number is also limited to one officer from each regiment, and in return for his instruction an officer having passed through the course is compelled to serve as regimental riding master for one year. In this way a certain number of exceedingly efficient instructors are secured for the Italian army, and, as a matter of fact, the efficiency of the mounted soldiery has considerably increased within the last few years.

It is a well known specialty of the school at Tor di Quinto to train men and horses for work in very difficult territory. They make horses climb steep slopes, and, what is much more important in case of war, let them slide down almost vertical hillsides or embankments and similar daring feats. One would certainly question the wisdom of submitting both man and beast to the chances of danger to life and limb that evidently must be incurred when sliding down such a steep and long incline, the weight of the rider being added to that of the animal. It is little short of a miracle that the horse comes down safe, but yet this miracle is carefully practiced almost every day at Tor di Quinto and the sliding down act performed by any of the officers there without its ever having happened that either man or horse was hurt.

A Bismarck Romance.

Bismarck while still a raw university student was staying in the mountain region of the Tyrol near Ultenthal and fell deeply in love with a beautiful young peasant girl. He offered to make her his wife, and in order that his marriage should not take her from her beloved mountains he promised to give up his own country and stay in the Tyrol. The parents of the girl, simple peasant folk, objected, however, to their child, who had been brought up as a devout Catholic, being married to a Prussian junker, who was a Protestant to boot. So the romance, which threatened to lose a Bismarck for Prussia, came to a sudden end, and the hero of it returned to his alma mater at Berlin. In a hall at Ultenthal there is still to be seen a picture of Bismarck in the uniform of his younger days. The heroine of the romance died many years ago as the well to do widow of an Austrian landed proprietor.—St. James Gazette.

The "I's" and "Y's."

By a rule of our acoidence y is changed to i whenever es or ed is added to a word ending in y after a consonant, but no change is made when s or ed is added to a word ending in y after a vowel. Familiar examples, besides money, are bay, key, toy, buy, alley, attorney, chimney, donkey, journey, kidney, pulley, valley. Nothing can be said against the change of y to i, seeing that in earlier times there was scarcely any distinction between the two vowels, but there is something monstrous in the thought of changing the combinations ey into ie when we would add s, and into i when we would add ed. "Monies" and "honied" are, in these days, oddities reconcilable, like "donkies," "monkies," etc., only with ignorance.—Notes and Queries.

THE SURPRISE PENHOLDER.

Something a Man Ought to Be Able to Keep on His Desk.

There is a very clever trick pen. Let us suppose that a gentleman is seated at his desk and is busily writing when a neighbor comes in, and he jokingly challenges the latter to try to forge his signature. He hands the pen to his friend, who attempts to write. Immediately there is an explosion and the paper receives a big ink blot. The writer is apt to be surprised by the report, which is like a pistol shot, and, if a timid person, is apt to be frightened. The noise comes from the pen itself, as it is so constructed that it can be loaded and shot off at will. The person in the secret can handle the pen with safety, but the poor unfortunate will experience a rather unexpected shock to his nerves when he attempts to write with it.

The upper part of the penholder into which an ordinary writing pen is thrust works on a pivot about half way down its length. This separate part is provided with only half a bottom, in order that it may engage the conical head of a piston rod which ends in a plunger, which sets off the cap secured in the bottom of the penholder. The normal position of the plunger is against the cap of the holder, but it can be raised by means of a projecting pin riveted to the rod and passing through a slot cut in the side of the lower part of the holder. Now, the closed half of the bottom of the pivoted end enters a notch caused by the conical head of the plunger, and the plunger with its spring is cocked, as it were, by means of the projecting pin and is held in place by the bottom of the pivoted section. When the pen is pressed to the paper, the pivoted section swings on the pivot, releasing the plunger, which is forced down on the explosive cap by the spring.—Scientific American.

Hardly a family in the country is free from Diabetes. Great thirst, failing sight, numbness in the thighs, bleeding gums, swollen ankles, emaciation, nervousness, pale or turbid urine, loss of sexual power, decaying teeth, pains in the loins or small of the back, are all positive signs that Diabetes is in the system.

Do you know how it ends? In DEATH. A premature, horrible, agonized, pitiful death. The victim has no peace, no ease in life. His days are filled with tortures. His nights are waking dreams of agony. He longs to die, yet fears the terrors of his end. He dies, a bloated, fetid, repulsive mass of corruption. That is the only end of unchecked Diabetes. Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it. They drive it out of the system thoroughly, create new, clean blood, rebuild the diseased kidneys, and restore robust health.

LINCOLN'S ADVICE.

What He Told a Committee of Scared New Yorkers.

Colonel J. V. S. Paddock, late of the regular army, tells a story about President Lincoln which he vouches for as being absolutely true. The story goes away back to the early days of the civil war, when it did look as if the Confederates were going to annihilate the north. The Alabama and the Shenandoah were in commission and were threatening our coast cities with destruction. There certainly was a very lively fear entertained in New York city that the Alabama was soon to begin a bombardment, and some of the prominent citizens began to worry. A meeting was called, and three of the wealthiest men there at that time, merchant princes, in fact, were chosen as a committee to go to Washington and ask the president to at once begin fortifying the harbor.

This committee happened to be composed of men of small stature, chunky little fellows, but with an enormous idea of their own importance. They reached Washington and went to the Ebbitt House, where they had breakfast. It was their intention to stroll leisurely to the White House, state the object of their visit to the president, take him out to lunch with them and get back to New York early in the evening.

The committee reached the White House about 11 o'clock. They fully expected to be ushered at once into the presence of Mr. Lincoln, but they were not. They waited out in the anteroom like all the others, and at the end of an hour they concluded that the president had some business to attend to besides that of a New York committee.

But at last, about 2 p. m., ravenously hungry and impatient at the delay, they were ushered in to see Mr. Lincoln. Their astonishment was unbounded when they learned he did not know them, but they took great care he should learn all about who they were and their wealth and importance. The chairman had prepared a speech, but some way, talking up to the president, who towered above them like a giant, it did not sound as flowery and grand as when he had rehearsed it to his colleagues at the breakfast table.

Mr. Lincoln listened to them gravely, seriously, attentively. When the chairman had finished and the others had put in the weight of their words, he said:

"Well, now, gentlemen, I'll tell you what I would do were I in your place. If I were as rich as you say you are and half as scared as you to all appearances are, I would go back to New York and fortify the harbor myself."—New York Telegram.

LINERS LOST AT SEA.

A CAPTAIN'S STORY OF WHO IS OFTENEST TO BLAME.

He Also Suggests Why, When an Ocean Steamer Goes Down, Her Commander is Seldom to Be Found Among Those Who Were Saved.

"There's another side to this question of the criminal carelessness of the commander which we hear so much talk about whenever a liner is lost," said the captain of a big ocean steamship the other day. "It's not the captain who is really to blame in one case out of ten even when he is running his ship at full speed through a fog. It's the public that's to blame, and I'll tell you how it is.

"To begin with, everybody knows of the rivalry between the different lines. Everybody knows what a difference there is, in the estimation of the public, between the rival boats of the same grade which start at the same time and come in 24 hours apart. The man who has traveled by the boat that comes in last is going to say to himself that next time he will go on the So-and-so, which must be a better boat, for didn't she come in a day ahead of the one he came on?

"The captain of boat No. 1 is a hero for the time being, and the company he works for smiles on him. That he has run all the way at full speed through heavy seas and fogs and has taken all kinds of risks he knows, but he doesn't say anything about that, and the company doesn't, either. They have beaten the other line, and that is enough.

"The captain of boat No. 2, which came in a day behind the other, knows just what is in store for him before he reports at the office of his company. This is about what he hears:

"'Why, how is this, Mr. Blank? You came in 24 hours behind the So-and-so. What was the matter anyhow?'

"'Well, you see,' says the captain, 'we had storms part of the way, and when we got to the banks we struck a fog so thick you couldn't see your hand before your face, and we had to run at half speed all day.'

"'Ahem!' one of the owners will say. 'Ahem! It's a bad thing, Mr. Blank, for us to be beaten 24 hours by the So-and-so.'

"Captain Blank says no more, but feels that he has been reproved, and he remembers it on the next trip. The sea may be running 'mountains high' and the fog may be so thick you can't see the funnel from the bridge, but he is bound to get in on time this trip, and he does. The owners of the line smile on him. So he knows what he is required to do and goes on making record trips.

"It is the public, you see, which the company has got to please if it is to exist, and the captain has to please the company. Some day he does this once too often. He collides with another ship in a fog, maybe, or runs on the rocks. Perhaps the natural love of life or the thought of a helpless family keeps him from deliberately going to the bottom with the ship, but he knows that his career is at an end.

"The board sits on the case, and if there is any evidence to show that the accident was due to the carelessness of the commander in running at full speed in thick weather, or whatever the case may be, he is reprimanded and his certificate suspended for some months at least. When at last he gets the certificate back, it has a hole punched in it.

"Now let us suppose that he has been a faithful servant of the company for a good while, and they like him and decide to transfer him to another ship and give him a chance for existence. This new ship has to be insured, of course, before she goes to sea. The underwriters make their examination and in the course of their inquiries there comes up the question as to who is the captain of the ship.

"When they hear the name, they will probably say: 'Why, let us see! Isn't he the man who sunk the So-and-so? Yes? Oh, we can't take any risks on a ship commanded by Captain Blank! Put another commander in his place and it will be all right.'

"The company is therefore obliged to dismiss Captain Blank. Then he starts out to find another situation. His certificate, you remember, has a hole in it. He goes to see the owners of another line. As soon as they hear his name they say:

"'Oh, yes. Didn't you command the So-and-so?'

"'Yes, I commanded that boat.'

"'Humph! Very sorry, captain, but we haven't anything just now. If we should have anything, we will let you know.'

"This scene is repeated at one steamship office after another on both sides of the water."

The captain leaned his elbows on the table. "Do you wonder," he said after a pause, "that generally when a liner is lost at sea her commander isn't among the saved? But mark my words," he added, rising, "in almost every disaster, when the cry of negligence is loudest, it's the public that's to blame and not the captain, who only does what he is obliged to do."

ACETYLENE GAS EXPLOSION.

Millbrook Has an Experience That She Will Not Soon Forget.

Millbrook, Ont., Jan. 7.—About 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon this village was startled by a terrific explosion, which, on investigation, proved to have occurred on the premises occupied by the A. B. Scott Co., general merchants, due to the explosion of their acetylene gas machine. The plate glass windows in the front of the building were almost totally wrecked; the windows on the second floor were also broken out. A large window in the centre of the back of the building was completely destroyed, being blown out, with its frame, leaving nothing but the brickwork. The cellar doors leading to the machine were broken from their hinges, and badly damaged. The goods in the store were disturbed, but no serious damage was done to them. No one was seriously injured. Mr. Scott was slightly burned, and Miss Walls, the dress and mantle maker, was struck on the head by flying debris. The cause is supposed to be charging the machine while it was in operation.

The Mesaba, after standing by the Catania for 29 hours, could not find her on the morning of Dec. 30, and proceeded for London.

Dr. A. W. CHASE

COMES TO THE AID OF

Catarrh Sufferers

SUCCESS in life is almost impossible for a man with bad breath. Nobody wants to do business with him. Nobody wants to associate with him. He is handicapped everywhere. Offensive breath comes from Catarrh; sometimes from Catarrh of the Stomach, sometimes of the lungs, sometimes of the head, nose, and throat. It is from Catarrh somewhere, and Catarrh is another name for uncleanness.

Many men understand this, and make every effort to cure it, but it is beyond the reach of ordinary practice.

No self-respecting man can ignore Catarrh. If he has it in any form he makes constant effort to be rid of it.

There is something about the manner of life and the climate of Canada that seems to breed diseases of the mucous membrane. Medical science ordinarily doesn't try to cure Catarrh; it "relieves" it; but Dr. Chase has been curing Catarrh for over thirty years, and his name is blessed by thousands who have shaken off the grasp of this insidious disease.

"IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY."

To Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, North American Life Assurance Co., Toronto:

DEAR SIR.—Your official notice came duly to hand, apprising me of the results obtainable upon my 15 year endowment Policy in your Company for $1,000 which matured on the 5th inst. Of the various options you have given me viz.:

Cash value	$1,564 98
Paid-up Policy, payable at my death, for	2,560 00
Yearly Income for life of	166 20

I have decided upon the cash value; and it gives me pleasure to testify that, as I anticipated it would be when I took out the policy, IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY. This returns me the full premiums of the 15 years and over 4½ per cent. compound interest, in addition to which you have carried the risk upon my life. In view of the low ing rates of interest which have been obtainable during the latter portion of the period, it is difficult to see how this excellent result could have been surpassed.

A Woman's Crime.

A THRILLING STORY OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE.

BY LAWRENCE M. LYNCH.

The old nobleman moves uneasily in his chair, and one aristocratic hand toys nervously with a paper weight, as he replies:—

"You are too sensitive, Ferrars. I may have questioned the advisability of one or two things, but I have had, and still have, perfect confidence in your skill. Why, man, nobody in England doubts that."

"Nevertheless, Sir Hillary, I must insist upon this hearing. Blunders have been made—shameful ones. But the fault shall rest where it belongs. I will take the consequences of my mistakes; others who deal with me must carry the burden of theirs. If I am to conduct this case further, we must thoroughly review the ground, and begin afresh, with a better understanding."

"If you are to conduct it!" broke in Sir Hillary. "Why, man, of course you are. I would trust it to no one else; and I will keep it moving until I die."

"Then—so will I," replied Francis Ferrars, all unconscious that he had well-nigh uttered a prophecy.

"Now, then, Sir Hillary," he resumed, in that calm, even, wonderfully mellow voice of his, and at the same time taking from his pocket a package of papers, "we will begin, if you please, at the beginning."

"Proceed then," said Sir Hillary, sinking back with a half sigh. "If you must, you will, Ferrars; but I protest; it is unnecessary."

"I think I shall convince you that it is not unnecessary," replied the detective, tranquilly. And opening the packet, he took up the first paper, to which he referred from time to time.

"First, then, Sir Hillary," he began. "Long ago, some three years and four months since, you applied to Scotland Yard for my services in a private case, and my chief detailed me for as long a time as your case should require. None of us dreamed then that it would be prolonged year after year, and take me half over the world. When I came to you for instructions, this is what you told me. Some fourteen years ago, you said, in a small village in the south of France, there had lived a woman, young and beautiful; she was supposed to be married to a young Englishman of good family, and was herself of good blood, on the side of the mother, who had been guilty of a mesalliance. The marriage with the Englishman had ben a private one, and they had lived under an assumed name. They had one child, a girl, then more than a year old, and seemed very happy in their seclusion. But one day the husband disappeared, and the young wife had good reason for believing herself forsaken. There had been one or two stormy scenes between her and some of the husband's relatives, and when the husband forsook her, she conceived the idea that sooner or later he would rob her of her child; and she fled from the vine country, leaving no clue to her whereabouts or intentions behind her. The manner in which you set about this case proved that you were a novice in such matters. You gave me names, dates, addresses, and a picture of the woman. You also furnished me with the names and all that you knew of her family—and yet, you gave me only half confidence. Is not that true, Sir Hillary Massinger?"

Sir Hillary had been sitting with one hand shading his face, and the other working nervously, clasping and unclasping itself, as it lay on the velvet arm of his chair. He never looked up, as the detective paused for a reply; he only said, in a low, constrained tone:—

"Yes—that is true."

"Here, then, occurred the first mistake, and because of it I spent months of valuable time in useless search. The lady had been missing fourteen years, and I needed everything that you could tell me to guide me in my search—everything. In order to successfully follow such missing ones, a detective should know their antecedents, who their friends are, who are their enemies, and what their tastes and favourite pursuits are. If he does not know these things his first task is to learn them. You did not choose to tell me these things, so, after eight months' search, I came to you, and told you what you already knew; namely, that the missing lady was the wife of your only son; that you had been at first ignorant of the marriage, and that, when it came to your knowledge, you took measures which, whether you intended it or not, had the effect of eventually separating the young husband and wife, of wrecking his health and happiness, and of making her an outcast and a wanderer."

"True," said Sir Hillary, with a groan. "I know it!—I know it now!"

"And yet—even then you did not tell me all," resumed the detective, almost sternly. "Month after month passed away; I scoured France, Italy, Germany, Spain; I searched the provinces, and little less than a year ago I came to you and said that I had made one discovery, namely, that some cause that I could not understand lay behind all that you had told me concerning this woman, and that I believed that some one beside yourself had been instrumental in bringing about her trouble. I insisted upon being told of every enemy you or your son might have had, and I insisted upon being told the true reason why you desired now, at this late day, to find this woman and her child. I would have nothing less than the whole truth, and finally, out very reluctantly, you told me all, or so I believed and do still."

"Yes," interrupted Sir Hillary, "I told you the truth then."

"You told me that your son had died estranged from you, that you being a widower had then married a young wife and hoped for an heir. But your wife died childless, and within the year almost, and then the man who would of necessity inherit after you began to manifest himself. You had always disliked the man and with good reason, and you had never dreamed of his becoming your heir. There was but one way to prevent it, however; the females of the house of Massinger were lawful inheritors; this man belonged to a very remote branch. If you could find your son's child you would have an heiress, and Jason Bradwardine would be cut off. Anything was better than Jason Bradwardine, and so you set me to look up the missing heiress, without telling me that a man who had the strongest possible interest in keeping this heiress from communicating with you was in existence."

"I tell you, man, I never dreamed of such a thing, and I hated his very name. I never thought of the possibility of his inheriting after me until my wife died. And I know that his elder brother was alive until four or five years ago. I don't believe he ever thought of the succession until I became a widower and childless."

"You think so. Listen, Sir Hillary Massinger. For more than a year I have been like a sleuth hound on the trail of that man. I have been near him when he little dreamed it. I have won the confidence of his servants and his friends. He is base, he is treacherous, he is cunning; he has schemed all these years to become Sir Jason Massinger, of Hillary hall. He has borrowed money on his expectations, and because you have been blinded, I have been following shadows. His elder brother died nearly eighteen years ago, and the letters you have received, purporting to come from him, have been forgeries on the dead, perpetrated by this schemer. Jason Bradwardine has known where to put his hand upon your heiress; whether he knows her whereabouts now, is, I think, doubtful. He has been living in a villa in one of the London suburbs, and there is now a woman there who calls herself his wife. I happen to know this to be a pleasant fiction of hers, however. Not long ago I contrived, no matter how, to gain access to the house and his private room; my strategy was not a very safe one, but I took the risk, and forcing open his private desk, examined its contents. It was there I found evidence enough to convince me that he had, years ago, known the hiding-place of your son's wife. I may as well tell you how I accomplished my work, perhaps. The villa is very solitary, and few men were in the vicinity at that hour. I approached the house as a tramp, and entered it as a robber. I frightened the woman, and the two female servants, and they submitted, while I searched the house and their pockets. From the pocket of the mistress I abstracted this letter; see, it is in Jason Bradwardine's hand, and is mailed from America, from a place called Fairlie, in the State of—. It is dated August last. I had omitted to say that while I was lying ill, for a little less than a week, Bradwardine had disappeared. I have not seen him since June last; nor could I find a clue to his whereabouts until I came into possession of this letter."

The detective paused for a moment, and gathered up his papers, while Sir Hillary sat staring at him, and striving to digest this, to him, startling revelation of Bradwardine's cunning.

"I think you will now do me the justice to say that the blunders in working this case have not been of my making, Sir Hillary," said Francis Ferrars, rising as if his business were now completed.

"No, by Heavens, Ferrars!" cried the old man, rising in his turn. "It has been my fault, first and last! I have been blind, a dolt, a fool! My accursed pride has stood between me and the only thing that can make happy one remaining hour of my life, my last hour. And now it may be, it probably is, too late to remedy the wrong I have helped to do."

His voice sank to a hopeless cadence, and he threw himself wearily back in the great arm chair once more.

"On the contrary, Sir Hillary; for the first time, I see a ray of hope for us. My course is mapped out; I shall follow it vigorously; and—I believe I shall succeed."

"What are you going to do?"

"I am going to America by the first steamer."

CHAPTER XXVI.

JOCELYN INVESTIGATES.

"The game Jason Bradwardine is in search of is the same that you are hunting down; Lenore Armyn-Arteveldt, the fugitive bride and supposed murderess."

Rob Jocelyn's low-spoken words brought Neil Bathurst to his feet with a bound.

"Rob! Are you in earnest?" he cried, giving his friend a little shake; "is Bradwardine really in search of Lenore Armyn?"

"He really is, Neil. Good Lord, man, let up that grip on my arm!" said Rob, jerking himself from the tender clasp of Neil's powerful hand. "Bless me, but you are a fraud, old boy; you don't look much to speak of beside me. I almost wish I were not quite so high, and so wide myself, just for the satisfaction of seeing the victims stare out of the eye that wasn't blacked when I knocked 'em down so nice and easy. Just, knock me over once, Neil; I want to see your arm shoot out."

"By thunder! I will, if you don't stop your nonsense, you chaffing old elephant!" replied Neil, with an impatient half laugh. "I want to get down to business. I am thoroughly astounded. The whole thing, from first to last, seems like fatality. So those letters that I picked up, on general principles, as it were, were written by the mother of my fugitive?"

"They certainly were," replied Rob, dropping his jesting tone.

"Tell me what you know about this, Rob."

"Well, you see I came here at his very heels, and it didn't take me long to find out that he was trying to come the friendly dodge on Doctor Austin. He made a good many enquiries about Mrs. Armyn and her daughter of one and another, in a sort of round-about way, and then I had him safe. He pretended that he wanted to buy the Armyn cottage for a summer residence, etc. Well, when I once got my suspicions aroused, it was easy for me as a census-taker to find old women, and young ones, too, for that matter, who would talk by the yard about anything. I found out that the coming of Mrs. Armyn and child to this village would correspond with the date on which she left Elm Valley; then, too, the descriptions tallied. There's no doubt about the matter, Mrs. Armyn is the woman he was hunting, and, now that she is dead, he transfers his attentions to the daughter."

"You can't guess his motives?"

"Well, I should say she was in his way somehow. I think his motive is bad."

"No doubt."

"Do you think Bradwardine knows of the murder, Rob?"

"No, I don't. Why, think, man, I didn't know it myself; there are so few of the city papers coming to this out-of-the way place. All their news seems to come from the State papers. And I don't think Bradwardine reads the papers much; he is one of those confounded bigoted Englishmen who think American literature beneath them."

"Well, I hope he will continue to think so, that is all. Then there is a chance that Doctor Austin is none the wiser?"

"Yes, a 'right smart chance,' I should say."

"And Jason Bradwardine is trying to win the confidence of the old doctor?"

"Yes; and no doubt he will do it if you don't put a damper on him."

"I'll put a damper on him. Come, Mr. Census-taker-man, it's almost morning, and we want some sleep."

"But I say, young man, what wire do you intend pulling here? How will you work against Bradwardine?"

"I'm John Jacob Austin," laughed Neil, turning toward the house. "I have laid the train already. Before the week is out I shall be studying medicine with Doctor Austin."

"Good! Enough said! Write me out those addresses, and slip them to me in the morning. I'll report to you in a day or two."

"Very good; but we can't send much through the mail; country post-office curiosity is too keen. Don't send oftener than is positively necessary."

They re-entered the house as they had left it, no one save themselves being the wiser of their consultation.

IT ENDED HER TROUBLE.

"I never courted newspaper notoriety, yet I am not afraid to speak a good word for your 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Pleasant Pellets.' Over a year ago I suffered terribly for nearly four weeks with prolapsus and weakness. After using one bottle of 'Favorite Prescription' and one of 'Pellets,' I was a well woman. I have taken no medicine since and have had no symptoms of my former trouble."—Mrs. E. A. Bender, Keene, Coshocton Co., Ohio.

Great Lake Under London.

London, Jan. 9. — Walter Mosley, engineering expert of the London County Council, has informed that body that underneath London is an immense lake of pure cold water, in a chalk basin 2,546 square miles in extent and 100 feet below the surface of the ground. The annual rainfall that sinks below to the lake is in minimum two hundred and eighty thousand million gallons, which would give a daily yield of seven hundred and sixty-six million gallons. The suggestion now before the Council is to sink artesian wells for the supply of water, instead of an extensive scheme of bringing it from Wales, as has been proposed.

Some of these growths, says a writer in London Answers who is describing his visit to a germ farm, are exceedingly expensive. Indeed a rare bacillus seems to be as valuable in its way as a scarce orchid. I was shown, for instance, a species known as the bacillus indicus ruber, which is found only in the stomachs of certain monkeys, and for a colony of which a £10 note was asked.

On the other hand, you can buy enough scarlet fever microcooci to infect a decent sized town for $9.50, while twice that sum will provide you with a choice collection of fine, healthy typhoid germs. Leprosy bacilli come expensive, though $25 per colony, while as much as $40 is asked for selected colonies of the bacillus of conjunctivitis or typhus. This would work out at something like $1,250,000 per pint.—New York World.

So much depends on the purity of the blood that by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla many different diseases are cured.

TURNED THE TABLES.

A STORY OF ARTEMUS WARD AND HENRY J. BYRON.

The Famous Wit Started In to Have Some Fun With the Dramatist, but Found In the End That He Had Met His Match at Chaffing.

What follows relates to the first meeting of the late Henry J. Byron and Artemus Ward. It was at the Savage club after one of the Saturday dinners, and Tom Robertson suggested to Artemus to have a tilt with Byron and, if possible, draw him out. The genial showman had only been in England a few days, but he knew Byron's "metier" and went for him in this fashion:

"I fancy I have seen a face like yours before. Did you ever have a brother Alonzo?" Robertson was behind Artemus and winked at Byron.

"Alas, I had!" replied the dramatist, instantly catching the situation.

"He was a mariner, engaged on the deep?"

"That's so."

"You haven't heard of him for five years?"

Byron affected to be lost in reflection and deliberately replied: "It's five years ago this very day. How curious you should mention it, sir!"

"Well, sir," replied Artemus, taking out his handkerchief and pretending to wipe away a tear, "I sailed the salt sea with your brother. We were wrecked together in the gulf of Mexico, and before help came I killed and ate him! The moment I saw you I recognized the likeness. He was a good fellow, full of tender feeling."

"I am glad you found him tender," interrupted Byron, also pulling out his handkerchief.

"But, sir, I am awfully sorry I ate him," said Artemus in the most imperturbable fashion. "Had I known I should ever meet his brother I am sure I'd have gone without food some weeks longer. But I was driven to it, and you will forgive me, won't you? I liked Alonzo," and he offered his hand to Byron, which the latter shook with cordiality.

"Excuse my emotion, won't you?" gasped Byron in his handkerchief. "He never wrote and told me what had become of him. I hope he agreed with you."

"A slight indigestion afterward. He was a little tough," replied Artemus, "but we'll not speak of that. We both suffered. He suffered most. But remember, sir, the law can't touch me now. It was stern necessity, and necessity, as you may have heard, knows no law. But I am willing to pay you damages for the loss. About what would you think a fair compensation?"

"Don't mention it," said Byron, who now thought it time to turn the tables. "I think your name is Ward?" said he.

"Yes."

"Artemus Ward?"

"Quite so."

"You had a father?"

"I had."

"He was a Yankee peddler in his own country, was he not? Sold bug pizen and fine tooth combs?"

"You've hit the comb—I mean the nail—on the head."

"He died in the black country of England, did he not?"

"He did."

"Well, I killed him. I knew you were his son the moment I laid eyes on you. He was a nice old gentleman, and I made his acquaintance in Staffordshire. He wished to go down a deep coal mine; so did I, and we went down together, had a good time, explored, lunched with the miners, drank more than was good for us and proceeded to return to Mother Earth's surface. After you have been down a mine you are fond of your mother, I assure you. The prodigal felt nothing to what I experienced. We entered the huge basket and were being slowly drawn toward the mouth of the pit when I saw the old rope was about to snap under the strain. It was a perilous, a horrible, a critical moment. The weight of two men was too great, and your father was a broad, bulky man. Self preservation is the first law of nature. An instant more and we were both lost. We seemed to be about 50 feet from the top.

I hastily called your father's attention to something—implored him, in fact, to look down the mine. He did so, and as I gently tipped him over he went whirling and crashing to the bottom. It was rough on him, but I saved myself. I ciphered it out on the instant like this: He is an old man, nearly bald, deaf in one ear, two teeth gone in front, with only a few years to live. I am half his age, strong and healthy, the father of a young family, with a career before me, a comedy to finish for the Haymarket and a burlesque accepted at the Strand. Now, I ask you, under the circumstances, did I not behave nobly?"

"You did, you did!" sobbed Artemus. "I would have acted that way myself."

"I am glad to find you so intelligent. You ate my brother and found him tough, and I am the assassin of your dear old father," continued Byron, keeping up the farce of pretended emotion. "We are both avenged. Let us draw a veil over the past and never allude to these heartrending incidents again."

"Agreed. We cry quits. Shake!" roared Artemus, extending both hands and dramatically dashing a flood of imaginary tears from his eyes. Then he summoned a waiter, glasses round were speedily ordered, and everybody was full of congratulations upon the ready manner in which the two wits had conducted their impromptu chaff.—Exchange.

THE BOYS CALLED HIM MIKE.

It Grieved His Mother, but the "Old Man" Thought It Was Smart.

"Where's the boy?" inquired Mr. Spadina cheerily, and it occurred to him that it was about time for his 7-year-old son to bid him good night.

"Not sick?"

"No, he is not sick," said Mrs. Spadina in a tone that implied something even worse. "I've been waiting for an opportunity to tell you all about it, but have not had a chance until now. It just means this—that we must move away from this neighborhood. It's no place to bring up a boy, and I just won't stand it. We must get a house in some part of the city where Harold will have nice children to play with."

"But what's the matter?" asked the husband with concern. "What has happened?"

"Well, I'm telling you just as fast as I can. This afternoon when the doorbell rang I was in the hall and answered the door myself, for I saw a boy there. On opening the door the boy said to me, 'Please, can Mike come out and play ball?' I told him that we had no Mike here and said that he had called at the wrong house. 'No,' he said, 'I mean Mike, you know—your boy Mike. I guess you call him Harold,' he said.

"Now, what do you think of that? Well, you may be sure I told that boy what I thought of him, and he began to whimper and said that Harold had licked him—that's just what he said—Harold had licked him yesterday for not calling him Mike, and everybody called him Mike at school. And it's worse than that, for they call him Mike Spad—not Harold Spadina, but Mike Spad."

"Well, upon my word!" exclaimed Mr. Spadina.

"I marched out into the dining room, where Harold was eating some bread and butter," continued Mrs. Spadina, "and I went for him, and do you know that child sat up in his chair and said that he'd rather be called Mike than Harold, and that since his chums had started to call him Mike Spad the other gang's afraid of him. Well, I just sent him off to bed at 5 o'clock, and he's there yet. Mike Spad," she added with intense feeling on each word.

"The little scamp!" exclaimed Mr. Spadina.

"We have been talking of getting a better house in some other part of the city for a long time," said Mrs. Spadina, "and I'm sick and tired of this place. We can't send him over to that school any longer, with its rowdy names and its gangs and its fighting. Harold has clearly been fighting, for the boy said as much."

The father was looking silently at the ceiling and puffing at his evening cigar. He generally thought matters over before giving his decision, and Mrs. Spadina cautiously went up stairs, where she found the formidable Mike Spad sound asleep and with the clothing kicked off him.

And Mr. Spadina blew a whiff from his cigar and said, "At school they used to call me Bump." And presently he smiled, and, knocking the ash off his cigar, he chuckled: "There's good stuff in Mike. I wonder how big the boy was that he walloped?"

And the important point is that of the son, the mother and the father one was as true to human nature as either of the others.—Toronto Saturday Night.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

A man of wealth is never cranky—he's merely eccentric.

Learning and wisdom don't always travel hand in hand.

The only kind of fruit Noah had in the ark was preserved pairs.

Some people should take more pains to conceal what they know.

Brains are the lawyer's stock in trade, and he sells them by the case.

Many of the words that burn are taken from the editorial wastebasket.

About two-thirds of a man's so called friends would fail to stand the test.

The only material difference between a cold and the grip is the doctor's bill.

When a man jumps at conclusions, he doesn't always light where he expected to.

The trouble with the charity that begins at home is that it seldom gets any farther.

Some hats make a woman's face look long, but not half as long as her husband's when he gets the bill.

ANIMAL ODDITIES.

Two sexton beetles will bury a mole in an hour, a feat equivalent to two men interring a whale in the same length of time.

The hays bird of India has the curious habit of fastening fireflies to its nest with moist clay. On a dark night such a nest might be taken for an electric street lamp.

Caged lions, tigers, pumas and jaguars take no notice of the men and women passing in front of them, but if a dog be brought anywhere near the cage they show their savage nature at once.

The camel's foot is a soft cushion, peculiarly well adapted to the ground on which it is constantly walking. During a single journey through the Sahara desert horses have worn out three sets of shoes, while the camel's feet are not even sore.

When the Fate of the Philippines Will Be Determined.

FILIPINOS AGAINST AMERICANS.

The Settlement, However, May Yet Be Peaceful, Although Insurgent General Aguinaldo Has Issued Two Strong Manifestos—Major-General Otis Said to Have the Whole Situation in Hand.

Manila, Jan. 10.—The situation is rapidly approaching a climax, and it's just possible that to-day will see a peaceful solution.

Meanwhile, all sorts of alarmist rumors are in circulation. The United States authorities are taking every precaution; the troops in quarters are under arms and the Californians have disembarked from the transports.

The natives, it is reported, have been ordered not to work for the Americans, and the employes in the commissary department have gone on strike. Many natives are leaving the city.

Major-General Otis, however, has the whole situation thoroughly in hand.

A second proclamation by Aguinaldo, bearing the same date as the one which immediately followed the proclamation of Major-General Otis, based upon President McKinley's instructions, first appeared in the streets yesterday, but it is alleged they have been recalled. Its terms are much more vehement than those used in the first proclamation. Aguinaldo threatens to drive the Americans from the islands, calls the Deity to witness that their blood will be on their own heads if it is shed, and details at great length the promises he claims were made by the Americans as to the part of the insurgents in the campaign.

It is believed that this second proclamation is the original draft, which was not adopted by the Filipino Congress at Malolos.

OTIS WILL NOT BEGIN HOSTILITIES.

Although Philippine Situation Is Such That War Can Hardly Be Averted.

Washington, Jan. 10.—The news from Iloilo is such that there is a well-defined belief now that hostilities can scarcely be averted. The report that the United States troops now confronting Iloilo will remove some miles away, to Guimaras Island, between Panay and Negros, is taken to mean that General Miller, acting on instructions from General Otis, will not begin hostilities, which mean undoubtedly the burning of the City of Iloilo, the second city of the Philippines, and probably great loss of life. The insurgents have an army of 8,000 men under General Malvar, and now that the Americans are to withdraw, will probably settle down to await the arrival of Aguinaldo or instructions from him as to future actions.

In the meantime every preparation is being hurried to send forward the troops ordered to Manila, and more ships will undoubtedly be added to the fleet under Dewey.

The special concludes by saying: Probably no nation ever witnessed a greater exhibition of effrontery, bordering on treason, than that now being given by Felipe Agoncillo, who is, in his own mind at least, the representative of the Philippine National Government, of which Aguinaldo is dictator.

Agoncillo, through his secretary, Sixto Lopez, gave a special interview to a reporter yesterday and expressed most inflammatory sentiments. The interview was repeated to a member of the Senate chamber on foreign relations, who said: "If I were in charge of the executive branch of this Government, I should order the arrest of Messrs. Agoncillo and Lopez to-morrow morning. There is plenty of warrant in law for such a proceeding."

HORSES ARE BEING DRIVEN OUT.

Bavarian City of Stuttgart Prohibits the Use of Freighting Animals.

Stuttgart, Jan. 10.—The Municipal Council has passed a law forbidding the use of horses for trucks or the heavy freight wagons within the city limits.

This city, though only three of the long streets are of smooth, level pavement, is far ahead of other continental towns in automobile vehicles, for both passengers and freight. It really has no need of horses, and, as the horses are in the way of the rapid locomotion of the automobiles, the city has taken the matter in hand and decided that the time has come for the horse to go.

Despite the numerous hills and unpaved roads, the automobile freight wagons and cars have proved a great success. Even the Bavarian farmers are taking a deep interest in the matter, and the newspapers predict that the time is not far off when horses will be principally of use for pleasure drives.

GIRL JUMPS FROM A FAST TRAIN.

Express Did Not Stop at Her Station So Off She Went.

London, Jan. 10.—The extraordinary escape of a young girl is reported from Derry, a station on the Great Northern Railway. After the fast express had passed St. Johnston, a mile from Derry, one of the guards saw a girl jump deliberately from one of the carriages.

She was uninjured. She was travelling alone in a woman's compartment from Newtown-Stewart to St. Johnston, and, finding that the train did not stop at the latter place, she picked up her luggage, consisting of two flower pots, a basket and some other articles, and, opening the carriage door, jumped off, falling a few yards from where a pile of iron rails was heaped.

She refused to give her name, and did not appear the least concerned about her exciting adventure. The train was running at the rate of 30 miles an hour.

FATAL RAILWAY SMASH.

Terrible Collision on the Lehigh Valley Railway Between Two Passenger Trains—Twenty-Five Injured.

New York, Jan. 10.—By a head-on collision between two passenger trains on the Lehigh Valley Railroad at West Dunallen, N.J., at 12.47 p.m. yesterday, 18 persons were killed and over 25 were injured. The dead are:

Martin Keenan, hotelkeeper, Mount Carmel, Pa.

W. H. Hinkle, contractor, Mount Carmel.

Jacob Heller, tailor, Mount Carmel.

H. E. Weikell, 25 years old, Mount Carmel.

Frank Fischer, 28 years old, shoe dealer, Mount Carmel.

Frank Markel, 54 years old, Shamokin, Pa.

Theo. Steeklekohn, Shamokin.

Abner S. Kelfer, carpet dealer, Pottsville, Pa.

William H. Markel, Shamokin.

James Jarvis, 12 years old, Mount Carmel.

Two women, who are still to be identified.

Train No. 20, which left Shamokin, Pa., at 7 a.m., was so heavy with human freight that it had to be broken into three sections. The first two sections arrived at Boundbrook, switched over to the other track, switched back at Newmarket, and reached New York in safety. The third section of this train was almost an hour late. Its seven cars were crowded with 400 excursionists, most of them from Mount Carmel and Shamokin, Mahoney City, Hazelton, Ashland and Pottsville, Pa. The party was travelling under the auspices of the Business Men's excursion, an annual affair, which many patronized for a three days' visit to New York. Not a few of the excursionists were coming to witness the McCoy-Sharkey fight. Their train switched over at Boundbrook, and proceeded like the preceding sections on the west-bound track.

In the cab of the excursion train was James Prendergast, engineer, with his fireman, George Cheshire. They saw the local as it started on the curve. With shrieking whistles and brakes grinding sparks from the wheels, the excursion train bore down to what seemed destruction. The passengers, alarmed at the continued whistle, opened the windows, but, before they had time to find out what was the matter they were hurled headlong, knocked senseless, and many were killed outright. The two engines, now pilotless—for both crews had jumped—came together with an awful crash. The excursion train was probably going at about 15 miles an hour. The local engine, as if tripped in its flight, turned a complete somersault and came crashing down beside its demolished obstruction of the first car from Shamokin.

The tender stopped a few seats from the rear door, the car, or what was left of it, reeled over, carrying with it the imbedded tender, and the fragments of a dozen bodies and the imprisoned wounded, who had been carried with the jagged iron on its relentless course through the coach.

It was in this first car of the excursion train that all the deaths and most of the casualties occurred. The other cars, though their occupants were badly shaken, remained on the track.

Engineer Rick of the local was found on the track so badly injured that little hope was entertained of his recovery. Despite the blood that flowed from his mouth, Rick gurgled out: "Some one gave wrong orders. I know how it happened, but I can't speak now."

Almost all the dead were killed instantly.

Buried 52 Hours and Lives.

Paris, Jan. 10.—A despatch from Birnay states that a workman named Quesnay, who was buried in a shaft through the caving in of the earth, was rescued last evening, after having remained a prisoner for 52 hours. Quesnay had been protected by woodwork, and, though somewhat bruised, was not seriously injured.

The Last of the Patches.

I was born in 1837, and I have personal recollections of a lady in the early forties using them. The curate of —— lodged in a farmhouse contiguous to my father's place. His wife was a tall, fine, handsome woman, dressed in black when I first saw her, and had patches—"beauty spots" they were called—on her forehead, cheek (left, I think) and chin. I told my mother on returning home, and she replied they were "beauty spots" and "in the fashion." I have a most vivid recollection of seeing her and her husband on the occasion. A handsomer couple you would rarely meet.—Notes and Queries.

The American and Canadian commissioners at Washington met on Monday, but what they did has not been given out.

Rev. Frank DuMoulin of Cleveland, son of the Bishop of Niagara, has accepted the rectorate of St. Peter's Church, Chicago.

Grip is epidemic among the thoroughbred horses of Kentucky, and many valuable mares are dropping their foals on account of it.

Mrs. Agnes Campbell, a resident of Parkhill, Ont., for 60 years, is dead. She was 90 years old and came to Canada in 1839 from Argyleshire, Scotland.

Lord Strathcona, Canada's high commissioner at London, left Montreal on Monday for New York, en route to the world's capital to resume his duties.

President Iglesias of Costa Rica arrived in London on Monday, and was received with warmth and dignity. He will be the guest of the Government during his stay.

The Dreyfus affair still continues to agitate Paris. Men are taking sides and the tone of the press indicates that an upheaval at any time would not be surprising.

In Mexico the penalty for train-robbing is instant death, and robbers do not work there. In the United States 246 trains have been held up in nine years and 77 people have been shot.

Mrs. Elizabeth Lyn Matheson of Embro has been found dead in her home. A lamp was burning on the table nearby and it is supposed that she passed away during the previous night.

E. B. Williams, private secretary to Sir Louis Davies, is said to have resigned his position to go into the study of law at Charlottetown, P.E.I. W. C. Gordon of the State Deparment, it is said, will succeed him.

Ten Augustin friars have arrived at San Francisco from the Philippines. They report that the natives are good people to let alone, and could be easily governed and made a desirable addition to civilized races.

The Paris Figaro was confiscated by the police throughout Germany on account of a caricature which it contained, copied from Puck, representing Emperor William of Germany in the guise of a "despised animal."

At Ridgetown, Ont., on Monday afternoon, the cylinder head in the engine at the electric light depot blew out, leaving the town in total darkness. Both systems, arc and incandescent, are affected. It will take nearly a week to repair.

The Philippine Junta at Paris has received from the Filipino agent at Hong Kong a telegram dated on Saturday, saying: "Fight with Americans unavoidable. We are not the aggressors." A telegram from an English house says the situation is very strained.

The petition against the return of Hon. J. T. Garrow in West Huron was filed on Monday at Osgoode Hall. The source of bribery is alleged to be a campaign fund, raised by the manufacturers and lumbermen. The petitioner is Mr. Joseph Beck, the Minister's recent opponent.

Nathan H. Rawling, one of the oldest residents of Lincoln County, a very successful farmer, a Freemason and a Liberal politician, died on Monday in Louth Township, aged 81. He never lived anywhere except on the farm where he died. Two sons and five daughters survive him.

The safe of the Ashburnham Bank at Ashburnham, Mass., was blown to pieces by dynamite about 2 o'clock on Monday morning. The interior of the bank was badly wrecked, and all the windows were blown out. A sum of money estimated at from $1,500 to $2,000 is missing. No clue to the robbers.

Thirty-nine Spanish soldiers out of 1,100 which arrived at Barcelona, Spain, on Saturday, from Havana, died on the voyage, and many others were sick. The crowds which had gathered to welcome the repatriated soldiers were horror-stricken, and instead of cheering, as had been intended, wept and cursed at mismanagement of officials.

The American Liner St. Paul is overdue at New York, and some alarm is expressed; yet the recent rough weather has hit all the trans-Atlantic liners, and the American Line agents believe their ship will turn up all right. There are on the St. Paul 180 cabin and 60 steerage passengers. The officers and crew number 400. Captain Jamieson is her commander.

Archbishop Ireland is shortly to visit Rome, and it is said his visit is in connection with the relations of the Philippine Church to the Vatican. It is expected the Philippine friars will be required to surrender to the American Government much of the vast property they have acquired, and it is thought Archbishop Ireland's visit has to do with the surrender.

Gen. W. H. Lawton, recently assigned to the command of the military forces in the Philippines, has arrived in Chicago to inspect the troops that are to be assigned to Manila. He says: "The United States will be on exhibition before the powers of Europe, and it is important that we have the finest type of American manhood represented in our army. It is for this reason the inspection is so rigid."

FRIENDS PREVAILED

A Nervous Toronto Woman Walked the Floor During the Night for Hours at a Time—She Makes a Statement.

TORONTO, ONT.—"I was troubled with nervousness. It was impossible for me to keep still and if the spells came over me during the night I had to get up and walk the floor for hours at a time. My blood was very poor and I was subject to bilious attacks. My feet would swell and I was not able to do my own housework. I treated with two of the best physicians here but only received relief for a time. I became discouraged. One day a friend called and advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I laughed at the advice but I was prevailed upon and procured one bottle. Before I used it all I began to feel better. I took several bottles and also several boxes of Hood's Pills. Now I can eat and drink heartily and sleep soundly. Hood's Sarsaparilla has entirely cured me and also strengthened me so that I now do all my own work. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to all sufferers from nervousness, weakness or general debility." MRS. H. F. PARM, Degrassi Street.

HOW THE FARMERS' INTERESTS ARE CONSERVED.

In the current year of the present administration there was voted $225,000 for special services for the benefit of Agriculture, as against $75,000 in the last estimates prepared by the late Government. This extra expenditure is devoted to the establishment of cold storage, the development of the creamery industry in the Northwest Territories, to the mitigation of hog cholera in Ontario and the prevention of tuberculosis in cattle; thus showing how much more solicitous the present Government are in the interests of the farmers, and accounting for the very considerable item in the public expenditure, which was never thought of by the late Government.

EXPANSION, as a national policy, comes naturally to our Yankee cousins. They have been practising spread-eagleism for a hundred years.

THE Opposition papers talk as if they are hoping that the adoption of a two-cent letter rate will make a big deficit in the Post Office Department. This may possibly be the result to a certain degree, but again it may be that a decreased rate may increase the postal revenue. This has happened in the matter of the tariff. Mr. Fielding can point to a surplus of nearly four millions as a demonstration of the fact that a reduction of the tariff schedules has produced, or, at least, resulted in a large increase in revenue. Removal of impediments to the free prosecution of trade are effective in promoting trade in proportion to the removal of the restriction. A gain of four millions in six months is something to amply justify Hon. Mr. Fielding's management of our finances.

THERE's a big difference between talk and doing. Our Yankee cousins boast of their hustling qualities and inferentially laugh at the slow going Britisher. Last spring Uncle Sam entered on a little war and got it over in fair time, but there his hustle ceased. Instead of having made good his conquests and establishing stable government among the conquered people of Cuba and the Philippines, he is just beginning to find out the difficulty of his contract. In the meantime Great Britain, Lord Kitchner and Tommy Atkins have subdued the Soudan, and the foundations of a college are already laid at Khartoum. Uncle Sam's hustle, in a good many matters, is largely adulterated with wind. The British Lion doesn't roar much or often but "gets there just the same." While Uncle Sam is merely exploring the rim of the hornet's nest he has found in the Philippines, Brittania, in the role of a school mistress, is already teaching the three R's to the swarthy Dervishes.

Mr. Peter Cummings returned home for New Year's.

The elections are over now and we will miss the "cordial" shake of the hand for another year.

Quite a large number of the residents here were present at Vespers in St. Paul's R. C. Church, Lakefield, on Friday evening.

IN PETERBOROUGH.

Mr. J. M. Donovan Tells how Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Him.

Peterborough, Dec. 26.—This town is famed throughout the Dominion as the most go-ahead, progressive, wealthy and up-to-date on the continent. This reputation is thoroughly deserved, and was earned by the quickness of the residents to see and to take advantage of a "good thing" when it comes our way.

One especially good thing that our people have benefitted by is the king of kidney cures—Dodd's Kidney Pills—a household remedy in Peterborough.

Among those cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills is Mr. J. M. Donovan, who reports that this remedy cured him completely of Urinary troubles, indicating the first stage of Diabetes.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only remedy that has ever been known to cure this disease. They never fail.

BISHOP SULLIVAN.

Late Rector of St. James', Toronto, Laid to Rest—Respect Paid by Crowds of Mourning Citizens.

Toronto, Jan. 10.—The crowds, composed of all conditions of citizens, who thronged St. James' Cathedral yesterday, on the occasion of the obsequies of the late Bishop Sullivan, gave a wonderful testimony to the affection the deceased had won during the brief space he had been rector. For three hours in the morning, and for two hours in the afternoon, the place was thronged out of esteem for the memory of the deceased.

In the morning a short service, conducted by Bishop DuMoulin, was held in the late rector's family residence, 26 Gerrard street east, at half-past 9 o'clock, after which the casket containing the remains of the late Bishop were quietly conveyed to the Cathedral.

The casket was placed in the chancel with uncovered lid. The remains of the late Bishop were laid out in full bishop's robes, with the hood of Trinity degree. The floral tributes were very beautiful, and the casket was hidden amid a profusion of roses and lilies.

St. James' Cathedral was crowded before 3 o'clock when the solemn Order for the Burial of the Dead was gone through. All classes of citizens were present, for the most part wearing mourning attire. Women have a partiality for such services, but yesterday the congregation consisted for the most part of men.

The opening sentences of the burial service were recited by Rev. R. Ashcroft, one of the curates of the church. Then came Charlotte Elliott's beautiful hymn, "My God, My Father, While I Stray," sweetly sung with subdued organ accompaniment.

Following the solemn chanting of the appointed Psalm, Rev. G. C. Wallis impressively read the resurrection lesson—I. Cor., xv.—with its glorious anthem of triumph over death. Touchingly the choir and people then joined in that favorite hymn, "Now the Laborer's Task is O'er," and, as a solace, came the holy words of consolation from the Nunc Dimittis, "Lord, Now Lettest Thou Thy Servants Depart in Peace." The Bishop of Toronto, with a voice well-nigh choked with pathos, read the remaining prayers, after which the procession reformed, and, mid the plaintive notes of the organ, proceeded to the south entrance, where the cortege, consisting of about a score of carriages, was in waiting for the conveyance of the remains to St. James' Cemetery, where the final words of committal were said by Bishop Sweatman in the chapel.

TO MEET THE DOUKHOBORS.

Arrangements Being Made by the Dominion Government to Receive Them.

Ottawa, Jan. 10.—The Departments of the Interior and of Agriculture are making arrangements to receive the Doukhobors at Halifax between the 13th and 18th inst. After undergoing quarantine inspection at Halifax, the Doukhobors will be taken to St. John, N.B. There is no quarantine station at St. John, and therefore the steamer will have to call at Halifax. W. B. Scarth, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, is going to personally look after the quarantine arrangements, so that no mistake will be made. Quarantine is attached to the Agriculture Department. Mr. Pedley, superintendent of immigration, is preparing to receive the newcomers on their arrival and to attend to them until such time as they are placed in temporary quarters in the west. It will be no easy task to make arrangements to feed so large a number on the train between St. John and Winnipeg.

LORD BERESFORD'S SEND-OFF.

A Banquet Tendered by Municipal Bodies at Shanghai.

Shanghai, Jan. 10.—The Municipal Council, the Chamber of Commerce, and the American and China Associations gave a farewell banquet last evening to Rear-Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, who has been for some time in China on a special mission from the British Associated Chambers of Commerce to enquire as to the opportunity for further development of British trade in this country and as to the security for investments and undertaking sales. Lord Beresford, in responding to a toast to his health, said that the cosmopolitan character of his hosts proved that his policy in China was unanimously approved by the representatives of the great nations having the largest trade interests in China.

Death of A. S. Wink.

Port Arthur, Ont., Jan. 10.—Mr. Alexander Stromach Wink, leading barrister and resident of Port Arthur for the last 15 years, died quite suddenly yesterday. Mr. Wink had been ailing for about a year, but nothing fatal was anticipated. He was a long time in partnership with Messrs. Osler & Gwynne of Dundas, and afterwards practiced in the County of Bruce, from where he came to Port Arthur. He leaves a widow, a daughter of the late Rev. James Herald, formerly of Dundas and Port Arthur. Mr. Wink was town solicitor for Port Arthur from its incorporation in 1884 until December, 1897, and during that time had charge of many important suits in connection with the town's affairs, in all of which he was successful. He was considered one of the best municipal lawyers in Canada.

The Bridge Is a Go.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 10.—A Washington special says: "This time the railway bridge over the Detroit River is a go." Both Senator McMillan and Congressman Currier have declared that they would not try to get the bridge bill through until the railroads came to an agreement for the equal and mutual enjoyment of the structure. The railroads have now agreed.

Discovered by a Woman.

Another Discovery has been made, and that too, by a Lady of this Country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly, and could not sleep. She finally discovered a way of recovery, by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking first dose, that she slept all night: and with two bottles, has been absolutely cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus writes W. C. Hamnick & Co., of Shelby, N. C. Sold by all Druggists at 50 cents and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed.

THEY GOT THE LION.

Exciting Adventure of Two Colorado Miners in Their Camp.

"The mountain lion," remarked an old miner some time ago, "is becoming rare in the mountains of the west. When I first went seeking after the gold and silver of Colorado those animals were rather plentiful. They met in pairs, and were common enough to make it hazardous for a man to walk in the valleys alone and unprotected, particularly after dark. I remember on one occasion having a slight adventure with a lion that almost scared me out of my wits. With a pal I was working a claim in the mountains near Ouray. Winter came on, and one day, before the very cold weather set in, we went to the town to get supplies, leaving our little cabin on the mountain alone. It came on to snow soon after we got to Ouray, and we did not get a chance to go to the claim for fully a week. As we slowly climbed the hills I noticed the tracks of a mountain lion leading toward our cabin, and when we reached the house found that we had forgotten to close a window in the side. We had lost sight of the tracks, and the sight of the open window caused me to forget all about the animal and its presence. I started for the window, and was about to put my hand into the apartment when there came a terrible growl, and the next instant a great yellow body darted through the opening right over my back, its claws catching my buckskin and ripping it open to my waist, turning me completely over and into the snow. My pal whipped out his gun, and the infernal lion turned on him, making a fearful leap in his direction. Before he could shoot, the beast was upon him, and seizing him by the slack of his jacket shook him as if he had been a rat. I was on my feet by this time, and drawing my revolver, I sneaked up and put a bullet right through his head. He dropped, and my pal drew his breath freely once more. Neither of us was hurt, but the lion's skin in another week was serving as a rug by my cot."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Quality of Being Agreeable.

It might reasonably be supposed that good people would be agreeable and bad people disagreeable, but this is by no means a fixed rule. There are many notable exceptions, especially among bad people, who are often delightful companions. They study to please that they may cover up their faults of character. There is no reason, however, why good people should not follow their example in this respect. When they act naturally they are agreeable, but some good men, with warm sympathies and great kindness of heart, seem to think that it is necessary for their own protection to put on a gruff, repellant manner. There are others who at heart are good friends, yet make themselves disagreeable to those they love by a bad habit of positive contradiction. All of us have a great deal of self-love, and we can not regard as agreeable one who continually differs with and contradicts us, especially if he does so in an offensive way.

The agreeable man is always courteous and considerate. He keeps out of disputes and contentions, seeks to give utterance only to pleasant things, and, if driven to contradict, does so in an amiable manner. He may or may not be as good and faithful at heart as the gruff disputant, who is apt to be boastful of his frankness, but the quality that makes him agreeable is his cultivated manner. Some people go so far as to deprecate politeness as a concession to hypocrisy, but it is really a manifestation of a consideration for others. It is, of course, cultivated by hypocrites, and those who are excessively polite may be suspected of insincerity, but that is not a good reason why sincere people should not use it to make themselves agreeable.

The otherwise good man who lacks politeness or assumes a gruff, repellant manner really sacrifices a part of his gifts, for very few people will discover his good qualities under his repulsive manners. Those who do may have patience to bear with him, knowing that his heart is right, but others will judge by his manners, and, finding him disagreeable, will avoid intimacy with him. It is not enough, therefore, to be just or kind-hearted; one should also be agreeable in manner, and it requires very little effort to be so. The foundation of agreeable manners is thoughtful consideration of others or true politeness. This does not imply any necessary sacrifice of frankness and honesty. It does not mean that when a contradiction is made necessary it shall be expressed courteously and inoffensively. Every one should cultivate this kind of politeness for, in so far as it helps to make one agreeable, it extends his opportunities for usefulness, and helps to give full play to his other good qualities.

THE PACKING OF LOBSTERS

Cannot Be Carried on in Newfoundland by the French Because It Violates Its Self Sovereignty.

St. John's, Nfld., Jan. 10.—Reporters have interviewed Government officials and other public men on the subject of the French rights along the treaty shore of this island. The Hon. A. B Morine, agent for Newfoundland during the visit of the royal commissioners, Sir John Bramston and Sir James Erskine, says: "The treaties do not justify the French carrying on lobster packing. Our case does not depend on the distinction between crustacea and fish. The question of the sovereignty of the soil is involved. The treaties cede the French the right to catch fish and dry them on the land, as in 1713. The treaty of that year said the French should not erect any building besides stages made of boards and the huts necessary for the usual drying of fish. The declaration of the Treaty of Versailles, in 1759, said the French could build only their scaffolds, by which was meant fish flakes for drying purposes.

"Lobsters were not tinned in 1713 or 1783. The tinning industry requires permanent buildings and factories on the shore. Lobsters are not dried, but boiled, and their packing is an industry attached to the soil, not to the fishery treaty shore. If there is any value whatever in such treaties they should be rigidly enforced. Their fishing stations on the treaty coast do not exceed seven, and none are profitable, apart from the lobster trade."

Ras and Ras Are Fighting.

Rome, Jan. 10.—The city papers announce that King Humbert has received a friendly letter from Emperor Menelik of Abyssinia offering to do all in his power to arrange the frontier question here and to maintain a durable peace.

It is announced that active hostilities have been begun between Ras Makonnen, the principal general of the Negus, and Ras Mangasia, the rebellious Governor of the Province of Tigre. The Negus is satisfied of Ras Makonnon's ability to deal with Ras Mangasia, who has begun to withdraw his troops to the southward.

A NEW INVENTION

The Newcombe Piano Has It.

It consists of a Patented Practice CLAVIER or STOP which diminishes the tone when required and saves wear on the Piano; it also does away with the old way of having to press down the pedal with the foot in order to soften the tone when running the scales or practicing. Oftentimes the young pupil on the piano cannot press down on the pedal without throwing themselves out of the proper position when they should sit erect. This invention in the NEWCOMBE PIANO will enable children to begin two years earlier on the piano. In addition to the above, the NEWCOMBE PIANO is the finest made in Canada. Children often complain about practicing; they like it if they have a NEWCOMBE PIANO. 1898 styles are gems of art, containing every late improvement; they possess that beautiful full sweet tone which delights the singer, and so pleases every musical ear. Organs of every description at Wholesale Prices.

Germany Is After a Big Share of the Commerce of Asia.

Washington, Jan. 10.—A copy of the contract between the German Government and the Lloyd Steamship Line for the establishment and maintenance of postal and commercial communication between Germany and Eastern Asia and Australasia has reached the Treasury Bureau of Statistics.

It shows that the Lloyd Company agrees to maintain, for a space of 15 years, steamship lines running from Bremerhaven or Hamburg, Germany, by way of a Belgian or Dutch port, through Genoa, Naples, Port Said, Suez, Aden, Colombo, Singapore and Hong Kong to Shanghai, China, and back by the same route; a second main line through the same ports to Yokohama, Japan; also a main line through the same ports to Adelaide, Melbourne and Sydney, Australia; also branch lines from Hong Kong to Shanghai and from Singapore to German New Guinea and other ports in Oceanica.

Four steamships are, under this contract, to be built for the Chinese and Japanese service, to be of not less than 6,000 tons, and equal to those of foreign nations in every respect. Their plans are to be approved by the Admiralty, and they are to be running respectively by Oct. 1, 1899 Jan. 1, Sept. 1 and Nov. 1, 1900.

The agreement provides that the German Government shall pay to the Lloyd Company 5,500,000 marks per year, payable monthly. (Value of mark, 23.8c.) This contract extends from April, 1899, for a term of 15 years. The regular plan of sailing on the Japanese line must begin at latest in April, 1899.

Doctors Testify.

Aggravated.

He gets violent sometimes on very short provocation, and when he slammed the book down on the floor, his wife knew that it wasn't anything very serious. But for the sake of seeming interested, she inquired:—

"What is the matter, Horatio?"

"I wish," he exclaimed, angrily, "that this author would quit calling me 'gentle reader.'"

"It doesn't make any difference, does it?"

"Yes, it does make a difference. It's an untruthful assumption. I don't like the way he writes, and I ain't gentle when I read his books. If I didn't get started in before I knew it, so that I want to see how his miserable story comes out, I wouldn't tolerate his bad grammar and worse sense for a minute. And when I'm doing my best to be patient and bear with him, to have him come along and pat me on the back and call me 'gentle reader' gets me riled, and I can't help showing it!"—Washington Star.

Fragrant Rose Jars.

Rose jars are made by putting a layer of petals of any fragrant variety of rose in the bottom of a jar. On this scatter some coarse salt; close the jar tightly and place in the sun. Next day, or as soon as you have enough material to make another layer, put in more petals and another sprinkling of salt. Continue this as long as you have flowers. Then add cloves, cinnamon, orris-root and other fragrant articles, and mix the whole mass well. Keep the jar closed well.—April Ladies' Home Journal.

EXPANSION POLICY.

Sir James Edgar Recounts Something of Its Advantages.

THE AMERICAN OPPORTUNITY.

The Relations Between Canada and the United States—The Great Trade of China Should Be Tapped by the New Comer Among the World Powers—Cable News.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 10.—The public and social relations between this country and the Canadian Dominion, as well as the subject of American expansion, were discussed in an interview here yesterday by Sir James Edgar, Speaker of the Canadian House of Comment. Sir James is just recovering from a severe attack of la grippe. In speaking of American expansion, he said:

"We in Canada watch with much satisfaction the growth and success of the United States. That, perhaps, is one reason why our eyes are turned upon you in your present diplomatic controversies. According to my judgment, the United States has accidentally been thrust into a situation which promises to open for her a splendid list of trade opportunities.

"Let me explain. The British Empire, by the possession of a fortified stronghold in China, commands a vast bulk of trade in that populous country which no other force than the holding of the port could possibly command. This trade with China is one of the most desirable which the world now offers. The tremendous sweep of territory embraced under the Chinese name, covered with a teeming multitude of people, who are destined to become large purchasers of the finished products from civilized markets, puts forward a most inviting field of trade, into which any progressive nation might wish to enter.

"The United States may have the call in commanding that trade, but if that trade is to be effective, the United States must possess a port almost at the entrance to the Chinese Empire, one which ships of trade and ships of war can issue forth for active labors, or else seek refuge in, when the occasion requires it.

"It must be a port close to the Chinese Empire, from which the United States can speak with aggressiveness. Your country must be in a position to speak in that language whose alphabet is figured in ships of war. When you can do that, then a boundless trade with the Orient will soon become for you a veritable treasure house. The accidents of war have given to your country a commanding gateway. If utilized to its fullest possibilities, your future trading will become immense.

"The relationship between your nation and Canada is friendly and cordial. This is not a mere superficial closeness, but it is one which grows out of the real affinity of the two peoples. Aside from the fact that both are component parts of the great English-speaking world, there is a tie of kinship which springs from our neighborly situation. This intimacy, I think, is destined to become more pronounced with the gradual opening of a freer reciprocal trade relationship.

"What we need is a little more reciprocity in our trade relationship. Our duties in some instances should be modified in favor of the United States, and yours, on the other hand, should be modified for us. I appreciate the fact that local clamors will be excited on both sides of the line. Local interests which consider themselves affected by the changes will protest with a lusty vigor, but the general interests of both nations should rise superior to the local interests of either."

The Dear Old Lady's Mistake.

Old Mr. and Mrs. Shurman from Bryan went down to town, and in going to the hotel for dinner saw a crowd around the justice court. The old couple, with pardonable curiosity, inquired the cause of the gathering. They were informed that a man was on trial for beating his wife. Edging their way through the bystanders to get a look at the prisoner, the old lady whispered to her husband:—

"What a murderous looking creature the prisoner is! I'd be afraid to get near him."

"Hush," warned her husband. "That isn't the prisoner; he hasn't been brought in yet."

"It isn't? Who is it, then?"

"It's the judge!"—Atlanta Constitution

Recipe for Horehound Candy.

A tested recipe for horehound candies consists of a pound of dried horehound leaves boiled in one quart of water, cooled and then boiled again for five minutes. After that strain off the liquid through a cloth, put it back on the fire and let it simmer until the quantity is reduced to four or five ounces. Add an ounce of gum arabic, and when dissolved, enough fine sugar to make a dough or paste, as for lozenges. Roll out and cut in perfectly small pieces with a perfectly clean thimble or a little cutter such as is used by confectioners.

Telling a Story.

Take a simple subject—baby's stocking, for instance, from the time that it frisked about on a wooly lamb. Clip it and comb it, dye, spin, weave and sell it for him, and do it dramatically, with a lavish use of pantomime. As the modern home is a debtor to the whole universe, so every article in it has its absorbing history of growth or manufacture, with travels and adventures not hard to find out; and these histories, well told, make the every-day furniture and nicknacks a never failing wonder-book to the little ones.

NOT A PHILANTHROPIST.

It is not very often that such a seemingly philanthropic offer is made by one business man to another as that told of by a partner in an old bullion house to a Mail and Express reporter.

"Not long ago," he said, "a dealer in gold and silver heard that one floor of a building which had not been occupied for some time was to be rented, but that the prospective tenant had insisted that a new floor be laid before he take possession, as the old one had become very much worn. The bullion dealer knew that the previous occupant had been a manufacturer of jewelry and had been in business in the place for many years. He promptly visited the owner of the property and told him that he would put in a new floor of the best wood for nothing. The owner made a few inquiries, but the dealer said very little in reply, except that he thought he would manage to scrape a good deal of gold and silver dust from off the floor. His offer was accepted. The wood for the new floor and the labor for laying it cost about $300.

"The old flooring was burned and the ashes put through a course of reduction. The result was that the bullion dealer obtained nearly $500 for the gold and silver which was brought out, or a profit of about 100 per cent. on the operation.

"Every manufacturer of jewelry or worker in the precious metals calculates that he will lose about $800 in 'saturating' new quarters of the usual loft size. The gold and silver dust penetrates the pores of the wood and small particles are ground into the floor. After just so much is lost in this way the waste ceases and all dust that falls to the floor or adheres to the wall may be swept up or off and saved. The sweepings in these factories and in bullion offices are always saved and reduced."—New York Mail and Express.

Too Playful.

Young Algy Vervain had gone to call on Miss Edyth St. Clare and had found her out, but her mother was at home and Algy was asked to wait, as Miss Edyth was expected at any moment. Suddenly footsteps were heard in the hall, and Algy, who was of a playful disposition, said gleefully:—

"I'll just stoop down behind the big easy chair and appear suddenly and surprise Miss Edyth."

"Oh, that will be a dear little joke!" said Edyth's playful mamma.

Edyth was the only one of the trio disinclined to be playful. Something had occurred to disturb her self-poise and she was "out of sorts."

"Anyone been here while I was out?" she asked.

"Why do you ask?" inquired her smiling mamma.

"Because that insufferably tiresome Algy Vervain—"

"My dear! My dear!"

"—said he was going to come poking up here, and—"

"Edyth! Edyth!"

"And I'm so glad he didn't, for I—"

"Edyth—my daughter!"

"—abominate the sight of him! He's so stupid and conceited, and—"

"Edyth, I beg of you!"

"Now, mamma, you've said so yourself many a time, and—"

"O, Edyth, I'm sure I—"

"Why, indeed, you have, mamma. You said the other day that he reminded you of that Italian organ grinder's monkey, and—"

"Edyth!"

"—I think so, too!"

"Edyth St. Clare! Will you keep still!"

Edyth's girlish shriek rang throughout the house when Algy rose to his feet, and instead of uttering a playful "boo" said stiffly:—

"I bid you good night, Miss St. Clare," and he departed to return no more.

Value of Athletics.

The true test of the value of any field or track event is that of common sense. For instance, it is well to learn to run 100 or 200 yards at great speed, because there are frequent occasions when it is necessary to cover these distances in quick time. It is well to train for quarter-mile and half-mile running, because if one wants to go to any place distant a half mile or so, the quickest way to get there unaided is to run. It is the same way with the mile or three-mile run. If you come to a brook, you use your knowledge of the running broad jump. If you want to clear a fence (to escape a bull, for instance) you try the running high jump—not the standing high jump. If it is a high wall, and you have any knowledge of the pole vault, you likewise, have an advantage. Hurdle-racing teaches you to get across country fields and fences, and both the hammer and the shot events on the card give good training for emergencies that may rise.—Harper's Round Table.

TWIN TORTURERS!

Lumbago and Rheumatism made Harmless by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Lumbago and Rheumatism cause endless pain and suffering. Every man and woman who runs chances of getting wet, or catching cold, is liable to suffer from one or both. Our hospitals are full of sufferers from these diseases; none are more painful. Every nerve is on fire; every joint is a centre of agony; every muscle an area of torture. To move hand or foot makes the victim shriek with agony.

Rheumatism makes more cripples than all the railroad accidents that ever happened. Twisted, mis-shapen caricatures of humanity, who cannot walk without misery, are to be seen every day. The kidneys are to blame. If they are healthy you needn't fear Rheumatism or Lumbago. Dodd's Kidney Pills keep the kidneys healthy and cure Rheumatism and Lumbago.

An Enemy to the King.

The company to present "An Enemy to the King" which comes to the opera house Peterborough to-night is headed by John Griffith, an actor of extraordinary force and ability, and his portrayal of the character originally taken by E. H. Sothern is said not to be only artistic but thoroughly convincing. "An Enemy to the King," presents a page of pictures torn from the history of France during the time of Henry of Navarre and is the most absorbing interest. The play is magnificently staged, the scenery, costumes and effects being identical with what was used in the original production and historically correct. Seldom as pronounced as that which attended Mr. Sothern's presentation of the piece has entertained the organization since the first season of the couples. The advance sale of seats is large. The company played last week in Toronto to enormous houses. The company is very strong. The results of McCoy and Sharkey fight will be given from the stage to-night during the performances.

THE COUNCIL GETS DOWN TO BUSINESS.

THE COMMITTEE MACHINERY FOR THE YEAR PUT IN MOTION.

Important Amalgamation of Committees—The Number Reduced From 14 to 8—The Steam Roller Under Way (by bylaw)—Polling Subdivisions Increased to 7.

At the adjourned meeting of the town council held last evening, Mayor Davis presided. The aldermen present were Messrs. Best, Corkery, Deane, Davidson, Hall, Neill, McWilliams, Langford and Sawers.

A communication was received from E. B Edwards, enclosing several bylaws and stating that the date set for hearing argument on a motion to quash the roller bylaw had been postponed until the 17th inst., also that that he had notified the Sawyer Massey Company of the repeal of the said bylaw.—Received.

were received as follows and referred to the Finance Committee:

THE COMMITTEES.

The Committee of the Whole Council, appointed to strike the standing committees for the year, reported as follows:

1. Your committee, as instructed, took into consideration the Rules of Order of the Council and believe that some changes should be made, and had a bylaw prepared for that purpose.

2. Your committee recommend that the standing committees for the year be composed as follows, the first named on each committee being the chairman thereof:—

FINANCE COMMITTEE—Aldermen Deane, Davidson, Neill and Best.

MANUFACTURES AND RAILWAYS—Aldermen McWilliams, Neill, Hall, Deane, Langford and Davidson.

APPOINTMENTS TO OFFICE AND LICENSES—Aldermen Corkery, Sawers, McWilliams and Neill.

PROPERTY, BUILDING AND MARKET—Aldermen Sawers Langford, Deane and Best.

COURT OF REVISION—Aldermen Langford, Best, Neill, Corkery and Sawers.

JOINT WITH COUNTY—Aldermen Hall, McWilliams, Langford, Davidson and Best.

LEGAL—Aldermen Neill, Hall, Sawers and Corkery.

3. That the Mayor and Aldermen McWilliams and Hall be appointed representatives on the Victoria Museum Committe;

4. That the usual grant of $250.00 be made to the mayor to meet the contingent expenses of his office.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

T. H. G. DENNE, Chairman.

The adoption of the report was moved by Alderman Deane and Langford.

Alderman Best declined to accept the chairmanship of the Court of Revision, and on motion of Aldermen Neill and McWilliams, Alderman Langford's name was substituted.

The report was then adopted as amended.

Aldermen McWilliams and Neill introduced a bylaw providing for the purchase of a steam roller.

Alderman Hall asked that the matter be delayed for a week, as he was not sufficiently posted on steam roller matters.

Alderman McWilliams urged that the matter be closed up at once, as he was convinced that several of the roller companies had entered into a combine to raise the prices, and he was anxious for the town to secure the Harrisburg machine at the low price offered in case that company might also enter into the combine.

It was decided to give the bylaw two readings, and leave the final reading over until next week, thus giving Alderman Hall an opportunity of acquainting himself with the facts before the deal was finally closed. The price of the roller is $2,800.

NEW POLLING SUB-DIVISIONS.

The bylaw providing for polling subdivisions was introduced by Alderman Langford and was passed. The bylaw contains the following provisions:—

WARD NO. 1.

Polling subdivision No. 1—All that part of Ward No. 1 lying south of a line formed by Dalhousie street, from the river westward to Park street, along Park street to Patterson street and westward along Patterson street to the boundary of the said corporation.

Polling subdivision No. 2—All that part of Ward No. 1 lying north of the said line.

WARD NO. 2

Polling subdivision No. 3—All that part of said ward lying east of Bethune street.

Polling subdivision No. 4—All that part of said ward lying west of Bethune street.

WARD NO. 3.

Polling subdivision No. 5—All that part of said ward lying east of Bethune street.

Polling subdivision No. 6—All that part of said ward lying west of Bethune street.

WARD NO. 4.

Polling subdivision No. 7—The whole of said ward shall form one polling subdivision.

On motion of Alderman Neill and Hall the Legal Committee was instructed to procure the necessary legislation to enable Downey street to be closed and said extended to the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Co., in accordance with the bylaw recently passed.

The treasurer was instructed to return the marked cheques of the Buffalo Pitts and Sawyer-Massey Roller Companies, which were deposited in connection with their roller tenders.

On motion of Aldermen Langford and McWilliams, the Property Committee was instructed to replace the present desks, if satisfactory arrangements could be made to that end.

The council then adjourned for one week.

AN OLD OFFENCE.

The Chief of Police executed a warrant of commitment to this morning on a former citizen, who was fined $50 and costs in connection with selling liquor during the enforcement of the Scott Act in May, 1897. Mr. D. O'Connell represented the prisoner, who was committed to gaol for two months, with the option of being released sooner if the fine was paid.

If any persons holding such card has been refused to have the same honoured by Mr. Roy, (and I have information that such has been the case) I request all such to notify me of the fact by mail at Cobourg, and I will at once give them an order on some other photographer in Peterborough [illegible] the work to which they are [illegible], Box 138 Cobourg, Ont.

SHARGT-MAJOR SCHOOF.

Gives an Interesting Evening on South Africa.

The lecture given last evening in Charlotte street school room by Sergt.-Major Schoof, attracted a very large company of people. The doors were opened at 7 p.m. to give those who wished an opportunity to view the relics and curios from the dark continent before the lecture began at 8 o'clock. The people began to come as soon as the doors were open, and before half past seven the room was well filled.

A rope had been placed around the large school room, and from this rope were suspended a very large collection of curios, covering three sides of the room. They consisted of skins of monster lions, pythons, boa constrictors, hyena, jackals and many other animals killed on Limpopo marshes and in the Kalahay desert. There were also shields, war clubs, battle axes, bows and arrows, and other weapons used by Matabeles, Kaffirs and Bushmen, also their dresses, decorations, pipes, hoes and tools; elephant gun, pistol and knives used by Transvaal Boers, ivory tusks and teeth of hippopotamus, and many other things from the African forests. These were viewed with much pleasure by the large company until 8 o'clock, when the lecture began.

The Major came upon the platform in the full dress of a mounted policeman, with sword, pistol, knife and gun. His appearance was wild and striking. He began his lecture by giving a brief history of his family and his own early life, with the circumstances which led him to adopt the life of the wild west. He then led his hearers into the Dark Continent and by the use of a map which hung on the wall, and using his sword as a pointer, he gave a lesson in geography and history which was well worth the price of admission, and which impressed the mind much more deeply than anything which can be found in books.

His description of the natives, their manners, customs and superstitions was very interesting, and his account of a battle between the 24th regiment, numbering six hundred men, and fifteen thousand Zulu warriors with spears and axes was thrilling in the extreme. Although the 24th succeeded in killing five thousand of the enemy, every one of the former save one was massacred on the field.

The lecture closed with a lightning sword drill lasting ten minutes, in which the Major gave an exhibition of every sword action and movement. The people were highly pleased throughout and it is expected the attendance to-night will be even larger than last night.

OUR NEW TOWN COUNCIL.

The first meeting of our new town council or Board of Aldermen, goes far to justify the belief expressed by the EXAMINER at the time of its election that the first trial the new system had given the town an excellent body of civic representatives. At last night's meeting the council chamber seemed to possess a different atmosphere. The aldermen had a serious business air, not wanting in the dignity that should mark such a body.

The representatives seemed to be impressed with a sense of their larger responsibility arising from the wider range of their representative capacity. They could consider themselves representative intergers instead of fractional represent. atives, as councillors were under the ward regime. It is natural that, viewing civic matters from a wider field of view, would tend to broaden the minds of the aldermen and cause them to look upon matters from the point of view of the interests of the whole town instead of a narrow section. Every alderman, by virtue of the manner of his selection, is of equal representative dignity with the mayor. Every man represents the whole town, and is responsible to the whole town, and if he does his duty faithfully in the interests of Peterborough at large, he need fear no sectional hostility. On the same principle that individual interests must yield place to considerations of the general good, the general interests of the town, as contrasted with the most important sectional interests, must be paramount.

The reduction of the number of the committees of the council from fourteen to nine will doubtless have a most beneficial effect. With the smaller number of committees as well as aldermen, the whole body will be kept in closer touch, and each member of a committee will be in a position to have a more thorough general knowledge of town affairs than if the committees were more numerous and consequently more isolated in their deliberations. There is the advantage, too, that two or three departments in some cases being merged with one, the business will be concluded at one sitting, that required under the old way several meetings, while from the fact of a member being on several other committees made meetings a more difficult matter to compass.

The council being composed of fewer members, generally better informed by reason of concentration of committee work, there will be less temptation to the interminable talk that has characterised previous councils, and very seriously interfered with the proper, deliberate, consideration of public matters.

In every way it would seem that the new way is an improvement. The new council has an excellent opportunity to show what can be done in the way of improved administration of civic affairs, and under the circumstances, their course during the coming year will be closely watched.

"JACK" McCABE WINS THE C.L.A. CONTEST.

He Captures First Prize With 108—Mr. L. J. Picard Secures Second Prize.

The membership contest originated by the Catholic Literary Association last November, came to a close at the entertainment in the C.L.A. rooms last evening, and the directors are delighted over the result.

Considerable interest was manifested in the contest from the start, but last night the excitement reached fever heat, and everyone waited anxiously for the announcement of the result.

As the contest progressed, several of the contestants dropped out of the fight and left the field to Messrs. John McCabe and L. J. Picard, who, with their friends, worked like Trojans.

During the intermission in the programme of the evening, Mr. John Hanrahan, financial secretary, announced the result of this memorable contest.

Mr John McCabe is the winner of the first prize, $5 in gold (kindly donated by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor.) Mr. McCabe succeeded in piling up the handsome sum of $108.

Mr. L. J. Picard captured second prize ($2 50), having secured in the contest the sum of 873.

Both gentlemen were presented with their prizes and acknowledged the gifts by neat speeches.

Mr. John McCabe did not confine himself to canvassing the loyal friends of the society, but did some hustling in other quarters, and as a result has added the names of several distinguished gentlemen to the membership roll of the Society. Hon. Geo. A. Cox's name was read out in connection with a donation of $25; Hon. William Harty, Minister of Public Works, also responded to Mr. McCabe's appeal with $10 00, as did Hon. Chas. Fitzpatrick with a donation of $5 00. Several clergymen, formerly connected with St. Peter's Cathedral, also contributed handsomely. The announcement of these donations was received with cheers, and Mr. McCabe was congratulated on all sides.

Mr. L. J. Picard, who confined himself entirely to the town in his canvass, made a creditable showing in every respect, and certainly is entitled to the praise bestowed on him in the efforts he put forth.

Ven. Archdeacon Casey congratulated the young men on the result of the contest, which was somewhat of a surprise to all.

The society desires to publicly thank the different gentlemen who contributed so handsomely in the contest, as well as all those who assisted financially in making the contest a grand success.

FALSE REPORT CONTRADICTED.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—I desire through your columns to contradict some false statements that have been made public regarding me, and have been circulated among a considerable number of your readers. On the 9th February, 1897, I sold my photographic gallery and business to Mr. R M. Roy, and the written agreement between us contained the following provisions: "The vendor shall not during the period of five years from the date thereof, either directly or indirectly pursue the occupation of studio photography within the County of Peterborough." Now it has come to my knowledge from many sources, that Mr. Roy has accused me of violating this clause of the agreement. I wish to state publicly that I have not violated any of the terms of said agreement; that I have not since the above date engaged, nor do I intend to engage, directly or indirectly, in the business or occupation of studio photography in the County of Peterborough, during the time mentioned above; that I have not now, and since the above date of sale have not had the slightest financial interest in any shape or form in the business that is about to be established by my brother at No. 143 Hunter street, or in any other photograph business in the town of Peterborough, which I can easily prove. Mr. Roy has wilfully circulated the above report concerning me, and which report is untrue, as he has long since been informed to the contrary by my brother and myself—at the time when my brother decided to engage in business here. It is quite clear that it would not have been possible up to the present time for me to violate the above clause of the agreement with reference to the premises referred to by Mr. Roy, as they are not yet ready for business in that line.

Now, Mr. Editor, if I have, as Mr. Roy says, violated the agreement between us, he can have ample redress through the courts, rather than by endeavouring to injure my reputation in an unmanly, cowardly manner.

I regret that it is necessary for me to resort to this method of setting myself right before the public, but there does not appear to me to be any other way of doing so.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space, I am,

Yours truly,
P. H. GREEN.

CATHOLIC ASSOCIATION LECTURE.

First Entertainment of the New Year held Last Evening.

Rev. Father J. F. O'Sullivan's "Chat to Young Men," in the C. L. A. rooms last evening was one of the best literary treats ever provided by the society, and it is to be regretted that a larger audience was not present.

Ven. Archdeacon Casey occupied the chair, and the programme consisted of vocal numbers by Mr. T. J. Begley and Mr. Harry Kearney and an excellent recitation by Miss L. Ball.

At the conclusion of the address of the evening (a summary of which will appear in to-morrow's issue) a vote of thanks was tendered the speaker by Messrs. T. J. Begley and T. Hanrahan.

Rev. Father Fitzpatrick will be the speaker at the next entertainment.

SOME ADVANCE "BARKS" OF THE BIG BENCH SHOW.

A GRAND GATHERING OF DOGS OF HIGH DEGREE.

A Forecast of To-morrow and Thursday's Big Exhibition—The Cream of Canadian Kennels Will Adorn the Market Hall To-morrow and Thursday.

The little dogs and all—

For the last few days the market hall has been a hive of industry, as the carpenters were in full possession, erecting the stalls for the canines which are expected to arrive this evening for the Bench Show of to-morrow and Thursday.

The entry list is most encouraging, dogs coming from the remotest corners of Ontario and Quebec and a number being entered from across the border, notably Mr. George Bell's fox terriers from Chicago and Mr. Knowlson's cockers from Detroit.

The prize list is composed of forty-five classes. There are just 160 dogs entered, and as a number of these will compete in several classes it will swell the entry list up to nearly the two hundred mark.

In Mastiffs there are only two to be shown. One of these is Mr. Ed. Welch's Sport and the other is a Belleville dog.

As usual the St. Bernard class is well filled. The exhibitors of males are Miss Ogilvie, Rev. Archdeacon Casey, Wm. Stockdale, W. J. Simms, of town. Outside exhibitor are Thos. J. Tilly, Port Hope; Philip Hart, Belleville; F. & A. Stuart, Montreal, and Fred. T. Miller, Trenton. In the females the local exhibitors are Messrs. D. Foley and Harry Melville. The outside owners are Philip Hart, Belleville; Thos. J. Tilly, Port Hope, and Fred. T. Miller, Trenton.

Unfortunately there are no entries in Newfoundlands. These noble dogs we seldom see now, being largely replaced by the St. Bernards, Mastiffs and Great Danes. Of the latter class Mr. Chas. J. Bowell is sending up two fine specimens from Belleville. The Terra Cotta Kennels are showing two magnificent Wolf Hounds of the Russian type, and doubtless they will prove a centre of interest, as there are but few of the breed in Canada. The same kennels are sending in two grey hounds.

There will be a fine exhibit of fox hounds and these should prove a strong drawing card for the hunters, as some very fine animals have been entered. The Peterborough dogs are owned by Messrs. W. H. Rockham, T. E. Bradburn, J. M. Watt, Harold Snowdon. The outsiders are Harry Taylor, of Toronto; W. H. Williams, of Pembroke, and J. Robinson, Toronto.

Beagles are also plentiful. Messrs. Dickson Jewett and H. C. Winch are the local exhibitors. Dogs are also shown by F. E Bullard of Magog, P.Q., and Fred J. Miller of Trenton. The latter has quite a string.

Mr. Harry LeBrun has entered has fine Irish setter, "Jack." James Douglas of Toronto, is also an exhibitor in this class.

The class for cocker spaniels is the "hottest" in the catalogue, and the competition will be keen. Champion Guy Silk (A.K.C. stud C.F.C. 2838) by Champion Rodney (3589)—Maud S II, 2479, who is owned by Major Howden, of Port Hope, is entered for exhibition purposes only, there being no "challenge" class in the catalogue. Guy Silk is the winner of 4 firsts in Toronto, one in Kingston and one in Montreal. He will be much admired. Town dogs in this class are owned by Miss Geraldine King and Messrs. A S Meiks, W J Squires and J M Donovan. Outsiders are Victoria Park Kennels, Hamilton, A J Knowlson, Detroit; H G Charlesworth, Toronto; E L Goodall and W J McGrath, Ottawa; George Dunn, Woodstock; F and A S uart, Montreal; Thos J Tilly, Port Hope; G H Webber, Montreal, and F Wilson, Woodstock.

All of the above are in the black cocker class. Those entered of other colours, including red, are owned by Messrs Peter Campbell, Peterborough; G H Webber, Montreal; Beagle & Garrick, Hamilton; J W Tatley, Montreal; Helen D Yates, Kingston; Fred J Miller, Trenton; Carleton Y Ford, Kingston, and H G Charlesworth, Toronto.

In the class for spaniels of any other variety the exhibitors are Messrs Thos J Tilly, of Port Hope, and D H Talmie, of Magog, P Q.

Mr. H. G. Charlesworth is also showing a clumber spaniel.

In the wire hair fox terriers the local owners are Miss Geraldine King, Miss Gertie Kendry, Mr. W. E. Lech and Mr. Samuel Stewart. Outsiders are Miss Helen D. Yates, of Kingston; Carleton Y. Ford, Kingston, and O. A. Macdonald, Toronto, who is showing the famous Alden Sequel, which, by the way, is a litter sister of Mr. W. E Lech's Alden Vizier.

In the little crooked leg Dachshunds the exhibitors are Mr. and Mrs. C. B. James, of town, and the Sherwood Kennels, Toronto.

In collies there is a very "warm" class, many of the exhibitors sending in a number of dogs to compete. From town there are the collies owned by Messrs. C. B. McAllister, W. H. Moore and D. J. Lundy, whilst from outside came the exhibits of the Afton Kennels, Montreal; H. M. Jeffrey, Stratford; J. T. Reeve, Toronto; H B. Hungerford, Belleville; J. N. Drummond, Montreal; Chas. Thomson, Montreal; Jas. Read, Montreal; Fred T. Miller, Trenton, and P. G. L. Tuxton, Georgetown, Ont.

In Bull-Terriers "the fancy" will see some beauties. The exhibitors are Nutcrack Kennels, Belleville; Wentworth Kennels, Hamilton; Newmarket Kennels, Montreal; Bay View Kennels, Trenton; and Miles A. Hanting, Hamilton.

The Pugs are represented by the two dainty little prize winners owned by Mrs. Lord of Kingston.

The Irish Terriers are well represented, in fact better than at any previous show held in Canada in years. Mr. R. A. Morrow and Mr. Wm. Irwin are the local exhibitors, the others being from Rev. Thos. Geoghegan, Hamilton; Nutcrack Kennels, Belleville; T. W. Wilson, Toronto, and J. S. Niven, London. Large entry lists came from these exhibitors, particularly from the Nutcrack Kennels of Belleville.

Manchester terriers are exhibited by Messrs. F. Wilson, of Woodstock, and Ed. Mack, of Toronto. In the miscellaneous class Mr. W. J. Simms, of town, shows a Pomeranian, Mr. T. E. Bradburn a French poodle, the Terra Cotta Kennels a whippet and Mr. W. G. Cox, of Lakefield, a Spanish pointer.

Only one bulldog is shown. It is seen by the Wentworth Kennels, of Hamilton.

The show opens to-morrow and the judging begins at nine o'clock promptly. Local exhibitors should leave their dogs at the market hall to-night in order to have them placed conveniently in their proper stalls before the outside dogs arrive on the morning trains Wednesday.

A CITIZEN'S VIEWS OF MUNICIPAL UNION.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

MR. EDITOR—It can hardly be said that it is now too early to begin to look into this year's programme for our new town council. A week has passed since the election and two weeks since we heard the candidates proclaim their policies for our future prosperity. Let us recall them. We had Alderman Best's outline of what was his conception of what should become the subjects of immediate future municipal legislation, and with which the writer heartily agrees. This included

(1) The further extension of sewers to meet the immediate requirements of the town.

(2) Continuation of granolithic walks wherever new walks are to be constructed.

(3) Preparation to acquire the waterworks system by the town as soon as it is open to purchase.

(4) Preparation to secure an electric light and power plant at an early date.

(5) A municipal insurance scheme.

(6) Improved sanitary regulations.

To Alderman Best's scheme Alderman MacWilliam's adds a public library scheme—certainly a good one—and favoured the assumption of control of the street railway, and ex-Councillor Robertson emphasized the plea for the possession of a power plant by the town, pointing out the great advantage to the corporation to be able to furnish cheap or free power as an inducement to manufacturers to settle among us; while candidate Ball supported all these schemes in a general way from his well known progressive principles for the improvement of the position of the labouring man.

The Mayor dwelt generally upon his views for introducing new manufactures, the extension of granolithic walks, sewers, etc., in a spirit favourable to progress generally.

Now Sir, with these schemes set forth and so fully endorsed as was evidenced by the vote polled for Messrs. McWilliams, Best and others elected, and even for those not elected, it can be assumed that the town has shown their sympathy for those projects, and have practically authorized them to proceed.

Now, sir, when the question of almalgamation of the corporations of Ashburnham and Peterborough was under discussion, the writer pointed out through your columns that the time for the settlement of those questions above mentioned would come, and that they should be settled with a view to meeting the requirements of a united community, and, notwithstanding the popular majorities secured in favour of the scheme of amalgamation then under discussion and voted on, we are not united. I am sure it must be patent to the most casual observer of the progress of events that the ultimate destiny of this community (consisting of these two corporations) is municipal amalgamation, and to attempt to complete arrangements for municipal ownership of waterworks means municipal possession of a system for both corporations, as does also municipal electric light system. A municipal insurance scheme and any other public franchise must be considered with a view to supplying the needs of the citizens of both corporations, and how silly it is to proceed one step further in this general direction without consummating that first step on the way to be travelled.

Surely it is needless to take time or space to try to show the advantage to citizens of the community on both sides of the river of a participation in the advantages to be derived from these progressive movements.

The occasion has arisen; a crisis is reached. Surely in our present council—a council of "all the talents"—we have some one to step to the front and lead the advance.

Thanking you for your space, I remain,
Yours, etc.,

HOCKEY.

The Intermediate team journeyed to Norwood last evening, where they were defeated by the village team by the score of 6—1, in a game where lack of combination, heavy body and stick checking were the features. It was, however, to an interesting struggle to the Norwood spectators.

Of last year's Intermediates only Glover and Watt are available, and it is a team that was never together on the ice before did very well.

After the game the team was given an oyster supper.

The return match will be played next Monday evening.

The Norwood goal tender played a good game, as also did Fred Henderson. Reynolds and Watt got along famously till it came to the shooting part of the programme, then they were lost, owing to the wide rink. The rest of the team played hard enough, but without combination.

The point of the Intermediates, that fall down at Norwood last night, denies that they "went to pieces"—they never were together—that is they never were on the ice together before.

They Reach The Kidneys.

Mr. Conrad Beyer's opinion

—OF—

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS.

No one can be healthy with the kidneys in a diseased or disordered state. The poisonous Uric Acid which it is their duty to filter out of the blood, is carried into the system and produces Rheumatism, Headaches, Backaches and hundreds of ills and ailments.

Any one who has the slightest suspicion that the kidneys are not acting right should take Doan's Kidney Pills. They are the most effective kidney remedy known. Mr. Conrad Beyer, at E. K. Snyder's Shoe Store, Berlin, Ont., bears this out when he says:

"Anyone suffering with kidney troubles cannot do better than take Doan's Kidney Pills, for they cured my wife who has been afflicted with pain in the back and other kidney troubles for a long time. They have helped a great many of my acquaintances in this town, and I must say they are the medicine that reach the kidneys with the best effects."

Doan's Kidney Pills are daily giving fresh evidence of the fact that they are the best remedy for Backache, Lame or Weak Backs, Bright's Disease, Dropsy, Diabetes, Gravel and all troubles of the Urinary System.

Price 50c. a box or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all drug stores, or sent by mail, The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto.

THE HISTORY OF KISSING.

Variety of Means of Salutation Practiced by Different People.

"'Tis certain," said Dick Steele of Rising, "nature was its author, and that it began with the first courtship." But this is incorrect. 'Tis certain that to many human tribes kissing is unknown. Instead of saying "kiss me," they say "smell me," and this, doubtless, represents an earlier form of salutation. The kiss is much later than the dance. It is still unknown among many races, and may be called conventional. Some nations smell and rub noses, like horses, in salutation; and, where two Frenchmen will run and kiss each other, two Central Africans will deliberately exit, by way of friendly greeting.

Dr. Tayler says: "The idea of the kiss being an instinctive gesture is negatived by its being unknown over half the world, where the prevailing salute is that by smelling or sniffing, which belongs to Polynesians, Malays, Burmese and other Indo-Chinese, Mongols, etc., extending thence to the Eskimo, and westward to Lapland, where Linnaeus saw relatives saluting by putting their noses together."

The kiss has to be taught to children. Preyer, in his excellent book, "The Mind of the Child," states that at first they are averse to and even fearful of the performance. However this may be, it is certain that Europeans speedily take to it, as though to the manner born. Osculations were far more common in the good old times than at present. The custom which most delighted Erasmus, when in England, was that the girls all kissed him.

When coming to be performed, some of these ceremonies leave their traces in language. Thus both Austrians and Spaniards say "I kiss your hands," as a polite term for returning thanks.

John Bunyan was a very different man from Erasmus, and in his "Grace Abounding" he says: "The common salutation of women I abhor; it is odious to me in whomsoever I see it." And to those who defended it as the holy kiss he pertinently asked "Why they did salute the most handsome, and let the ill-favored go?"—London Spectator.

WONDROUS REMEDY.

Is what a London Doctor Calls Dodd's Kidney Pills.

London, Jan. 9.—A large decrease in the number of cases of Kidney Disease has been noted in this city during the past year.

"There is only one thing to be said about it," said a prominent physician speaking on the subject the other day.

"This falling-off is due solely to the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills by the people. Dodd's Kidney Pills are the most wondrous kidney remedy ever known. They are used in nearly every household, which accounts for the great decrease of Kidney Complaint."

A Modern City.

Seattle, which is now a thriving city of something like 60,000 inhabitants, with all the modern improvements and with great plans for reclaiming and improving the water supply, was settled 44 years ago last week. Twenty-four persons made the settlement, twelve of whom were children. They built log houses, and it was several years before the place began to grow, and its real importance dates back only a few years from the present time. The town was named for an old Indian chief, whose decrepit daughter, Princess Auxelina, is still to be seen on the streets.

A Sign of Convalescence.

Fortunately most of the affections in which the use of tobacco is injurious are just those which cause the patient to dislike it; indeed, attention is often drawn to the fact that a man is unwell by his evincing a disinclination for smoking.

Therefore, it is occasionally a good sign when the convalescent again feels a desire to smoke.—London Lancet.

Glorious News.

Comes from Dr. D B. Carvile, of Washpe, I. T. He writes: "Four bottles of Electric Bitters has cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula, which had caused her great suffering for years. Terrible sores would break out on her head and face, and the best doctors could give no help; but her cure is complete and her health excellent." This shows what thousands have proved—that Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It stimulates liver, kidneys and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion, builds up the strength. Only 50 cents. Sold by all druggists, every bottle guaranteed.

GREAT HIDDEN FORCE

THE ELECTRICITY IN THE AIR WHICH MAY BE STORED FOR USE.

Evidences That It Is In the Atmosphere. Its Effect Upon Individuals—The Benefits Which It Will In the Near Future Bestow Upon Mankind.

It is a scientific fact that the atmosphere contains more or less electricity at all times. Over a century ago Benjamin Franklin gave a practical demonstration of this truth by drawing a current of electricity from the upper atmosphere through a kite. Other experiments of a similar nature resulted in the death of several experimenters, they having unwisely lost sight of the fact that it was necessary to have some protection in the shape of insulation in case of an overcharge.

These experiments have proved beyond doubt that electricity may be drawn from the atmosphere by simple means, all of which have been long understood and are quite natural; moreover, we know that it is easier to obtain this current under some atmospheric conditions than others. Dry air is a nonconductor and moist air a good conductor of this valuable invisible power, and the greatest amount of electricity is found when the atmosphere is charged to its full capacity with moisture.

During the auroral display it has been possible, owing to the abundance of electricity in the air, to work telegraph lines and transmit messages for long distances without the aid of a battery. The most plausible theory of the aurora is that of Franklin, that it is caused by electric discharges in the upper air, resulting from differing electrical conditions of the cold air of the polar regions and the warmer streams of air and vapor raised from the ocean by evaporation in tropical regions.

It is generally understood that the clear air above the earth is positively electrified and that the air at the earth's surface is negatively electrified and its volume measured by its potential from a point above the earth to that at the surface, while the air between the upper and lower layers serves to keep the opposite charges separate.

It is usually found that in cloudy or rainy weather the charge is of a negative character and with clearing weather it changes to positive, any definite change in the electrical conditions indicating a change of weather conditions.

Atmospheric conditions must necessarily play a very essential part in the electrical potential. This being so uncertain and weather conditions so changeable, it may never be possible to obtain a constant for any given elevation, but it is possible to so govern the current drawn from the clouds or a clear sky by passing it to earth through lightning arresters or possibly resistance coils that by the time it reaches the desired point its potential would be so reduced as to allow its charge to be utilized in charging storage batteries.

Now, it may be said that under the most adverse conditions the current would be found too weak to be of value, but I believe that even under such conditions there would be sufficient electricity gathered to continue in force that previously stored without failure or loss of power, provided the capacity of storing is sufficient to meet the wants of an emergency of this character.

This would provide against the unstable atmospheric element, and, the periods and conditions under which its greatest volume exists being known, extra precaution and provision must be made for storing for future use.

It is contended by some that the ocean affords the best facilities for gathering and storing this valuable power. I contend that, although the ocean may be the better conductor, it would be more difficult to store on the ocean than on land, for it is always an easy matter to carry a current to moist soil and there do the storing. Besides, there are in addition to be gathered the earth currents and that artificially generated by the thousands of dynamos, etc., which is of itself today a vast power and is hardly utilized before the power is lost. There is nothing to prove that a current when once set in motion cannot be controlled and made a permanent power. Its force, if stored, may be used over and over again if a proper conductor is provided after it has performed its work to carry it to a reservoir or storage plant for future use.

Have you ever thought of the great volume of electricity which our atmosphere contains? We inhale with every breath a sufficient quantity to strengthen and invigorate us. It is one of the most important elements. There is an ebb and flood wave to our atmosphere which is similar in its action to the tides of the ocean. Its maximum pressure occurs at certain hours of the day and night and its minimum at opposite hours. When the pressure is at its minimum the electrical force of our bodies is least, and at such times we are greatly enervated and weakened, and at periods of excessive humidity similar effects in our physical condition may be observed. When the atmosphere is thoroughly saturated, it is a more perfect conductor, and the current readily leaves us for that offering the least resistance. All these forces tend to show and prove that there is an electrical discharge from one substance to another, and fully demonstrates that it needs but the best conductor to gather and a proper receptacle to store the electric fluid which constantly surrounds us.

Several experimenters are already employed in devising a plan for gathering and storing atmospheric electricity, and I am confident from the progress already attained in this line that it will not be many years before atmospheric electricity can be properly stored and utilized, taking the place of all lighting, heating and motor power employed at the present day.

The possibilities and uses to which this power may be applied are innumerable. I expect to see it used in every house in as simple a manner as gas or water, so that it shall be within the reach of the poor as well as the wealthy.

The earth and atmosphere were given to man, mice and bugs for useful purposes; the earth has responded to many of their wants, and now, as science progresses and we are becoming more enlightened, the possibilities of atmospheric qualities and quantities are open for experiment.—H. B. Dana in North American Review.

WRITES A LETTER ON DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

Sufferers are at liberty to correspond with the above address and will obtain full particulars regarding the great cure.

He says: My wife was most terribly afflicted with protruding piles, and contemplated a surgical operation. A friend of ours recommended the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and less than one box effected a complete cure. We were so pleased with the ointment that I tried it myself, as I have been troubled with an unsightly skin affliction which covered the lower part of my face.

For 25 years I suffered untold agony, and was treated by the best medical skill in the United States. I consider Dr. Chase's Ointment worth its weight in gold for piles and skin disease.

To Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, North American Life Assurance Co., Toronto:

DEAR SIR,—Your official notice came duly to hand, apprising me of the results obtainable upon my 15-year endowment Policy in your Company for $1,000, which matured on the 5th inst. Of the various options you have given me viz.:

Cash value	$1,564 98

I have decided upon the cash value; and it gives me pleasure to testify that, as I anticipated it would be when I took out the policy, IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY. This returns me the full premiums of the 15 years and over 4½ per cent. compound interest, in addition to which you have carried the risk upon my life. A Woman's Crime.

A THRILLING STORY OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE.

By LAWRENCE M. LYNCH.

Author of "John Arthur's Ward," "The Diamond Coterie," "Against Odds," Etc., Etc.

The next morning the sociable census-taker announced that his labours were done, and having bade everybody a jolly good-bye, he drove away in the rumbling old stage coach, en route for the city.

Let us follow him for a little time. It is evening when he reaches the city, but not late; and, having refreshed himself and changed his costume somewhat, he sallies forth again. First, he saunters about in the vicinity of the house of Clarence Arteveldt. Neil has furnished him with some notes, and also with the names of the places where he will be most likely to meet George Fordham; and Rob begins his round with the air of a man who knows exactly what he is about. He surveys the two houses. Through the basement windows of the one he knows to be the Arteveldt house, lights can be seen burning brightly, as if to make cheerful as possible the inhabited portion of that now dreary dwelling. From the windows of the other house, however, various lights stream out.

"So, ho!" mutters Rob, under his breath. "No. 49 is in operation. I wonder if they have got their shingle out." He approached the entrance, and saw, hanging upon the door, a sign, the bright, new, gilt letters glittering in the gas-light. "Mrs. Rogers, private boarding-house." Thus read the gilt lettering; and without a moment's hesitation detective Rob ran up the steps and rang the bell. He had plenty of time to frame a speech before the door opened, and then he was a little surprised to see that it was not a servant who stood surveying him rather critically, not to say unfavourably. He looked like a well-to-do young man about town, as he stood, hat in hand, bowing before the woman who had opened the door. She was a stout, florid-faced, richly-dressed matron of at least forty-five years, and Rob at once jumped to the conclusion that this was Mrs. Rogers herself.

"Good evening, madame," he said, blandly. "Am I addressing the lady of the house, Mrs. Rogers?"

"Yes; I am Mrs. Rogers," replied the woman, somewhat coldly.

"I see by this," motioning toward the door, "that you have rooms for desirable boarders, and so I called. I am a stranger in the city, and want a first-class boarding place in a good locality, like this. Do you think you could accommodate me?"

Mrs. Rogers had been standing with one hand on the door, as if desirous of closing it and the conversation, and she did not alter her position or her general aspect, as she replied:—

"I don't really know, sir; some of my rooms are engaged; all of them were, but there has been a horrible affair next door, and it will hurt my house. I am afraid; some people are superstitious. I shall know by to-morrow whether I will have any vacant rooms or not; I suppose you can furnish good references?"

He laughed, and shrugged his broad shoulders.

"I don't know," he replied. "I am lately from the Pacific Slope: I can refer you to plenty of people in California, and I can satisfy you pecuniarily. I am sure of that; as for the affair next door, whatever it may have been, it won't trouble me."

"I am glad of that, sir," said Mrs. Rogers, with more affability than she had at first displayed. "If you can make it convenient to call to-morrow afternoon, I will give you an answer; I can't show you my rooms to-night. I have just moved in to-day, and they are not ready for visitors."

"Time enough for that to-morrow, madame," said the gentleman from the Pacific Slope. "I will call early in the afternoon"; and lifting his hat, he turned and walked leisurely away.

What his opinion concerning the house was, one could hardly guess from the single ejaculation that fell from his lips, for he only muttered:—

"Humph! Old cat!"

He made no effort to find Fordham that night, but remained in the vicinity of Mrs. Rogers boarding-house until long past midnight. Bright and early on the following morning he was astir, and set himself about a new piece of work, or rather, an old one, that seemed in no way connected with Mrs. Rogers. He went about this work in his proper person, except that, like Neil Bathurst, he substituted a false moustache for the one he had sacrificed, in order the more safely to shadow Jason Bradwardine. His business took him to several of the first jewellers' establishments, and it was the same in each; invariably he was received with courtesy; he held a private interview with the proprietor of each place he visited, to whom he exhibited certain documents and papers containing what looked like a list of some sort; this paper each jeweller took a copy of, and then Rob Jocelyn passed on to the next one. He had visited six jewellers in this manner, and now stood talking in a low tone with the seventh. His six previous visits had been alike, beginning and ending the same. This one, however, was destined to have a different ending.

"You see, sir," Rob said, leaning over the jeweller's desk, "we must move with extreme care in these cases; the jewels may by this time have fallen into innocent hands, and yet, through them we may be able to trace the guilty. As I said before, it is a peculiar case, and I have lately had strong reasons for thinking that the person who stole the valuables is in the city. Here is a list of the gems stolen, as near as we were able to make a list. They were all as, you see, of the rare sort, and they were all of the finest quality."

The jeweller took the list and ran his eye over it, reading it half aloud.

"U—m—m; diamonds — rubies—sapphires—pink pearls—opals." Suddenly he put his head out at the side of his desk and called:—

"Smithson, bring me the order book."

The book was brought without delay, and then, without glancing at Rob, the jeweller turned the leaves and ran his eye down the pages with great rapidity.

"Here we are," he said, suddenly. "Opals! three large, first-water; that's it, sir? A young lady bought three beautiful opals here more than a week ago, to be made in a set. I wondered a little at her possession of them, but she came with a young lady from one of our first families. So I fancy she is all right enough. The order—well, now, this is lucky—the order was to be ready for to-day. She will call for them, I presume, this afternoon."

"What name?" said Rob Jocelyn, with a gleam of the brown eyes.

"Miss Annin, sir; Miss N. S. Annin."

"Thank you; I will happen in this afternoon, to see Miss Annin." And Rob left, the good jeweller wondering at his coolness, and strode away.

It was almost noon, and Rob sauntered into a neighbouring restaurant and sat down to wait, and order such a dinner as would please him. He had some time to dispose of. The matter of the opals required no thought, for the present, so he drew from his pocket an envelope that Neil Bathurst had smuggled into his possession just before he departed from Fairlie, and for a third time perused its contents. It read as follows:—

Dear Old Man.—I have played the woman so much I'm afraid I am getting to be like the rest. I talk a great deal and never get it all said. I want to add a postscript to our confab of last night. In the first place, enclosed find the numbers, addresses, etc., before I forget that, and in case you forget them. Next, find a letter addressed to Miss Kate Seaton, No. — —— avenue, Mrs. Arteveldt's house. I want you to deliver it in person, not as a ragman or a census-taker, understand, although these are good in their way, but as Rob Jocelyn, gentleman. Doff the detective. Cultivate Miss Seaton; she is a charming, sensible girl, and, by the way, is fully confident that Lenore Armyn will yet be found innocent. Miss S. will talk freely with you about the affair, and I want you on a friendly footing there: it may help us to know what is going on there sometimes. My letter to Miss S. introduces you as an old and dear friend, lately arrived, and but little acquainted in the city. A word to the wise, you know.

Yours, BATH.

"Humph!" said Rob, as he folded and put away this document. "More of Neil's impudence—and I have got my hand all out of the way of the thing. And I'm so susceptible, too," heaving a sigh of whimsical discontent. "Well, I will call on Miss Seaton, of course; but first, dinner; next, the opal young lady, and then I must call on Mrs. Rogers."

He was at his post soon after dinner, having first taken the precaution to station a carriage near, bidding the driver be in instant readiness to start. He had waited half an hour, when a well-dressed young lady entered the store, and, as had been pre-arranged, the signal was given that told Rob Jocelyn this was the looked-for lady. He immediately moved toward the entrance, and when the lady came out, and crossed the pavement to an open carriage, he passed quickly to his, saying to the driver:—

"Follow that carriage, and don't lose sight of it; do you understand?"

"Perfectly, sir," replied the man, and in a moment more they were speeding away from the business portion of the city.

On they went, finally turning into the very street where Mrs. Rogers' boarding house was situated. A moment later, the driver bent down and said:—

"They are stopping, sir; shall I drive by?"

"Yes; drive slowly."

In another moment, they were passing the house before which the carriage was drawn up, and Rob Jocelyn saw, with astonished eyes, that the lady with the opals, and whose name was Miss N. S. Annin, was tripping up the steps of Mrs. Rogers' boarding-house.

Half an hour later, in the character of a gentleman from the Pacific Slope, he stood ringing Mrs. Rogers' bell. As on the previous occasion, Mrs. Rogers herself answered the ring.

"I have called as agreed upon, madame," began Rob, with a bow; but Mrs. Rogers interrupted the flow of his eloquence.

"My rooms are all taken," she said, shortly; "you may find some in the next block." And she shut the door with a bang.

"So you won't let me into your house, Mrs. Rogers?" muttered Rob, as he marched away. "Take care, Mrs. Rogers; you must be more business-like."

CHAPTER XXVII.

PICKING A POCKET.

November, December, January, the beginning of a new year. January, February. It is February now, late in the month, too. The winter snows are melting away, and a certain bear, according to those versed in signs and tokens, comes out from his lair—very much, one might suppose, as the ringmaster enters a circus arena with his pronunciamento—and says in his own peculiar "Bah!" way, "My fellow beings, Spring, beautiful Spring, is about to appear."

It is late in February, and the world has kept moving, but moving so smoothly for the actors in our drama, that they are ready to declare it has been standing still. All that has been accomplished by Rob Jocelyn, all that has transpired, in fact, may be gathered from the following letter, from Rob to "Mr. John Jacob Austin":—

My Beloved John Jacob:

If you and I didn't know what it was to hunt gaol birds we might think some valuable time was getting away. But I am as tranquil as an infant. Are you? If, as you say, "Mr. Brady" is still ignorant of the truth concerning Lenore Armyn, and thinks her sure to return to her guardian at Fairlie, if he gives her time enough, I can understand how he can possess his soul in patience. What a rum time you must have, keeping him at arm's length from the good doctor, and gathering up bogus information for him. When are you going to send him, through me, another Widow O'Neil letter? Well, I have not yet got a chance inside Mrs. Rogers' boarding-house, but I'll swear to one thing, there's something crooked about it. And I'll locate the "crook" pretty soon. My young lady of the opals is still with Mrs. Rogers. I don't lose sight of her, but she keeps very quiet. I have seen her out once or twice with Fordham, and he and I stand pretty well, but for some reason he is more than commonly cautious. I know that he visits the Rogers house, but he has no notion of taking anyone else there—this may be because of the girl.

I have asked of Miss Seaton the particulars you laid out for me. She says that Miss Durand has been out of town for two months, but she has returned this week. Durand! Is that the party where the mysterious burglary was committed? It's odd neither the old doctor nor Brad—I beg his pardon, Brady—have blundered upon anything concerning the murder. But I fancy it's so much more in your favour. Keep your eyes open, pard; I believe the circle will close in presently.

Oh! by the way—yes—I do think Miss Seaton is a nicefish sort of girl.

Yours, ROB.

This was the letter that John Jacob Austin held in his hand one February day, and perused for the second time, preparatory to consigning it to the flames, for, although it was written in characters more mysterious than Hebrew, to the uninitiated, John Jacob knew better than to keep mysterious-looking documents about him unnecessarily.

"There," he ejaculated, as he dropped the letter in the blazing office fire. "That won't tell tales. Now I wish the doctor would come and get his mail."

John Jacob stood high in favour with Doctor and Mrs. Austin; he boarded in the family, and enjoyed their fullest confidence, but when he first entered the office as student the good doctor had said:—

"There's one thing, John, that I am a trifle notional about, and that is—my letters. I always go after them myself, and never allow any one else to take them from the office, unless sent by me. This is not a matter of suspicion, but of principle. I have known much trouble to ensue from the incautious handling of other people's letters. I never carry letters for others, and never expect them to do so for me."

Of course John Jacob expressed his perfect approval of the arrangement, and it did suit him, in a one-sided way. He could receive his own letters without exciting suspicion, or question, in the mind of good Doctor Austin.

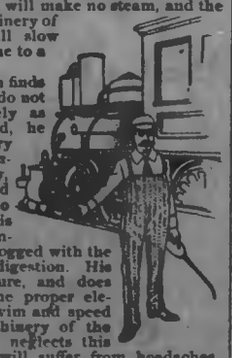
A SERMON FOR MEN.

The man who earns his living with his brains cannot afford to neglect his body. The body is the furnace and boiler that furnishes steam to the brain. If the furnace is permitted to get clogged with clinkers, the boiler will make no steam, and the delicate machinery of the brain will slow down and come to a dead stop.



When a man finds that his ideas do not come as freely as they once did, he needn't worry about his mental machinery, but he had better look to his body. His stomach and intestines are clogged with the clinkers of indigestion. His blood is impure, and does not receive the proper elements to put vim and speed into the machinery of the brain. If he neglects this condition he will suffer from headaches, sleeplessness, loss of appetite, confusion of ideas, despondency and lack of energy. Eventually he will break down with nervous exhaustion or prostration. There is a remedy that will promptly put a man right under these conditions. It is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures indigestion, fills the blood with the vital elements of life, tones the nerves, and makes the brain bright, clear and active. It cures all nerve and brain troubles due to insufficient or improper nourishment. The "Golden Medical Discovery" is for sale by all good medicine dealers, and only an unscrupulous dealer will try to induce a customer to take some worthless remedy, alleged to be "just as good."

Mr. Ned Nelson, the celebrated Irish Comedian and Mimic, of 432 Royden Street, Camden, N. J., writes: "We fulfilled an engagement of twelve weeks and the constant traveling gave me a bad touch of that dreaded disease called dyspepsia. I had tried everything possible to cure it till last week while playing at B. F. Keeble's Bijou Theater, Philadelphia, in the Nelson Trio, a professional friend of mine advised me to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I tried it, and, thank God, with good results."

NERVOUS PROSTRATION CURED.

Mrs. Alice Boyce, Kingston, Ont., says:—"For several years I have been suffering from general debility and nervous prostration, and my health gradually becoming worse, the slightest thing would frighten me. I could not work, and my spirits were constantly depressed. Through the representations of a friend I was induced to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. This was in the winter of 1897, and I am happy to say after taking them for a few weeks there was a decided change for the better, my health gradually but surely returning. I am now as well as ever, and can eat, sleep and work without the least inconvenience. I am satisfied that anyone suffering from debility or nervous prostration will find a cure in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Every box of the genuine pills is enclosed in a wrapper which bears the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People." Sold by all dealers, or sent post paid at 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Advice to an Admiral.

He's not afraid of flashing blade nor shot that weighs a ton;
He'll face the foe with calm, unflinching eye.
He never shuns the fiery spot where fights are lost and won;
He'll stop for breakfast where the bullets fly.
But this is on the foaming sea, where men the flag may raise,
While adulation cannot mar the task.
But when he finds the shores of peace and overzealous praise,
Mr. Dewey'd better get himself a mask.

For they're standing on the corners all along the thoroughfares,
These girls, who are not as a rule so rough,
And if a bevy of them catch a hero unawares
They will kiss him till he's glad to holler "'nough!"
When toward far lesser men of deeds such ruthlessness they show,
For quarter letting them all vainly ask,
Pray heed this warning, most sincere, though whispered soft and low.
Mr. Dewey, don't neglect to get a mask.

A PLEA FOR THE DESTITUTE.

"Be not forgetful to entertain strangers, for some have entertained angels unawares."

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—I am glad the EXAMINER is so strongly imbued with the spirit of the truly British, in taking part with the weak and helpless, and ready to advocate the cause of the needy. This being so manifest I am encouraged to seek a space in your daily paper. I have long felt a desire to bring before your numerous readers the unhappy condition of a number of our fellow mortals, that God, in His providence, in their infant state and early years, has seen fit to bereave of their parents, and seemingly without the help of a divine providence for their care and comfort. I could wish that some one better able would take upon them the gracious effort to plead their cause and raise them out of their present misery.

It may be no one sees the need. I can only do so, knowing that it is a very clear case, and not needing the skill and ability of any profession to make that which is black to appear white. To my feeble mind it is one of the great mysteries of a Divine providence, that such things should be, while the Creator, who so clothes the grass of the field and the lilies, and opens His hand and supplies the wants of the beasts of the forest, "the young lions that roar and seek their prey from God," "He hunts the prey for the lion and fills the appetite," "He also provides for the raven his food when his young ones cry unto God." They are supplied without toil or labour. A sparrow cannot fall to the ground without his notice. Solomon in all his royal attire was not arrayed like a lily of the field. Wherein then is the difference between these and His nobler creature, man, who is of more value than many sparrows? It is not far to seek. "Didst thou not sow good seed in the field; whence then hath it tares? An enemy hath done this." Sin entered, and death by sin, so this is the cause of all this misery. If these lesser creatures were made to serve me, and are supported without any trouble, I, who am created to serve my Maker, is it not fit that I should be supported without trouble? And what is the reason I am sustained with trouble? My sins! I know that sometimes we take some of these creatures and provide for them, but then it is for our benefit to serve us or use them for pets. We take those flowers from their original state and plant them in our garden, but still it is the lily of the field that excels in glory. But the question will arise, how do we stand in relation to these children so left? Are we not morally bound to take care of them in the most natural way? It seems to me that if we can do anything to mitigate the sufferings and sorrows of our fellow creatures we cannot do better than take these little orphans to our homes and firesides, whenever they are left in that state. How many places there are left vacant when they might be filled to the benefit of the one and comfort of the other. This requires an individual effort. We can only go single file in this passage. Union is strength, and is very effectual sometimes. Peterborough has done well lately to supply the cravings of the hungry man or child. After all it is but a momentary relief—the pain is still felt. Places can be provided for men and women when old, so that they may have at least food to eat and raiment to wear, but must herd together like sheep. Will this do for children? No, the child wants something more. The love of a mother, or one that will be a mother. One

Who ran to help me when I fell,
And would some pretty story tell,
And kiss the place to make it well.
My mother.

Single streams show which way they run, but where many meet and form a great expanse of water, it is difficult to see which way they flow. I have thought if there is one place that self cannot gain an entrance, it is in the care of the mother for the child. So that I dare not complain if it finds an entrance into our best duties. This moment, while I write, it would intrude, but I find I hate it. Some might be discouraged because of the great supply. We need not take more than one. Go out singly, not like wolves that hunt in packs. I do not know but before the millenium comes we might hear the glad sound—"yet there is room."

Some may be ready to say: Have we not our orphanages where these children are well cared for, and are well sustained? Yes, we have. (We may well take shame that ever the necessity arose.) I do not know when they were first established. There were certainly none in Egypt when Pharoah's daughter found the child by the river side, and sent it where he would be well cared for.

I must now finish. Some may think I have trespassed on other's rights and should have left it for those educated for the purpose. I have no apology to offer. All I can say is that I thought I could not go down to the grave with this on my mind. With gratitude,

I am, as ever, yours,
JOHN BARR.

LILLIAN'S EXPERIENCE.

How she kept Trouble, Loss and Disappointment from a City Home

Lillian ————, the bright daughter of a farmer living some eighty miles from Toronto was visiting her aunt in the Queen City during fair time.

The little country girl, only in her eighteenth year, was a model in all that pertained to house work; she excelled in butter-making, cooking, sewing, crocheting, and understood the art of making old things look like new—home dyeing with Diamond Dyes.

During the second week of Lillian's visit her aunt intimated one day that she had made a collection of some clean but faded shirts and a suit of boys' clothing, which she thought were good enough for another season's wear if they could be properly re-coloured.

Lillian's aunt acknowledged that she had never before attempted home dyeing, but said she was encouraged by the statements made in some of the newspapers that ———— Dyes would work wonders for her.

At once Lillian came to her rescue and said: "Auntie, for goodness sake do not risk your good garments with those common dyes; they are quite useless. I tried a package some time ago in order to satisfy my curiosity, and they gave just such results as I expected—spoiled my material. When I use dyes I want pure dyestuffs, quite free from grease. Let me suggest the use of the Diamond Dyes; they are safe and sure, and your colours will be just right. Send to the drug store for them and I will assist you in your work.

The Diamond Dyes were procured, and part of an afternoon was spent by aunt and neice in making the old things look like new creations. All were delighted with the magnificent results, and Lillian was particularly proud of the achievements of her friends the Diamond Dyes. At the tea table that evening the aunt said: "Lillian, your experience in dyeing certainly saved us from trouble, loss and disappointment."

THE G.N.W. LEASE.

Action to Annul the Western Union Agreement—The Stock Affected—A Gobbling-Up Transaction.

Montreal, Jan. 10.—The intelligence that legal proceedings have been instituted for the purpose of annulling the lease of the Great Northwestern, Montreal Telegraph and Dominion Telegraph wires to the Western Union Telegraph Co. caused a great deal of excitement in Stock Exchange circles here yesterday morning. Some years ago, it will be remembered, the wires of the three companies named were leased, a strong minority of the shareholders dissenting, to the Western Union Company. When the deed was brought before Parliament for its necessary ratification a clause was inserted providing that no foreign corporation should hold any shares in the Canadian companies. Yesterday Messrs. Morrow and Clarke of Boston, holders of 750 shares of Great Northwestern stock, entered proceedings in Osgoode Hall, Toronto, to annul the lease on the ground that Mr. Dwight, who holds the bulk of the shares in the Great Northwestern in his own name, is in reality merely the agent of the Western Union, the true owner of the shares. This, he contends, would be a violation of the Act of Parliament, and would afford ground for the annulment of the lease. Mr. Morrow, one of the parties in the present proceedings, has been for years on confidential terms with Mr. Erastus Wiman. The news of this action got abroad on Saturday morning, and caused the stock to drop from 175 to 171. Yesterday the stock was steady at 171. It is understood to be an attempt by the Western Union to gobble up the G.N.W. Co.

This Marvellous Medecine is Known All Over the World as the Great Banisher of Rheumatism and Kidney Disease.

A Happy Future for all Sufferers Who Use the Compound.

New Life, Strength and Long Years.

WELLS & RICHARDSON CO.,

Dear Sirs:—I consider it my duty to write to you regarding the benefits derived by my daughter and myself from use of your Paine's Celery Compound. For years I was troubled with rheumatism and nervousness. I was treated by doctors and tried medicine after medicine, without any good results. Fortunately a friend of mine advised me to try Paine's Celery Compound, I did so, and after using four bottles I found that I was stronger and better than I had been for years. My daughter was cured of kidney disease after suffering for two years, by using a few bottles of the Compound. I advise all suffering from nervousness and kidney troubles to give Paine's Celery Compound a trial.

Yours sincerely,
MRS. LOUIS LEFAVE,
Chapleau, Ont.

Protection From Housebreakers.

Mrs. Brown-Jones — My dear Mrs. Smith-Thompson, I am surprised to see a card with "Lodgings to Let" in your drawing room window. What does it mean?

Mrs. Smith-Thompson—Oh, that card's my antiburglar protective! It's ever so much more effective than iron bars or electric bells. No respectable burglar ever invades a lodging house.—Punch.

More A-comin.

In pensive mood she sat and gazed
As if at something far in space,
And two big tears that trembled on
Her lashes trickled down her face.

"Ah, dearest, what has made you sad?"
The man who loved her cried. "Sweet one,
I charge you tell me truly if
You weep o'er aught that I have done!"

"Nay, you are not to blame," she sobbed—
Despite her tears she still was fair—
"I weep today because, alas!
I've just pulled out my first gray hair."

"Sweet one, if that is all," he said,
"Be comforted and weep no more.
Your loss is small, for others soon
Will shine where that one shone before."
—Chicago News.

Busy.

"Do you find the cares of state fatiguing?" inquired the interviwer.

"Fatiguing!" echoed Li Hung Chang. "I should say so. It keeps me busy seeing how many Russian rubles there are in an English pound and then getting the result in Chinese taels, so as to make sure who is offering the most money."—Washington Star.

The Silly Poet.

A poet is a stupid duffer,
Videlicit, that old buffer
Who, in tripping meter, said,
"Tell me where is fancy bred?"

Why was he not, by some bumpkin,
With a noddle like a pumpkin,
Some dense, modern Tony Lumpkin,
To the baker's window led
And told, "There is fancy bre(a)d!"
—Ally Sloper.

Business Scheme.

"Yes," said the business man, "in my youthful days I lived a year on a $500 bill and had the bill left at the end of the year."

"How did you do that?" asked the young man.

"I would show the bill and then borrow $10 or $90 because I did not want to break it."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The New Play.

The play was dull from end to end.
The dramatist addressed his friend:
"If not a hit, 'twas not a miss;
I did not hear a single hiss."
"True," said his friend, "but tell me whether
A man can hiss and gape together?"

THE ROYAL BOX.

Frederick the Great composed the "Marche Real," the national anthem of Spain, and Pedro I of Brazil the "Hymne Constitutional," the national air of Portugal.

The czar of Russia probably owns a greater quantity of china than any other person in the world. He has the china belonging to all the Russian rulers as far back as Catherine the Great. It is stored in an immense closet in the winter palace at St. Petersburg.

The Duke of Cambridge is the only member of the English royal family who employs a woman cook, and no one appreciates her very admirable cooking more than his royal highness. The duke has been known, after a dinner which has particularly pleased him, to go straight away to the kitchen and offer his congratulations to his cook.

The peasant dress worn by the queen of Italy when she goes mountaineering is eminently becoming to her and is an idealized edition of the national costume. The bodice is of red, embroidered with gold, and beneath this come a short red petticoat and a black silk apron. In addition she wears a black silk gold embroidered jacket, a red head covering tied with a yellow bow and round her neck her well known pearls.

CANADA RECOGNIZED.

British Manufacturers of Leather Applaud Our Tariff.

AN ANTI-BRITISH COALITION.

Kaiser and French Ambassador Have a Long Talk on Sunday In Which a New Rearrangement of the Powers Was Broached — Germany Denies the French Story.

London, Jan. 11.—The Federated Associations of Boot and Shoe Manufacturers of Great Britain, at their recent annual meeting, passed a resolution commending the change in the fiscal policy of the Dominion, as causing a large increase of trade with Britain. The resolution went on to recommend British manufacturers to give preferential consideration to leather imported from Canada and other colonies giving a preference to British goods or admitting them free. The manager of the International Leather Fair, which is to be held in London, also offers special facilities to Canadian manufacturers, the president of the above association undertaking to assist Canadian participants as far as possible.

FRANCE ON THE ALERT.

War Preparations — Activity in the Mediterranean and Channel Squadrons —Defence for French Possessions.

London, Jan. 11.—Trustworthy advices from Paris show that France is still going forward with war preparations. There is the same quiet, but persistent, activity at Toulon, Cherbourg, Brest, and the same accumulation of supplies and munitions of war, and the same heed to every detail in equipment of the Mediterranean and Channel squadrons for any exigency, that there was two months ago. There was more to be done in France than there was in England, and it has been accomplished less quickly and with less machine-like precision, but on both sides of the Channel there has been equal effort, and in both naval services there has been a similar sense of threatening contingencies.

Still more quietly the French Government is increasing its forces in its colonies, in West Africa most of all, while in Paris, in scanty intervals of their deliberations over the Dreyfus case and their preoccupations with chambers, the Premier and Ministers of War, Marine and Foreign Affairs have been busy with plans for the better defence of the France possessions abroad, in which for once appreciation of pressing needs has allayed personal, professional and departmental jealousies.

DOWAGER EMPRESS IS A FIGHTER.

She Tore the European Clothes From the Emperor's Back.

Berlin, Jan. 11.—German Missionary Bishop Anzer of the Province of Shantung, China, in his annual report, just received here, gives it as his belief that the Emperor of China is being put to slow death, his successor already having been chosen by his indomitable aunt and foster-mother, the Empress Dowager. Dr. Anzer says there is no doubt that the Emperor intended sending the Dowager as a prisoner to Monken, a fact which the Empress learned at the same time that she heard of Commissioner-General Yuan Shi Kai's desire to have an Imperial edict issued abolishing the traditional queue and introducing European dress. She had a violent interview with the Emperor, during which she tore his European clothes from his back.

GERMANY WILL PROTECT CATTLE.

Prohibitive Measures to Be Maintained Against Importations.

Berlin, Jan. 11.—The Reichstag reassembled yesterday. Count von Posadowsky-Wehner, the Secretary of the Interior and Representative of the Chancellor, answering an interpellation, averred that the alleged scarcity of meat in Germany was unfounded. He added that the price of beef was about the same as usual, though the cost of pigs and pork had risen in some places to a notable extent. Nevertheless, the supply of cattle was adequate, and the prohibitive measures against importation must be maintained, in order to prevent the introduction of disease.

Another Phase of the Druce Case.

London, Jan. 11.—The Home Office are not interveners in the Druce conflict. When the rule nisi which was granted by the Queen's Bench requiring Dr. Tristram to show cause why he should not be prohibited from dealing with Mrs. Druce's application for the faculty to open the Highgate vault comes up for legal arguments on the reopening of the law courts, one of the law officers of the Crown will intervene on behalf of the Home Secretary, to argue in favor of the prohibition. This will raise the question whether a license from the Home Secretary is an indispensable condition precedent to the opening of a grave. Dr. Tristram has already decided it is not. The law officers think differently. The Queen's Bench will be asked to decide between them. The arguments will probably take place about the end of January.

U. S. Consul Wildman Denounced.

Hong Kong, Jan. 11.—The Filipino committee here has broken off all relations with United States Consul Wildman. The committee yesterday issued a writ in the Supreme Court to recover the sum of $47,000, which the Filipinos claim to have deposited with Mr. Wildman as treasurer of the Filipino independence fund in June last. The members of the committee further allege that sensational disclosures are probable, showing, they said, that the American Government recognized the Filipinos as belligerents by affording them assistance in arms and moral influence to co-operate against Spain, "thus endorsing the agreement made with Aguinaldo at Singapore in April."

Colonial Lancers.

Sydney, N.S.W., Jan. 11.—The Colonial Cabinet of New South Wales has approved the proposal to send 60 men of the Colonial Lancers for six months' training at Aldershot, England.

Malta Dockyard Frauds.

Malta, Jan. 11.—After a trial lasting five days, Henry de Velia, late cashier of the Malta Dockyard, has been found guilty of embezzlement. The amount is £98,000. As a plea of insanity was entered, De Velia is now in the hands of a medical board.

CULTIVATING GERMANY.

After Rejecting the Kaiser's Overtures, France Is Now Turning Towards Her Ancient Enemy for Alliance.

London, Jan. 11.—The Paris correspondent of The Times says: "The Paris papers assert that the long visit of the Marquis de Noailles, French Ambassador at Berlin, to Emperor William on Sunday, had to do with a new grouping of the powers, directed against English Imperialism, and in favor of peace, the ambassador urging that Great Britain's publication of a series of blue books regarding future negotiations amounts to an ultimatum in disguise, after ransacking opinion of the country and rendering concessions impossible."

Germany Will Not Meddle.

London, Jan. 11.—The Berlin correspondent of The Times says: The German papers deny that the interview between Emperor William and the French ambassador on Sunday had to do with a new grouping of the powers against England. They say that the Kaiser has no intention of interfering in matters that do not concern Germany.

The Berlin correspondent of The Daily News says: Emperor William and the French ambassador talked of an alliance between Germany, France and Russia in the far east. France favored it, and Germany encouraged the dream without intending anything.

All Sorts of Rumors.

The conference between Emperor William and Marquis de Noailles, French ambassador at the Berlin Court is the chief topic at the European chancelleries, and there are all sorts of rumors, for the most part purely guess work. The conference seems, however, to be a token of growing friendship between Germany and France, arising from mutual interests.

Emperor William has long endeavored by artful civilities to extinguish the French chronic hatred of Germany. His amenities were lukewarmly received by France until French interests, as is now the case, began to dictate cultivating Germany, which the concentration of French hatred upon England tends to deflect it from Germany. This situation Emperor William apparently proposes to utilize in furtherance of his policy.

HIS SENTENCE REDUCED.

A British Officer Doomed to Death Is Given Penal Servitude.

London, Jan. 11.—The sentence of Lieut. Wark, of the Royal Artillery, who was condemned to death at Liverpool in December on the charge of murdering Miss Jane Yates by conspiring with her to procure an illegal operation on herself, and who was subsequently reprieved by the Home Secretary, has been reduced to three years' penal servitude.

The case has excited the greatest interest throughout England, and it is generally believed that Lieut. Wark is entirely innocent of the charge on which he was convicted. Justice Phillimore, before whom the case was tried, practically held that the accused, knowing of Miss Yates' intention to perform the operation on herself, did not prevent her, and therefore was guilty of murder. Sixty thousand persons had signed a petition praying for Lieut. Wark's pardon, and the efforts to secure his release will be continued.

The Ice Bridge at Niagara.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Jan. 11.—The great ice bridge of 1899 has come at last. The early risers were rewarded yesterday morning by seeing the finest ice bridge that has ever spanned Niagara gorge below the falls, reaching as it does from the new steel arch bridge up to almost the Horseshoe Falls, and, unlike its predecessors, has no large crevices to make the trip across cumbersome, and has every appearance of remaining in its present quarters until the warm rays of the spring sun melt its usefulness away. It was crossed yesterday by two or three dozen of the more venturesome.

EASTERN DAIRYMEN.

President Derbyshire's Review for the Past Year.

A WELCOME FROM KINGSTON.

The 22nd Annual Meeting of the Eastern Butter and Cheese Association—What the Business Has Done for Farmers — Promise That 1899 Will Be the Best Season Dairymen Ever Had.

Kingston, Ont., Jan. 11.—The 22nd annual meeting of the Butter and Cheese Association of Eastern Ontario began yesterday morning in the City Hall. Mayor Ryan and the aldermen welcomed the delegates; then D. Derbyshire, Brockville, delivered the annual address of the president. He quoted largely about the make of 1898, and promised a fine season for 1899, providing factories only make from May to October, inclusive. From present prospects, there is every promise that 1899 will be the best season our factorymen have ever had—a larger make. He hoped all would work earnestly with this object in view. In the afternoon the audience was augmented by many new faces from all parts of Eastern Ontario. The chief speakers were Prof. Dean, Guelph, and Prof. Garside, Ames Agricultural Society, Iowa.

An Address on Flowers.

There was a large attendance at the evening session. The non-attendance of Messrs. Mills, Howard and Dryden caused a change in the program. Mayor Ryan occupied the chair and at the conclusion of his introductory remarks Prof. Fletcher of Ottawa delivered an interesting address on "Flowers."

Farmers should beautify their homes, which would eventually raise the standard of the farming community. He impressed upon the audience that in growing flowers they must have plenty of good soil, pure air and an abundance of light, as flowers responded to proper food in the same way as children did.

Farming as an Occupation.

Prof. Robertson spoke on "Farming as an Occupation." A farmer chiefly needed intelligence, justice and patience. He scouted the idea that the educated man was the man who was simply a theorist. The effect of proper farming in Canada would be that the people would produce a better class of food and would eat more of it themselves.

The meeting adjourned till this morning.

AT HALF POWER.

Arrival of the Steamer St. Paul—She Had an Accident to Her Steampipe and Was Delayed.

New York, Jan. 11.—The American Line steamer St. Paul, which sailed from Southampton on Jan. 1, arrived here last night, nearly three days behind her scheduled time. Chief Engineer Hunter, who was making his usual inspection of the steamer's engines, discovered a flaw, or crack, in the main steampipe supplying the starboard engine. Captain Jamieson was quickly notified of the condition of the steampipe, and it was decided to reduce the pressure of steam on both engines to 100 pounds, just one-half the engines' capacity when running at full speed. The steamer proceeded on her voyage, making from 12½ to 14 knots per hour, as the state of the weather permitted. During the following days the St. Paul experienced most tempestuous weather.

Other Delayed Vessels.

Queenstown, Jan. 11.—The British steamer Westminster, Captain Petrie, from London on Dec. 24 for Philadelphia, has put back here with her ballast tanks leaking and short of coal. She reports that she passed two unknown steamers coming east at 10.30 p.m. on Sunday. One of them was towing the other.

Later it became known that the steamers sighted by the Westminster were the British steamer Storm King, Captain Crosby, from Antwerp on Dec. 24, for Baltimore, which was being towed by the British steamer Paddington, Captain Matthias, from New Orleans on Dec. 15, via Norfolk, Va., on Dec. 24, for Rotterdam.

As this despatch was sent, both the Storm King and the Paddington were entering the harbor.

THE GOOD ROADS CAMPAIGN

Smith township has shown her progressive character by being the first township in Peterborough county to practically recognize the service of Mr. A. W. Campbell, C. E., "Provincial Instructor of Road-Making." At a meeting of the township council as early as August, a resolution was unanimously adopted by the council requesting the reeve, Mr. Armstrong, to have Mr. Stratton, the representative of the West Riding, co-operate with the council in securing Mr. Campbell's presence for two or three addresses. However, it was not till Dec. 17th and 18th that Mr. Campbell could be secured to give two addresses, which he delivered at Bridgenorth and Lakefield on the above dates.

For political purposes the appointment of Mr Campbell has been considerably cavilled at. Mr. Whitney, the leader of the Conservative Opposition, on the floor of the House declared his belief that not a mile of good roads had been made through Mr. Campbell's influence, that would not have been made if he had never been appointed. This extravagance is of course misleading as well as utterly inconsistent with the facts. At the end of December Mr. Campbell had addressed in his official capacity over five hundred meetings, with the result that, apart from town and village improvements due to his influence, about 45 townships have adopted Mr. Campbell's system, and have either abolished or commuted statute labour. The object of Mr. Campbell's unceasing efforts in missionary work in roadmaking is not so much to teach the people how to make good roads as to get them to adopt a regular system. The farmers, most of them, know how to make good roads, but their ideas differ so widely that without a uniform system one good way of making roads clashes with another, and work done in one way is neutralized by work done in another. Lack of system and of observance of definite plans is the grand drawback. In his address in Smith, Mr. Campbell pointed out, there are available for road improvement 3,000 days of statute labour, in addition to a cash expenditure of $2,000. This labour is employed and this money expended under the direction of 107 pathmasters, a large percentage of whom are changed every year. Therefore it will not, perhaps, be unjust to say that there have been 107 different plans of road making adopted every year, or, at least, 107 different plans have been possible. The 107 pathmasters would, each to his own fancy, in one year adopt a certain style of road making. One believed in a flat, low crown road, and flat it was made; another had a weakness for a sharply round road bed, and it was heaped up in the middle till travel upon it was something like walking a huge tight rope. One man believed in a roadway of a certain width, and the opinions differed from 16 feet wide to 80, and there would be numerous variations between these extremes. So much for one year. Next year these men would be succeeded by a different set of pathmasters, with different ideas, and the result would probably be that a great deal of the work of the past season would be ripped up and something entirely new adopted. In this way, work done one year would be overturned the next, with the result that both the statute labour employed and the money expended would be very largely wasted, with very little in the way of permanent roadway to show for an expenditure of about $5,000 a year, that is 3,000 days of statute labour at $1 per day, and $2,000 in cash. Or, in other words, the township has expended in the past ten years a sum of $20,000, enough at $1,000 a mile to build 20 miles (or a third of the total mileage of the township) of permanent roadway which, if properly constructed, would last for all time.

To make good roads, with a character of permanency, proper machinery is required, such as a road grader, rock crusher and roller. A grader may be an expense to start with, but it will do more work, and better work, than can be done by hand or team labour with the old-fashioned drag scraper. A grader should be placed in the hands of an experienced man and two teams, and it will pay to keep the same man, or one trained under him, in constant employ, for his experience is worth a great deal in making his work count to the utmost. Then a strict system should be adopted. At the beginning of the year the work for the coming year should be mapped out and definite plans well thoughtout should be adopted. The roads should be classified according to their importance. Main roads should, of course, receive the greatest attention having the most travel, lateral roads leading to them should be another class, and a third class should be roads having little travel on them, and not needing so much attention because there is less travel to put them out of repair. In this regard the services of Mr. Campbell, with his great experience, would be placed at the disposal of the council. Then the proper crowning of roads and precautions as to drainage should be included in the specifications. If some such system is followed and definite plans carried out and not subject to continual change at the caprice of pathmasters, who are perfectly honest in their opinions nevertheless, far better results would accrue, and what work was done would be lasting. In his address at Bridgenorth Mr. Campbell said that if some such plan had been adopted in Smith ten years ago—if the statute labour had been commuted and added to the money expenditure under a well considered system with definite plans—75 out of the 150 miles of road in Smith would have been permanently macadamized and made good, with occasional repair, for all time, and ten years more under a similar plan would put the rest of the roads into tip-top shape.

The township has done well in taking the matter up, and it is to be hoped that the good intentions with which the year closed will not be allowed to remain good intentions only. If anything is to be done this year in regard to an improved system of road making, there is not much time to lose. Work with a grader can be begun as soon as the soil will permit, but it cannot be generally used with advantage after, say, the middle of June, when the dry weather makes the ground hard to work.

HON. MR. HARDY

Was in Fine Fettle at St. Thomas, and He Addressed a Brilliant Argument to a Crowded Audience.

St. Thomas, Jan. 11.—Premier Hardy last night addressed a crowded meeting of the Duncombe Opera House in the interests of Mr. Donald Macnish, the Liberal standard-bearer in the West Elgin bye-election, which takes place on Thursday. Reports of a very encouraging nature come from all parts of the riding, and, while it is admitted that the contest will be keen and close, it is felt that there can be but one result, and that West Elgin will of a surety send a member to sit on the Government side of the House. Never was Mr. Hardy in finer fettle, and the cheering influence of the succession of Government victories in the bye-elections was quite visible. His address was marked by a fine and vigor which younger men might envy, and he had the pleasure of addressing an audience which was at once attentive, receptive and responsive. A large number of ladies graced the gathering with their presence and standing room was at a premium both upstairs and down. Mr. Whitney and his many able lieutenants have apparently abandoned the field and left West Elgin to work out its own salvation. This the intelligent electorate appears quite ready and willing to do, and it is felt that they will accept the argument that a riding should not be represented by the same political stripe at Ottawa and Toronto literally, and so send Mr. Macnish to Toronto to counterbalance the effect of the Conservative member which St. Thomas saw fit to send to Ottawa. The candidate, Mr. Macnish, Mr. M. K. Cowan, M.P., and Mr. Hugh Guthrie also addressed the meeting.

RAILWAY RATE CUTTING.

What a Canada Pacific Man Has Heard About the Great Northern—Rate War May Be Renewed.

Montreal, Jan. 11.—The rate war may be renewed, as the C. P. R. claims to have discovered that the Great Northern has made a cut of $20 in its through rates.

"I have every reason to believe that the statement is perfectly true," said a prominent official of the C.P.R. yesterday. "It has been a case of cutting rates all through, between the companies doing transcontinental business. The rate situation in Chicago is always bad. The companies can never be trusted. In my opinion the situation is now just as bad as it ever was. At any rate I would not like to say that there was any improvement without making very special inquiry. I do not think this is an attempt on the part of interested persons to create trouble in order to benefit themselves, but were such the case the effect would be just as bad."

What the Grand Trunk Says.

A leading official in the traffic department of the Grand Trunk also said: "I have read the story of the Great Northern making a cut of $20 in the through rates. It looks like a put up job. Don't place too much faith in it. It does not concern the Grand Trunk in any way. Personally, I should not be surprised if the hand of the scalper was at work in it. It is an old dodge. They set to work and buy a ticket and sell it again at a reduced price. They are willing to lose $5 or $10, in the hope that by getting the matter reported to the other roads they may create a rate war, by which they may reap a harvest of some $3,000 or $4,000. From information which we have had from Chicago we have every reason to believe that the rates are being maintained."

HONOR ABOVE GOLD.

An Incident Which Illustrates the French Character.

Speaking of French politics, I heard a most extraordinary story of another strange secret of contemporary life. Some years ago one might see in a restaurant at night, playing dominos quietly or conversing in tranquil tones, a gentleman named Levy. He was a man who knew more of the secret history of the courts of Europe than any man of his time. To get a full account of his personality and history you must spend an evening with Joe Lyons, the owner of the Trocadero and a score of other restaurants, one of the most brilliant raconteurs as well as one of the best fellows in all London. Mr. Levy was a private detective, employed whenever a task of extreme delicacy and enormous importance was on hand. He was retained by the Bank of England, among other institutions, and I have heard that his services were esteemed so valuable that he got the magnificent salary of £10,000 a year from that institution.

Well, just after the downfall of the commune Mr. Levy was intrusted with one of the most delicate and, I might say, terrible missions in his life. There were several communist refugees in London. Levy tracked them out. A man of the world, without enthusiasms, acquainted with all the seamy side of life and of man, he yet had a broad, sympathetic imagination, and he was astounded by the picture he found in the miserable den—if I remember rightly it was a stable—in which he discovered the objects of his search. These men, who but a few weeks before had the government and the revenues of the great city of Paris at their command, were engaged in making a wretched bowl of soup, which was to be the one meal—and the one meal of them all—for 24 hours. Not one penny had stuck to their palms of all the millions that were at their mercy! "These men may be madmen," he said to a friend to whom he told the story, "but, according to their lights, they are patriots!".

His wonder grew as they refused scornfully to surrender some papers which had fallen into their possession, in spite of dazzling offers of gold, which, as agent of the French government, he was authorized to offer them. They knew the horror and the terrible and appalling importance of the domestic secret in the life of a great man of which they held proofs, but they decided to keep the proofs until they thought it right or wrong to publish the story to the world. And, though they refused the gold, they never told the secret, and France and Europe were saved one of the most cruel and devastating scandals of our times.

Discovered by a Woman.

Another Discovery has been made, and that too, by a Lady of this Country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly, and could not sleep. She finally discovered a way of recovery, by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking first dose, that she slept all night: and with two bottles, has been absolutely cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz.' Thus writes W. C. Hamnick & Co., of Shelby, N. C. Sold by all Druggists at 50 cents and $1 00. Every bottle guaranteed.

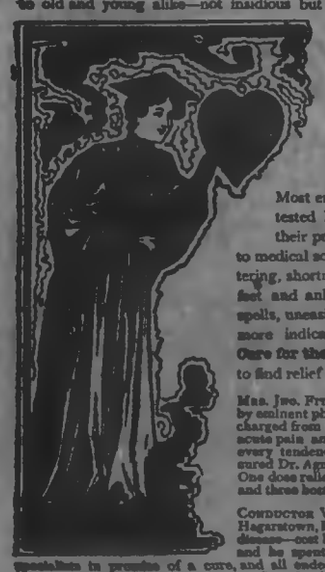
"She Carries Her Heart on Her Sleeve"

What a boon to many a man or woman if this were literally so—How many spirits are broken because this particular organ is shackled by disease—and yet how many times has Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart brushed against the grim reaper and robbed him of his victim.

Diseases of the heart are by far the most treacherous of ailments which afflict humanity—ruthless to old and young alike—not insidious but violent, for when the heart fails the whole system suffers violence. Discussing causes here will not console the suffering one. The one great yearn of the heart-sickened patient is how to get relief and a cure. Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart stands pre-eminently to-day as the star of hope to sufferers from heart trouble, and so far past the experimental period that thousands to-day proclaim, in no uncertain sound, the belief that were it not for this great remedy they would have long ago passed into the great beyond.



Most eminent doctors, whom heart cases have baffled, have tested Dr. Agnew's claims, and to-day they prescribe it in their practice as the quickest and safest heart remedy known to medical science. What are the symptoms? Palpitation, fluttering, shortness of breath, weak and irregular pulse, swelling of feet and ankles, pain in the left side, chilly sensations, fainting spells, uneasiness in sleeping, dropsical tendency and as many more indications that the heart is deranged. Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart is a heart specific; and no case too acute to find relief from it inside of thirty minutes—a powerful cure.

Mrs. Jno. Fitzpatrick, of Gananoque, Ont., after having been treated by eminent physicians for heart disease of five years' standing, was discharged from the hospital as a hopeless incurable. She suffered from acute pain and palpitation, her feet and ankles swollen, and there was every tendency to the dropsical form of heart disease, but the lady procured Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart as she declared, as a last hope. One dose relieved her of a very acute spasm in less than thirty minutes, and three bottles cured her—not a symptom of the trouble remaining Conductor William G. Lucas, of the N. & W.R.R., and living at Hagarstown, Md., suffered for years with acute valvular form of heart disease—cost him many a "lay off" from his daily duties on the road, and he spent a small fortune in remedies and treating with heart specialists in promise of a cure, and all ended in disappointment, until a good friend, who had been benefited, recommended Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart. He tried it, and found it gave him relief and comfort almost immediately. He continued its use until a few bottles were taken, and to-day he's well and strong, and says, "Tell all heart sufferers that I can highly recommend this great remedy."

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA

To Gain Flesh, to Sleep Well, to Know What Appetite and Good Digestion Means.

MAKE A TEST OF STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS.

No trouble is more common or more misunderstood than nervous dyspepsia. People having it think their nerves are to blame and are surprised that they are not cured by nerve medicines. The real seat of the mischief is lost sight of. The stomach is the organ to be looked after.

Nervous dyspeptics often do not have any pain whatever in the stomach, nor perhaps any of the usual symptoms of stomach weakness. Nervous dyspepsia shows itself not in the stomach so much as in nearly every organ. In some cases the heart palpitates and is irregular; in others the kidneys are affected; in others the bowels are constipated, with headaches; still others are troubled with loss of flesh and appetite with accumulations of gas, sour risings and heartburn.

It is safe to say that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure any stomach weakness or disease except cancer of the stomach. They cure sour stomach, gas, loss of flesh and appetite, sleeplessness, palpitation, heartburn, constipation and headache.

Send for valuable little book on stomach diseases by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., Mar hall, Mich. All druggists sell full sized packages at 50 cents. Prof. Henry W. Becker, the well known religious worker and writer of St. Louis, Secretary of the Mission Board of the German Methodist church, Chief Clerk and Expert Accountant for the Harbor and Wharf Commission, Public Secretary for the St. Louis School Patrons' Association, and the District Conference of Stewards of the M E. church; also takes an active part in the work of the Epworth League, and to write on religious and educational topics for several magazines. How he found relief is best told in his own words:

"Some weeks ago my brother heard me say something about indigestion, and taking a box from his pocket said "Try Stuart's Tablets." I did and was promptly relieved. Then I investigated the nature of the tablets and became satisfied that they were made of just the right things and in just the right proportions to aid in the assimilation of food. I heartily endorse them in all respects, and I keep them constantly on hand."

Calhoun, proprietor of the corn elevator at Wolfville, N.S., while superintending the unloading of a cargo on Tuesday, was struck by one of the tubs and knocked from the platform on which he was standing. A VEILED BABY.

Tradition Says That Mr. Frank's Little Girl Will Never Die by Drowning.

Buffalo, Jan. 11.—Barnett Franks and his wife of No. 140 Erie street are the parents of a little girl who came into the world yesterday morning under peculiarly auspicious circumstances. If legends are to be believed, the child is destined to lead a life of great prosperity and immunity from harm, for it was born with its face completely enveloped in a veil. The thin, filmy covering was removed shortly after birth, and the child is apparently in a healthy condition. Occurrences of that kind are so rare as to be a matter of note, and in ancient times many extraordinary gifts were attributed to children born in that way. They were said to be endowed with foresight, and to be secure against death by drowning. The caul, as the veil was called, was supposed to betoken great prosperity for the person born with it and also to impart the gift of eloquence.

Doctors Testify.

SHE TIED UP HIS TONGUE.

An Experiment Which Led to the Breaking of an Engagement.

I don't know why the simple fact of being in love should deprive people of the vestige of common sense with which nature, never overgenerous with that rarest of blessings, has endowed them, but all my observation tends to confirm me in the opinion that it does. For example, a man I know is engaged to a Georgetown girl—that is, he was engaged to her up to a quarter to 10 o'clock Thursday night, week before last. He went out to call on her, and—but first I must tell you that she belongs to a Georgia family, and he is from Boston, and both of them are exceedingly proud of their birthplace and ancestry. After a few preliminaries, said she to him:

"Oh, let's hear how fast you can say, 'She sells seashells.'"

So, of course, he said, "She shells seasells" and "She shells shesbells" and "She sells shesells," and goodness only knows what, till his tongue was so tangled up that his mouth was full of knots. And she began to laugh, and he told her to say it herself. Then they both went at it, and midway of their sibilant mouthings somebody's temper began to get frayed at the edges. She said that Boston people speak abominably anyway, and he retorted in quoque about the Georgia dialect. From discussion of speech they came to a discussion of manners, and things were said which it were painful to repeat. The engagement was broken, as I said, at 9:45 o'clock. It has staid broken ever since. The rupture bids fair to be permanent. And all this misery because—well, because two ordinarily intelligent persons happened to be made temporarily feeble minded by mutual affection.—Washington Post.

He Fooled the Surgeons.

All doctors told Reniek Hamilton, of West Jefferson, O., after suffering 18 months from Rectal Fistula, he would die unless a costly operation was performed; but he cured himself with five boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, the surest Pile cure on Earth, and the best Salve in the World. 25c. a box. Sold by all Druggists.

The Broken Buckle.

You have read in history of that hero who, when an overwhelming force was in full pursuit, and all his followers were urging him to more rapid flight, coolly dismounted, in order to repair a flaw in the horse's harness. Whilst busied with the broken buckle the distant cloud swept down in nearer thunder; but just as the prancing hoofs and eager spears were ready to dash down upon him the flaw was mended the clasp was fastened, the steed was mounted, and, like a swooping falcon, he had vanished from their view. The broken buckle would have left him on the field a dismounted and inglorious prisoner; the timely delay sent him in safety back to his bustling comrades. There is in daily life the same luckless precipitancy and the same profitable delay. The man who, from his sleepless awakening, bounces into the business of the day, however good his talents and great his diligence, is only galloping on a steed harnessed with a broken buckle, and must not marvel if, in his hottest haste or more hazardous leap, he be left inglorious in the dust; and though it may occasion some little delay before hand, his neighbor is wiser who sets all in order before the march begins.—Rev. James Hamilton.

Had Other Chances.

"I wouldn't have refused that young man if I'd been you," said a maiden aunt to her young and frisky niece.

"I don't think I would either if I'd been you," retorted the saucy maiden.—Harper's Bazar.

A Sure Cure.

"I've cured my husband's insomnia."

"How did you do it?"

"Pretended I was ill, and the doctor left medicine which Henry was to give me every half hour all night long."—Vanity Fair.

HUMAN SACRIFICES

On the Altar of Diabetes, Saved by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Only.

Hardly a family in the country is free from Diabetes. Great thirst, failing sight, numbness in the thighs, bleeding gums, swollen ankles, emaciation, nervousness, pale or turbid urine, loss of sexual power, decaying teeth, pains in the loins or small of the back, are all positive signs that Diabetes is in the system.

Do you know how it ends? In Death. A premature, horrible, agonized, pitiful death. The victim has no peace, no ease in life. His days are filled with tortures. His nights are waking dreams of agony. He longs to die, yet fears the terrors of his end. He dies, a bloated, fetid, repulsive mass of corruption. That is the only end of unchecked Diabetes. Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it. They drive it out of the system thoroughly, create new, clean blood, rebuild the diseased kidneys, and restore robust health.

THE "SLATER SHOE"

Resting the Feet.

A hard mattress rests the sleeper more than a downy feather bed, because it does not press so many parts of the body at once, relieving certain bumps while the others are being lain upon.

No two pairs of shoes are exactly alike on the inside, and changing them once per day eases different portions of the feet by throwing the weight upon other parts. This gives a surprising restfulness to the feet, as well as to the shoe, which also gets tired, just as a razor does.

Leathers should always be chosen according to the condition of the feet, as they differ materially in effect and purpose.

On every pair of "Slater Shoes" there is a tag, which tells the exact leather used, giving its peculiarities and the wear it is adapted to.

You can thus buy "Slater Shoes" intelligently and know that they're Goodyear Welted, if you see that they're stamped on the sole with the name and price—$3.00, $4.00, or $5.00.

An Unfounded Rumour.

A report has been in circulation in town for the past week to the effect that Wm. Burns, of Peterborough, a cook in a lumber camp at the the North Shore, had been accidentally killed, and that his body had been forwarded to town. Inquiries have brought out the fact that there is no truth whatever in the report, as no word to that effect has been received by his relatives or friends. Another rumour has it that he is ill in the hospital at Sudbury.

"An Enemy to the King."

A good sized audience greeted the clever Canadian actor, Mr. John Griffith, in Stephen's romantic drama, "An Enemy to the King," in Bradburn's opera house last evening. Every member of the company showed themselves to be stars of high order, but of course all eyes were centered on Mr. Griffith as Ernanton De Lounay, and suffice it to say he acquitted himself in a faultless manner. Miss Kathryn Purnell as Julie De Varion, was excellent in this role, and her clever acting was a feature of the presentation. Should Mr. Griffith again visit Peterborough he would be greeted with a crowded house.

SISTER GERALDINE PASSES AWAY.

The Sister of Rev. Father Chidwick Dies at St. Joseph's Hospital.

This afternoon at 12 30 Sister Geraldine of the community of St. Joseph, died at St. Joseph's Hospital. The deceased sister, whose world name was Miss Chidwick, was a sister of Rev. Father Chidwick, recently appointed chaplain of the Washington Navy Yard, and who visited Peterborough last November. Sister Geraldine, who was 37 years of age, entered the community at Toronto about 16 years ago, and has been at St. Joseph's Hospital about seven or eight years. For years she has suffered from diabetes, but was able to, or at least did, take her share of duty till about a year ago. Her mother, Mrs. Chidwick, has been at St Joseph's Hospital for the past year and was at her daughter's bedside at the supreme moment. Rev. Father Chidwick has been notified and is expected to arrive in town from Washington to-morrow. The funeral will take place on Friday at 9 o'clock a.m. The funeral mass will be sung in the chapel of the hospital.

FORTNIGHTLY CLUB.

An Evening, Devoted to Canadian Literature, Provided by the Ladies.

The meeting last night was, as anticipated, a great success. The committee of ladies who had charge of the preparations are deserving of every credit for a very delightful and instructive evening. As previously announced, the entire programme was furnished by the lady members of the club, and the evening was devoted to Canadian Literature. Sheriff Hall presided with grace and dignity.

Notwithstanding the severity of the weather and other strong counter attractions, the large Y. M. C. A. hall was well filled with the members of the club and their friends.

The Misses Dennistoun gave an instrumental duet which was well received. Miss Clarke then read a splendid paper on Canadian Literature, which showed a wide reading and a keen insight into the merits and demerits of our Canadian authors. Her paper was received with the closest attention and met with long continued applause. The club hopes she will be persuaded to take part more frequently in its proceedings. Mrs. Parker then sang in a very charming manner and responded to a hearty encore. Mrs. Kendry then read a selection from Dr. Drummond's poetical works. Her reading of a difficult selection containing so many broken French and English words met with hearty rounds of applause. The selection itself was well chosen and its reading will doubtless create a greater interest in this great Canadian writer. Mrs. Seward then sang, and in response to the wish of the audience sang an encore, both songs meeting with the greatest approval from the audience. A paper by Miss Kate Lewis on Canadian Poetry, was listened to with closest attention. The paper displayed a poetic insight, taste, and a thorough appreciation of the subject in hand. This is the first time that Miss Lewis has favoured the Fortnightly, but it is hoped that she will prepare many more delightful papers for the Club. We regret that lack of space prevents a summary in this issue of Miss Lewis' paper, which was well worth a verbatim report. We hope to be able to publish at a later date at least a summary of the two excellent papers read by Miss Clarke and Miss Lewis. Miss Helen Dennistoun then gave a most pleasing instrumental selection. At the conclusion of the programme refreshments were served and an evening which had been most interesting and instructive, was brought to a close. The next meeting will be held on January 31st, when Rev. W. L. Armitage will read a paper on Carlyle.

THE LAW SOCIETY ENTERTAINED.

A Banquet Tendered to the Members of the Bar Monday Evening.

On Monday evening Mr. J. William Bennet, secretary-treasurer of the Law Society, entertained the local members of the bar and the court officials to a banquet in the law library at the Court House, and the affair proved to be an enjoyable one in every respect.

Mr. Bennet occupied the chair, and on his right were seated Mr. D. W. Dumble and Mr. A. P. Poussette, and Mr. E. B. Edwards and Mr. John Green on his left. The vice chairs were occupied by County Police Magistrate Edmison and County Crown Attorney Wood.

After ample justice had been done to the excellent repast furnished by Mr. J. Watt, the toast of the "Queen" was honoured in a loyal manner. The health of the secretary-treasurer was proposed by Mr. Dumble, who made a capital speech, after which followed the toast of the "Police Magistrate," responded to by Mr. Dumble and Mr. Edmison.

To the toast, "The members of the Bar," Messrs. E. A. Peck and F. D. Kerr replied, as did Messrs. E. B. Stone, W. H. Moore, D. O'Connell and E. H. D. Hall.

Mr. E. B. Edwards proposed the toast of "the ladies," which was responded to by Mr. J. H. Burnham.

During the evening Mr. R. M. Dennistoun and Mr. L. M. Hayes furnished several delightful vocal numbers.

The banquet was brought to a close by the singing of "God Save the Queen" and "Auld Lang Syne."

THE BENCH SHOW BEGINS.

THE BENCHES FILLED WITH A BEAUTIFUL CANINE CONGREGATION.

The Judging Begins—Some of the Classes Completed—Another Example of "French Domination"—A Franco-Irish Victory—Harry LeBrun's Irish Setter Wins in a Canter—Ladies Honour the Show.

The Peterborough Bench Show opened this morning in the Market Hall, and promises to be a gratifying success in every particular. The officials of the show have been kept busy all morning arranging matters, and at 9 o'clock the judging of the dogs began.

Among the distinguished dog fanciers present are: Mr John G Kent, President of Toronto Kennel Club, Mr W P Fraser, "head push" of Toronto Dog Show, Messrs A A McDonald and George H Gooderham, Toronto; Mr Carleton Y Ford, Kingston; Mr J T Reeve and Mr John Talk, Toronto; Mr Chas Leydon, agent for Mr Geo Gooderham, Toronto; Mr Chas J Bowell, son of Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Belleville; Mr H Parker Thomas, member of Canadian Kennel Club executive; Mr H C Bates, Kingston, and several others.

A gratifying feature of the show was the large attendance of ladies during the day, and the affair promises to be somewhat of a social event.

The Irish setters were judged this morning and Mr. Harry LeBrun's "Jack" carried off the honours in this class, winning over the celebrated Toronto dog "Mollie II.," winner 1st novice and open in Toronto, '98, and 1st open Boston, '98. Mr. LeBrun is being congratulated on all sides over his win.

The attendance at the show this evening promises to be large.

MR. ROY'S REPLY.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

SIR,—I find Mr. Green's advertisement letter in the EXAMINER of to day. I only wish to say in reply that I wish to have no newspaper controversy with him whatever, but will leave the public to judge for themselves how well he has carried out and is carrying out his agreement with me in spirit and in letter. I would also mention that he carefully omitted printing that part of the agreement referring to the "good will" which he also sold to me. However, Mr. Editor, henceforth I desire to have nothing more to do with or say to Mr. Green, and you will be bothered with no further correspondence from me.

Yours respectfully,
R. M. ROY.

Among the law students who passed the Christmas third and second year examinations at Osgoode Hall, were four Peterborough boys, Messrs. R. F. (Rollie) McWilliams, Osias de Laplante and T. A. ("Al.") White. The former stood third on the list. Mr. C. H. Bradburn also passed the second year examination.

Mrs. (Dr) Shaw, of Keene, received a pleasant surprise on Saturday night last, when she was presented with an address, accompanied by a handsome celery dish, by the members of the Masonic lodge of Keene. The address referred to the kindness regularly shown towards the Masonic lodge by Mrs. Shaw and her husband, and asked her acceptances of the elegant gift as a slight token of the affectionate regard and esteem in which she she and Dr. Shaw are held by the Masonic fraternity at Keene.

THE COMING POULTRY SHOW.

Meeting of the Directors—Promises of a Great Show—About 600 Entries in Sight.

The directors of the Peterborough Poultry Association held an adjourned meeting at the Morgan House last night. There were present: Mr. J. A. Davidson, president, in the chair, and Directors W. C. Rightmyer, John Robson, S D. Rightmyer, J. E. Cullen, T. H. Goldie, F. G. Lund, Wm Head and Secretary Collins. A few of the members were also present.

The principal business of the meeting was making preparatory arrangements for the coming show, which, according to present appearances, will be a great success, the entries mounting well up to the 600 mark. The largest entry made is that of Mr. E W. Parren, of Brampton, who rewards a list of 90; the next by Mr. Wm. Stewart, of Menie, with 78, and there are several between that number and 50 each.

An important matter that engaged the attention of the meeting was the making of a concerted effort to have the annual meeting of the Poultry Association of Ontario held in Peterborough in 1900. There is good reason to believe that with proper effort this will be accomplished. The annual meeting takes place in Toronto on Thursday, and the following delegates have expressed their intention of attending the annual meeting: Messrs. J. A. Davidson, president; John Robson, T. H Goldie, J. E Cullen, James Baptie, Ed. M. Elliott and Secretary Collins.

It is to be hoped that they will be successful, for the more large gatherings we can attract to the town the better. It is to the interest of our business men especially to assist the directors of the Association in every way possible to secure the Provincial Poultry meeting for Peterborough.

ASHBURNHAM BREVITIES.

Newsy Notes From Peterborough's Fifth Ward.

The statutory meeting of the School Board will be held on Wednesday evening Jan. 18th, when the newly-elected members will be sworn in, a chairman elected, and the usual routine business transacted.

Active preparations are being made for the Ashburnham school concert in the town hall on Friday evening, Jan. 27th. This is the second annual concert of the school. The concert last year was highly successful in every way, and this promises to be even more so. The funds are used for the benefit of the school.

Great interest is being taken in the "Birthday Party" under the auspices of the Mark street Ladies' Aid, which was organized a year ago. The party will be in the town hall—not in the church basement—this evening, when a very pleasant time is expected. The ladies will serve refreshments. There will be games of various kinds and an excellent literary and musical programme will be furnished. That the programme will be choice is shown by the fact that the following will assist: Miss McDonald, Miss Lewis, Miss Riley, the Misses Hill, Miss Currie, Miss Downer, Miss Butler, Miss Wilson, Miss Hurley, Mrs. Pearce, Mr. Morphet, Mr. Walden, Mrs. Bert Brown, Messrs. Wilson, Mr. Andrews and others. A large number of invitations have been issued, and no doubt the attendance will be considerable as the affair promises to be very enjoyable and successful. Of course any who have not received special invitations may attend on the same conditions as those who have received them.

CARD.

To Whom It May Concern.

At the time I sold my photographic business in Peterborough to Mr. R. M. Roy, a number of persons were entitled to resittings for photographs, and I sent a card to each, informing them that they were entitled thereto from my successor, who had by written agreement assumed the completion of all unfinished contracts. If any persons holding such card has been refused to have the same honoured by Mr. Roy, (and I have information that such has been the case) I request all such to notify me of the fact by mail at Cobourg, and I will at once give them an order on any other photorraper in Peterborough they desire for the work to which they are entitled.

REV. FATHER O'SULLIVAN TALKS TO YOUNG MEN.

A PRACTICAL ADDRESS IN THE C. L. A. ROOMS.

The Study of Literature Dealt With, and Sound Advice Given to Young Men.

The following is a summary of the excellent address delivered by Rev. Father J. F. O'Sullivan, in the Catholic Association Rooms on Monday evening:—

Speaking to you, gentlemen, as literary students, as a society that has literature and the personal improvement of each for its object, it will probably not be out of place to call to mind what might be expected of each. Certainly that which literature gives, personal improvement, and the art of using and exercising language. It is well, then, to get a clear idea of what literature is. By literature I mean the expression of thought in words; the personal use and exercise of language, not mere verbal symbols, not mere words, but thoughts expressed in words. The Greeks have one word which admirably conveys its meaning, Logos. Now, logos stands for reason and speech—which does it mean? Both, at once, because really they cannot be divided. Though, that is ideas, feelings, views, reasonings, must always be entertained in anything worthy of the name of literature.

WHY AND HOW TO STUDY LITERATURE.

We study literature in order to acquire the art of bringing out in words, sufficient and worthy of the subject, thoughts which impress us; in order to get a clear sight of things as they really are; in order to get at truth in opposition to fancy, opinion, theory; in order to see how the past and future, the east and west are brought into communication with each other, to live with the great minds of the past and present, in fine, to acquire knowledge.

The sun often shines for long summer days on shut up habitations—places, it may be nobly built and beautiful without, but within, chill, damp, noisome, because the master is away. It is thus with hundreds and thousands of young men who might well be better off, but whose education, obstinacy or misfortune has closed the doors and windows of their intellectual nature for that which literature warmth seems to glow in vain. All human spirits must in some way be affected by the existence and love of God. But the physical sun burns where it falls; the spiritual and intellectual sun cannot burn what does not respond to its burning. Neither is admiration or appreciation sufficient.

There is a well known passage of Kant, "Above me the stary heavens, within me is the moral law each fills my soul with admiration and respect, ever new and ever growing." This is a fine saying, but it is far from being enough. To admire is the act of a mere spectator; to reverence may be little more. But to respond to the strong and warm affection of our Heavenly Father's literature of revelation is to exercise reason, will and action, such as men are made for.

It is worth while to inquire how this response is made. For

MAN DOES NOTHING INSTINCTIVELY

—at least anything worth considering. A man must turn upon himself, work upon himself and fashion himself, just as he fashions his tools and weapons. He cannot, then, exercise reason, will and action less he ponders, sees and resolves.

Now in order to open our minds and, at the same time, our intelligence to understand literature it is necessary to recognize a two-fold agent—(1) individual effort and (2) the human means of knowledge—it need not be emphasized how necessary individual effort is for the acquisition of knowledge. "The fact is, I was ruined by having money left to me, said the cobbler." —Dickens. Nothing will take its place. There is no royal road to learning. We cannot be carried along by others, we must walk ourselves. But besides this, besides the private inspirations that each man may receive on a subject, independent of individual research and individual imagination, there is another source of knowledge which God himself would have us look up to. It is what is called an objective body of truth which, like the features of a landscape, continues unchanged through the ages and compels the recognition from men of the most diverse powers and opposite character. We must always bear in mind that such a body is composed of men, marked men, and apart from their office of guarding the truth, liable to the weaknesses and errors of humanity. This great body of revealed truth, the college of the teaching (ecclesia docens) though it lays special stress on individual effort never should forfeit the reverence of the men of the world. For God's purpose would have it so. "With all thy soul fear the Lord and reverence His priests, Eccles viii. "He that heareth you heareth me," Luke x. And should be able to show that through this visible body God has made His voice audible, His mercy visible; how it has superseded the bush that burnt in Sinai, the glory that dwelt in the temple; that by it God still speaks and lays on hands, and goeth about doing good as He did in Judea, and in Galilee. By it He comes to the world and the world knows Him. Better not to know all other philosophers, teachers, masters, authors, than not to know the ministry of Him whom by excellence we are to call, Master and Lord. Better to put constraint on self-sufficiency and go a little over the line of ordinary reading then to shrink and not to defend, when challenged, the faith of our fathers. By individual effort, then, and under a guide destined by God, we not only become cultured but Christian.

ADVICE TO YOUNG MEN.

Domestic Happiness—How attained, how lost. Care not to choose a wife as a "bal poudre." A gentleman—what he is.

"It is almost a definition of a gentleman to say: He is one who never inflicts pain. This description is both refined and, as far as it goes, accurate. He is mainly occupied in merely removing the obstacles which hinder the free and unembarrassed action of those about him; and he concurs with their movements rather than take the initiative himself. His benefits may be considered as parallel to what are called comforts or conveniences in arrangements of a personal nature, like an easy chair or a good fire, which do their part in dispelling cold and fatigue, though nature provides both means of rest and animal heat without them.

THE TRUE GENTLEMAN,

in like manner, carefully avoids whatever might cause a jar or jolt in the minds of those with whom he is cast—all clashing of opinion, or collision of feeling, all restraint, or suspicion, or gloom, or resentment; his concern being to make everyone at their ease and at home. He has his eyes on all his company. He is tender towards the bashful, gentle towards the distant, merciful towards the abused; he can recollect to whom he is speaking he guards against unreasonable allusions or topics which may irritate. He makes light of favours when he does them and seems to be receiving when he is conferring. He never speaks of himself except when compelled, never defends himself by a mere retreat; he has no ears for slander or gossip, he is scrupulous in imputing motives to those who interfere with him, and intends everything for the best. He is never mean or little in his disputes, never takes unfair advantage, never mistakes personalities or sharp sayings for arguments or insinuates evil which he dare not say out. From a long sighted prejudice he observes the maxim of the ancient sage, that we should ever conduct ourselves towards our enemy as if he were one day to be our friend. He has too much good sense to be affronted at insults, he is too well employed to remember injuries and too indolent to bear malice. He is patient, forbearing and resigned on philosophical principles, he submits to pain because it is inevitable, to bereavement because it is irreparable, and to death because it is his destiny.

If he engage in controversy of any kind

preserves him from the blundering discourtesy of better, perhaps, but less cultivated minds, who, like blunt weapons, bear and hack instead of cutting clean, who mistake the point in argument, waste their strength on trifles, misconceive the adversary and leave the question more involved than they find it, etc. How in this age of professional mud-slinging, while reading and controversies it will be well to remind ourselves of these points, which every gentleman should possess.

Then to conclude I would venture to say in the strength of the words of Ben Johnson: "No man is so foolish but may give another good counsel sometimes, and no man is so wise but may easily err if he will take no other counsel but his own," that if you make proper use of the time and opportunities you have you will not only secure the brightest possession, Faith. "There are no greater riches, no greater treasure, no greater honour, no greater possession in all this world than the Catholic faith."—(St. Aug. de verbis domin.) But also store your mind with abundant good things so that with your friends and companions you will always be as serviceable as the man that Macbeth called for:

"Canst thou not minister to a mind diseased,
Pluck from the memory a rooted sorrow,
Raze out the written troubles of the brain,
And, with some sweet oblivious antidote,
Cleanse the foul bosom of that perilous stuff,
Which weighs upon the heart."
—Shakespeare.

A HORSE DEAL.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—Please decide the following: A. sells B. a horse for $90. B. sells the same horse back to A. for $80. A. sells the same horse to C. for $100. How much does A. make on the transaction? This actually took place and is in dispute as to how much A. made.

Yours etc.,
Inquirer.

[The gain is $20. A. gets $90 and $100, or $190, and gives in return $80, showing gain in cash of $110, or $20 more than first price.

Pineapple Juice For Diphtheria.

Pineapple juice is the latest remedy for diphtheria. The pineapples are compressed and the juice used as a drink. It is said that the negroes of Georgia and other southern states have used this remedy for years. The juice cuts or burns out the membrane of diphtheria rapidly. Constitutional medicines are always necessary. The juice is a local remedy only and taken in teaspoonful doses every two hours undiluted. The local journals assert that pineapple juice acts so promptly that few if any cases of diphtheria perish. It is harmless and agreeable and efficacious.

Pineapple juice (by analysis) contains: Sugar, water, albumen, citric acid, malic acid, tannin, cellulose. Citric acid is found in lemons, oranges and plums and has been used in malignant throat diseases for many years. Any mild acid acts well in diphtheria, especially when found combined, as in the pineapple.—Exchange.

Alice—Oh, George, what made you think of such a thing? Well, if you want to.

A Very Queer Dresser.

A very queer man in the matter of dress was the late Duke of Portland. His eccentric grace always, it appears, ordered three frock coats to every suit. When the weather was hot, he wore one only, when it was a little less hot two, and when it was cool all three. Besides these, he always kept three greatcoats in wear, so that when winter came on he wore three frock coats and one greatcoat, as it advanced three frock coats and two greatcoats, while, when there was a real frost, he turned out in all the six.—London Correspondence.

DYING BY INCHES!

But Dodd's Kidney Pills will Yet Renew Life.

Thousands of persons die in the prime of life because doctors think Bright's Disease and Diabetes incurable. But Dodd's Kidney Pills cure them both. They have cured thousands of cases.

These diseases and other Kidney complaints are as common as ordinary colds. But people don't realize that they are afflicted till the disease has eaten deep into the system. Even then, Dodd's Kidney Pills will positively cure.

Thousands of people are dying on their feet, but do not realize it. They notice one or more of these symptoms: shortness of breath, loss of memory, failing sight, ravenous appetite, pale or reddish urine, with brick-colored deposit, scalding when urinating, constipation, nervousness, pains in the loins. Their only hope is Dodd's Kidney Pills. They won't fail. They never do.

AUTHORS' MANUSCRIPTS.

Not Necessary For Editors to Read Them From Beginning to End.

Once more the tale goes round of the author who sent a story to three journals and had it returned by every one without having been read. He knew it because he had pasted two of the leaves together. Very likely. We do not think of reading through a half or a quarter of the articles that are sent to us. It often does not take half a minute to discard what one knows he doesn't want. It is an old saying that one does not need to eat a whole joint to learn whether it is tainted.

It would be a revelation to some of these writers to see how fast an experienced and conscientious editor can, at times, go through a big pile of essays, stories or poems. The title is often enough, and he would say, "We don't want an article on that subject." The next article begins with a page or two of commonplace introduction, and that is thrown aside in half a minute's inspection without turning more than the next page. The next begins with a platitude—"We can't print that stuff."

The first verse of this next poem has false meter and is tossed aside. The next begins in schoolgirl style, with "dove" and "love;" it is not read through. Of the next the editor reads ten lines. It is simply a dull description of a stream in a forest—not wanted. The next poem begins in a fresh way, seems to be constructed according to the rules, is pretty good. It is put one side to see if other better poems will crowd it out. The next is a story. The first page is promising, but the second shows a coarse strain, and the reading stops there.

Ten articles are decided upon, and with sufficient good judgment, in ten minutes, for a minute to a manuscript is often twice as much time as it needs. It does not take that long for a dealer to stick an iron skewer in a smoked ham, draw it out and smell of it. Not one article in a dozen perhaps needs to be read through.—New York Independent.

WONDROUS REMEDY,

Is what a London Doctor Calls Dodd's Kidney Pills.

London, Jan. 9.—A large decrease in the number of cases of Kidney Disease has been noted in this city during the past year.

"There's only one thing to be said about it," said a prominent physician speaking on the subject the other day.

"This falling-off is due solely to the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills by the people. Dodd's Kidney Pills are the most wondrous kidney remedy ever known. They are used in nearly every household, which accounts for the great decrease of Kidney Complaint."

Unhealthy St. Petersburg.

At St. Petersburg the average yearly deaths are from 2,500 to 3,000 in excess of the births in a population of nearly a million. In the years from 1886 to 1893 the death rate varied from 39.7 per thousand to 38.6, while the births were only 3.1 per thousand. In 1893, 38,171 children were born alive, while there were 30,150 deaths, an excess in this year of about 5,000. But these figures are apt to be misleading. The workmen who come up to the capital almost invariably leave their wives and children in the provinces. Thus many births take place in the provinces which are not reckoned to the account of the capital. The fact that about 75 per cent. of the population are over sixteen years of age testifies to the universality of the practice of leaving the children in the country. The same fact is demonstrated by the presence of twelve men to every ten women in St. Petersburg, whereas in most towns this proportion is exactly reversed. It will thus be seen that though the deaths are in excess of the births, there is not likely to be any diminution in the actual population of the town. In fact, its population increased 20 per cent. between 1869 and 1881.—Tid-Bits.

Glorious News.

Comes from Dr. D B. Cargile, of Washita, I. T. He writes: "Four bottles of Electric Bitters has cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula, which had caused her great suffering for years. Terrible sores would break out on her head and face, and the best doctors could give no help; but her cure is complete and her health excellent." This shows what thousands have proved—that Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It stimulates liver, kidneys and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion builds up the strength. Only 50 cents. Sold by all druggists, every bottle guaranteed.

A SERIOUS PROBLEM.

THE COMPASS AND THE GROWING USE OF ELECTRICITY.

A Danger That the Magnetic Needle May Be Rendered Practically Useless to the Mariner and the Surveyor—A Curious Discovery.

Although the invention and introduction of the trolley system of street railways have been of inestimable value to civilization it has incidentally wrought some harm here and there. Emphasis was laid on one of these drawbacks to electric traction in the address delivered by Professor A. W. Rucker at a recent meeting of the British Association For the Advancement of Science.

In various parts of the world observatories have been established for the purpose of keeping track of the changes in the direction in which the magnetic needle points. It was long ago discovered not only that the compass does not aim directly at the north pole, but that the amount of variation in its indications from true north undergoes slow alterations. Hence it is necessary to make fresh charts, showing the variation for different parts of the globe every few years. But in order to get the data for such corrections—of the highest importance to the surveyor and mariner—it is requisite that careful observations be made continuously at a number of widely separated points.

Two of the most famous and hitherto useful institutions of this class are situated in Washington, in the grounds of the naval observatory and in Toronto. The interference of the electric currents that run through the earth and the track of trolley lines which have been constructed near these observatories interfere so much with the behavior of the instruments of both places that the records now obtained are practically worthless. And the experts are greatly puzzled by the problem of escaping from this vexatious interruption of their work.

So delicate are the influences which the magnets in such an observatory are intended to investigate that they can be perceived only when the apparatus is most scrupulously guarded. The room in which they are mounted is underground. Visitors are never admitted except under unusual circumstances and are required to deposit their jackknives, keys and all other metallic objects about their persons before entering the apartment. The magnets, generally bars of steel not over six inches long, are poised above a scale that is graduated to the most minute fractions, and a telescope, on an adjacent pillar, is used to read the fluctuations, which are too small to be discernible by the unassisted eye. A tiny mirror, as big as a dime, catches a beam of light more slender than the lead in a pencil and reflects it away to a sheet of slowly moving photographic paper, on which a permanent record is made. The arrangement of the apparatus is such that the movement of the magnet is magnified many times in the record, in order to render the changes perceptible.

There are three sets of instruments on duty in such an observatory. One swings horizontally, like a mariner's compass. Another dips up and down. A third is designed to measure the intensity of the earth's magnetism, which is a separate thing from the direction in which it acts. And so sensitive are they that their readings are apt to be interfered with by exceedingly trivial causes. It is customary for the superintendent to inscribe on the scroll "Visitors admitted," whenever such a breach of the regulations is permitted, so that if any abnormal fluctuation is detected in the motion of the magnets a suspicion of its meaning will be excited in the mind of the scientist who afterward examines the photographic trace.

In spite of the delicacy of the apparatus, it may seem surprising to the lay mind that the passage of trolley currents at a distance of many rods from the observatory should be able to affect the instruments within. But they do, and it is impossible to separate in the record the variations produced by genuine changes in terrestrial magnetism from those which are caused by the trolley. Professor Rucker said a few days ago: "From all parts of the world we hear of observatories ruined or threatened by the invasion of the electrical engineer. Toronto and Washington have already succumbed, Potsdam, Parc St. Maur, Greenwich and Kew are besieged, and the issue largely depends upon whether these great national observatories can or cannot make good their defense."

Although the practical service to mankind which is rendered by institutions of this class is alone sufficient to justify their maintenance and to warrant alarm as to their future, there are other questions involved which possess profound interest for the philosopher. We know that the earth is a magnet, but as yet no one is able to say what makes it so. The fundamental secret of terrestrial magnetism has not been solved. Then, too, there are various changes in direction which mark the behavior of the needle that remain to be explained. What influence is it that makes the needle swing to and fro to a microscopic extent every day? Why is it that the diurnal swing is greater in years of sun spot abundance than at the minimum stage of solar activity? Why do the indications of the needle differ in summer from those of winter? What is the key to the mystery of the long period movement that makes it necessary to recbart the situation? What causes the convulsive behavior of the magnets for a few hours or days when there is a great outbreak of sun spots? And is there any relation between the weather and the fluctuations in the earth's magnetism? There are theories on these subjects, but no generally accepted doctrines, and the human mind is so constituted that it will not rest until further light is obtained.—New York Tribune.

RHEUMATISM

INSECTS AS HOODOOS.

They Keep Settlers Away From Many Parts of the World.

Nothing could more strikingly illustrate the importance of small things than the large role which is now attributed to the mosquito in the etiology of some of the most serious and widespread diseases to which the human race is subject. It is truly said that what prevents the successful colonization of many tropical countries and what throws the greatest obstacle in the way of civilization of and good government in vast regions of central Africa is not climate, not distance from home and not unfriendliness on the part of the natives. The obstacle is malaria, and now we find that the prevalence of malaria, so far as man is concerned, depends on the mosquito, and that this pestilent little insect, in addition to irritating and annoying, is the means by which the poison of malaria is propagated and distributed.

For years back botanists have known the important part played by birds in the scattering of seed and of insects in the distribution of the pollen of plants, and it seems not unlikely that pathologists will have to recognize in a much larger degree than has till lately been done the large part taken by the subordinate forms of life by which we are surrounded—our cattle, our horses, our dogs and cats, our flies, our mosquitoes, and perhaps even our fleas—in distributing disease from man to man, and, as is stated in regard to the mosquito and malaria, in deciding whether the extension of our empire over great areas of the globe's surface shall be possible or not.—Hospital.

Punctuation.

What a great difference in the meaning of a sentence a misplaced comma can make! Take the following, for example:

"James, my husband is a very sick man."

"James, my husband, is a very sick man."

The following bit of perverse punctuation was perpetrated by an English compositor. What the author meant to say can be ascribed by a rearrangement of the punctuation marks:

"Cæsar entered on his head; his helmet on his feet; armed sandals upon his brow; there was a cloud in his right hand; his faithful sword in his eye; an angry glare saying nothing, he sat down." — Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Raw from Her Toes to Her Knees

DR. CHASE MAKES A WONDERFUL CURE

Mrs. Knight, 17 Hanover Place, Toronto, makes the following statement:—

MY mother, Mrs. Wright, who lives at Norval, near Doncaster, suffered a summer and winter with Eczema in her feet. She could not walk, and very seldom got any sleep. It became so bad that she was perfectly raw from the toes to the knees. After trying every available remedy without receiving any benefit, and almost hopeless of relief, she was advised to try Dr. Chase's Ointment. She has altogether used 8 boxes since commencing, but with the happiest results, for she is now completely cured. There is but one scar on one of her feet, a memento of her fearful suffering condition. Any person desiring further testimony in this case is at liberty to communicate with Mrs. Wright at her address, Norval P.O.

Mrs. Knight says after such a grand success, is it any wonder we recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment?

A Speculative Parson.

There is a country parson in England who has mistaken his calling. Recently he wrote to Barney Barnato, the king of Kaffir finance, asking for relief from embarrassment on account of an over-indulgence in Kaffirs. "My sin," he wrote "has always been investment, not speculation. When your bank came I regarded its shares as an investment, and purchased 400 of them at £4, sinking my little all in them, and a good deal more. They have now fallen to £2, and I am undone. I cannot face my parish as a bankrupt, and what am I to do? I throw myself upon your mercy." Mr. Barnato was deeply moved by the appeal and replied that he would buy back the shares at £4. On receipt of this reply the guileless parson wired to his brokers to "buy 400 shares of Barnato bank stock at £2, and send them around to Barnato Bros., who will give you £4 for them."—London Letter.

DEAR SIR,—Your official notice came duly to hand, apprising me of the results obtainable upon my 15 year endowment Policy in your Company for $1,000 which matured on the 5th inst. Of the various options you have given me viz.:

Cash value	$1,564 90

I have decided upon the cash value; and it gives me pleasure to testify that, as I anticipated it would be when I took out the policy, IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY. This returns me the full premiums of the 15 years and over 4½ per cent. compound interest in addition to which you have carried the risk upon my life. In view of the lowering rates of interest which have been obtainable during the latter portion of the period, it is difficult to see how this excellent result could have been surpassed.

Too Weak To Work.

Two years ago Mrs. A. Walton, Sunny Brae, N.S., was so weak she couldn't do her housework. B. B. B. restored her health and strength, and she's been perfectly well since.

The record of permanent cures B. B. B. is rolling up is one of the marvels of modern medicine. Case after case is being presented where Burdock Blood Bitters cured, and cured permanently, some of the severest and most malignant diseases, after everything else failed. There is nothing like it for driving all poisons and impurities, which are the cause of disease, from the system, and building up the health on the foundation of pure, rich blood.

Mrs. A. Walton, of Sunny Brae, Pictou Co., N.S., is one of those who have been permanently cured by B.B.B. Recently she wrote the following account of her case:

"Two years ago I was completely run down. Remember on one occasion, when I arrived home from the gold mines at Fifteen Mile Creek, I was so weak I could scarcely sweep a room. At any rate in doing my housework I would have to sit down and rest every few minutes. I had no appetite and began to be alarmed at my condition. I was not only weak but very short of breath. Finally I tried Burdock Blood Bitters. I took two bottles, and soon my appetite improved, and I became strong and well. It is now two years since I took the B.B.B., and I have remained in good health since. I hope that all who feel weak and worn out will try B.B.B., as I am convinced it will not fail to effect a cure."

A Woman's Crime.

A THRILLING STORY OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE.

By LAWRENCE M. LYNCH.

Author of "John Arthur's Ward," "The Diamond Coterie," "Against Odds," Etc., Etc.

He had not been long in discovering that neither the doctor, nor Bradwardine, knew of the accusation against Lenore Armyn; for spite of the fact that the doctor had been absent from Fairlie on the very night of the murder, and that he had returned from the city on the very next day, the detective had not long entertained the idea that he had been in any manner accessory to the dark deed.

Doctor Austin might have been summoned to assist Lenore to escape from her husband, or his absence might have been a coincidence; but Neil Bathurst felt that it would have been sheer absurdity to accuse or suspect the doctor of such a crime. He had long ago ceased to wonder that Doctor Austin had never stumbled upon the knowledge of Lenore's blood guiltiness. The good man read the weekly city paper—that is, he read all the scientific articles, all the reviews, and sermons, the quotations, and—must we confess it—the amusement gossip. But he shunned the records of crime, the trials, horrible disasters, suicides, murders; he shunned these and politics, he said, "on principle."

Good Mrs. Austin never looked at a newspaper, believing that they could be better utilized on her pantry shelves.

As for Bradwardine, Rob had hit the mark concerning him. He was too thoroughly an English snob to harbour the idea that an American newspaper could by any means prove entertaining to him.

During the three months that had passed, Jason Bradwardine had written two or three letters to the widow O'Neil. These had been forwarded by Rob, and the answers had been returned through the same medium. Mrs. O'Neil had not been successful in finding the woman who had purloined Mr. Bradwardine's wallet, nevertheless the gentleman seemed to have a reason for keeping trace of the whereabouts of that clever and agreeable lady.

Mr. Bradwardine passed in the village for a gentleman of means, fond of retirement and of study, though no one could have told what particular branch of the sciences, or art, or literature, he most affected. He had assiduously cultivated the acquaintance of Doctor Austin, but no amount of cultivation, no questioning, however shrewdly put, could elicit any information concerning Lenore Armyn; on that subject the doctor was as stubborn as a donkey, and as dumb as death.

As for the detective, he had not expected any verbal communications from Dr. Austin, he had relied upon other means of gaining information; but, as yet, he, too, had been unsuccessful.

Of late, Bradwardine had made some overtures toward John Jacob, and that astute young man was not slow in putting two and two together—the Englishman was getting tired of country monotony, and, if he could get a hint of the whereabouts of Lenore, would soon terminate matters in some way.

Of course, John Jacob had his opinion regarding the doctor's reticence on this one subject. Either he was keeping her hiding-place a secret, at the request of Lenore, she having confided to him in some way a portion of the truth, enough, of course, to arouse his sympathies, or else he had, himself, assisted her to gain that secure hiding-place.

"I am not at all sure that he would not screen her just the same if he did know of the murder," mused John Jacob, as he sat alone by the office fire, studying as usual, upon this knotty problem; "at the same time I am ready to affirm that he don't know it. It's odd that there are no pictures of the girl, even here!"

He arose with a yawn, glanced at his watch, and seeing that it would soon be time for the doctor's return, stirred the fire to a vigorous blaze, and took down a huge book, which he opened and placed beside him on the table. Having thus prepared himself for the expected arrival, he relapsed again into thought. It was not long before he heard footsteps ascending the stairs, and presently Dr. Austin came in like a stiff breeze.

"You are back, sir?" said John Jacob, quite unnecessarily.

"Yes, John, I'm back; got my horse in the stable, and been to the post-office. But I'm pretty tired," pulling off his coat and fur cap. "There's a pretty brisk wind across the open country, and I have driven nineteen miles. It makes a man feel sleepy, this wind."

The doctor drew a chair to the fire, and took some letters from his pocket. As he drew them forth one slipped to the floor, and instantly John Jacob picked it up and restored it to its owner. In that one instant, however, he had caught a glimpse of the superscription, and recognised the handwriting, with a thrill of delight.

The doctor read his letters, and then returned them to his pocket, after which he conversed very cheerfully with John Jacob. He would talk so long as he had a listener, and just now John Jacob preferred to have him silent.

"If he has no one to talk to, he will fall asleep in a few minutes," thought he, glancing furtively at the kindly, wind-flushed face. Then rising, he said aloud: "I believe I will go out for a bit; I have been sitting here so long, it makes me feel dull."

"That's right, that's right, John. Go out; it will do you good," replied Dr. Austin.

And the young man pulled on his great coat, and went.

Twenty minutes later, he re-entered the office with a step like a cat. Doctor Austin lay upon the lounge, breathing heavily, and evidently sound asleep. This was what John Jacob had hoped for. Noiselessly he crept forward, and bent above the sleeper. Lightly his fingers moved about his breast for an instant, and then he stood erect, holding some letters in his hand. Softly, silently, he moved toward the table. One glance sufficed to select the right letter, and in another moment he was mastering its contents. Into his face crept a look of astonishment as he read, but he finished the perusal quickly, wrote something on a slip of paper, and then crept back and, as carefully as he had extracted them, restored all the letters to the pocket of the unconscious man. This done, he went softly out again. He walked about for a little while, seeming to have some new and agreeable food for thought, and then he turned once more toward the office. This time he entered the room somewhat noisily, and Doctor Austin started, broad awake.

"Mercy on me!" he cried, rubbing his eyes; "I have been asleep. Did I sleep very long, John?"

"Not very long, sir. I just came in; didn't suppose you were asleep, or I would have been more careful."

"Nonsense, John! I should have been awake and at work. I have some letters to write," putting his hand to his pocket.

"Doctor Austin," said John Jacob, sitting down near the lounge, and looking uncommonly grave, "I would like to say a few words to you before you begin to write, if you can spare me the time."

"Certainly—of course, John; speak right out. It's nothing serious, I hope?"

"Oh, no, sir; nothing serious. The fact is, I received a letter to-day from an old New York chum—used to live on the farm next to me, you see. Well, he has come to Chicago for a little trip, and he wants me to meet him there, and sort of go around with him for a week or so. I'd like to see Jim very much, and I'd like to see more of the city; so, if you don't object, why, I think I'll just run down and see Jim and the rest of the sights."

Doctor Austin smiled a little at this climax to John Jacob's speech, but he answered, good-naturedly:—

"Of course, I don't object, John; do as you like; only be careful of yourself. Chicago's a mighty bad place for young men sometimes. Don't get into bad company, and don't let any of those confidence men get their hands on you."

"I'll try and take care of myself, sir. I've been around a bit since I left the farm, and I guess those chaps won't catch me. And that reminds me of the other thing I had to say." Here he paused, as if in doubt how to proceed.

"Well, John?"

"The—the fact is, sir, I want to speak to you about Mr. Brady."

"About Mr. Brady! why, what of him, John?"

"You see, sir," said John Jacob, as if making a desperate plunge into the subject, "I—I've wanted to speak about him for a long time, but I was afraid you would think me meddling, and I wouldn't like that," with a super-virtuous look. "I don't set myself up for an extra smart fellow, sir, but I guess Mr. Brady has taken me for a bigger fool than I am, because I can't use such high-flown language as he handles. At any rate, he has taken of late to quizzing me about your private affairs, and he kept it up until he aroused my suspicions."

"What! what does he question you about, John?"

"Why, sir, about some young lady that used to live with you, I guess—Lenore, something, I don't recall the other name. He wants to find out something about her. To tell the truth, when I got suspicious I just let him go on a bit, and finally he came out plump and said if I could tell him or find for him the present address of this lady, he would make me a present of a hundred dollars."

"Bless my heart," cried the doctor, bounding up. "Bless my heart, John. Why didn't you tell me before? I see it now; he used to quiz me a little, too. But—" sitting down again, suddenly, "I don't know anything about the young lady. I don't, positively."

"Of course you don't," said John Jacob, indignantly. "I tell you what, sir, it's my opinion that Mr. Brady is a spy or detective or some sort of a confidence man; and I just thought I ought to tell you so, before I went to the city."

"I'm glad you did, John. I'm very glad you did," said the doctor, still very red in the face. "When do you want to start, my boy?"

"To-morrow," said the bogus student, not without sundry twinges of conscience. "I would like to get there at the same time Jim does."

"Well, well; go and have a good time. I'll give Mr. Brady a cool reception if he comes about here any more. Come, John, let's go to supper."

"I reckon I've spoked Brady's wheel," thought John Jacob, as he drew on his overcoat; "but who would have thought of hiding Lenore Armyn in a mad-house?"

CHAPTER XXVIII.

ESCAPED FROM A MAD-HOUSE.

On the very outskirts of Chicago, in a certain street which must be nameless, stands a large house. It is old, but very pleasant of aspect, standing in its own grounds, which are large, well kept, and beautiful.

It is quite unlike anything else in the vicinity, and the occupants thereof are as rambling, irregular, and unlike their neighbours as is the house itself. For this is Doctor Burton's private madhouse.

If ever you are insane, dear reader, go to Doctor Burton's. If your aspiration is to cut somebody's throat, or if you are liable to sudden fancies of that sort at stated times, he will clap you into the straightest of straight jackets, and keep you there until there comes an improvement in your morals.

If your tendency to destructiveness does not extend beyond a hunger and thirst for smashing furniture, and tearing the "products of nature" up by the roots, he will furnish you with an "escort," and let you wander about the house and grounds at your own sweet will. While if your malady is of the mild and harmless sort, you will hardly know that you are under surveillance. You may explore the premises unquestioned and unhindered; and if there is nothing eccentric in your manner or appearance, you may even wander out upon the highway for recreation. In short, Doctor Burton will let you do anything that you can do decently and in order, even if you are "mad as a March hare."

If you have catarrh, don't dally with local remedies, but purify and enrich your blood with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Guy Fawkes' Lantern.

It has been settled beyond a doubt that the identical lamp which Guy Fawkes carried in poking about in the cellar of the houses of parliament, when he intended to blow them up, is now in existence. This lantern is in the Ashmolean museum at Cambridge. Guy Fawkes was carrying this lantern when he was arrested. The history of the lantern has now been fully established and it must take its place among the most celebrated exhibits in the museums of the world.—London Mail.

Children's Sleep.

Growing children cannot too carefully be enjoined to get plenty of sleep. The boy or girl who has lessons to learn must waken early after a good night's rest, and this is insured only by punctuality in retiring. Eight o'clock is a good bedtime for all young people under 15 and should be insisted upon by parents.—Harper's Bazar.

Professor Bryce made a bad slip in his book on South Africa. He accuses the Boers of abusing the English by speaking of them usually as "rotten eggs," whereas the Transvaal phrase is root neck, "red neck," and applies to the British complexion.

Iron horseshoes have been found dating back to the year 481.

Sooner or later every woman must duel with Death. Nature has provided her with a set of extremely sensitive organs upon the condition of which the health of her whole body depends. She must keep these distinctly feminine organs fully protected by the armor of health. That is her best defense against Death at the time that Death comes closest to her—the time when she becomes a mother.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is designed for the one purpose of curing all diseases, or disorders of the feminine system, except cancer. It stops debilitating drains, soothes inflammation, promotes regularity of the monthly function and puts the whole female organism into a state of strong, vigorous health.

Taken during the period of gestation it robs childbirth of its pain and danger.

Over 250,000 grateful women have written of the wonderful help of the "Favorite Prescription." Among others Mrs. Cordelia Henson, of Coalton, Boyd Co., Ky., writes:

"In October 1889 I gave birth to a baby and the treatment I received at the hands of the midwife left me with prolapsus. I had no health to speak of for three years. I had another baby which was the third child. My health began to fail and I then had three miscarriages and found myself completely worn out. I had so many pains and aches my life was a burden to me and also to all the family, for I was nervous and cross and I could not sleep. Had four doctors. They said I had liver, lung and uterine trouble. I was in bed for months and when I did get up, I was a sight to behold. I looked like a corpse walking about. I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and in a few weeks I became a well woman. Before I began the use of Dr. Pierce's medicine I suffered all a woman could suffer at my monthly periods. But now I have no pain. The dark circles around my eyes are gone and I feel better in every way. My cheeks are red and my face is

A NEW INVENTION

The Newcombe Piano Has It.

It consists of a Patented Practice CLAVIER or STOP which diminishes the tone when required and saves wear on the Piano; it also does away with the old way of having to press down the pedal with the foot in order to soften the tone when running the scales or practicing. Oftentimes the young pupil on the piano cannot press down on the pedal without throwing themselves out of the proper position when they should sit erect. This invention in the NEWCOMBE PIANO will enable children to begin two years earlier on the piano. In addition to the above, the NEWCOMBE PIANO is the finest made in Canada. Children often complain about practicing; they like it if they have a NEWCOMBE PIANO. 1899 styles are gems of art, containing every late improvement; they possess that beautiful full sweet tone which delights the singer, and so pleases every musical ear. Organs of every description at Wholesale Prices.

BABY'S AWFUL HUMOR

Eighteen Months Old Baby Had Rash on Shoulder for Two Years Causing Intense Suffering. Would Scab Over, Break Open and Be Raw. Several Doctors and Remedies Tried. Efforts Fruitless. Cured by CUTICURA.

My sister had this rash come on her shoulder when she was about eighteen months old. It was there about two years causing her intense suffering. We had several different doctors, tried everything that we could think of, and that every one could suggest without effecting a cure. In spite of all we did it kept spreading. One day it would scab over and then break open and a watery matter come from it and the scabs would all fall off. It would be raw for a time, then scab over again. Some one recommended CUTICURA REMEDIES. We immediately procured a box of CUTICURA (ointment), a cake of CUTICURA SOAP, then tried the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and before the bottle was half gone we saw a marked change, and by the time it was gone, she was entirely cured without a scar being left. She is now twelve years old, and has not had a pimple or sign of blood trouble since.

SPRINGVILLE SYMBEBALS.

Nuptials of Miss Minnie Robertson and Mr. W. J. Stacey.

From Our Own Correspondent.

A large number of guests assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robertson, of this place, on Wednesday, Dec. 28th, 1898 to witness a very pretty and pleasing event, the occasion being the marriage of their daughter Minnie, to Mr. W. J Stacey, principal of the public school, Emiskillen.

The ceremony was ably performed by Rev. A. J. McMullen, pastor of Springville church, in his usual pleasant manner.

The bride look charming, and was attended by her sister Flo, while the groom was assisted by his brother, Mr. B. Stacey, teacher at Argyle.

After the ceremony the guests repaired to the dining room where a sumptuous repast awaited them.

In the evening a hack arrived from Peterborough, and the young couple were driven to town to the C.P.R. station, where amidst a shower of rice they boarded the train for their future home.

A large number of friends from a distance were present.

The presents being numerous and costly, a number of them being sent from the "Prairie Province," showed the high esteem in which the bride was held by her many friends.

COLD BATHS.

Their Injurious Effects Upon the Anæmic and the Old.

The Journal of Tropical Medicine has an interesting article on the use of the cold tub in tropical countries, in which it is shown that, health giving as it may be to those who are young and vigorous and newly arrived, it is by no means a process to be universally advised. In the tropics a daily bath of some sort becomes a necessity for purposes of cleanliness alone. But the "sub" which is indulged in by Europeans—that is, immersion in cold water, or, at any rate, in water that is distinctly colder than the body, for, say, five minutes—has a distinct physiological action besides the removal of dirt, and the question is whether this is good or bad. It is pointed out that the shock is relatively greater than in temperate climates; that the abstraction of heat during the process can be but ill afforded, and that the depression of temperature induced is difficult to recover from.

It is also insisted on that neither the circulation nor the respiratory organs respond to the stimulus, and that, especially in the case of those who are "getting on" in years, the digestive organs may be congested to a dangerous extent. We think that all this is very true, but that it is true for a very large number of people who live in temperate climes as well as for those whose lives are passed in the tropics. Many people who have, as they would say, been "always accustomed" to take a cold tub every morning continue the habit long after it had better have been given up. They do this partly because it is a habit and partly because they dislike the confession of getting old which seems to be involved in giving up the customs of their more youthful days.

But we are quite clear that unless good reaction very quickly follows a cold bath and follows it without much "toweling," such tubbing is very often injurious. Whenever a man has to "rub himself warm," or when he finds that he is not right again until after his breakfast, he may feel sure that his tub is doing him harm and that he would do better to take a warm bath, finishing off with a rapid sponge over with cold water. "For the young, vigorous and newly arrived youth in the tropics the cold bath may be indulged in with impunity, and it may be with benefit, but as years elapse the tropical resident calls for bath water warmer and still warmer until he finds that he has best health only when the water of his bath is not below the temperature of his body."

And it is the same in temperate climates. On the other hand, the anæmia of the tropics renders a man more susceptible to cold; but, on the other hand, the arterial rigidity which in temperate climates is so common an associate of advancing years renders men peculiarly unable to bear that sudden displacement of blood and that sudden rearrangement of the circulation which is involved in getting into cold water.—Hospital.

Unfortunate Heroine.

One of the eccentricities of the English language was lately brought to the notice of a New England woman by her Swedish maid. The girl had attended a night school for some weeks, and was much delighted with her attainments in English. She expressed her wish to try her knowledge of the language by reading a story, and her mistress recommended for her perusal one called "A Modern Cinderella" in a magazine. It was short, simply worded and appeared not to present any linguistic pitfalls.

"Did you like it, Bertha?" asked the mistress when the magazine was returned to her.

"Yas, ma'am," replied the girl slowly, "but I am sorry she had so much trouble and dose glass eyes, too. My brudder, he had one glass eye, and it was vera hard for him."

"Why, I didn't remember about her having glass eyes," said the mistress. Bertha unfolded the magazine, and pointed with a respectful finger to the following undeniable proofs:

"As Polly moved about the kitchen doing her work her eyes suddenly fell on the letter which lay unopened in her aunt's lap.

"'Keep your eyes where they belong,' said that lady sharply, and poor Polly colored with shame."—Youth's Companion.

THE LUMBERMEN WILL MEET.

The Canadians and the Americans Will Get Together at Washington.

Washington, Jan. 11.—The American-Canadian commission was in session for a brief time yesterday, but its attention was entirely taken up with routine questions. The sub-committee on the north-eastern fisheries resumed its work after the adjournment of the full commission.

The lumber item of the reciprocity discussion before the Anglo-American commission is arousing much interest in Congressional circles. A meeting has been arranged for to-day between the representative American and Canadian lumbermen. The purpose of the meeting is to try to reconcile the two sides, although doubt is expressed as to whether this can be done.

$200,000 in a Name.

St. Louis, Jan. 11.—Joseph H. Dillon had his name changed by legal process to Joseph H. Dillon-Gregg to enable him to marry Mary Gregg and at the same time save the fortune of $200,000 bequeathed to her by an eccentric uncle, on condition that she retain the name of Gregg through life. It is supposed the uncle intended his niece should remain unmarried.

Organized Their Own Fire Brigade.

Brantford, Jan. 11.—The Massey Harris works here is to have a regular fire department of its own. Within a few months the company has spent $15,000 to establish a thorough system of fire protection at their works. Five firemen are on duty all the time under the control of a chief, and all have been furnished with proper uniforms and outfits.

Where Grip Comes From.

Washington, D.C., Jan. 11.—Surgeon General Wyman has received reports showing that the prevailing influenza, or grip, which is epidemic in many cities and towns throughout the east and south, started in Turkey and Asia Minor about the middle or November and spread westward, following the established lines of trans-Atlantic travel.

Paris Full of Bitterness.

Paris, Jan. 11.—The Dreyfus affair has now entered one of its bitterest chapters. It is regarded by impartial observers as the most dangerous factor to the institutions of the republic the affair has yet developed, that the president of one of the chambers of the Court of Cassation should assume the role of a leader of the agitation against the tribunal, declaring that 16 of his colleagues are conspiring to defeat the ends of justice. The opinion is gaining ground that the opponents of the Republic may find in this man, M. Quesnay de Beaurepaire, a leader, the lack of whom has hitherto been the chief guarantee of the continuance of the present regime.

The Weapon Destroyed.

Geneva, Jan. 11.—The last official act in the tragedy of Geneva has just been performed. Luchesi, the murderer of the Empress of Austria-Hungary, is dead to the world, and it remained only, in accordance with universal custom in the case of assassinated monarchs, to destroy the weapon with which the crime was committed, as well as the instruments used in the post-mortem examination. The destruction of the articles was accomplished by means of acids, and took place, attended with much solemnity, in the presence of the Austrian Minister, at Berne, and the officials of his legation.

Germans in the Slave Trade.

Berlin, Jan. 11.—Dr. Krause, a German traveller in Africa, has caused a sensation here by his memorial addressed to the Reichstag charging the Imperial officers managing the German colony of Togo, Southwest Africa, with conniving at slave-dealing on the coast. In three days, he says, he saw more than 15,000 slaves sold in the town of Keto alone. These sensational charges lie mainly against Governor Jesko von Puttkamer, who has been involved in other colonial scandals.

ROBERT TAGGART'S CHANCES.

He May Escape the Scaffold on the Insanity Plea.

Toronto, Jan. 11.—The grand jury of the Criminal Assizes yesterday brought in a true bill against Robert F. Taggart, charged with the murder of his wife. Later Taggart was arraigned, and after pleading not guilty was remanded. His case is not likely to be reached before Thursday. Taggart smashed his wife's head with a hammer, on the morning of November 25th last, and the woman died next day. After the occurrence Taggart went to No. 4 police station and surrendered himself. When put on trial the defense will be one of insanity, and no attempt will be made to deny that the injuries inflicted by Taggart resulted in his wife's death.

Had No Idea of Buying It.

Montreal, Jan. 11.—Hon. J. Israel Tarte, who is now in New York, writes La Patrie as follows: "The Laurier Cabinet has not the slightest idea of purchasing the Parry Sound Railway and I am convinced that Mr. Booth has no intention of selling it. The Parry Sound is already a great freight carrier and will become the most intimate ally of the Intercolonial and a heavy feeder of the port of Montreal."

Lumbermen of Both Countries Meet at Washington.

SOME LATE REPRESENTATIVES.

Their Absence Caused the Postponement of the Conference for a Day—A Great Fight, With Some Chance for Canada, in Prospect—Some of These Present—Canada's Allies.

Montreal, Jan. 12.—The following is sent to The Herald from its resident correspondent in Washington:

Washington, Jan. 11.—The meeting of lumbermen interested in the lumber schedule of the proposed Canadian treaty held at the Arlington Hotel this morning, did not accomplish much. The more important meeting will probably be held to-morrow, when more of the Canadian representatives shall have arrived at the Capital.

The gathering this morning reminded one strongly of the great fight on the lumber tariff that took pace nearly two years ago, when the Dingley tariff bill was under consideration, and there is every prospect that the present gathering of lumber interests here will be even more important than the meeting in 1897.

Representative Tawney of Minnesota, who was so prominent in the lumber debate at that time, has taken a step which he hopes will checkmate the efforts of the Canadians to secure a reduction in duties on the product of Canadian forests. The results of this step were obvious in the lobbies of the Arlington this morning, and in the meeting that followed there was a delegation of the greatest lumber-producers of the northwest, including B. F. Nelson, C. A. Smith of Minneapolis, Walter T. Evans of Saginaw, Mich., W. C. McClure of Duluth, S. T. McKnight of Wisconsin and J. W. Cochran of the same State. The latter appeared as an attorney. Several other States were represented.

These men had a brief meeting last night, but no definite action or course of procedure was decided on.

The Canadian interests will be represented to-night. Among those on the way to Washington are W. C. Edwards, M.P., Russell County, and J. R. Booth of Ottawa. The Canadians will be reinforced somewhat singularly by several American lumbermen who own great sawmills in Michigan, who desire lower duties on pine. Secretary of War Alger is one of these. It is well known that Representative Dingley, who is now very ill, has steadfastly opposed any reduction in the tariff. He is not supported by all his colleagues on the commission, however. Many Congressmen hold the same opinion as Representative Hill of Connecticut, who is largely interested in lumber, and who declares that no more lumber would be brought into the United States from Canada under a $1 rate on white pine than under a $2 rate. It is, on the whole, very probable that the contest now on will be a battle royal, with the chances by no means unfavorable to the Canadian side.

CHOATE GETS THE APPOINTMENT.

Secures the Richest Plum in the American Diplomatic Service.

Washington, Jan. 12.—The President yesterday sent the nomination to the Senate of Joseph H. Choate of New York to be ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary to Great Britain.

New York, Jan. 12.—Joseph Hodges Choate was born on Jan. 24, 1832, in the State of Massachusetts, and is the son of Dr. George Choate. He was graduated in 1852 from Harvard College, and two years later from Harvard Law School. After a year's study in a Boston office, he was admitted in 1855 to the bar of Massachusetts. In 1859 he became a member of the firm of Evarts, Southmayd & Choate. From that time on his name became thoroughly well known in the legal profession. For the last ten years Mr. Choate has been generally acknowledged to be the leader of the New York bar, and has appeared in hundreds of celebrated cases. His influence, wit and humor have brought him considerable renown.

Mr. Choate's political career practically began in 1856, when he took the stump for Fremont. Since then he has been known as an ardent Republican, though he has never held office. At times he has been credited with being by no means in close touch with the party organization. Mr. Choate was president of the State constitutional convention which assembled in 1894.

From 1867 to 1871 Mr. Choate was president of the New England Society, and from 1874 to 1878 president of the Harvard Club. At present the name of the law firm of which Mr. Choate is a member is Evarts, Choate & Beaman.

GALT LOSES A GOOD CITIZEN.

Mr. Thomas Todd Has Passed Away After Three Weeks' Illness.

Galt, Jan. 12.—Mr. Thomas Todd, one of Galt's most prominent citizens, died yesterday after an illness of about three weeks' duration. The deceased gentleman was born in Scotland 67 years ago, and has been identified with the public and business interests of the town for 50 years. He was the senior member of the Todd Milling Company and of the produce commission firm of Thomas Todd & Son, both of which have carried on a most extensive business. In public life Mr. Todd was a thoroughly representative citizen. Besides many other public positions, he has been a member of the Town Council, president of the Board of Trade, member of the Collegiate Institute Board, and at the time of his death was president of the Galt, Preston & Hespeler Electric Railway. In politics Mr. Todd was a Conservative, and was a prominent member of the Central Presbyterian Church of the town. He is survived by his widow, one son, Mr. Martin N. Todd of this town, and an adopted daughter, Mrs. G. Lowe of Regina, N.W. T. Mr. Todd's death is universally regretted, and has cast a gloom over the entire community.

NEARING HIS END.

Remarkable Correspondence Between Rev. Dr. Chiniquy and the Archbishop of Montreal—Text of the Letters.

Montreal, Jan. 12.—It looks as if Dr. Chiniquy was fast nearing his end. Archbishop Bruchesi addressed the following letter to Rev. J. L. Morin, son-in-law of Rev. Dr. Chiniquy:

Montreal, Jan. 10, 1899.

Sir,—I hear that Mr. Chiniquy is very seriously ill, and that he may soon die. Although so separated from us a long time ago, I cannot forget what he always remains in the eyes of the church, and I consider it a duty of my pastoral charge to write you that should he desire to see me, I would feel happy to comply with his wish. Kindly make known to the patient that I have taken this step, and accept the expression of my devoted feelings.

(Sgd.) Paul, Archbishop of Montreal.

The following reply was sent to the Archbishop:

171 Hutchison-street,
Montreal, Jan. 10, 1899.

My Lord,—Mr. Morin, gripped and laid up in bed, requests me to write you, since he cannot do so himself. He, as well as his family, was deeply touched with the interest which you take in the spiritual welfare of Mr. Chiniquy. He highly appreciates the Christian courtesy of the step you have taken. I have the honor to convey to you as exactly as possible the reply of Mr. Chiniquy to the wish expressed by you, and which was communicated to him by the reading of your letter: "I am thankful to the Archbishop, but I have definitely retired from the Church of Rome. I am perfectly happy in the faith of Jesus Christ. God and Jesus suffice me. I long for the moment of leaving." I asked him whether he would not be happy to see you in the event of his being restored to health. "Certainly," said he, "most happy." Five persons, among whom were the nurse and myself, heard these words, distinctly repeated once or twice—besides, they are in conformity with the religious testament of the patient, and with all his previous declarations. In fulfilling the duty of your pastoral charge, My Lord, you have acquired one more title to our respect. By preserving the convictions which he adopted 40 years ago, Mr. Chiniquy attests the sincerity of his faith. He can now only invoke the mercy of the Sovereign Judge, before whom we must all appear some day. Please accept, My Lord, the assurance of my profound respect, (Sgd.) D. Coumbrat.

GAS EXPLOSION.

Five Rooms in the Progress House at Berlin Wrecked—Several Narrow Escapes.

Berlin, Jan. 12.—A terrific gas explosion, in which seven persons had a miraculous escape from death and five rooms had their floors and ceilings reduced almost to kindling wood, occurred at the Progress House between 9 and 10 o'clock last night. Fire followed, but it was subdued without doing further damage. The thundering detonation broke the frosty stillness like the booming of a cannon. A window in an adjoining room, near which a young son of Proprietor Schmidt was seated, was blown out. He escaped uninjured. The scene of the explosion was the kitchen, which is on the second story. The explosion was caused by a match in the hands of a plumber named Pahlman, who was searching for a defective gas pipe. It appears that at one time three meters furnished the supply of gas, but one of late had been abandoned. At the same time a gas pipe in the ceiling of the kitchen was disconnected, and as the hotel recently changed hands the abandoned meter was put in use once more, without knowing of the severed pipe, and the result was that the place was filled with gas. To discover the defect Pahlman mounted a step-ladder to the ceiling, while a companion supported it. The moment the match came in contact with the gas the explosion followed. Pahlman was injured about the hands and face, his coat was burned and the man holding the ladder was injured about the neck, while one of the girls in the room had a piece blown from her apron. Five rooms were badly wrecked, and had the inmates been in bed a death dealing catastrophe would have resulted.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

The Eastern Ontario Association's Meeting Continued.

A BUSY DAY AT KINGSTON.

The Quality of the Various Addresses Was of the Best—Prof. Robertson a Host in Himself—Large Number of Visitors to the Dairy Show—Banquet to the Delegates.

Kingston, Jan. 12.—The influenza, which is attacking so many persons throughout the province, has not only affected the attendance at the meeting of the Eastern Dairymen's Association, but has prevented the presence of a number of speakers who would have delivered instructive and interesting addresses. Among these is ex-Governor Hoard of Wisconsin, who is an authority on nearly all matters connected with this industry. A telegram was received by President Derbyshire yesterday saying that he was confined to bed with a very severe attack of la grippe. Dr. Mills of Guelph, Hon. John Dryden and several other notable speakers are also absent. Hon. Sidney Fisher, the Dominion Minister of Agriculture, arrived yesterday, and made a stirring address in the afternoon. Despite all disappointments in regard to speakers, however, the meeting has been one of the most successful ever held, and everyone is more than satisfied with the proceedings. Prof. Robertson, Commissioner of Agriculture and Dairying, has done much to effect this success. His addresses have been the best and most popular feature of the convention. The banquet which was given last evening by the citizens to the members of the association was a splendid success, and was greatly appreciated by the association as an evidence of the good-will of the people of the Limestone City.

Hon. Sidney Fisher dwelt much on what agriculture had done for the country; its prosperity was marked by its exports and the general evidence of thrift of its agricultural community. He wanted to do all he could to make exportation profitable, and to this end said better refrigerator cars and better equipped vessels were needed. He was heartily received.

During the day Professors Fletcher and Robertson, Dr. Connell and E. L. Aderhold of Neenah, Wis., were the lecturers. They all spoke on topics of interest to the dairymen.

A constant stream of visitors passed through the dairy school during the forenoon, witnessing the ordinary work of that admirable institution. They saw the students busy with the milk, making butter and cheese, and were charmed with the scientific way the work was performed. About 300 paid their respects to Supt. Heart and his staff.

In the evening a banquet was tendered the delegates at Hotel Frontenac. It was a big affair. The citizens gave the visitors a fine welcome and a fine spread. The toast list was lengthy.

MOTHER AND BABIES BURNED.

Fearful Fate of Mrs. George S. Fleming and Two Little Children of Pleasant Valley, N.S.

Halifax, N.S., Jan. 12.—An awful calamity occurred at Pleasant Valley, Upper Musquodoboit, last night, when Mrs. George S. Fleming and two children were burned to a crisp, as they were endeavoring to escape from their burning dwelling. With the thermometer near zero and the wind blowing a gale, the fire started, supposedly in a defective flue. The strong gale fanned the fire and the whole building was soon enveloped in flames. Mrs. Fleming and her six children and servant girl were sleeping in the house. Her husband was away from home at the time. Aroused about 10 o'clock by the crackling of flames, the inmates hurriedly sought to escape. The servant and four of the children rushed out of the building in their night clothes and made their way to a neighbor's house half a mile distant. The mother, however, could not escape, or at least she did not. Her body was found near the doorway by neighbors, who hurriedly rushed to the scene. With her were found an infant 2 weeks old and a little girl about 2 years of age. To save the precious children the brave mother gave up her own life.

The fire is supposed to have originated downstairs, where the mother and the two dead babies were sleeping. The girl and the other children were upstairs, and had a better chance to escape.

Mrs. Fleming was a young woman 35 years of age. Her house being somewhat isolated, the people of the neighborhood did not know anything of the terrible affair until the terrified and half-perished children reached them. They had suffered intensely in the cold, as they ran from their burning home, and were heart-broken with grief at the tragic fate of their mother.

HIS WALK CONDEMNED HIM.

A Negro Sent Down for Two Years for Criminal Assault.

Ottawa, Jan. 12.—Samuel Curry, a colored man, charged with indecently assaulting Hattie Goltz, a young lady from Ottawa East, was found guilty, after the jury had been out about three hours. This is a case in which Curry, who is generally looked upon by the police as being a bad character, and who was in the habit of sleeping in stables or wherever night came upon him, was found to have been in the locality where Miss Goltz was assaulted. The girl could not positively identify the prisoner, but her description of his manner of walking as he approached her was identical with that of a witness who saw the prisoner after the assault had occurred. This was the point in the evidence which convicted Curry, who was sentenced to two years in penitentiary.

The Girls Cannot Be Whipped.

Berlin, Jan. 11.—The girls in the schools of Prussia will not be whipped in the future, for the Government has just issued a decree abolishing female corporal punishment. The boys in Prussia are now in mortal fear lest they receive, in addition to their own punishment, the whippings formerly given to the girls.

Weak and Run Down, With Heart and Kidneys in Bad Condition—Restored by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"I was very much run down, having been sick for several months. I had been trying different remedies which did me no good. I would have severe spells of coughing that would leave me prostrate. I was told that my lungs were affected, and my heart and kidneys were in a bad condition. In fact, it seemed as though every organ was out of order. I felt that something must be done and my brother advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I procured a bottle and began taking it. Before it was half gone I felt that it was helping me. I continued its use and it has made me a new woman. I cannot praise it too highly." Miss. SUMMERVILLE, 217 Ossington Avenue, Toronto, Ontario. Get only Hood's, because

Your correspondent and the people of the township heard with pleasure the name of Mr. Richard Crowe, one of the County Councillors from this division, spoken of as one of the probable candidates for the position of warden of the county. It is to be hoped that Mr. Crowe will consent to become a candidate as he is one of this old war horse and has had long experience in county and municipal matters, having served altogether nine terms. His vote in Dummer should strengthen his claim, as neither Douro nor Dummer have had a representative in the Warden's chair for a great length of time, in fact all the other divisions have been represented there since this township. It is nothing but fair that an old campaigner like Mr. Crowe, who has never held the position, should receive the honour before some of the new men who have been members for only one or two terms.

SAVED THE OLD SERVANT.

A Pretty Story of Queen Emma of the Netherlands.

King Willem III of the Netherlands, the father of the young Queen Wilhelmina, married a second time when he was well advanced in life, and in order to please his amiable young wife purchased a very beautiful service of Sevres porcelain for ordinary use in the palace.

As it was costly, he wished to have it preserved and accordingly gave orders that any servant who should break or injure one of the pieces might expect immediate dismissal.

One day a servant went to the young queen greatly distressed. He had broken one of the delicate teacups. He had been in the king's service for many years and was heartbroken over what seemed to him the prospect of being dismissed in disgrace.

The queen tried to comfort him by suggesting that the cup could be mended, as it was a clean break and the two edges could be put together with cement. The servant shook his head and remarked that his majesty had a sharp eye and would be certain to detect the crack in the cup at once.

The queen told him to mend it as well as he could and to be careful to serve the cup to her that afternoon in the king's presence at teatime. The servant followed her directions and with trembling hand filled it with tea and served her. The queen turned aside, drank the tea and, rising suddenly from her chair, let the cup fall upon the floor, where it was broken into fragments.

"Think of me as one of the most awkward of your majesty's servants," she said, with humility. "I have broken one of your precious Sevres cups. You must discharge me at once. I don't deserve to remain in your service."

The arbitrary old king was amused by her demure manner, and considered the accident a very good joke. The poor servant, standing behind the tray, cast a grateful look in the direction of the queen who had protected him. He remained in the service of the king, who never learned the truth about the broken cup.

The consideration which Queen Emma displayed for the feelings of a servant was a proof of her kindness of heart. After the king's death she became regent during the minority of the young Queen Wilhelmine and won the confidence and sympathy of her Dutch subjects by her unfailing tact and amiability.—Youth's Companion.

But is may be asked—How can the main trouble, Dyspepsia or Indigestion be got rid of?

Very easily, simply and quickly.

All that is needful is to take one or two of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal, and "they'll do the rest."

WASP AS AN ENGINEER.

Bit of Insect Cleverness That Won Praise From Army Men.

Several members of the United States engineer corps were interested witnesses of a feat of insect engineering near the road on which they were working. One of their number found a blue ground wasp dragging along the ground a dead swamp spider one-quarter the size of a full grown tarantula. Whether the wasp killed the spider or found it dead is a question beyond solution. He was having a hard time dragging his prey along, and presently left it to go prospecting for his abode. The discoverer of the wasp called his companions, and one of them coming stepped upon the wasp's ground hole, crushing down some blades of dried grass across it. This caused no little trouble to the insect, who, upon locating the hole, nipped away at the obstructing stalks with his strong mandibles until he had cleared a passage. Then he went back and sized up the spider, walking around the big body and surveying it from all sides.

"He's reckoning that the hole isn't big enough," said one of the engineers.

"That's all right. He'll fix it," said another as the insect went back and commenced vigorously widening the entrance to his domicile.

Again he returned to the spider, seized it and dragged it to within a foot of the orifice. To the spectators it was evident that more work would have to be done before the spider could be dragged in. This struck the wasp, too, for again he ran around the body, examining it carefully, and returned to the hole to take measurements. He went to digging a second time. Having dug for two minutes, he brought his prey up to the edge of the hole, nipped out a piece of dirt here, cut away a grass stem there, and after 15 minutes of hard and skillful labor disappeared underground, dragging the spider after him. The engineers then resumed their work, exchanging comments of admiration.

Voiced His Dislike.

A correspondent of the London Spectator says: "I send you an extract from Gunning's 'Reminiscences of Cambridge,' published in 1854—a book which abounds in good stories:

"'The tutor,' Cardinal Thorp (for so he was always called), was lecturing on the law of extreme necessity, which justified a man in disregarding the life of another in order to insure his own safety. He said: 'Suppose Lowther Yates (the master of the college, Catharine Hall) and I were struggling in the water for a plank which would not hold two and that he got possession of it. I should be justified in knocking him off,' and he then added, with great vehemence, 'D—n him, and I would do it, too, without the slightest hesitation!' (volume 1, page 18). It is scarcely necessary to add that the tutor had an inveterate dislike to the master of the college."

Helen Faucit's Modesty.

Helen Faucit was once asked by Tallis, the publisher, to send her portrait for publication in his magazine. In courteously declining she said, "The public should know neither our features nor our fortunes, save in the exercise of our art." What would this great actress have said to the hall doors and entrances to modern theaters and to shop windows, which for the most part are advertising picture galleries? But Helen Faucit was unselfish also where her art was concerned. There exists a valuable letter, written to Macready, in which she gracefully protests against the part of Violante in "The Wonder" was ill suited to her as a tragic actress, but she agreed to play it all the same.—New York Times.

The Bohemian.

Who is the ideal Bohemian? An authority on men's clothing gives the "palm" to Mr. Alma-Tadema, although his hair may occasionally be a trifle too long and his collar too low. Mr. Orchardson is pronounced irreproachable, while Sir Edward Poynter is pushed aside as "too precise" in favor of Sir John Rigby, whose baggy trousers, immense boots and coats that overlap arouse the critic's enthusiasm. Among novelists Mr. Rider Haggard and Mr. Grant Allen do most honor to Bohemia.—London Sketch.

WHEN YOU SOLD YOUR SOUL.

The Red Register That Was Produced by the Old Boy.

Generally speaking, it would seem that the devil produced a certain "red register," in which the culprit signed his name with his own blood, receiving sixpence or some small coin in acknowledgment. Mr. Sinclair was much impressed by the poor payment which the evil one was able to offer. After relating the sad history of William Barton, "a warlock," selling himself to satan (in this case a temptation of St. Anthony) for 15 shillings, which said compact brought Barton to the stake, Sinclair gravely makes the following observation:

"There is one thing remarkable in this story, that he (the devil) bestowed so much money upon this warlock, which proved good and sufficient coin. 'Tis seldom he is so liberal. But surely he would be more liberal if the Lord would suffer him to steal or make use of treasures hid in the ground or in the bottom of the sea. If this liberty were granted, he might deceive the most part of men and women in the world with his gifts."

But, although the admission of signature by the accused was sufficient for his temporal punishment and condemnation, it would seem that no verbal evidence of the tempter was believed to be adequate for his ultimate damnation without production of the written agreement. Every effort therefore was used by him to induce man or woman to sign it, and as soon as signed it was in general carried off for security. Hence came strange stories of tricks played by intended victims to get their names erased, or even to carry off the register. Had not a certain cunning notary met the evil one by agreement that he might sign the bond, and then, suddenly producing a bottle of holy water from his pocket and dashing it into his adversary's face, succeeded in snatching the "red register," full of his neighbors' names, from the foul fiend's hand?

Then came a fearful pursuit over hill and dale. "Give me my register!" "No! You shan't have it!" till at last, breathless, the brave notary rushed into the village churchyard, where he was of course safe from pursuit. It is to be presumed that he was discreet enough to content himself with burning the fatal book without revealing its contents.—Cornhill Magazine.

Faith Healing and Fee Grabbing.

Some years ago I was attacked by an affection of the eye (a detachment of the retina), an ailment I believe incurable by medical science. I was persuaded to consult the Christian Scientists, which, out of curiosity, I consented to do. I wrote to a Mrs. Ward, then, I believe, "chief prophetess" of the sect in London.

I wrote to her, making the following offer: "That in the event of a successful treatment she should receive £200 as remuneration for her services; in the event of a nonsuccessful treatment the nominal fee of 2s. 6d."

In answer she wrote that Christian Science did not labor for money, and declined my offer. I wrote again, saying I would be prepared to give this sum (£200) to any charity she might name, she retaining only such remuneration as she thought fit. In answer she replied she "preferred a guinea a week."—London Truth.

Ardup Frees His Mind.

"No, sir. Not a cent!" was the reply of young Ardup's opulent but untouchable relative. "I've lent you more money already than you will ever pay back. You can shift for yourself henceforth. The difference between us is that I am provident and you are improvident."

"The difference between us," vengefully retorted young Ardup, with his hand on the doorknob, "is that I'm a man of moderate means and you're a man of immoderate meanness!"

A JUNGLE LION KILLS HIM.

How an English Engineer Met His Death While on a Hunting Expedition in Africa.

London, Jan. 12.—Despite the great dangers connected with the building of the Uganda Railway by the British in the jungles of Africa, only one fatality has thus far occurred on the line now completed as far as Mombatu. News has reached here of the severe loss sustained by the enterprise through the death of W. H. Harrison, one of the engineers, from the effects of an encounter with a lion.

Harrison went out shooting, accompanied by a friend and a native servant. Near Kikiyu the party came across a lion and a lioness. Harrison wounded the lion, and the enraged beast turned upon him, clutching him by the left arm and dragging him some distance. Then, seeing the servant, the lion let go of his victim and sprang at the native.

Harrison by this time regained possession of his rifle, and fired a second shot. This, unfortunately, did not kill the animal, and it again sprang at the engineer, seizing him by the already injured arm, lacerating it in a shocking manner. Help then arrived, and the lion was killed, but Harrison died from shock and loss of blood.

LOSS OF THE BOURGOGNE.

Owners of the Cromartyshire Claim Damages From French Company.

London, Jan. 12.—The suit of the owners of the British steamer Cromartyshire to recover damages from the Compagnie Generale Transatlantique, on the ground that the latter's steamer, La Bourgogne, was responsible for the collision on July 4 last, which resulted in so much loss of life, was opened yesterday in the Admiralty Court.

The French company reports that the Cromartyshire did not make the proper use of signals of distress. The captain and officers of the Cromartyshire testified that they sounded fog signals, and declared that immediately after the collision they did not think La Bourgogne was in danger of sinking.

After the Ameer Dies—What?

London, Jan. 12.—Advices from Cabul say that the illness of the Ameer of Afghanistan is so serious that his death is imminent. His condition is being watched with keen interest in London and Calcutta official circles, as his death is certain to be followed by a contest for the throne, in which England will intervene.

Prince Habbullah, the Ameer's eldest son by a non-royal wife, will be opposed by the Queen in behalf of her infant, Prince Mahomed Omar. The partisans of the two contestants are about equally divided. The Queen is a strong, masculine character, as was shown by her personally leading the army in an attack on certain rebels who revolted some time ago, while the Ameer was absent from the capital.

Thought a War Was On.

Berlin, Jan. 12.—A laughable incident that is reported from the Gruenberg district of Silesia shows on Germany's part the same state of preparedness which a similar blunder has just revealed on the part of Great Britain. A number of communal presidents mistook a Government inquiry as to the despatch with which they could mass the reserves for an order to mobilize for war. A score of villages were thrown into consternation. All the men of the landwehr made ready to take the field, took solemn leave of their friends and started for the nearest military district headquarters, where first they were undeceived.

Mme. Patti's Wedding Day.

London, Jan. 12.—Great preparations are being made at Brecon, South Wales, for the marriage of Mme. Patti two weeks from yesterday, Jan. 25, to Baron Cederstrom, eldest son of the late Baron Clarendal Cederstrom. The townspeople will decorate the streets, and the mayor and aldermen, in their official robes, will receive the wedding party at the railway station on the arrival of the train from Craig-y-Nos and escort it to the church, where the Bishop of Nostyn will perform the wedding ceremony. The bride will be given away by Sir George Faudel-Phillips, former Lord Mayor of London.

Czar Muzzles the Press.

A Photographic Triumph.

London, Jan. 12.—The Vienna correspondent of The Daily Chronicle says: "Van Szczepanik, the inventor, has just presented the Emperor Francis Joseph's art museum with a remarkable web woven by a photographic process he has invented, not necessitating a designer. It is a production in silk of the old time Gobelins. It measures two square metres and contains 200,000,000 crossings. It would have required years to make this by the old process."

GRIPPE EPIDEMIC

Again Sweeping Over Canada With Unusual Virulence.

The Most Violent Attack Since 1890, Leaving Behind a Host of After Effects that Make Life Miserable—Prompt and Effective Means Should be Taken to Strengthen the System

Lagrippe, now sweeping over this country in one of its periodic epidemics, is one of the most treacherous and difficult diseases in which medical science has to cope. It is in its after effects that it is particularly disastrous, and these assume many forms, prominent among which may be mentioned heart weakness, bronchial and lung troubles, nervous prostration, alternate chills and fever, and a feeling of constant lassitude and an indisposition to either mental or physical exertion. Often the sufferer does not recover from the after effects of la grippe for months, and in cases of previously enfeebled constitutions and among those of advanced age, the number of cases terminating fatally is appalling.

Even after a mild attack of la grippe it is imperative that the system should be thoroughly toned up, the nerves strengthened and the blood enriched. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the only medicine that can depended upon for the prompt-ness in this emergency. These pills are a true blood feeder; bring to the vital fluid the constituents that gives it richness, redness and strength, thus driving out disease and acting as a tonic and bracer to the whole system.

Harry Degg, a well known [illegible] living near Ninga, [illegible] testimony to the great value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in removing the after effects of la grippe. The disease left him a victim to cold chills, violent headaches, dizziness and severe palpitation of the heart. Mr. Degg says:—"I finally went to Bobcaygeon and consulted a doctor, who stated that the trouble was likely to develop into consumption. I was under his care for about three months, but was gradually growing weaker and unable to do any work. At this stage one of my neighbours advised me to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial, and as my case critical I determined to give them a fair trial, and purchased a dozen boxes. Before the third was used there was good evidence that they were helping me, and before the dozen boxes were used I was as strong and vigorous as I had ever been, and I can heartily recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for the manifold troubles that follow an attack of la grippe.

If you have suffered from an attack of la grippe procure a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at once, and they will put you right. Insist upon getting the genuine, as imitations never cured anyone. If your dealer does not keep them, send direct to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., and they will be mailed post paid, at 50c. a box or six boxes for $2.50.

DYNAMITE IN HIS POCKET.

Foreman Donovan's Narrow Escape From Death at Cantley.

Ottawa, Jan. 12.—Nellies' mica mine at Cantley was the scene of a dynamite explosion yesterday. Foreman D. Donovan had occasion to use some of the explosive, and thawed out five sticks of it in an outshed. He placed the explosive in his pocket, and entering the house, went to the stove to fix the fire. A spark unfortunately alighted on a stick of dynamite and the latter began to burn. Donovan rushed to the front door to throw the stuff out, but could not get it out of his pocket. He next threw off the coat and rushed for the other door. Just as he reached the door the dynamite exploded with disastrous results, the greater part of the house being razed to the ground. Strange to say none of the inmates, Mr. and Mrs. Donovan and an infant, were hurt in the slightest degree.

THE KENNEL CLUB'S FIRST BENCH SHOW.

A GREAT AND GRATIFYING SUCCESS.

A Splendid Bunch of Blue-Blooded Dogs Shown—Magnificent Collections in Several Classes—Good Attendance and Delighted Spectators—The Exhibition Continued To-night.

The Peterborough Kennel Club has every reason to be proud of the great success of the first Bench Show held under its auspices. The number of entries is proof of the confidence of the fanciers of the country, and the attendance of the public is another pleasing evidence of local appreciation of a good thing.

The attendance of ladies was one of the most gratifying features of the show, and their keen interest in the splendid exhibit was a subject of frequent remark.

Mr. Lacy, of Boston, the judge, was delighted with the exhibit, and as soon as he ran his eye over the benches, knew he had his work cut out for him, for the competition was in many classes so keen as to make a choice difficult. The public will have another opportunity to-night to visit the market hall and see the grandest aggregation of the canine aristocracy "ever shown under one canvas" in Peterborough. The following is

NOTES.

A crowd generally surrounded the Russian Wolf Hounds, two magnificent specimens of which were shown by the Terra Cotta Kennels. They were without doubt the most dignified animals in the show, not even the ladies being able to elicit a responsive wag of the tail with all their coaxing.

In St. Bernards, the class was, as usual, ahead of anything in Canada. The dog which won at the recent Bench Show at Montreal, was set down to third place, Mr. Tilly's entry from Port Hope, winning first, and Mr. Wm. Stockdale's handsome Lord Bute getting second. Mr. Lacey was delighted with the class.

The collies were the finest class which it ever fell to the judge to look over. There was not a bad dog in the lot, and the entry was a big one.

Mr. W. J. Sim's big St. Bernard, Bismarck, was greatly admired. He was the largest on exhibition, but his colour was against him.

The Irishmen kicked up more racket than the dogs in any other section. There was a big entry and the class was a hot one.

Mr. Chas. J. Bowell's Great Danes unfortunately have not their ears cut, and consequently did not rank as high as they otherwise would.

A very pretty little French Poodle was shown by Mr. T. Bradburn.

[illegible] were not as many fox hounds [illegible] last year, the local ones not having brought out as fully on account of having received their rating in 1898. There were, however, a dozen specimens shown.

Father Casey's "Beppo" as usual made a firm friend of every lady who stopped to converse with him, proffering his paw and vainly trying to explain his dislike at being tied up.

Mr. Lacy gave the utmost satisfaction in the judging. He was not too hasty, and his calm deliberate way of carefully examining every specimen shown before giving his judgment, greatly impressed the exhibitors in his favour.

There were ten red cookers shown. All were good but of course C. Y. Ford, of Kingston, carried off the blue ribbons as usual with Otterburn Rufus and Dollie.

The Fox Terriers, both wirehair and smooth, were above the average. Mr. Carnew, of the Elmwood Kennels in Belleville, showed some extra fine ones, which promise to develop into something away above par.

A couple of Scotch Terriers were the sharpest looking dogs in the show.

Miss Geraldine King's win in the ladies' special class was very popular. The prize is a silver cup, handsomely engraved, and presented by Mr. John G. Kent.

The way in which the wants of the exhibitors are being looked after by Dr. Poole, our popular sporting vet, and Mr. Elric White, assisted by a number of capable attendants, has been most favourably commented upon by everyone.

Miss Gertie Kendry's little wire hair Fox Terrier, Dewey, walked away with the second prize in its class.

CELEBRATED IMPORTED CLYDESDALES.

Mr. Levi Bowles Makes an Important Addition to His Stock of Horses.

Mr. Levi Bowles, the celebrated horse fancier, of Springville, Tuesday, received through customs, from Mr. N. P. Clark, of St. Cloud, Minnesota, four imported Clydesdales. Mr. Clark is well known as the proprietor of the Meadow Lawn Stud of Clydesdales. The horses, Stanley Prince, Stanley, Waldo and Ezgo Chief were in the Morgan House stables Wednesday and were admired by a large number of judges of good horseflesh. A further description of these animals will appear at a later date.

IN HYMEN'S BONDS.

The Marriage of Miss Lillie V. Sedgwick of Otonabee, to Mr. William R. Emmerson of Smith.

The wedding took place last evening, January 11th, at the home of the bride, who was handsomely attired in white, with silk trimmings, and carried a beautiful bouquet of natural flowers, and looked the pink of perfection in her bridal array. The bride was supported by Miss Lillie Mowry, of Ashburnham, whose adornings were most becoming. She also carried a bouquet of natural flowers. The bridegroom was assisted by Mr. Harold C. Kindred, teacher. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Fleeton Sedgwick. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. E Moore, Ph. B, of the Mark street Methodist church, in the presence of about thirty invited guests, after which the company sat down to a dejeuner of excellent taste and arrangement. The happy pair will reside on the Emmerson homestead in the Zion neighborhood, enjoying the good wishes of many friends. Many handsome and useful presents expressed the high esteem in which Mr. and Mrs. Emmerson were held.

A DETROIT BRIDAL.

Nuptials of Miss Ida Deering and Mr. R. J. Cook, Town.

A very pretty, though quietly conducted wedding, was celebrated in Detroit last week, when Rev. D. McLaurin united in marriage Miss Ida Deering, of Detroit, and Mr. R. J. Cook, town, son of the late J. Cook. The bride was tastefully attired in a travelling costume of brown and carried a bouquet of white roses. Miss Davidson, of Detroit, assisted as bridesmaid, and Mr. W. Struthers, also of Detroit, was groomsman. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Cook took the train east for their future home—Peterborough. They will take residence at 560 Water street. Mrs. Cook will be at home next Wednesday and Thursday.

A CATHEDRAL WEDDING.

Nuptials of Miss Emma Kearns and Mr. Frank Murray.

The wedding took place yesterday morning at 8 o'clock in St. Peter's Cathedral of Miss Emma Kearns, Rubidge street, daughter of the late Wm. Kearns, and Mr. Frank Murray, of the Canadian General Electric Works, Ven. Archdeacon Casey performing the ceremony.

The bride was assisted by Miss Winnie Hankinson, of town, and Mr. William Lynch acted as best man.

After the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served at the residence of the bride's mother.

The many beautiful presents which the young couple received, showed their popularity among a wide circle of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Murray will reside on Rubidge street.

RESOLUTION OF CONDOLENCE.

Passed by L.O.L. No. 419 to the Widow and Family of the Late Richard Waram.

At the last regular meeting of Wesley L.O L. No. 419, Hall's Bridge, it was moved by Bro. Stephen Harrison, P.D.M., and seconded by Bro. George Portsmith, that the following resolution of condolence be sent to Mrs. Richard Waram:—

To Mrs. Richard Waram and family:

DEAR FRIENDS,—Where as the Divine Master has seen fit to remove from the trials of earth to a happier sphere above, your beloved husband and our brother, we deem it to extend to you our heartfelt sympathy in this your sore bereavement. And as we look back to the times we have spent together in lodge assembled, our hearts are filled with sadness; but we sorrow not as those without hope, and we earnestly pray that our Heavenly Father may grant you the consolation of His Divine Spirit and that you be enabled to bow in humble submission, feeling that your loved one has only left this weary road to [illegible] in the brotherhood on high and be at home with God

The sincere wish of our association is that you and the remaining members of your family may have Heaven's richest blessing rest upon you, and may your hearts be comforted by the thought that you and he who has gone before may some day meet in that happy home where parting is no more.

THE MARK STREET LADIES' AID BIRTHDAY PARTY.

A Pleasant Evening Spent in Ashburnham Town Hall.

A grand success correctly describes the birthday party held on Wednesday evening, Jan. 11, under the auspices of Mark street Ladies' Aid, in the town hall, Ashburnham. There was a good attendance, a pleasing programme, and everything passed off very satisfactorily.

It was mentioned as a matter of regret that Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., could not be present to act as chairman, being unavoidably absent in Toronto; however, his letter explaining his absence was accompanied by a cheque representing a substantial addition to the funds of the Ladies' Aid Society. In his absence the chair was occupied by Mr. M. W. Matchett, and the programme, many numbers of which were encored, was as follows:—

Instrumental duet—piano..Misses McCabe and [Butler
Chairman's Address
Club swinging ..... Mr F Andrews
Vocal solo ..... Mrs Brown
Recitation ..... Miss Currie
Vocal solo ..... Mrs Pearce
Vocal duet ..... Misses Hill
Instrumental—piano ..... Miss L Scott
Vocal solo ..... Mr Morphet
Club swinging ..... Mr Andrews
Vocal solo ..... Mrs Brown

After the programme refreshments were served and games were indulged in, and in this way a few hours were pleasantly spent.

The hall had been nicely decorated by the ladies, the platform and its surroundings never looking better.

Those who were present passed a very pleasant evening, and the ladies are to be congratulated on the success attending their efforts. The thanks of the society and of the audience are due and tendered to all those who assisted in making the affair the success which it certainly was.

The ladies are making good progress in paying off the parsonage debt.—COM.

TWIN TORTURERS!

Lumbago and Rheumatism made Harmless by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Lumbago and Rheumatism cause endless pain and suffering. Every man and woman who runs chances of getting wet, or catching cold, is liable to suffer from one or both. Our hospitals are full of sufferers from these diseases; none are more painful. Every nerve is on fire; every joint is a centre of agony; every muscle an area of torture. To move hand or foot makes the victim shriek with agony.

Rheumatism makes more cripples than all the railroad accidents that ever happened. Twisted, mis-shapen caricatures of humanity, who cannot walk without misery, are to be seen every day. The kidneys are to blame. If they are healthy you needn't fear Rheumatism or Lumbago. Dodd's Kidney Pills keep the kidneys healthy and cure Rheumatism and Lumbago.

Dodd's Kidney Pills ALWAYS CURE

NOT AFRAID OF MAN.

Remarkable Tameness of Animals in the Yellowstone Park.

The slaughter of birds has almost entirely removed one of the delightful accompaniments of life in the rural east—the music of the feathered songsters. Apropos of this, it may be said that one of the most pleasant features of the drive through the Yellowstone National park is the apparent intimacy between man and the animal and bird life in the park. Thanks to the wise and stringent regulations, no shooting is allowed within its boundaries.

"The result," says an English tourist, "is positively charming. Hundreds of little chipmunks, with their gaudy striped backs, scampered impudently about or peered at the passing coach from the roadside. The squirrel did not bolt for the nearest tree, but nodded a welcome. All bird life treated us likewise. Even the lordly eagle hovered near, and the wild turkey stalked uncompernedly through the rank grass. We were fortunate enough to see a fine specimen of the wolf tribe. He stood, a beautiful creature, and watched us out of sight, showing only curiosity, not fear. Another time were perceived a doe and fawn grazing by the road. Not until we were within a few feet did they seek the shelter of the woods, yet not to fly. They simply moved aside. Here at least mankind was regarded as a friend—one who could be trusted. The only animal who ran away was a brown bear. He turned tail at the sight of a coaching party, yet it was quite a common thing for bears to approach close to the hotels at evening to feed on the refuse thrown out. It was an after dinner relaxation for the guests to watch them feeding. They munched and disputed the choicest morsels, for the most part indifferent to the company. Only when we became inquisitive and approached too near did they retire, and these animals were perfectly free and unfettered in their movements. It may read like a fairy tale, but it is solid fact."

WONDROUS REMEDY.

Is what a London Doctor Calls Dodd's Kidney Pills.

London, Jan. 9.—A large decrease in the number of cases of Kidney Disease has been noted in this city during the past year.

"There's only one thing to be said about it," said a prominent physician speaking on the subject the other day.

"This falling-off is due solely to the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills by the people. Dodd's Kidney Pills are the most wondrous kidney remedy ever known. They are used in nearly every household, which accounts for the great decrease of Kidney Complaint."

Illuminated Buoys.

Another form of beacon for mariners of smaller dimensions, but hardly less important, is the illuminated buoy. These floating lamp holders, placed in an estuary where the available channel is often only a narrow one, bounded by mud or sand banks only a few feet below the surface of the water, are invaluable to shipping. Hitherto the illuminant chiefly employed has been compressed gas, necessitating a high pressure reservoir and compressing machinery.

Mr. Wigham, whose name has long been known in connection with lighthouse apparatus, has introduced a mineral oil lamp which can be fitted to any existing buoy and will burn for a long period at very small cost. The maintenance of one form of lamp can be kept up at a cost of one penny for 24 hours, and as no compressing machinery is required this is the only expense plus the original cost of the lamp. The approach to port—such as that of Liverpool, for instance, where a ship has to enter through a long avenue of buoys—could by this invention be almost as well lighted as a city street.—Chambers' Journal.

SOME SMART ROGUES.

CLEVER SCHEMES BY WHICH JEWELERS HAVE BEEN DUPED.

One Swindler Who Could Make Genuine Sapphires and Another Who Could Produce Gold From Copper and Silver—A Prince's Present.

Some time ago a quietly dressed man entered the shop of a famous Parisian diamond merchant and requested to see the proprietor. On his wish being granted, he drew from his pocket a little packet of blue gems and spread them before the jeweler, asking for a candid opinion upon their merits.

"Sapphires!" exclaimed the jeweler. "Very fine ones. Do you wish to sell them?"

"Do you wish to buy them and as many others as I can make?" returned the visitor quietly.

"Make! I don't follow you!"

"I made those sapphires, but I defy you to discover a flaw in them," explained the visitor, with some show of pride, and he went on to state he had discovered a method of making, not sham gems, but real ones.

The jeweler was incredulous; the gems before him were unquestionably genuine.

"Well, I'll let you have that lot for 50 francs," replied the inventor, "and I can make you any number you like at 5 francs each, and you must know that they are worth from 40 to 80 francs each. The fact is, I want you to enter into partnership with me for the manufacture and sale of these gems. I'll manufacture, and you can sell, and in this way we can work in secret and scoop the market."

The bated breath of the dealer in precious stones was fairly taken out of his body by this noble offer, and he, having bought the sapphires at the price asked, said he would think the matter over and give his decision if the inventor would call next day, and the inventor departed.

No sooner had he gone than the dealer rushed to his testing room and put his newly acquired sapphires to every possible test. What could it mean? They were undoubtedly real! How could he suspect a fraud when the seller had parted with them for less than a tenth part of their rough value? No, his fortune was made.

A few days later he visited the laboratory of his scientific visitor and had some genuine sapphires manufactured while he waited. That clinched the matter. Thirty hours after he signed a deed of partnership with the scientist, paid over the sum of £8,000 in hard cash as first installment of the £50,000 which was the price of half the secret.

Next morning the scientist left his abode with £8,000 on his person, smiling grimly as he looked for the last time round his ostentatious laboratory, chuckling at the thought of how he had set a sprat to catch a whale—that is, 500 francs' worth of genuine sapphires for 8,000 genuine sovereigns!

The idea of manufacturing genuine precious stones and metals at a cost which admits of a profit being made is a notion offering such boundless fortunes to any one who could invent the process that even the most wary business men have been defrauded by persons who have claimed ability to work the wonder. Probably the majority of such fraudulent schemes have been in connection with either the making of gold from some other mineral or minerals or of extracting gold in paying quantities from sources where it exists in the most minute quantities—for example, the oceans. But one of the most audacious and at the same time successful of such swindles was perpetrated in Austria a few years since.

A self styled scientist stated that he had discovered a process by which an admixture of silver and copper could be turned into two-thirds its weight of the purest gold that could be discovered, and as the process was remarkably inexpensive and the admixture was 9¼ of copper with 1¼ of silver the scheme smacked of fortunes parallel only to national debts. This marvelous scheme was put before some of the wealthiest dealers in precious stones and metals, who were previously bound under a penalty not to disclose any of the secrets of the process.

Demonstrations of certain portions of the process were made privately before each of the gentlemen who had been generously invited to become rich by the scheme, and so cleverly were these demonstrations made that the pseudo scientist had but little difficulty in persuading eight men of wealth to form a secret and select syndicate to work his process. With a view to improving his inventions, the scientist occupied in making further experiments all the time which was necessary for him to get in his victims' investments, and then he proved how money making his scheme was by eloping with nearly £10,000.

A well dressed gentleman walked into a Vienna jewelry establishment on one occasion and requested the manager to send an assortment of diamond necklaces and bracelets to Count Something or other at one of the best hotels in the town during the course of the day. The manager, who easily recognized in his customer the personality of one of the first princes in Germany, replied, with an urbanity which might have melted the selfsame diamonds, that the esteemed order should be complied with. He not unnaturally concluded that the prince was traveling incognito, for there could be no question as to who Count Something or other really was.

The jewels were taken to the count's hotel later in the day by the manager himself, who could not do honor enough to the royal customer. During the examination of the jewels the manager let out that he detected the count's identity, whereupon the latter professed intense annoyance and begged the manager to be discreet, as he particularly desired his presence in Vienna to be absolutely secret. He had come unattended with that express intention. Finally, after much indecision, he selected 20,000 francs' worth of jewelry, which he directed should be sent round to the flat of a then famous singer, bearing no indication of whence it emanated beyond being tied up in a particular way. He would be leaving Vienna that evening and on reaching Berlin would forward full remittance.

In dealing with royal personages it is gross impertinence to think of the payment, so the case of jewels was sent as directed, and it was taken in and signed for by one of the servants of the flat, who the same evening eloped with the prince and sought other climates.

The prince, whose personality the jeweler had so smartly detected, was a super at the theater where nightly sang the singer who did not get the diamonds. The maid who did get them was engaged to the princely super, and, as has been seen, she acted up to her engagement and likewise brought her husband a very handsome dot.—London Tit-Bits

POULTRY POINTERS.

Even in cold weather good ventilation is necessary.

There is no breed that lays eggs of uniform color.

If eggs are desired for hatching, use 2-year-old hens.

Clean out the quarters often and whitewash the walls.

If there are any late hatched chickens, see that they are given warm quarters.

Pea fowls are much smaller birds than they appear. It does not pay to raise them for their flesh.

The ducks and geese should have plenty of straw scattered over the floor, upon which they can roost during the winter.

Watch for the first appearance of colds among your flock. Attend to it promptly, and you will not be troubled with roup.

Coal tar placed in the drinking water is one of the best remedies for running nostrils. Avoiding the drafts will prevent it.

The fowls should be fed as early and as late as possible, giving the heaviest and best meal just before they go on the roosts.

Eggs for hatching should be kept as near 40 degrees as possible. As high as 60 degrees will not spoil them, but they should not be allowed to get chilled.—Exchange.

A Warm England.

The extremes of outdoor temperature in England vary more than 123 degrees. The greatest heat probably on record was registered in the valley of the Medway on July 22, 1868, when the thermometer at Tonbridge stood in the shade at 100½ degrees F. Eleven years later, in December, 1879, 55 degrees of frost were recorded at Blaukadder, in Berwickshire—i. e., 23 degrees below zero F. More remarkable, however, than the heat in summer were the hot winters of 1748 and 1857 and the warm Januarys of 1877, 1884 and 1898.—Notes and Queries.

Raised . . . From a Bed of Sickness . . .

Simcoe, Jan. 28th, 1897.

Messrs. Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Gentlemen—For over five months I was confined to my bed, not being able to move. The best medical skill was called in, all treating me for catarrh of the stomach, but to no avail. I could not eat the most simple food without being in dreadful misery, and found no relief until same was vomited up. After spending a large sum in medical advice, I was advised to try a box of Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure. I purchased a box from J. Austin and Company, Simcoe, and to my surprise found great relief. Not being able to eat I tried a box of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills; the pains left me the third day. My appetite has been fully restored. I consider myself perfectly cured, and feel as well as when a young woman, although I am 65 years old at present. I was almost a shadow, now I am as fleshy as before my sickness. Have used only three boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and two boxes of Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure. I can do my house work as usual. I am positive that my marvellous cure (which I think it is) is due purely to Dr. Chase's remedies, which I have used. I can honestly recommend the same to any persons suffering from symptoms similar to mine. Wishing you every success,

Yours truly,

MEN OF GENIUS.

Nature Likes Them Not and Invariably Crushes the Breed.

Through all time men of genius have scoffed at and have ridiculed the attempts of purse proud old "richesse" to create superior orders of manhood. Nor is this a matter for wonder. They were and are ridiculous. Yet these attempts are repeated every hour. Considering them one would suppose that wealth, titles, dignities, are talismans which insure virtue and honor and personal worth and beauty in those to whom they descend. Talismans are ridiculous, and so are titles.

Nobility is of blood and not of garters, royal sponsors and christening robes. Pedigrees, portraits and family history when truthful tell us a great deal about the nobility of a race. Titles, quarterings and patents are worthless, and the production of a great genius is in general as bad a sign as the production of a great profligate. Races that produce geniuses should be avoided. The best is the second best—the normal.

Genius, as some one (Victor Hugo, I think) has finely said, is a promontory stretching out into the ocean of the infinite. Look for the descendants of Shakespeare, Bacon, Macaulay, Wellington, Nelson, Gibbon, Swift, Voltaire, Carlyle, Bonaparte, Goldsmith, Spencer, Milton, Cromwell, Disraeli—to take a few names at random—and you will find that they are not, for the genius is always a transgressor of the normal—a "sport." He is never symmetrical. Such a one nature likes not, and she makes provision for the extinction of his race.—Humanitarian.

DEAR SIR.—Your official notice came duly to hand, apprising me of the results obtainable upon my 15 year endowment Policy in your Company for $1,000, which matured on the 5th inst. Of the various options you have given me viz.:

A SAFE MAKER'S SUFFERING.

Diabetes is one of the great scourges of the present day.

All the various remedies heretofore tried have failed to cure it.

Anyone suffering from it was practically doomed to death.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

have changed all that.

They cure diabetes—cure when all else fails.

Mr. Jesse Knowles, an employee of Goldie & McCullough Co., Safe Manufacturers, Galt, Ont., tells how Doan's Kidney Pills cured him of Diabetes: "For one year past I have had severe pain in the small of my back, with rheumatic pains in both the arms. Sometimes my back felt as if it was being torn open. I was exceedingly dizzy at times and always drowsy.

The urine was orange colored with a brown sediment, and very frequent in passing, and also very great in quantity. I am sure that I had diabetes for I had every symptom of it.

I have taken 3 boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills. Everything is changed now. The pain, the stupid, tired feelings have vanished and I must say that the Doan's Kidney Pills were the medicine that has effected this remarkable cure.

A Woman's Crime.

A THRILLING STORY OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE.

By LAWRENCE M. LYNCH.

Author of "John Arthur's Ward," "The Diamond Coterie," "Against Odds," Etc., Etc.

In a large, pleasant, second-floor room, at Doctor Burton's, on this day of which I write, is a young and fragile-looking girl. The windows of this room overlook the grounds, the front entrance, and the street beyond. There are no bars across them to make them hideous, unsightly things; neither is there anything in the room to indicate that this is the abiding-place of a lunatic. The windows are prettily draped with whitest lace, and everything about the room is pretty, feminine, and indicative of refinement.

The girl, who is pacing slowly up and down the room, is very lovely, in spite of her plain black dress, her pale face, and the look of unutterable woe and weariness in the great yellow-brown eyes. Suddenly she flings herself down in an easy chair by one of the windows, and heaves a deep sigh.

"Oh!" she murmurs, half aloud, and clenching her small hands tightly, "what a life to live! and what a future to contemplate. A vague, mysterious shadow from the first has hung over my entire life, and now—this, this curse has come upon me, and I—I must submit; there is no help for it. But oh! were it not for this other, older dread, would I not fight to the death, but I must do nothing to court publicity. I dare not"

She turned her eyes wearily toward the window.

"Oh, the world is so large, and it looks so bright," she cried; "and here am I, caged almost, feigning a lunacy that will soon become reality, perhaps."

Caged she had said; well, not to be able to go where one wills is to be caged, of course, and in this sense she was caged. Otherwise, she was Doctor Burton's most privileged patient. She seldom chose to walk outside the grounds, but when she did desire a larger range she was free to go out, and to go unattended.

All at once she started up, with a half-suppressed cry upon her lips. A man had entered the grounds, and was walking rapidly toward the house—she looked again, closely, eagerly, and then drew suddenly away from the window.

"It is; it is that man," she breathed. "If he should have seen me; but no, that is impossible."

She turned swiftly, shot the bolt of her door, and then sat down, as if to think.

Meantime the approaching visitor ascended the steps and rang the bell. It was our friend Neil Bathurst, alias John Jacob Austin.

But this John Jacob was a degree brighter than the John Jacob who had left Fairlie two days before. His clothes were of better material and better fit, his hair was less sleek and oily, and more agreeable to the civilized sight and smell. His face had lost its stolidity, and the sheepish look was gone from the eyes. Even his name had been retouched, for the neat white card which he requested the servant who admitted him, to present forthwith to Doctor Burton bore, in a fine, firm hand, the name of John J. Austin.

The front rooms on either side of the hall, being the largest as well as among the pleasantest rooms of the house, were fitted up as parlours for the use of the patients; and the private office and sanctum was in a wing midway between the front and rear entrances, and overlooking but a small portion of the grounds. It was here that Doctor Burton received his visitor.

The doctor was a funny, pleasant little man, who possessed more humanity than actual professional skill. He was beloved by the most of his patients, and his servants voted him the best of masters.

"Be seated, Mr. Austin," said the good man, as his visitor entered his presence, "and tell me in what way I can serve you."

The doctor was an energetic man, counting his time as valuable, and he was famous for coming straight to the point. The young man took the seat indicated, and promptly began his business.

"I have just come up from Fairlie, and have called upon you at the request of Dr. Austin."

"Oh! You come from my friend the Doctor. Is he well, Mr. ——, why, bless me, your name is Austin, too. Are you a relative?"

"A very distant one, sir. I am studying with him, and called to enquire, in his behalf, after the young lady he left in your charge not long ago."

"About Miss Lee. Yes, yes! Miss Lee is doing splendidly. Her malady was a peculiar one."

"I never saw Miss Lee," said Mr. Austin, frankly, "indeed, I hardly remember if my friend mentioned the nature of her peculiar aberration, as he termed it, except as an aberration. He desired me to call and to see her, if you considered it best."

"Oh, Miss Lee is well, comparatively speaking; why she is as sane as you or I, except that at times she becomes possessed of the idea that she is about to be murdered. She has not had this notion for some time now, and seems as sane as anybody. Shall I send for her?"

"If you please; I had hardly time to receive full instructions, I came on a matter of business, and at a moment's notice, in response to a telegram in fact, having barely time to catch the stage. The doctor's messages were, necessarily, very hurried. He wished me to assure myself concerning her welfare, and ask when you think it advisable to remove her."

"I don't think it would answer to take her to any public place," said the doctor, gravely. "But if she were taken where she would have quiet, pleasant surroundings, and see few strange faces, the change might be made at any time."

"Indeed! Then, under your treatment the malady has become a mere idiosyncracy, I infer?"

"Merely that, Mr. Austin; merely that," replied Dr. Burton, touching a little hand-bell.

"Step up to Miss Lee's room, Jane, and ask her to come down a moment," he said, as an elderly woman answered his summons. Then, as she went to do his bidding: "After you have seen Miss Lee, I shall be happy to show you some of my other patients, Mr. Austin."

Mr. Austin signified his delight at this arrangement, and they continued to chat pleasantly while waiting for the arrival of Miss Lee. Meantime, Jane proceeded upstairs, and rapped at the door of the pretty front room. There was no sound from within, and she rapped again, at the same time saying:—

"Miss Lee, are you there?"

Then she heard a movement from the other side, and a soft voice asked:—

"What is it, Jane?"

"A message from the doctor, miss; please open the door."

In a moment the door opened a little way, and the lovely young lady looked out.

"Dr. Burton says, will you please come down to his office, Miss Lee. Why, what's the matter, ain't you well?"

"I am a little tired, Jane, that's all. Who is with Dr. Burton?"

"A nice-looking young man, miss; some of your friends, I reckon."

"I suppose so," with an odd laugh. "Did you say they were in the private office?"

"Yes, miss."

"And—who is down in the hall?"

"Nobody at all," replied Jane; wondering a little at the question.

"Jane," said the young lady, "I have been writing, my hands are all inked, won't you just run down the back stairs, quick, and bring me a pitcher of warm water?"

"Yes, miss. Shall I come back by the front, and tell the doctor you will come?"

"Yes; no; bring the water up the back way, Jane, I will leave my door open, you can put the pitcher down outside, and then run down the front stairs: now hurry, Jane."

Jane turned, and moved quickly toward the rear stairway. Scarcely had she disappeared when the young lady snatched up a hat and shawl that lay in readiness, and leaving her door ajar, ran lightly down the front stairs, opened the door softly, and in another instant was speeding down the path leading to a small side gate; through this she hurried, and then, casting one swift glance behind her, turned her face city-ward. Meanwhile, Jane fulfilled her bidding to the very letter; she came puffing up from the kitchen, and deposited the pitcher on the floor as directed.

"Here's the warm water, Miss Lee," said she, as she put it down, and then, without glancing within the room, or stopping for an answer, she went down by the front way and announced that Miss Lee would be down "soon." This accomplished, she marched off kitchen-ward, feeling that she had done her duty.

Dr. Burton and John Jacob waited nearly half an hour, and then the former began to feel surprised, and the latter uneasy.

"Really, it's unusual for Miss Lee to be so slow, or so careless," said the doctor, finally. "I'll just send her up another message." And he touched the bell once more.

"I think it is as well," said the visitor. "The fact is, I am a little pressed for time."

In a moment Jane presented herself.

"Jane, go up and see what detains Miss Lee, and be quick about it," said Dr. Burton.

Jane was quick about it. She went and came back in less than half the time she usually employed in going up and down a flight of stairs.

"She ain't there, sir," said she, bursting into the office like a comet; "she sent me for a pitcher of warm water, and told me to set it outside the door; I did so, and the pitcher is just where I left it, and her door open just the same."

"Bless me," cried the doctor; "she must have had one of her attacks again!"

"Yes; I presume she has," replied the visitor, dryly. "Jane, did you tell her that any one was with the doctor?"

"Yes, sir," replied the wondering Jane; "she asked me who was here, and I told her a young man was."

"You did? Well, I'm sorry for that. Doctor Burton, I must ask to see the room just deserted by this young lady, at once. If you have any idea where she may have concealed herself, please search for her immediately."

Doctor Burton looked more than astonished; he looked indignant.

"What, sir; what?" he cried, "you really presume too much. I do not run down my patients in this manner."

"I tell you, sir, you must search for this one with all the force you can command," cried this strange doctor's student. "Jane, conduct me to her room, instantly."

"Jane stop," cried the little doctor. "Young man, you have no authority for this: if my patient does not choose to see you, she shall not; I believe you are an impostor."

The visitor laid a firm hand on the shoulder of the little man, and said, in a stern tone, "I am a detective, doing my duty; stand aside, Doctor Burton, and let me pass."

Then he set the doctor aside as if he had been a wooden man, and rushed out and up the stairs.

As soon as he could recover his breath, Doctor Burton scampered after him, and Jane followed at his heels.

"Sir," panted the little doctor, entering the room, which Jane's mention of the open door and the pitcher had enabled the detective to identify as the room of Miss Lee, "explain yourself; did Doctor Austin send you here? dare you say that he would bring a criminal to my house? Bless my soul!" puffed the little man, "if I don't think you are a madman."

"Doctor Austin did not send me here, sir; neither is the good man aware of the charge which stands against this girl. Jane, come here; is there anything missing from this room?" he asked, quickly.

Jane glanced about her.

"I saw her hat and shawl lying on that chair, sir, when she opened the door and sent me for the water; I expect she wore them."

"Wore them! Doctor, quick, how much liberty does this girl, this patient, have?"

"Liberty! bless my soul! she has perfect liberty; she goes in and out as she pleases."

"What! out of the grounds?"

"Yes, anywhere."

Uttering a remark not at all complimentary to the doctor and his system, the detective, without the ceremony of an adieu, rushed down the stairs and burst in among the few mild maniacs, sitting in one of the parlours.

"Ladies, I beg your pardon," he said, suddenly recovering his politeness, "did you see a young woman go out from the grounds, a little while ago?"

"Do you mean the proud woman with the yellow eyes?" asked a young girl, who was religion crazed. "She went down that path fast, very fast; and then she went out at the gate and flew up, up, up; she is in heaven by this time."

"She didn't fly up," said an elderly woman, testily; "she ran, ran, ran; I saw her."

On one point the two lunatics had not differed, and the detective, resolving to accept their testimony, dashed open the street door and hurried on to the side entrance.

"Bless my soul!" cried the doctor, looking after him. "I must write to Doctor Austin right away. Bless—my—soul."

THE TORCH TO POWDER.

Touch a lighted torch to the contents of a powder mill and up it goes! But it isn't the torch that blows up the mill; it's the powder. The stuff is all ready to explode. It only needs one touch of fire to start it. When a man's blood is all ripe and ready for disease it only needs a little touch to start him going. Maybe he gets a slight cold, gets wet feet or sits in a draft; then off he goes into a galloping consumption.

But it isn't the draft that does it; that only starts him. His blood was all ready for it in the first place. It was thick with bilious poisons; clogged with germs of disease all ready to be roused into fatal activity at the least touch.

"My wife had a severe attack of pleurisy and lung trouble," says Abram Freer, Esq., of Rockbridge, Greene Co., Ill., in a thankful letter to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. "The doctors gave her up to die. She commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and she began to improve from the first dose. By the time she had taken eight or ten bottles she was cured, and it was the cause of a large amount being sold here. I think the 'Golden Medical Discovery' is the best medicine in the world for lung trouble."

Not only for lung trouble is it the most wonderful medicine in the world, but for every form of weakness and debility. It redeems the very sources of life from these subtle poisonous taints which lay the system open to dangerous disease. It gives digestive power; helps the liver to do its work; enriches the blood; builds up solid strength and vital force.

When you find yourself losing flesh and appetite; growing listless by day and sleepless by night there is an enemy lurking ready to apply the torch. Write to Dr. Pierce. Your letter will be considered strictly confidential and he makes no charge for advice. His great thousand-page book, The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, will be sent free paper-bound for the bare cost of customs and mailing, 21 one-cent stamps, or cloth-bound for 50 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Mr. J. M. Donovan Tells how Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Him.

Peterborough, Dec. 26.—This town is famed throughout the Dominion as the most go ahead, progressive, wealthy and up-to-date on the continent. This reputation is thoroughly deserved, and was earned by the quickness of the residents to see and to take advantage of a "good thing" when it comes our way.

One especially good thing that our people have been favored by is the king of kidney cures—Dodd's Kidney Pills—a household remedy in Peterborough.

Among those cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills is Mr. J. M. Donovan, who reports that this remedy cured him completely of Urinary troubles, indicating the first stage of Diabetes.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only remedy that has ever been known to cure this disease. They never fail.

IT'S NOT MY WAY.

"It's not my way."
How often is this heard.
"It's not my way, to speak the kindly word;
I feel enough, but 'tis not well to speak,
To tell my loving out it seems so weak."

"It's not my way."
How often hearts have broken
Because the loving word has been unspoken,
Because the smile we looked for was a frown,
The hand that should uplift, but held us down.

"It's not my way
To speak the word that craving love requires,
To voice approval, foster vain desires."
Hearts often faint and fall out by the way,
Because to speak is not your way.

"It's not my way."
Ah, well, when death shall come
And touch the best loved lips and make them dumb
Sad will it be for you if grim regret
And stern remorse upon your heartstrings set

Their fingers firm,
Because it is their way to torture and to wring,
Then you'll remember every little thing.
The smile you did not give, the word unspoken
Which might have gilded life and kept a heart unbroken.

Aye, then you will remember!
And in blood sweat and agony will say,
"Would it had been my way
To love, approve and tell it out, as most,
For it was you that made my life complete,"

A NEW INVENTION

The Newcombe Piano Has It.

It consists of a Patented Practice CLAVIER or STOP which diminishes the tone when required and saves wear on the Piano; it also does away with the old way of having to press down the pedal with the foot in order to soften the tone when running the scales or practicing. Oftentimes the young pupil on the piano cannot press down on the pedal without throwing themselves out of the proper position when they should sit erect. This invention in the NEWCOMBE PIANO will enable children to begin two years earlier on the piano. In addition to the above, the NEWCOMBE PIANO is the finest made in Canada. Children often complain about practising; they like it if they have a NEWCOMBE PIANO. 1899 styles are gems of art, containing every late improvement; they possess that beautiful full sweet tone which delights the singer, and so pleases every musical ear. Organs of every description at Wholesale Prices.

424 GEORGE STREET.

A STORY OF THE KAISER.

He Talked Away His Time and Missed Kissing His Wife.

M. Koloman von Mikszth, a distinguished Hungarian author and politician, tells the following story of the Emperor William, which was narrated to him by one of the actors in it:

Count Szecsyeny, the Austrian ambassador in Berlin, was one morning dawdling over a late breakfast and reading the papers that lay in a pile before him, when his valet burst into the room with the startling news, "His majesty the emperor." M. Szecsyeny barely had time to meet the emperor on the threshold.

"I have come for a glass of beer," said his majesty, walking in and taking the most comfortable armchair he could discover. "How unexpected, and how fortunate for me," was the ambassador's answer. "I have not seen you for a long time," said the emperor, "and felt I wanted a chat with you. I will take a cigarette, if you please. And how is the baroness?" "She will be here directly and will appreciate the honor of seeing your majesty in her house." "And how was your harvest in Hungary?" "Satisfactory, according to my brother's account."

The conversation had lasted some time when the baroness came in and took part in it. All at once the emperor took out his watch and jumped from his seat. "Superior!" he cried, "we have talked away all the time! Have you a telephone?"

"Does your majesty wish to have a message sent?"

"No. Take me to it directly."

"But cannot I speak in your majesty's place?"

"Certainly not," laughed the emperor. "I must speak to the empress and say goodby to her. I am due at the station in an hour. I must leave for the manœuvers, and I cannot drive to the schloss, see the empress and reach the station in time. I will drive to the station from here, but I must excuse myself to my wife for not returning home before I leave."

Szecsyeny went to the telephone with the emperor, who did all the ringing and hello crying himself. Then he said: "Don't be angry, dear. I have chatted too long with Szecsyeny and must drive to the station from here, so I cannot give you my parting kiss, which I am sorry for. Goodby, dear."—Berlin Correspondence.

Man Supposed to Be From Brantford Throws Himself in Front of a Train.

Clyde, N.Y., Jan. 12.—About 12 o'clock yesterday as a west-bound freight on the Central Railroad was passing near Petley's crossing, about three miles east of Clyde, a young, well-dressed man, about 26 years old, threw himself in front of the train, and was ground to pieces. In the man's overcoat pockets were found six photographs and three letters. The letters were addressed to George S. Chapman, Brantford, Ont. Some of the photographs were taken in Brantford, some in London, Ont., and some in Malta. One of the letters was written by his sister-in-law, Emily, 16 Brockham street, New North Road, Boston, and was dated Sept. 14, 1896; another letter from a brother, W.H. Chapman, Caledonia, Ont., dated May 9, 1896. But 40 cents in money was found on the body.

MAY MAKE A TREATY OF PEACE.

A Conference Between the Western Officials and Canadian Magnates.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—An attempt to adjust all the differences between the western railroads and the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific will be made at a conference to be held here on Jan. 17 between the executive committee of the Western Passenger Association, passenger traffic manager of the Canadian Pacific, and General Passenger Agent Davis of the Grand Trunk. The question of immigrant traffic will be the hardest to settle. The Western Passenger Association, through its immigrant bureau, almost absolutely controls this traffic, fixing rates and dividing the business as it sees fit.

Suicided With Strychnine.

Hamilton, Jan. 12.—Thomas Marshall, aged 77 years, committed suicide at the residence of his son, John Marshall, with whom he resided, yesterday afternoon. He took strychnine. Dr. Philip arrived shortly after he took the poison, but could not save his life. He, however, ordered an inquest, which opened last evening. George Powell was appointed foreman of the jury, which adjourned to meet next Monday night. The deceased left a letter, which he wrote shortly before he took the poison, to the effect that he was tired of life and intended to go hence to join his wife, who died four years ago. Marshall has lived a retired life for many years. About 20 years ago he kept a hotel on John street north.

National Council of Women.

Toronto, Jan. 12.—The executive committee of the National Council of Women met yesterday at the residence of Lady Edgar. Members were present from Quebec, Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton and other districts. The election of delegates to the international convention in Great Britain next July resulted as follows: Mrs. Willoughby Cummings, Mrs. Dignam, Mrs. Gibbs, Miss Carty, Toronto; Mrs. Hoodless, Hamilton.

Pegleg Brown's Case.

London, Jan. 12.—The motion for a postponement of the trial of Pegleg Brown, who is charged with the murder of Constable Tooby, came before the Assizes here yesterday. Mr. McPhillips, for the defence, made the motion, and Mr. Lount, Q.C., opposed it on behalf of the Crown. Justice Meredith heard the arguments and finally decided to give the prisoner every chance, therefore the case was laid over till the Spring Assizes.

Impaled by a Pine Knot.

Moncton, N.B., Jan. 12. — Joseph Tower, a resident of Rockport, near Dorchester, met with a fatal accident in the woods the other day. He was felling a tree, which lodged, and climbing up to clear it he fell, striking on a sharp pine knot, which pierced his body six inches, nearly to the kidneys. He lived for two days, when death ended his sufferings.

SIGNS ON YOUR FACE.

TELLTALE EXPRESSIONS THAT EXPOSE YOUR THOUGHTS.

Many Ways by Which the Careful Observer May Detect Your Real Feelings In Spite of Strong Efforts to Hide Them.

Everybody in this imperfect world likes to be able to take care of himself, and to do this the more insight one has into one's fellow men the better. Rogues, as a rule, get on because they are shrewder observers than the people they cheat. This article, among other things, gives the honest man the power of protecting himself.

There are dozens of little signs which, do you but know them, give you the key to a man's thoughts and betray him without his being aware of it. This paper is the last paper in the world to assist the private detective mania or encourage morbid suspicion of deceit, but a clear comprehension of the real significance of these face signals will, besides making people's observations of use to them, lead to a better understanding all round.

Most of these muscular actions by which—to the skilled facial reader that is—we give ourselves away are involuntary, and hence their value. Supposing, for instance, you are telling something to a man who can keep his countenance and you want to find out whether he likes your news or not. In the ordinary way, if he has sufficient self control to look placid you would be hard put to discover it; but if you know where to look for it he cannot, even if he has a face of brass, hide the sign you are wanting.

There are certain muscles which Darwin called the "grief muscles," for the reason that when any one hears information he doesn't care about these muscles act instantly and without the person knowing it.

These muscles are connected with the eyebrows, and in a case like that above it is the eyebrows you must watch, for, if your information be unwelcome, the inside ends will for an instant arch acutely upward and a slight wrinkle come across the brow. Then, though the rest of the face be wreathed in smiles, you may disregard these and feel certain you have "got home." The action is so involuntary that it often escapes observation, and even those who notice it frequently take it as being indicative of pleasant surprise.

The individuals who invariably smile when you speak to them are a difficult class to read, but there is none the less a way of doing it. The man who smiles out of pure good nature and because he is pleased always does it more with his eyes than his lips, but the smile you must never trust is that of the man whose lip goes up for a moment and shows you the pointed end of his canine tooth.

Watch him in a rage and you will see precisely the same movement. The fact that he does it when smiling shows infallibly malevolence, cloaked by deceit.

A good many people seem to think that there is a difficulty in finding a sly person before the mischief he does discloses his character. As a matter of fact it is absurdly easy. You have only to watch him for ten minutes and he will give himself away.

The sly person is always trying to see something without being supposed to see it. When that something is outside his visual field, he has to move his eyes instead of his head. Any man's eyes therefore that you see very much drawn to one side, my twice in five minutes, is sly, and you would do well to mistrust him.

The old trick of making a man you suspect look you "straight in the eyes" while you glare into his has more in it than people think. Any ordinary person bent on deception will ten to one find his optics flinch under the ordeal.

But the accomplished liar and swindler has by long practice taught himself to withstand the test, and for him an additional one is advisable. The most delicate portion of the face after the eyes are the lips, and any man or woman whose lips, when they are being brought to book, don't twitch visibly, is "acting on the square."

Determination, one would think, is an easy thing to discern in a man, but as a matter of fact it isn't, especially if he talks loudly and has a good deal to say.

As a rule, most people are deceived by the appearance of determination which a man, when he is "bluffing," puts on to carry his point. In these matters it is the involuntary things that tell, and directly a man is thoroughly determined he is resigned as to what will probably happen. There, if you will watch closely, you will see his shoulders suddenly become arched (not in a shrug), and when he says he doesn't care he means it.

A difficulty that most face readers experience is that of discriminating between surprise and the action of the grief muscles, inasmuch as both cause the eyebrows to be elevated slightly. But the fact that surprise always makes people open their mouths, even when they are threading a needle, should help them. The brow, too, is full of difficulties, for it may be bestled either from intellectual effort or melancholy. Probably in the first case, however, the eyes will be not quite wide open.

Then laughter should be received with suspicion, for a person will often laugh hilariously after coming through an ordeal that has left him heavy of heart, and a fresh, spontaneous smile is more surely indicative of happiness. Perhaps, however, the most difficult thing to detect in a person of strong self control is fear or violent agitation. A man of pluck and healthy nerves will betray his excitement only by the back of his neck, which gets crimson, and to see this one has to look behind him.—Pearson's Weekly.

Mrs. Lucy Alexander, believed to be the oldest person in the state of Iowa, died at Keokuk, Ia., recently. Her death was due to the infirmities of old age. She said that she was 15 years old at the close of the revolutionary war. The best obtainable records place the year of her birth as 1770. She was of full African blood, her grandparents being brought over as slaves from Africa.

MERRY MOMENTS.

His Only Rival.

Now, George, please don't be cross
Nor get your brain awhirl.
Of course 'twould be a dreadful loss
Were I to steal your girl.
Please send that silly frown away;
We just went to a matinee.

Yes, we went to see a show;
Had just a single seat, you know.
Strange? It may seem so to you,
But it was big enough for two,
Because, old boy, she held me tight
And fondled me with great delight.

Though others saw, she did not care,
As she caressed my silken hair.
While going home through silent street
She said to me, "You're just too sweet!"
And all the while her bit of lace
And purse I had in my embrace.

And listen, George, I held her hand
Upon which shines the jeweled band
You gave to her that fateful day
When she said she'd be yours for aye,
And in her eyes there shone a fire—
Be patient, George; don't show your ire.

Perhaps I've gibed you quite enough.
I'm only Mabel's new fur muff.

Unmasked by Science.

The lady professor suddenly reached forward and deftly picked a long, light hair from her husband's coat.

"Wretch," she cried, "whose is this?"

"One of your own," he answered stoutly.

"We will see," she haughtily observed and speedily vanished through a door labeled "Laboratory." For an hour or more the sound of clinking tubes and glasses was faintly heard through the heavy partition.

Then the door suddenly opened and the lady professor stood on the threshold.

Her face was blazing.

"Villain," she cried, "it was bleached!"

FILIPINOS TO FIGHT.

They Refuse Now to Deal in Any Way With the Americans.

A LANDING WILL MEAN WAR.

5,000 Americans Who Embarked for Iloilo Have Returned to Manila—A Reassuring Cablegram Concerning the Otis-Aguinaldo Conference—Insurgent Government Preparing a Statement.

Manila, Jan. 13.—The situation at Iloilo is unchanged. The Filipinos are unceasingly active day and night. On Saturday they loaded some lighters with rock and sank them at the entrance of the river, blocking the channel for all vessels with the exception of launches. All the lights have been extinguished.

Order, however, is maintained with severity and offenders are promptly shot.

On Sunday one of the Arizona's boats, manned by soldiers, was carried by the ebb tide to Quimaras Island, and while attempting to land there armed natives assembled on the beach and compelled the Americans to retire.

The Filipinos refuse to have any dealings with the Americans. Vegetables and fruit are not obtainable, business is suspended and the warehouses are full of rotting sugar.

A Landing Will Mean War.

London, Jan. 13.—The Hong Kong correspondent of The Times says: "The Filipino refugees insist that Aguinaldo will regard a landing of the Americans at Iloilo as a declaration of war, and will immediately attack Manila. He has already warned the foreigners, including the Spaniards, of his intention, offering them a safe conduct into the provinces. The American authorities still exercise a strict censorship at Manila over all press messages."

The Hong Kong correspondent of The Daily Mail says that 5,000 additional Americans who had embarked for Iloilo have returned to Manila.

The Manila correspondent of The Morning Post, telegraphing Thursday, says: The situation is much quieter today. The conference between the representatives of Gen. Otis and Aguinaldo has helped to allay excitement, and the Filipino newspapers are milder in tone. There is hope of a peaceful settlement. The insurgent government is now engaged in considering the preparation of a definite proposition as to what they desire from the United States.

STRONG LANGUAGE.

Gen. Eagan Calls Gen. Nelson A. Miles a Liar, and Emphasizes the Statement Picturesquely.

Washington, Jan. 13.—Commissary-Gen. Charles P. Eagan yesterday reappeared before the Marine investigating committee to answer the charges of Gen. Nelson Miles concerning the commissary supplies furnished the army during the recent war. The subject in controversy was Gen. Miles' already famous "embalmed beef" testimony, and the letters and documents supporting it.

Gen. Eagan's testimony was in part as follows: Gen. Miles was asked by your committee how the tinned fresh beef became a part of the army ration. His answer was: "You had better ask the Secretary of War or the Commissary-General. I think they can tell you." I know it was sent to the army as food, and the pretense is that it was sent as an experiment.

Gen. Miles, in saying that this food was sent to the army as a pretense for experiment, says that which implies corruption.

I answer that it was not furnished under the pretense of experiment, nor even as an experiment, and when Gen. Miles charges that it was furnished as a pretense of experiment, he lies in his throat, he lies in his heart, he lies in every hair of his head, and every pore of his body. He lies wilfully, deliberately, intentionally and maliciously. If his statement is true, that this was furnished under pretense of an experiment, then I should be drummed out of the army and incarcerated in State prison. If his statement is false, as I assert it to be, then he should be drummed out of the service and incarcerated in prison, with other libellers.

His statement is a scandalous libel, reflecting upon the honor of every officer in the department who had contracted for or purchased this meat, and especially and particularly on the Commissary-General—myself. In denouncing Gen. Miles as a liar when he makes this statement, I wish to make it as emphatic and as course as the statement itself. I wish to brand it as a falsehood out of the whole cloth, without a particle of truth to sustain it, and unless he can prove his statements he should be denounced by every honest man, barred from the clubs, barred from the society of decent people, and so ostracised that the street bootblacks would not condescend to speak to him. He has fouled his own nest, he has aspersed the honor of a brother officer without a particle of evidence or fact to sustain in any degree his scandalous, libellous, malicious falsehood.

MR. M'NISH ELECTED.

The West Elgin Liberal Gets a Majority of 244.

TRIUMPH FOR THE GOVERNMENT

The Conservative Majority in St. Thomas Greatly Reduced—Some Curious Letters Evidently Written to Influence Liberals to Refrain From Voting—The Vote as Received by Wire.

St. Thomas, Jan. 13.—The bye-election in West Elgin yesterday resulted, as had been generally expected, in a striking victory for Mr. Donald McNish, the Liberal candidate and member for the riding in the last Legislature, though defeated on a re-count at the last election by half a dozen votes. His opponent was Mr. F. G. McDiarmid, the victor in March last. Although a victory for Mr. McNish was looked for, it was hardly expected that the majority would reach the handsome figure of 244. The city last night was en fete with the celebrations of the successful party.

	McNish.	McDiarmid.
Aldboro	661	776
Dunwich	611	401
Dutton	96	91
Southwold	730	549
St. Thomas	1,189	1,246
Totals	3,307	3,063

McNish's majority, 244.

At the general election the figures were:

	McNish.	McDiarmid.
Aldboro	647	728
Dunwich	614	384
Dutton	87	99
Southwold	641	572
St. Thomas	1,108	1,208
Totals	3,097	3,086

Majority for McNish, 11, which a re-count before the judge converted to a majority of 1 for McDiarmid, after which the court voided the election on charges of bribery.

A Curious Case.

Mr. Koehler, an elector of West Elgin received a letter, of which the following is a copy, written on paper with the heading of the law firm of Crothers & Price:

St. Thomas, Ont., Jan. 11, 1899.

Mr. Keller & Son, Duart: Dears Sirs,—You are aware, no doubt, that under section 168 of the Election Act there is a penalty of $100 for voting when not having the right to do so. I hope you will consider this before voting in election to be held in West Elgin to-morrow. Yours truly, (Signed) F. G. McDiarmid.

He also received the following anonymous communication:

St. Thomas, Jan. 11, 1899.

Dear Sirs I as grit healer have been in Elgin for the last 3 days & have made Mcneash election sure. I would advise you not to come to Coynes Corners to vote they are going to have one Sifton to look after their interest & are going to arrest you for pergury if you try & vote it will only hurt you in your business & will do no good for his election is sure as the sun sits so do not try to vote you know you cannot take the oath honestly they are after me so don't make it any worse for me I have the honor to be your E. K. B.

That the real writer of the anonymous letter is not a "Grit healer" is very evident. No man would describe himself as a "healer," and no enthusastic Liberal worker would warn men of his own party not to cast their votes; there were five votes in question here. The document, therefore, bears all the marks of being a dodge of the Tory workers to prevent Liberal votes from being polled.

A DESTRUCTIVE FIRE.

A Nova Scotia Town Almost Completely Consumed—Loss Will Be About One Million Dollars.

Halifax, N.S., Jan. 13.—The enterprising town of Bridgewater, on the banks of the picturesque Lahave River, was practically wiped out by fire at an early hour yesterday morning. The fire originated in the Opera House building and swept Main street on both sides. The burnt district extends over half a mile, and includes all the principal business places of the town. The Halifax Bank, the Merchants' Bank and Dominion Savings Bank were all destroyed. The fire started about 1 o'clock in the morning, and four hours later the whole business portion was in flames. Telegraph and telephone lines are both down, and communication is difficult. A strong gale fanned the fire to fury, and the firemen were powerless to stay its progress. The loss will be heavy, probably close to $1,000,000. Only two buildings remain standing on Main street. The custom house, postoffice, shipping office, telegraph and telephone offices were all burned.

A partial list of the losses gives: Telegraph office, Hyman livery stable, Wentzell's meat shop, Wade & Paten's office, Taylor's drug store, all the law offices, Power's shop, Patillo Bros., McKay's shop, fish market, Merchants' Bank, Halifax Bank, Freeman Bros., Findell's meat market, Burkett Barnaby, Robert Logan's house and shop, Hebb's grocery, Munro's candy shop, Oxner's general store, besides a number of dwellings and small houses in that district.

Last reports received stated that at 10 o'clock last night the firemen had got the conflagration under control.

The origin of the fire is still a mystery.

The Very Latest.

Bridgewater, N.S., Jan. 13.—Not till 4 yesterday afternoon did the firemen discontinue their work of fighting the fire. Last night the glow of the smouldering fires was still bright. Fifty-four large buildings and several small ones were burned. Occupying these were 90 tenants. The loss is estimated at $950,000; insurance about $100,000. Eighteen families are homeless, but destitution is not great. There are some who need help, however, immediately.

The heaviest losers are: David MacKay, $15,000; J. W. Hebb, $9,000; Patillo Bros., $15,000; James T. Powers & Co., $8,000; J. L. Oxner, $6,000; H. C. Bentley, $6,000.

FACTS ABOUT HEALTH

It is Easy to Keep Well if We Know How—Some of the Conditions Necessary to Perfect Health.

The importance of maintaining good health is easily understood, and it is really a simple matter if we take a correct view of the conditions required. In perfect health the stomach promptly digests food, and thus prepares nourishment. The blood is employed to carry this nourishment to the organs, nerves, muscles and tissues which need it. The first great essential for good health, therefore, is pure, rich blood. Now it is certainly a fact that no medicine has such a record of cures as Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is literally true that there are hundreds of people alive and well today who would have been in their graves had they not taken Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is depended upon as a family medicine and general regulator of the system by tens of thousands of people. This is because Hood's Sarsaparilla makes the blood pure. This is the secret of its great success. Keep your system in good health by keeping your blood pure with Hood's Sarsaparilla, which absolutely cures when other medicines fail to do any good whatever.

TORONTO.

This is a big subject for a small article. Toronto is an octopus, reaching out its tentacles to bring all fish to its mandibles. Toronto is a big city, a fine city, a progressive city, the capital of the Province of which the Province, as well as the Dominion, is justly proud. It is the educational and legislative centre of Ontario and in all respects well worthy of being the metropolis of the finest Province of the Dominion. Toronto is enterprising; its citizens are supremely loyal to it, and no opportunity is omitted to aggrandize its material prosperity or increase its prestige. Ambitions in this direction are laudible, but they should have their limit. In some of her recent aspirations in the way of attracting trade Toronto has lost sight of two facts. One is that the trade of certain districts has a well defined natural outlet, and that it is a waste of energy and money to attempt to divert it to Toronto. The other fact lost sight of is that Toronto's prosperity achieved at the expense of any interest or part of the province is an injury to the province and finally to itself. Toronto naturally wants to build itself up, but it should do so by co-operation in developing the resources and advancing the prosperity of the province, and especially those sections naturally tributary to it in the matter of trade. The city's prosperity is bound up in that of the province; any scheme or plan to enhance Toronto's prosperity at the expense of, or irrespective of the province at large, will be injurious. Toronto cannot expect to enjoy for long an isolated prosperity—it cannot be permanent unless it is associated, to a very large extent, with that of the province, of which it is largely the commercial, as it is the political and educational centre. If Toronto wants to strike the true key it should direct its energies to the propagation of enterprise that will include the development of the commercial and material resources of the province at large. If it drop the narrow gauge policy of endeavouring to centre everything in itself, and devote its universally recognized enterprise and energy to the promotion of the interests of the province at large, it will be in the way of enjoying real and permanent prosperity. Toronto cannot expect to stand alone. It cannot be the Toronto it is without the province and country that surround it, any more than London can be London without the Empire.

The Belleville Intelligencer remarks that politics without Mr. Tarte, would be as dull as Hamilton without the Spectator. To continue the simile, political discussion without the Mail and Empire and a few of its satellites would be as decent as the report of a Sunday school convention. A few shameless sheet discredits the great rank and file of honourable Conservative newspapers.

Baby Eczema and Scald Head.

Infants and young children are peculiarly subject to this terrible disorder, and if not promptly arrested it will eventually become chronic. Dr Chase made a special study of eczema and diseases of the skin, and we can most heartily recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment in all forms of eczema. The first application soothes the irritation and puts the little sufferer to rest.

IN ARABY THE BLEST.

Turks and Arabs Had a Very Bloody Set-to and the Turks Came Out Best.

Constantinople, Jan. 13.—A great battle has been fought in the Yemen division of Arabia. The Turkish troops stormed and captured the insurgent position at Shanel on Nov. 30. About 4,000 insurgents and 2,000 Turks were killed or wounded.

A despatch from Constantinople on Dec. 8 said it was reported that there had been renewed fighting in Yemen and the Turks were said to have suffered a serious defeat between Hodeida and Sana. Trouble between the Turks and Arabs in that part of Arabia has been in progress for over four years.

NOW RUSSIA HAS TROUBLE.

Threatened Uprising of Tribesmen on the Afghanistan Frontier.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 13.—Russia is threatened with an uprising on the Afghanistan frontier, similar to those which have been the curse of India across the border.

Mohammedan priests are busy agitating among the lower classes, preaching a sort of holy war against the Christians. Already in some sections the tribesmen are sending the women, children and household goods into the mountain fastnesses. In several places near mountain passes the natives have thrown up rude forts.

England to Get Delagoa Bay.

Brussels, Jan. 13.—Dr. W. J. Leyds, European representative of the South African Republic, whose headquarters is in Brussels, on his departure for Pretoria, told a friend in confidence that the Transvaal Government was now quite reassured as to British intentions in South Africa. "It is certain, in my opinion," said Dr. Leyds, "that an agreement exists between England, Germany and Portugal for the cession to the first-named power of Delagoa Bay, in Portuguese East Africa."

The Situation in Paris.

Paris, Jan. 13.—There was another hot discussion in the Chamber yesterday over the Dreyfus affair and the manifesto sent out by M. de Beaurepaire. The Premier, M. Dupuy, endeavored to calm the Deputies by assurances that the Government loved both the army and justice, but the hot-headed Deputies abused each other and tumults were frequent. The closure was at last applied, the order of the day adopted and the Chamber adjourned.

La Bourgogne to Blame.

London, Jan. 13.—The Admiralty Court found that La Bourgogne of the Compagnie Generale Transatlantique was alone to blame for the collision with the British ship Cromartyshire on July 4th last, near Sable Island, off the coast of Nova Scotia, resulting in the sinking of the steamer and the loss of over 500 lives. The Cromartyshire was awarded damages and costs.

Censured the Viceroy.

Pekin, Jan. 13.—The Viceroy of Nanking, Liou Koun Yi, has memorialized the throne recommending the proper training of military officials and the discarding of ancient weapons and drill in favor of modern methods. As a result, an edict has been issued severely traversing the memorial and censuring the presumption of the Viceroy.

Fatal Duel Over a Woman.

Strasburg, Jan. 13.—A fatal pistol duel took place yesterday at Metz, in Lorraine, between Lieut. Schlueck of the King's Regiment and Emile Tillement, son of a rich flour miller. A young woman who sings at the Metz Coliseum was the occasion of the quarrel.

Gales Again Cause Havoc.

London, Jan. 13.—Reports from all parts of the United Kingdom show more or less damage to life and property. The gale is one of the heaviest known in many years.

Baggage Checks in England.

London, Jan. 13.—The Canadian system of checking baggage has at last been adopted in England by one railway, the London & Northwestern.

Quebec Legislature Opened.

Quebec, Jan. 13.—The Provincial Legislature opened yesterday. In his speech from the throne Lieutenant-Governor Jette outlined the proposed legislation.

Among these measures is one that relates to public instruction. Without in any way affecting the principles which form the basis of our school system, this legislation will materially contribute to the diffusion and improvement of primary education.

He Fooled the Surgeons.

All doctors told Renick Hamilton, of West Jefferson, O., after suffering 18 months from Rectal Fistula, he would die unless a costly operation was performed; but he cured himself with five boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, the surest Pile cure on Earth, and the best Salve in the World. 25c. a box. Sold by all Druggists.

Human Nature.

"You know," said the collector rather plaintively, "you said that you would pay me if I came today."

"Well," answered Mr. Bildew, "you must bear in mind that human nature is human nature. The best of us sometimes say things that we are sorry for."—Washington Star.

A Swell.

"So in your last place you were valet to a count? When did you have to call him in the morning?"

"At half past 7."

"Call me at a quarter to 8!"—Fliegende Blatter.

There was only an edition of 750 of Herbert Spencer's "Social Statics." It took 14 years to sell. Of the "Principles of Psychology," also brought out at the author's cost, only 650 were sold in 13½ years. The first series of essays, 500 copies, took 10½ years.

Muslin owes its name to Mussoul, a fortified town in Turkey, in Asia. Tulle obtains its name from that of a city in the south of France.

It is said that the soldiers who had taken Hood's Sarsaparilla stood the long marches in Cuba much better than the others.

DEATH OF HIRAM WALKER.

The Founder of Walkerville, Ont., Passes Away in Detroit—A Man of Very Large Business Enterprises.

Walkerville, Jan. 13. — Mr. Hiram Walker, the founder of this town, and of the Hiram Walker & Sons distillery, and one of the greatest business men in Canada, died at his residence in Detroit yesterday morning. Mr. Walker retired from business several months ago, and had been gradually failing. He had been unconscious since the day before, and died at 7 o'clock in the morning.

Mr. Walker was born on Independence Day, July 4, 1816, and was therefore in his 84th year. As head of various enterprises, his connection in Essex and Kent Counties was greater than that of any other man. This town is virtually owned by his firm, which, from owning a small distillery, have come to own railroads, steamboat lines and a large number of other almost equally large factories. They hold several thousand acres in and about Walkerville, where they grow tobacco, hops, cranberries and other crops on the very largest scale. The Lake Erie & Detroit River Railway, running between here and Ridgetown, and the Erie & Huron between Rondeau and Sarnia, are owned by them, and only the other day the company leased the car ferry running from Port Dover to Commeant, O. The offices here are no doubt the finest belonging to a business concern in all Canada. Mr. Walker, while his business interests were on this side, has lived in Detroit for a long time, where he had a palatial residence. He had a magnificent steam yacht, with which he traversed the inland waters.

Flags are still at half-mast to-day in the town and arrangements are now in progress for the funeral, which takes place in Detroit on Saturday afternoon.

Sir Julian Pauncefote to Remain.

New York, Jan. 13.—A Washington special to The Herald says: Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British ambassador, will remain accredited to the United States for another year, beginning in April. This unusual action on the part of the British Government arises from its deep interest in the negotiations for the abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty and a new treaty guaranteeing the neutrality of the proposed Nicaraguan Canal, with which Sir Julian is so familiar. Sir Julian would naturally have been retired last spring.

Frenchman Burned to Death.

New York, Jan. 12.—Fire destroyed the three upper floors of the seven-storey brick building, 144-150 Franklin street, last night. The place was occupied by the Cook & Bernheimer Company, dealers in and manufacturers of whiskey, cordials, liquors, etc. It is estimated that the loss to the building and its contents will amount to about $100,000. Emil Vincenot, a Frenchman, the chief compounder of cordials in the establishment, who was on the sixth floor when the fire broke out, became excited and made his way toward the roof and was burned to death.

Discovered by a Woman.

Another Discovery has been made, and that too, by a Lady of this Country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly, and could not sleep. She finally discovered a way of recovery, by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking first dose, that she slept all night: and with two bottles, has been absolutely cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz.' Thus writes W. C. Hamnick & Co., of Shelby, N. C. Sold by all Druggists at 50 cents and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed.

THE BEEHIVE.

Each hive should have a good bottom board, planed smooth and painted.

Tarred paper makes a good lining for the bottoms, to prevent mice from entering.

Protection of the bees in winter pays well in the saving of honey alone, even if the bees live through the winter in unprotected hives.

If it is necessary to remove bees any considerable distance at this time, it should be done before severe winter weather sets in.

A queen introduced in the fall will produce an entire new stock of bees of her own progeny by the time the honey season opens in the spring.

It is not best to confine bees on comb or pollen during the winter. If the winter is severe, it has the effect of producing dysentery in its worst form.

The best plan of keeping section boxes that are to be used again is to crate them up in the same manner as used in the hive when in the process of storing honey.

The number of frames on which a colony can be wintered depends upon the size of the same. A weak colony can be crowded into a much smaller space than a strong one.

There should not be any snow about the entrances of the hives when the bees are flying, and it is better to keep bees confined to the hives when the ground is covered with snow.—Exchange.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

What does it do?

It causes the oil glands in the skin to become more active, making the hair soft and glossy, precisely as nature intended.

It cleanses the scalp from dandruff and thus removes one of the great causes of baldness.

It makes a better circulation in the scalp and stops the hair from coming out.

It Prevents and It Cures Baldness

Ayer's Hair Vigor will surely make hair grow on bald heads, provided only there is any life remaining in the hair bulbs.

It restores color to gray or white hair. It does not do this in a moment, as will a hair dye; but in a short time the gray color of age gradually disappears and the darker color of youth takes its place.

Would you like a copy of our book on the Hair and Scalp? It is free.

If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the use of the Vigor write the Doctor about it.

Address, DR. J. C. AYER, Lowell, Mass.

CODDLING CRIMINALS

Does Not Accord With Lordship Judge Armour's Rigid Sense of the Fitness of Things.

Ottawa, Jan. 13.—Judge Armour, in referring to the presentment of the grand jury yesterday, said that he would send the recommendation for placing gates at all the railway crossings within two miles of the city, to the railway committee.

Regarding covered conveyances to take prisoners to the cells or the jail, the judge said that perhaps nowadays the community was paying a little too much attention to the comfort of persons convicted of crime. The idea of coddling them, which was exhibited, for instance, in the supplying of tobacco for prisoners in penitentiary, so that they could enjoy themselves at the country's expense, was not called for by any good reason that he could see. A treadmill would be a public improvement on some of the present comforts of penitentiaries. The most valuable thing the community could do for either itself or an offender against society was to give the latter the habit of hard work. Once accustomed to that, an idle life would mean misery to them. No one accustomed for years to hard work was likely to relapse into an idle life. The judge's opinion was that the main origin of crime in the community was not drink, but idleness.

Touching on the suggestion of a poor-house for the county, Judge Armour said poorhouses were likely to be favorite places with people who wanted to get rid of the trouble and expense of keeping their own poor relations as they ought. The evil tendency the poorhouse system fostered probably more than offset the money it sometimes was.

A FRUITLESS MEETING

The Lumbermen's Conference at Washington on Thursday.

OPPOSED TO ANY COMPROMISE.

The Delegates of the Republic Would Not Entertain the Canadian Proposal of Free Logs and Free Pulp for Free Lumber—The Tariff Question to the Fore.

Washington, Jan. 13.—Representatives of the American and Canadian lumber interests met in conference yesterday. Among the American lumbermen were W. G. McClure of Duluth, S. T. McKnight, C. A. Smith and B. F. Nelson of Minneapolis, C. W. Goodyear of Buffalo and Judge J. W. Conhran of Ashland, Wis.

The Canadians were represented by William C. Edwards, M.P., W. Anderson, representing the J. R. Booth Lumber Company, J. H. Egan, A. Lumsden and others of Ottawa and George M. Clinky of Montreal.

There was also present United States High Joint Commissioner John A. Kasson, Congressmen Stewart, Broussard and Tawney and Mr. Charlton, a member of the Canadian commission.

Mr. Charlton, the first speaker, was followed by Representative Tawney, and he by Mr. Edwards.

Free admission to Canada of American forest products and free export of saw logs and pulp wood are the concessions the Canadians offered. In exchange they put in a strong plea for free lumber. The Americans, however, produced data tending to show that the manufacture of lumber in Canada is much cheaper than in the United States and that their proximity to the New England market and the important concessions granted them by the Canadian roads, placed the northwestern and southern product of the United States at a very great disadvantage, and consequently their demand is wholly untenable. It seems probable, however, that the American lumbermen rather than that the pending treaty between the two countries should completely fail, will consent to a concession of 20 per cent. from the present $2 rate, which would make the rate $1.60 a thousand feet, but under no circumstances, it is said, would they consent to any further reduction.

The conference came to an end during the afternoon, with no further results than, as one of the Americans said, "to have had an exchange of views and personal experience socially."

It is evident that the Canadians are not a little disappointed at the outcome of the conference, though they assert they did not come here for the purpose of endeavoring to have the tariff removed. Their real object, they declare, was to show that the actual cost of producing lumber is from $3 to $5 per thousand feet greater in Canada than in the States of Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin. They do not regard the comparisons made yesterday as fair ones, and think that the Americans did not make that thorough enquiry into the cost which the importance of the subject demands, preferring to cite isolated cases rather than have a general average applied at, which would bear out the contention they make, and give sufficient ground for a reduction of the duty on imported products.

A REFORMER GONE BEFORE.

E. A. Meredith, for Years an Advocate of Prison Reform, Dead.

Toronto, Jan. 13.—Edmund Allen Meredith passed away last night at his residence in Rosedale. He was born in Ardtrea, County Tyrone, Oct. 7, 1817, and thus at the time of his demise was in his 82nd year.

He graduated from Trinity College, Dublin, in 1837, taking the science medal. He studied law and came to Canada in 1842, and was in the office of his brother, the late Sir William Meredith, afterwards Chief Justice of Quebec. In 1846 he was made principal of McGill College, Montreal. In 1847 he was Assistant Provincial Secretary of Upper Canada, and in 1867 became Under Secretary of State for the province, which position he resigned in 1873, and became first deputy of the Department of the Interior. He retired from public service in 1878, and since then has resided in Toronto. He was a persistent advocate of prison reform, and was the author of many pamphlets and papers upon sociological and national questions. He was at the time of his death vice-president of the Astronomical and Physical Society of Toronto, and also vice-president of the Toronto General Trusts Company. His many mourning friends speak of him as "a scholar and a gentleman."

Impaled on a Sleigh Pole.

Orillia, Jan. 13.—On Tuesday Mr. Ryerson Barnes, a respected resident of Sebright, met his death in a peculiarly sad and shocking manner. His wife and son were preparing to come to Orillia, and he stood holding by the head a spirited team of colts, which he had just harnessed. The animals became frightened and started to run, carrying Mr. Barnes on the point of the tongue or sleigh pole. The horses collided with a stump, the pole impaling Mr. Barnes, and causing almost instant death.

Dairymen's Officers for the Year.

Kingston, Ont., Jan. 13.—The Eastern Ontario Butter and Cheese Association elected its officers yesterday. They are: President, D. Derbyshire, Brockville; vice-presidents, J. McTavish, Vancamp; L. L. Gallagher, Harrowsmith; directors, W. Edgar, Morrisburg; J. B. Dargavel, Elgin; James Whitson, Williams' Corners; J. B. Carlow, Warkworth; Henry Wade, Toronto; auditors, M. Bird, Stirling; F. Brenton, Belleville.

No Hanging on a Holiday.

Ottawa, Jan. 13.—Judge Dugas, the Yukon commissioner, has postponed until March the hanging of three Indians and a white man at Dawson, because the day set down for their execution was "All Saints' Day," a Catholic Church holiday. Henderson is in poor health, and is not expected to live till March.

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA

To Gain Flesh, to Sleep Well, to Enjoy that Appetite that Good Digestion Means.

MAKE A TEST OF STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS.

No trouble is more common or more misunderstood than nervous dyspepsia. People having it think their nerves are to blame and are surprised that they are not cured by nerve medicines. The real seat of the mischief is lost sight of. The stomach is the organ to be looked after.

Nervous dyspeptics often do not have any pain whatever in the stomach, nor perhaps any of the usual symptoms of stomach weakness. Nervous dyspepsia shows itself not in the stomach so much as in nearly every organ. In some cases the heart palpitates and is irregular; in others the kidneys are affected; in others the bowels are constipated, with headaches; still others are troubled with loss of flesh and appetite with accumulations of gas, sour risings and heartburn.

It is safe to say that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure any stomach weakness or disease except cancer of the stomach. They cure sour stomach, gas, loss of flesh and appetite, sleeplessness, palpitation, heartburn, constipation and headache.

Send for valuable little book on stomach diseases by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich. All druggists sell full-sized packages at 50 cents. Prof. Henry W. Becker, the well known religious worker and writer of St. Louis, Secretary of the Mission Board of the German Methodist church, Chief Clerk and Expert Accountant for the Harbor and Wharf Commission, Public Secretary for the St. Louis School Patrons' Association, and the District Conference of Stewards of the M.E. church; also takes an active part in the work of the Epworth League, and to write on religious and educational topics for several magazines. How he found relief is best told in his own words:

"Some weeks ago my brother heard me say something about indigestion, and taking a box from his pocket said 'Try Stuart's Tablets.' I did and was promptly relieved. Then I investigated the nature of the tablets and became satisfied that they were made of just the right things and in just the right proportions to aid in the assimilation of food. I heartily endorse them in all respects, and I keep them constantly on hand."

MY LADY NICOTINE.

The Alleged Effects of Tobacco and Its Enormous Consumption.

Probably no pleasure of life has had its praises so much sung as smoking.

Here is the other side. Doctors say tobacco used in excess produces:

Palpitation of the heart, muscular tremblings, weakness and paralysis of the legs, dizziness of the head, noises in the ears, cold perspiration all over the body, colicky pains in the stomach, inability to exert the mind, congested and sore throat, burning of the tongue, dry and parched mouth, tartar and blackness of the teeth, confusion of sight, catarrh of the stomach, catarrh of the throat and nose, sallow complexion, very bad dyspepsia, lopsided mouth, nervous anxiety, cancer of the lips, diminished appetite, pale and anæmic gums, loss of memory, omission of every fifth pulse beat, ruin of the will power, irritability of temper, extreme and incurable melancholy, restlessness and sleeplessness, blindness and deafness, apoplexy and paralysis, convulsions and death.

In the case of children it stunts their growth, when a person is consumptive it hastens his death, when the heart is weak it almost completely stops the beating, when you have a cough tobacco keeps it going for weeks, and it interferes with singing and swallowing.

Yet about 1,500,000,000 pounds of it are smoked every year.—New York World.

Worthy of Whistler.

As an artist Jack Gamble is considered as independent as he is successful. He possesses an unlimited quantity of candor, upon the expression of which he places no restraint. He is much liked notwithstanding, and was not long ago engaged a commission to paint the portrait of a certain wealthy man, whose features are more remarkable for their bloom than for their refinement. Jack critically scanned the broad features of his proposed subject.

"Upon one condition will I paint you," he declared dramatically.

"What!" gasped the amazed Croesus, speechless at the effrontery of this poverty stricken artist.

"Yes," pursued Gamble, with easy grace. "Upon condition that I shall be allowed to put in a little intelligence."

And the funny part of it was that Jack got the commission.—San Francisco News Letter.

SHADOWS ON THE WALL.

When the room is tidy,
Toys are put away,
Eyes are growing sleepy,
Skies are turning grey.
Comes the children's clamor
As they round me throng.
Fairy lore's exhausted,
Sung each nursery song.
In the mellow lamplight
Hushed their voices all,
Whilst they watch me making
Shadows on the wall!

Through the happy silence
Rings their laughter low
As upon the wall there
Shadows come and go.
Nurse, unseen, unheeded,
Watches from the door,
Whilst the children's voices
Plead for just one more!

One by one they leave me,
Till I sit alone,
Seeing in the twilight
Shadows of my own,
Long forgotten fancies,
Dreams in olden guise,
Till from heart to eyelids
Tears, unbidden, rise.
Happy, happy children!
Time has joys for all;
Only some are seeing
Shadows on the wall!

HOW HE GAINED COURAGE.

General Chaffee's Way of Giving a Recruit Confidence.

A youth of 18 who was in the trenches at El Caney carrying a gun was so badly frightened under fire that he went flat on his face and was roundly kicked by his companions. General Chaffee came along and called to him, "Well, you're a fine soldier!" Then he looked at the boyish face of the kid, and his face softened. "I suppose you can't help it," he said. "It ain't so much your fault. I'd like to get hold of the fellow that took you into the army." By and by he put his hand on the boy's shoulder. "There isn't so much danger as you think for," said the general. "Now, you get up and take your gun and fight, and I'll stand here by you."

The boy got up, shaking like a leaf and fired his first shot pretty near straight into the air.

"That's pretty high," said the general. "Keep cool and try it again."

In three minutes that kid was fighting like a veteran and cool as a cucumber, and when he saw it the general started on.

"You're all right now, my boy," he said. "You'll make a good soldier."

"God bless you, sir," said the youngster. "You saved me from worse than death." And he was pretty close to crying when he said it.

After a while the order came to retire from the trench, and soldiers had to collar that kid and haul him away by the neck to get him to retreat with his company. And at that he'd got a bullet through the fleshy part of his shoulder an hour before. In the rest of the fights there wasn't a better soldier in the company.

Theatrical "Props."

Props comprise all the portable articles required in a play. Guns and pistols—which too often fail to go off at the critical moment—are props; loaves of bread, fowls, fruit, all made of a rough papier mache, are also props. We may also include those wondrous gilt goblets, only seen on the stage, which make such a nonmetallic thud when they fall and bounce upon the boards, as among the achievements of the property man.

But it is at pantomime time that that individual is at his busiest. Big masks and make believe sausages and vegetables, without which no pantomime would be complete, are mingled with fairy wands, garlands of artificial flowers, basket work frames for the accommodation of giants and other articles too numerous to mention.

How the right things are forthcoming at the right moment is one of those mysteries only known to property men. Had one of these useful members of the theatrical world the ability and inclination to write a book what an entertaining volume could he turn out!—Chambers' Journal.

Original if Not Accurate.

This, says The Scottish Leader, is a genuine extract from a schoolboy's recent "Essay on Nelson:"

"Oh! Harding, kiss me again," were the butefull words of a heroik mortal who won a grate battle with one eye and a wooden leg. Before the bloody contest this motto was uttered by him. "The queen expects every man to do his duty." When he died the queen met him in a boat and he went to St. Paul's and was buried. This is a marvelous lesson to me and all schoolboys. Do your duty to your parstors and masters and then even with a single leg you can say, "with this simple thing I will do my duty." As Nelson himself said, "Even though you are only man you can do your duty."

THE CYNIC.

You can borrow anything from a man in politics.

Too many people are as dishonest as the law allows.

A man never makes any money; all he has his wife "saved."

A little music makes a man as disagreeable as a little learning.

A very pretty girl will frequently spend several dollars to look homely in a photograph.

Every woman at some time in her life was referred to as a bud, and it never seems so long ago to her as to others.

If you want to see a fine example of indignation, tell a schoolteacher that teachers should be made to work as long hours every day as other people.

The man who can't trust his wife to spend a few dollars judiciously must feel badly when he thinks what she will do when she gets hold of his life insurance.—Atchison Globe.

BLASTS FOR BLANCO.

Blanco, on his way home with the colonial powers of Spain, has the doubtful comfort of reflecting that this is a great year for wrecks.—Baltimore American.

General Blanco told his soldiers that no foe was driving him from Cuba. It is nice to know that the general looks upon the American navy and army as his friends.—Chicago News.

On departing from Cuba General Blanco drew his salary in full up to the day of departure. One of the military troubles of Spain is the discriminating habits of its paymasters.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

HUMAN SACRIFICES

On the Altar of Diabetes, Saved by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Only.

Hardly a family in the country is free from Diabetes. Great thirst, failing sight, numbness in the thighs, bleeding gums, swollen ankles, emaciation, nervousness, pale or turbid urine, loss of sexual power, decaying teeth, pains in the loins or small of the back, are all positive signs that Diabetes is in the system.

Do you know how it ends? In Death. A premature, horrible, agonized, pitiful death. The victim has no peace, no ease in life. His days are filled with tortures. His nights are waking dreams of agony. He longs to die, yet fears the terrors of his end. He dies, a bloated, fetid, repulsive mass of corruption. That is the only end of unchecked Diabetes. Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it. They drive it out of the system thoroughly, create new, clean blood, rebuild the diseased kidneys, and restore robust health.

Visit of a Single Tax Orator.

From Citizen and Country.

Hon. Jas. R. Brown, of New York, a talented speaker on Social Reform questions, is to visit this province between January 20 and February 1. Mr. Brown is an earnest advocate of the principles laid down by the late Henry George, and is only asking expenses from those arranging meetings. Hon. Jas. R. Brown is the son of Mrs. Brown, who had a millinery store in this town a short time since, of whom notice was made a few days ago in these columns as being connected with the business management of "The National Single Taxer," now published in New York. The local Single Tax Association hope to secure the lecturer for a night. Notice of the date will be given as soon as settled upon.

CLOSING HOURS AT THE BENCH SHOW.

THE LAST CANINE GONE—SPECIAL PRIZES AWARDED.

The Exhibitors were Thoroughly Satisfied with their Treatment and are Anxious to Come Again.

The Bench Show closed last evening, and the exhibitors went away thoroughly satisfied, each carrying in his pocket the amount of his winnings. The payment of the prize money before the show closed is a new innovation, but one which was eminently satisfactory to all concerned.

Of course all could not win, but all the prominent breeders who were present were much pleased with the manner in which Mr. Lacy did the judging. The citizens who attended were delighted, and when the next show is held it is safe to predict that the patronage will greatly increase. The attendance was in the neighbourhood of seven hundred, and whilst Peterborough should turn out a bigger crowd for an event of this nature, still, on the whole, the directors are sanguine of being able to announce that, after all bills have been met, there will be a small surplus on hand as a nucleus for next year's prize money.

Mention has been omitted hitherto of the presence at the show of Mr. Jos. Reid of Montreal, who is president of the Canadian Collie Club, and also president of the Montreal Dog Fanciers' Association. He was enthusiastic in his praise of the way in which the arrangements were carried out in Peterborough, and pronounced the show as one which took precedence over the recent exhibition in Montreal.

The different specials were awarded in the following manner:

For the exhibitor making the largest number of entries, pair of trousers by Gough Bros. ($4)—F. T. Miller, Trenton.

For best St. Bernard puppy, one dollar, by Wm. Madill—D. Foley.

For best great Dane, photo of same by R. M. Roy, $10—Chas. J. Bowell, Belleville.

For best Mastiff shown one year's subscription to Southern Fancier—Geo. K. Grills, Belleville.

Best fox hound owned in the county, $2 by Chas. Gunns—H. C. Winch.

Best fox hound on exhibition, one year's subscription to Southern Fancier—J. Robinson, Toronto.

Best black cocker—Bottle of perfume by John Nugent—Geo Dean, Woodstock.

Best red cocker on exhibition—Japanese ware vase, $3.50, by A H Stratton—C Y Ford, Kingston.

Best smooth fox terrier on exhibition—Alarm clock by Chas McClelland—Geo H Gunderham, Toronto.

For exhibitor taking most prizes in collie class—Silver medal by C B McAllister, President Peterborough Kennel Club—J T Reeve, Toronto.

Best collie bitch—Service of Imp. Malphis by C B McAllister—Jas Reid, Montreal.

Best bull terrier—One year's subscription to Southern Fancier—Wentworth Kennels, Hamilton.

For exhibitor winning most prizes in Irish setters—Dozen tins disinfectant by Jeyes Sanitary Compound Co—H Parker-Thomas, Belleville.

Best puppy shown in Irish terriers—One year's subscription to Southern Fancier—H Parker Thomas, Belleville.

Best Manchester terrier—Jardinere, by Macfarlane Wilson—Ed. Mack, Toronto.

Best bull dog—$2 00, by Canadian Kennel Club—Wentworth Kennels, Hamilton.

Brace of wolfhounds—$3.00, by the Canadian Kennel Club—Terra Cotta Kennels.

Best Scotch terrier—$2.00, by Canadian Kennel Club—David S Gillies, Hamilton.

The secretary will be obliged if all outstanding accounts are sent in at once, and would also be thankful if members whose fees are unpaid will kindly forward amount.

Mr. H. B. Hungerford sold "Laddie," the second prize winner in the open collie class, to Mr. C. B. McAllister.

The show was disinfected, and disinfected well, by the Jeyes Sanitary Compounds Co. The air was sweet all the time, although there were 160 dogs benched.

THE GROW OF THE CHICKEN MEN.

Peterborough Gets the Poultry Show Next Year and the Presidency of the Association.

The delegates who attended the annual meeting of the Western Ontario Poultry Association, Messrs. Cullen Goldie, Elliott and Secretary Collins, returned home in high feather last night.

The next meeting of the Association and the annual poultry exhibition, will be held in Peterborough in 1900, and Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., was elected president of the Western Ontario Poultry Association.

There was a stiff fight between Owen Sound and Peterborough for the 1900 fixture. The former based its claim in part on its 9 railway trains per day, but Secretary Collins derailed and ditched the Owen Sounders with 24 trains per day for Peterborough and swallowed up their other claims in an exhibition building (the Market Hall), better for the annual show than the pavilion, Toronto.

The directors of the Peterborough Poultry and Pet Stock Association expect that the securing of the chicken "meet" will react beneficially on their own exhibition to be given in the Market Hall, January 17th, to 19th. Among the features will be the presence of Mr. A. G. Gilbert, of the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, with an exhibit of poultry dressed according to the demands of the British market, and on Tuesday night of the show he will give an address upon the proper way of dressing poultry for this market.

THE ANGEL'S KISS.

(Miss Alma Frances McCollum, in Canadian Churchman.)

When darkness slowly fades from earth away,
And dawning shades are turning rosy gray,
An angel comes and softly stooping low,
Leaves on our lips a kiss—a blessed kiss—
So filled with love and peace and heavenly bliss,
It means, I guard you, and I love you so.

If we could drive away all woe and strife
And thoughts of wicked things that crowd this life,
We would awake and that pure presence bless,
But, oh! our eyes are sealed, we slumber deep.
The angel rouses not our soul from sleep,
And we dream on and lose that sweet caress

I cannot feel that tender touch divine,
Good wars with ill within this heart of mine,
But all through life my hope and prayer is this:
That when my life on earth has passed away,
I may behold soft lights of dawning day,
And wake at last to feel the angel's kiss.

A TREAT IN STORE.

A Grand Musical Treat on February 2nd.

Thanks to the ambition of Mr. J. Crane Peterborough, will be visited on Thursday, Feb. 2, by two of the finest singers on the concert platform of the United States. Mr. Holmes Cowper, tenor, who is acknowledged the purest tenor on the other side, Miss Edith J. Miller, of New York, whose name is known far and wide as a magnificent contralto. Mr. Cowper passing Peterborough on the above date and Miss Miller singing in Toronto the night before, Mr. Crane has conceived the idea of giving the musical people here a chance to hear these artists. Considerable trouble was experienced in arranging the combination, but everything is settled now. The concert will be sacred and will be held in St. Paul's church so as to accommodate all. Another excellent feature will be that tickets will be placed at 25c. The choir will assist and a grand programme may be looked for. Mr. Crane's enterprise, exhibited in this as in numerous other instances, does him great credit and should receive cordial practical appreciation on the part of the public.

A PRESENT FOR THE MUSEUM.

Contributed Through Mr. Johnston Pandash, of Hiawatha.

Mr. Johnston Pandash, son of Chief Pandash, Hiawatha, has left with the EXAMINER for the Victoria Museum a leather-bound copy of an "English Grammar, with an epitome of rhetoric," by "Rev. John Shaw, headmaster of the Free Grammar School at Rochedal, Lancashire." The book, which was printed in 1793 and is therefore 100 years old, was handed to Mr. Pandash by Mrs. William Lukes, of Alderville. It was the property of her deceased son, who was studying for the Methodist ministry, and to whom the book was presented by Rev. R. Cragg.

PERSONAL

Mrs. Hopkins, Lindsay, is the guest of Mrs. (Dr.) Kemp.

Rev. Father J. O'Brien is at present stationed at Downeyville.

Miss Carveth, of Toronto, is the guest of Mrs. Hewson, at the residence of Mr. T. E. Bradburn.

Rev. Father Scanlon has returned from Downeyville, where he has been assisting Rev. Father Brotherton in his parochial duties.

Mr. Will Wilgar, formerly connected with the Canadian General Electric Works here, is up from Montreal for a few days visiting friends. Mr. Wilgar is now with the Lachine Hydraulic Co.

Mr. Harvey Fife, son of Mr. James Fife, of Onaabec, who has been engaged in mining for a number of years, has just returned from Slocan City, and is visiting his uncle, Mr. R. J. Winch. Mr. Fife has brought home a number of very beautiful specimens of ore from the far west, which he proposes to place in a cabinet and put on exhibition.

Mr. W. J. Thompson, who for a number of years has been in the employ of Messrs. Cox & Davis, has been admitted as a member of the firm, as a reward of the diligence which he has displayed in forwarding the interests of his employers. Through his straightforwardness in all business transactions and courteous demeanor Mr. Thompson has made many friends not only in Peterborough, but in the entire surrounding district, who will join with the EXAMINER in extending congratulations.

Mrs. W. Pringle and family left to-day to spend the winter at Port Arthur. This visit is partly due to the fact that Mr. Pringle has disposed of his interest in the Business College, and has not definitely decided upon his future movements. During the three years Mr. Pringle has been associated with the Peterborough Business College he has shown exceptional business capacity as well as capacity for imparting business education. He has won during his stay here, many warm friends, who will wish him every success wherever he goes, should he decide to leave Peterborough.

WEST ELGIN RIGHT.

The election of Mr. McNish, the Liberal candidate in the West Elgin bye-election yesterday was expected, but in view of the close figures of the general elections the majority of 244 is a pleasant surprise and an indication of the growth of popular confidence in the Government. Falling in March last, Mr. Whitney banked on the bye-elections to bring him to power, but he is further off the coveted goal than ever. At the session in August the straight Government majority, outside the speaker, was six. The gains in the bye-elections, including West Elgin, bring the Government majority up to the comfortable figures of 11, and when North Waterloo falls into line, the majority will be a round dozen, enough for any honest Government. The session begins in a few days, and it is to be hoped that Mr. Whitney and his following will cease their Quixotic tilting at political windmills and join with the Government side of the House in serious efforts to promote the interests of the good Province of Ontario, which, no matter what party is charged with the duty of administration, deserves the best service of every representative.

"THE whirligig of time brings in its revenges." Mr. Whitney's forbears turned down Lord Elgin rather rudely in Montreal a good many years ago. Yesterday Elgin turned down Mr. Whitney very emphatically.

Y. W. C. A. ASSOCIATION.

The annual associational meeting of the Y.W.C.A. will be held Saturday evening, January 16th, beginning at 8 o'clock. A large attendance of members is desired. Bring your friends with you. NOTICE.

The business will be continued under the firm name of Cox & Davis.

SPORTING PASTIMES.

Interesting Items of Local and General Interest.

OSGOODE PLAYS HERE TO-NIGHT.

All lovers of hockey will remember last year's exciting match against the Osgoode team, when they were a little too much for Peterborough. The team plays here to-night and the best game of the season may be expected. A large crowd will doubtless turn up at the rink.

HOCKEY.

The Lakeview Hockey Club drove (and walked) to Keene Wednesday night, where they played a friendly match with the team of that place. The boys left town shortly after six o'clock, but owing to the conditions of the roads the full team did not reach the village until after 10 o'clock, although three of the players nobly volunteered to tramp it to the village, reaching there several hours in advance of the other players, where they were warmly received by the friends of the village team (especially the lady admirers.) The boys were surprised to find a sumptuous repast awaiting them at the hotel, which they would liked to have played a combination round, rather than go on the ice. However the team repaired to the rink where they lined up as follows before Referee D. Kennealy:

Keene.		Lakeviews.
F Welsh	goal	S Miller
L Brown	point	L J Pioard
L Wallace	cover point	T Thornton
J Dixon	forwards	W Crowley
A Welsh		W Parnell
Jos Quinn		W Meagher
J McIntyre		L Beaudet
E D Moore	goal umpire	T A Murphy

The game was an excellent exhibition of hockey, being fast and scientific. In the first half the score stood 3—3, and Keene entered the second half determined to win. From the face-off Keene scored amidst applause. The Lakeviews again evened up things, each team scoring alternately until the score stood 6—6, with four minutes to play. From an off-side Keene sent the puck up to the Lakeview goal, when Will Crowley secured it, and by a beautiful lift the full length of the ice, broke the tie, and winning the match for the Lakeviews by a score of 7 goals to 6.

The Lakeviews played splendid hockey, and for the Keene team mention should be made of the work of J. Dickson, Joe Irwin and J. McIntyre in combination play.

Mr. D. Kennealy as referee gave the greatest satisfacton.

The supper served at the Kennealy House by the Keenites was an excellent one, and the Lakeviews are loud in their praises of the hospitality and kindness extended to them by the village hockey team.

The EXAMINER's Norwood correspondent writes: The first hockey match in which the Norwood Intermediate team is interested was played here on Monday evening, between Peterborough and Norwood. A faster or cleaner game of hockey was never played on Norwood ice. The Norwood boys played with a pluck and vim which surprised all the onlookers.

The Peterborough team is made up of a fine lot of fellows—as fine in appearance and manner as they are at hockey.

The home team is very much elated over their success. The Norwood team lined up as follows: Goal, A. Fraser; Point, J. S. McGregor; Cover Point, T. J. Clancy; Forwards, W. Ross Cameron, B. Hendren, A. W. W. McPherson, F. Hendren.

The game was called at 9 p. m., and was from start to finish in the hands of Norwood.

Mr. C. Pengelly refereed the game to the satisfaction of all. At the end of the game the score stood 6 to one in favour of the home team.

After the match the boys took themselves to the Clancy House for an oyster supper, where a very enjoyable time was spent. Nothing but the best of good feeling exist between the Peterborough and Norwood Intermediate Hockey Teams.

A HANDSOME MEDAL.

Messrs. A. H. Stratton, W. E Loch and Dickson Davidson have recently presented a handsome silver medal to the physical department of the Y.M.C.A. The medal will be contested for by the senior men. Three monthly indoor athletic contests will be held, comprising some twelve events in each. The one securing the highest number of points becomes possessor of the medal. The medal is striking in design, with bar and ornament suspended on chains. The Association highly appreciates the gift, and, as well, the young man who purpose competing. It can be seen at the physical director's office. It was manufactured by Messrs. Clark & Gibson. Tuesday night the attendance at the senior gymnasium class was the largest this season. There was a good attendance at the class in single sticks last night.

THE COLTS WIN AGAIN.

They Defeat the Lakefield Team by the Score of 28 Goals to None.

Quite a large number assembled at the rink last evening to witness the return match between the local Colts and the Lakefield team.

In Lakefield last week the Peterborough boys were able to win from the Lakefields on their own ice by the score of 14 to 5. It was, therefore, hardly to be expected that on coming here the Lakefield team would be able to hold their own. It was soon manifested, however, that the Colts were in each a walk over as the score [illegible] local team netted 5 goals to their opponents' none, but the play was not neat, little or no combination work being done. This was caused doubtless through the fact that the services of Harry King and Stanley Bradd were not available, both being laid up. Naturally, the forwards were thus thrown off in their play a great deal, as the four men have practiced together all season. The places of the absentees were filled by Parker Crossley and Whitecroft. Both played a strong game.

In the second half the forwards worked together better. Many nice pieces of team work were witnessed. The score was increased to 23—0, the additional number of goals scored being attributable to the fact that more combination play was indulged in than at the beginning of the game.

The large number of goals does not by any means indicate that Lakefield has a weak team. They are a clever lot of young players and their defence put up a stubborn game last night. The fault seems to lie in the fact that no team work is attempted to any extent, and when a pass is tried it is done in such a hap hazard way as to make it a matter of extreme doubt where the puck is going. With a little more coolness and heady play amongst the forwards the Lakefield Juniors should develop into a strong team. They skate well and lift the puck nicely when occasion demands.

The Peterborough Colts are deserving of great credit for their style of play last night. They were quick to take advantage of every opportunity and in the second half especially put up such a dashing game as to rouse the spectators to great enthusiasm.

By winning the first round from Lakefield the Colts are entitled to pass into the second series in which they will play home and home matches with the Parkdales, of Toronto, the first match taking place in Toronto next week.

The teams last evening were composed as follows:—

Lakefield.		Peterborough.
W W Gonor	goal	McDonald
F Grey	point	Graham
W Stables	cover-point	Armstrong
M Strickland	forwards	McBain
B Redpath		Crossley
R Bloomfield		Morgan
W Watson		Whitecroft

Mr. Lionel King acted as refree, and his strict impartiality was most favourably commented upon.

CITY LODGE ENTERTAINS.

An Enjoyable Evening Spent by the Members and Visitors of City Lodge.

City Lodge, No. 404, I.O.G.T., met as usual on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in their hall, corner of George and Simcoe streets, with a good representation.

At nine o'clock the business session closed, followed by an open one for the reception of visitors, when the following programme was rendered:

Trio	Sisters Hetherington and Davis and Bro C H Mann
Reading	Sister Davidson
Recitation	Bro Bell
Duet	Sister Davidson and Bro Warne
Reading	Bro C H Mann
Reading	Bro Dredge

As a result of the above programme it was found that the Reds and Blues stood on equal basis but owing to the former having the larger representation and one initiation, a majority of ten marks, the majority therefore in favour of the Reds is 21, which, it is hoped, may be reduced at the next meeting by the Blues.

This report brought the meeting to a close, when all returned home feeling that they had spent an enjoyable evening.

Meeting next Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. Open session from 9 until 10. All welcome to the open session.

Y.M.C.A. DEBATING CLUB.

Anderson those concerning foreign affairs. The discussion was very hearty, every member present taking part.

The following is the programme for the next two evenings:—

Jan. 19.—Debate: "Resolved, that the franchise be extended to women on the same conditions as to men."

Jan. 26—Canadian Evening.—"Papers: "Out-door Sports in Canada," "Canada's Resources," "Canada in A.D. 2,000," "Famous Canadians."

ACKNOWLEDGMENT AND RECOMMENDATION.

A Former Resident of Peterborough a Royal Templar Beneficiary.

The following has reference to a lady formerly well-known in Peterborough, Mrs. Wm. Jolliffe, who died at Bowmanville about a fortnight since. Her husband writes to the Council 97, Royal Templars of Temperance, of which his late wife was a much respected member:

I gratefully acknowledge the prompt and full payment from the secretary of the Dominion Council of Royal Templars of Temperance of Canada and Newfoundland, of death benefit certificate claim held by the late Mrs. Harriet Jolliffe in local Council R. T. of T., No. 97, at Peterborough, Ont., and made payable to her husband (Rev. W. Jolliffe). I can most sincerely recommend said institution as a safe, reliable and permanent institution in which to insure, and whilst it is the uncompromising advocate of strict temperance principles.

WEDDED AT COBOURG.

One of the Town's Society Favourites Becomes Mrs. Frederick C. Armstrong, of London, Eng.

A despatch from Cobourg says: A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mrs. Peter McCallum yesterday, when Miss Helen McCallum was made the partner in life of Mr. Frederick C. Armstrong, of London, Eng., brother of Mr. A. J. Armstrong, barrister, of Cobourg. The bride was assisted by Miss Georgie Mills, Guelph, while Mr. J. J. Ashworth, Toronto, supported the groom. Little Miss Dorothy Armstrong, the bride's niece, was the dainty and graceful maid of honour. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. Hay, B.D. The customary congratulations, good wishes, etc., followed ere Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong left on their honeymoon trip to Cleveland, Washington, New York and thence to London, England, where the bride's home will be.

Mrs. Armstrong was a great favourite in local society circles and much regret is felt that her future place of residence is so far removed from her native town and scenes of her girlhood days.

Mr. Armstrong's many friends in Peterborough extend warmest congratulations and wish he and his bride many years of wedded happiness. Mr. Armstrong is a son of Mr. Wm. Armstrong, of Cavan, and was for some years connected with the Canadian General Electric Co in Toronto. He now holds an important position with Dick, Kerr & Co., London, Eng.

MATTERS IN MANITOBA.

The Past Year's Crops—The Disabilities of the Farmers—Next Year's Prospects.

From Our Own Correspondent.

The autumn of 1898 was a somewhat unusual one in the history of Manitoba. Many farmers in the eastern and southern districts of Manitoba had very light grain crops, and this small yield was materially decreased in value by the heavy rains which fell in September, wetting the stacks to the centre and rendering the grain soft. As the crop was light over the Provine in general threshing was completed before winter had set in, or before the second week in November. Reports from different districts in Manitoba claim that fully one-fourth of the 1898 crop was destroyed by the rain.

The burning questions in the minds of the Manitoba farmers in the past has been the monopoly of the elevators and the heavy freight duties. During 1896 the farmers gained the privilege of directly loading cars and shipping their own grain. This was a great boon but the grain seller has yet to fight the grain buyers ring.

In the town of Wapella the large companies allowed the local buyer to fill his elevator, who being unable to get cars was forced to stand idly by and see the agents of large companies buying grain at their own prices. Next year the government will be asked to grant the right of loading grain in from flat warehouses.

As the growing of wheat is, as yet, the principal occupation of the people of Manitoba, any scheme having for its object the cheaper transportation of this product is keenly watched by the interested farmer.

During 1897 the Government of Canada sent a company of men to explore the Hudson Bay and Strait, together with the adjoining waters and also the route inland from Hudson's Bay to the Province of Manitoba, with a view of ascertaining the suitability of the route as a transportation line between the Province and Europe. Their report says little in favour of the route, as it is claimed that Hudson's Bay and adjoining waters are navigable for only a short period of the year.

Old settlers claim that prospects are good for a large yield in 1899, and that instead of having an average yield of about twelve bushels, as they had this year, they have reasons to expect next year's yield to exceed all average yields since '91, which was in the neighbourhood of forty-five bushels to the acre. They base their conclusions on the very moist open condition of the soil when frost came.—E.M.

To Whom It May Concern.

At the time I sold my photographic business in Peterborough to Mr. B. M. Roy, a number of persons were entitled to re-sittings for photographs, and I sent a card to each, informing them that they were entitled thereto from my successor, who had by written agreement assumed the completion of all unfinished contracts. TWO AGAINST A MOB.

AN OLD TIME MISSISSIPPI RIVER SHOOTING SCRAPE.

A Trivial Incident That Led to the Wrecking of the Old Postoffice, and a Pitched Battle in Which Seven Men Were Slain.

"One of the worst shooting scrapes that ever happened along the Mississippi river," began the man at the wheel, relaxing his hold on the tiller, which had been hard down, and permitting it to spin around with the velocity of a top, "took place out there, just above the mouth of the bayou, about 30 years ago, when they burned the old postoffice and the warehouse. You can see where they stood by the piles of bricks there on the bank."

All admitted the ruins were plainly visible, when he changed to the opposite side of the wheel, and after a spirited effort made to counteract the effects of an impinging current that had caused the boat to swerve from her course he continued:

"The boat that I was on had got caught in the fog, and we tied up under the point there about 5 o'clock in the afternoon, and a lot of us went on shore to take a little exercise. It was on a Saturday, and a good many people had come in from the country to do their trading and get their mail. Some of them were pitching quoits and others shooting at a mark when we first landed, but they quit when they saw the man carry the mail bag we had brought and went in and stood around waiting for the letters to be sorted. They had all been drinking and were pretty noisy. When the postmaster said there were only two letters and that they were both for Bud Johnson, a colored man, a murmur of disapproval went around, and several of them insisted on a new deal.

"'You can look for yourselves,' said the postmaster, tossing them the bag, but after searching and finding it empty they were in a worse frame of mind than ever. Presently one of the number, a local politician, got up and made a speech derogatory to the administration. He insisted that the government was prejudiced against white folks, and that he had no use for the office anyhow. Several of the others present expressed their approval of this sentiment, and a general smashing up of everything at once followed. During the row the coal oil lamp was broken, the house set on fire and everything burned up.

"Colonel Bunch, who owned the property, noticing the fire, came up from his plantation below and denounced the perpetrators of the outrage as vandals. The colonel was a high spirited man and didn't stand any foolishness, but was getting along in years now and couldn't do much but talk, so that when one of the men declared he could whip any Bunch on earth he looked like he felt himself in a pretty close place, but the colonel stood his ground until at last, when the contending parties were about to come to blows, his son appeared upon the scene, and, learning the cause of the trouble, sprang between the two, and, drawing his revolver, said, 'My name is Bunch, and when my father gets to be too old to defend himself I can stand in his tracks and take his part.'

"At this juncture the shooting commenced, and I made for the boat. Everybody seemed to take sides against the Bunches, and you would have thought them a band of guerrillas from the way they kept the fight up. Presently I noticed the colonel roll down the bank and stop just at the edge of the water, and then his son came staggering down, too, and fell near his side. They were both dead! We wanted to leave, but the men were afraid to go on shore to untie the lines, for the infuriated crowd was still calling for more Bunches and the colored man who had got the letters, but he had climbed a tree, and they didn't know where he was. An hour or so later, when the crowd had dispersed, he slid down from his hiding place, came aboard the boat and we had him in the hold until we got away and he was over his fright. He said there were five men lying on the bank that the Bunches had killed before they fell."

The boat at this juncture showing a disposition to become fractious, the pilot gave his undivided attention for a moment to the wheel, when he went on:

"But there is not much shooting along the river now, and you hardly ever hear of a feud. When there were only about three families in a county, two of them were usually engaged in an effort to exterminate the other on account of some imaginary wrong, or maybe prompted by jealousy. Since the country has been settled up they are all right. I used to think myself," he went on to say after a brief tussle with the tiller, "that what a man wanted was room, but I have found out my mistake. What he stands most in need of is plenty of good neighbors, and I find that the thicker you put people the better they get along. It makes them more human, and besides they come to know something, which is not the case when they live alone. I have learned a good deal myself by traveling around and seeing what is in the world, for I usually go east every summer to swap malarias."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

DYING BY INCHES!

But Dodd's Kidney Pills will Yet Renew Life.

Thousands of persons die in the prime of life because doctors think Bright's Disease and Diabetes incurable. But Dodd's Kidney Pills cure them both. They have cured thousands of cases.

These diseases and other Kidney complaints are as common as ordinary colds. But people don't realize that they are afflicted till the disease has eaten deep into the system. Even then, Dodd's Kidney Pills will positively cure.

Thousands of people are dying on their feet, but do not realize it. They notice one or more of these symptoms: shortness of breath, loss of memory, failing sight, ravenous appetite, pale or reddish urine, with brick-colored deposit, scalding when urinating, constipation, nervousness, pains in the loins. Their only hope is Dodd's Kidney Pills. They won't fail. They never do.

A YANKEE.

Various Views In Various Places as to What He Is.

"I was greatly amused," said a New Orleans citizen who has lately made a visit abroad, "to notice how the term 'Yankee' widens in application as one gets farther and farther away from the habitat of the real thing.

"In New York a Yankee is commonly supposed to be a native of Connecticut, Vermont or Massachusetts, and I have noticed that the name is applied to mean skinflints rather than to the people in general. In St. Louis a Yankee is understood loosely to be any one from the extreme northeast. Here in New Orleans the term includes pretty nearly everybody above Mason and Dixon's line—in short, 'northerner' and 'Yankee' are more or less synonymous.

"Now comes the really absurd part of it, although quite in line with what I have just remarked. While I was in London I found myself continually referred to as a 'Yankee' by natives who had learned I was from New Orleans. 'I think you Yankees are very charming people,' said a big wholesaler who wanted to be extra pleasant. 'I know several from your state.' I tried to explain at first, but I soon got tired of that. I was sure to be greeted by a stare of amazement. 'But I thought all Americans were Yankees, doncherknow,' would be the usual protest.

"Later on I met a very intelligent hotel keeper at Bern, in Switzerland, and in the course of conversation he remarked that he had an extremely agreeable countryman of mine staying at his house the previous season. 'As you are both Yankees,' he said, 'you may by chance know him.' 'Where does he live?' I asked. 'In Buenos Ayres,' replied the hotel keeper."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

WONDROUS REMEDY,

Is what a London Doctor Calls Dodd's Kidney Pills.

London, Jan. 9.—A large decrease in the number of cases of Kidney Disease has been noted in this city during the past year.

"There's only one thing to be said about it," said a prominent physician speaking on the subject the other day.

"This falling-off is due solely to the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills by the people. Dodd's Kidney Pills are the most wondrous kidney remedy ever known. They are used in nearly every household, which accounts for the great decrease of Kidney Complaint."

SAFE LOCK PUZZLES.

THE TROUBLE THAT IS CAUSED BY LOST COMBINATIONS.

A Remarkable Experience With a Screw Door Safe, Which Defied the Assaults of the Experts For Three Days and Nights.

Once a painter working in the Commercial hotel slipped from his ladder and in falling struck his foot against the knob of the office safe. A few moments later the clerk attempted to open the doors, but found them immovable; the blow had thrown "on" the combination. As usual in hotels where some one is continually on duty close at hand, the outer lock was rarely used. It was last employed so long ago that nobody could remember the exact figures that governed it, and an expert was sent for. In detective stories this individual would have placed his ear against the door, turned the knob a few times, smiled enigmatically and thrown back the bolts, but unfortunately such things don't really happen outside the works of M. Gaboriau. As a matter of fact, five skilled mechanics took turns at trying for some 30 hours, and finally the makers were telegraphed to for the cipher.

The "sticking" of safe doors, as it is called colloquially, is something that occurs now and then in every city, and the most common cause is the sudden death of the man possessing the combination. Some cautious merchant tumbles over with heart disease or apoplexy, and his safe is found locked as tight as a drum. In such cases there is only one thing to do. A hole is drilled through the door, so as to give access to the mechanism, and the lock is then picked with a wire.

As burglars often employ the same process it may be interesting to explain just how it is done. A combination lock consists of a series of disks, or "tumblers," each having a slot on the edge, and when these slots are brought into alignment a bar slides through and operates the bolts. By means of a hooked wire it is comparatively easy for an expert to revolve the disks until the slots are all in their correct positions, and that, in a nutshell, is the whole trick.

The widely prevalent idea that a combination lock may be opened "by ear" is absurd, and the safe sharp who pretends to do it resorts to an ingenious method, called "backing up." He approaches a safe when the combination is "off," and by quietly turning the knob backward can tell by a slight obstruction when the first number is reached. The second is "picked up" the same way, and so on until the cipher is in his possession, when he boldly announces that he can open the doors whenever he wants to. Many a man has been hoodwinked into believing a good look worthless by this simple dodge.

Sudden death is by no means responsible for all the lockouts. Sometimes one of those strange mental scissions, in which the overtaxed brain itself slips a cog, causes a busy man to forget for the time being one or more of the numbers. He may have opened the safe every morning for years and believed the combination to be as familiar as the face of his wife, but it has slipped away into the mysterious regions of oblivion, and the harder he thinks the less apt he is to recall it.

Some years ago a New Orleans merchant suddenly forgot the second number of his combination. He was in great distress, for he feared a mental breakdown, and, strange to say, he had the missing number associated in some manner with the idea of stopping or pausing.

"It has something to do with standing still," he repeated over and over again to the baffled experts. At last he jumped up with a triumphant whoop.

"I have it," he yelled. "It's 28. Don't you see, two-eight, to wait? I knew it had something to do with stopping."

One of the most remarkable lockouts on record occurred in 1892 in a small town in this state. A general merchant had what was known as a screw door safe, with a time-lock, which got out of order. The door in a safe of this kind is circular and screws in, after which an automatic contrivance throws the bolts, which are released at a given hour by interior clockwork. The expert sent for in this particular case made the necessary repairs, but forgot to replace a small bar connecting the clock and the lock. Consequently when he closed the door the bolts flew into position, and there was no way in the world to get them back.

The safe contained a quantity of currency, several fine watches and a lot of diamond jewelry, and the owner was wild to have it opened. Then began a battle royal. The first scheme of the experts was to bolt a long iron bar to the door and then raise the safe by a tackle and let it drop. The theory was that the jar might cause the bolts to fly back long enough to enable the leverage pressure of the bar to start the screw. This was tried at least a hundred times, but without success.

They then determined to break down the door itself. It was composed of many plates of steel held together by a series of small bolts. A beam 35 feet long was swung from a derrick like a battering ram and hurled end on against the front of the safe. Shifts of darkies were engaged to relieve each other at fixed hours, and the blows were timed regularly, two to the minute. It was believed that a vibration could thus be set up that would eventually jar out the bolts, and, incredible as it may seem, the assault was continued unceasingly three days and nights. The blows reverberated through the little town like salvos of artillery, and the whole country around turned out to see the fun. Sleep was impossible, and one exasperated resident had actually applied for an injunction when the plates at last sprung asunder.

The interior was a wreck. The watches had been literally torn to pieces. The diamonds were found wrenched from their settings and the currency reduced to rags by abrasion from flying particles. It had to be sent to the treasury for redemption.

When an expert is called in by a business man who finds himself unable to open his safe, he tries the plan, to begin with, of reverting the numbers given him. It not infrequently happens that the owner has accidentally rearranged them in his mind, and in nine cases out of ten that proves to be the fact. The forgetful man is always ready to take oath that he has made no mistake until it is demonstrated before his eyes that he has.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

INDIAN SIGNAL SERVICE.

They Have Long Telephoned by the Use of Drums.

Travelers in uncivilized countries have often wondered how some savage tribes were able to transmit news for hundreds of miles with no apparent facilities for doing so. An interesting light is thown on this subject by Jose Bach, who tells of the means by which the Indians on the Amazon communicate with each other at a distance. The natives live in groups of 100 to 200 persons in settlements half a mile or a mile apart. In each dwelling there is a wooden drum, which is buried for half its height in sand mixed with fragments of wood, bone and mica, and has a triple diaphragm of leather, wood and rubber. When this drum is struck with a wooden mallet, the sound travels far and is distinctly heard in the other drums in the neighboring dwellings.

It is beyond doubt that the transmission of the sound takes place through the earth, since the blows struck are scarcely audible outside of the houses in which the instruments are placed. After a "malocca," or dwelling, has been "called up" by an initial blow conversation is carried on between the two drums. Mr. Bach's explanation is that the communication is facilitated by the nature of the ground, the drums doubtless resting upon one and the same stratum of rock, since transmission through ordinary alluvial earth could not be depended upon. This method furnishes an ingenious modification of the process employed by Indians for perceiving distant noises, such as the gallop of a horse, which consists in applying the ear to the earth.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Uses of Adversity.

It is something new to discover that a bodily affliction can assist one in mastering the difficulties of learning a foreign language, but there is a case of the kind on record.

Miss Gertrude came down stairs one morning with red eyes, a swollen nose and a generally distressed appearance.

"What is the matter, Gertrude?" asked her mother.

"An awful cold in my head," she replied.

"I am very sorry," said her sympathising parent.

"I was when I got up," cheerfully rejoined the young miss, "but I'm not now. I can get that French nasal sound exactly. Tray bo-ong. Bong sheor. How's that?"—Youth's Companion.

A Game Jockey.

Tod Sloane's gameness will never be questioned by those who saw him win a race on Walter in a nose finish at the old East St. Louis track some years ago. After the race Tod was hardly able to dismount. Then it was learned that he had broken an arm in the race. It seems that he was crowded against the fence in a jam around one of the turns and broke his arm. Switching the reins to his good arm, he rode the race out with great determination, putting up a "Garrison finish" and winning on the post by the narrowest possible margin. It was an exhibition of gameness the like of which was never before heard of in the history of the American turf.—Chicago Record.

KIDNEYS

They are the Great Feeders of our Bodies

The Purity of the Blood is Dependent on their Cleansing Powers

There's a time to all, old and young, man or woman, when poor health brings trouble, anxiety, and burdens hard to stand up under, and one's efforts to rid himself or herself seem only to be balked at every turn, and we are prone to grow discouraged.

That is not the time to give up—but the time for action, the time to seek out the seat of the trouble, and act as your best judgment and the experience of others will help you, guarding against mistakes in the treatment adopted for your particular ailment.

THINGS TO BE AVOIDED.

Lady's slipper poisons in the same way as does poison ivy. The bulbs seem to be the most harmful. Lilies of the valley are also poisonous.

The berries of the yew have killed many persons, and it is pretty well known nowadays that it is not safe to eat many peach pits or cherry kernels at once.

The leaves and flowers of the oleander are deadly, and the bark of the catalpa tree is very mischievous. The water dropwort, when not in flower, resembles celery and is virulent.

There is enough opium in red poppies to do mischief, and the autumn crocus, if the blossoms are chewed, causes illness. The lobelias are all dangerous, their juice, if swallowed, producing giddiness, with pains in the head.

Among garden plants commonly in vogue which possess a poisonous nature botanists mention the jonquil, white hyacinth and snowdrop, the narcissus being also particularly deadly, so much so indeed that to chew a small scrap of one of the bulbs may result fatally, while the juice of the leaves is an emetic.

Twisted Logic.

It is said that during the Irish rebellion of 1848 a bishop sent a request to a parish priest for information and received the reply, "The peace of the country is assured; faction fights are increasing."

A similar twist in logic is manifested in a message of congratulation received by Mr. Willis, on his election to the New South Wales parliament. The telegram from his agent read, "Carnide jubilant; heavy fighting; several hurt, including self."—London Chronicle.

Worthy of Worship.

"Faw gwacious sake, deah boy, who was that common fellaw you let shake youah hand?"

"IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY."

Dear Sir,—Your official notice came duly to hand, appraising me of the results obtainable upon my 15 year endowment Policy in your Company for $1,000, which matured on the 9th inst. Of the various options you have given me viz.:

Cash value	$1,564 98
Paid-up Policy, payable at my death, for	2,560 00
Yearly Income for life of	166 20

I have decided upon the cash value; and it gives me pleasure to testify that, as I anticipated it would be when I took out the policy, IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY. This returns me the full premiums of the 15 years and over 4½ per cent. compound interest, in addition to which you have carried the risk upon my life. In view of the low'ng rates of interest which have been obtainable during the latter portion of the period, it is difficult to see how this excellent result could have been surpassed.

Yours sincerely,

CHAPTER XXIX.

THE BALL-TOSSER'S DAUGHTER.

For two or three blocks the flying girl kept on in a straight course; and then she paused and looked irresolute. She could not keep straight on like this; she could not know how soon a pursuer would be on her track. At this moment the tinkle of a bell, sounding two blocks distant, struck her ears—the street cars; if she took the first one, it would be far down toward the busy part of the city before the next would overtake it, and her pursuer had not brought a carriage.

She turned down the side street and ran swiftly; it is safe enough to run when one runs toward a street car, and her speed brought her to the track just as a down-car was passing; she hailed it, and soon, panting and breathless, was jogging along "down town."

They were a long way out as yet, and, it being too late for many people to be going down town, and too early for them to be coming home, there were only one or two passengers in the car. Nevertheless, the fleeing one drew her veil carefully over her face, and tried to look as indifferent as possible.

Where was she going? She hardly knew; if she but dared to go straight to some railroad depot; but she knew that by so doing she would incur heavy risk; besides, she did not know where to go if she left the city. Sitting there, she thought of her first ride in a street-car, and of Kate Seaton's laughing plea, "You won't disappear soon, will you, Nora?" And she had replied that she would "not ride away on a broom-stick." She would break even that promise now if she could. Oh, to be able to disappear! to vanish utterly!

On the seat, not far from her, lay a crumpled newspaper, one that had been abandoned, probably, by some passenger who had no use for a paper ten hours old. She put out her hand and drew it toward her; if it would only tell her where to go!

Probably the last reader had been perusing the advertising page, for it was turned outward, and the eyes of the girl fell upon a column of wants, wanted, wanted, wanted. It was the miscellaneous column, and presently she paused, and considered this advertisement:—

WANTED IMMEDIATELY—TWENTY young ladies for the ballet. Also, private lessons given in all branches of the theatrical profession. Apply to MRS. A. HARRIS, 401 S—— street.

"I wonder where it is," mused the girl. "I could go there and rely upon chance for my next inspiration. It is the last place one would think of searching for me."

A moment later the conductor entered from the rear platform, and she leaned toward him and asked in a low voice:—

"Where is S—— street?"

"S—— street? About seven blocks away. We cross it."

"I will get off there, please."

"How fortunate," she thought; "I can't have far to walk, either." She left the car at the street designated, and after looking up and down for a moment, to ascertain how the numbers ran, she turned and walked briskly southward; three, four, five blocks, and then she paused before No. 401. Mercy, what a shabby little house it was, standing back from its loftier neighbours; and what a very muddy entrance; it looked as if people had been tramping to and from it through an ocean of mud, for ages and ages.

Miss Lee, or Lenore Armyn, as we may as well call her, became conscious at this stage in her observations that a feminine face was looking out at her through the not particularly clean window; and with a mental resolve that let come what would, no one should see her play the coward, she drew her shawl closer about her, and resolutely approached the door. More than once since her voluntary imprisonment at Doctor Burton's had she fancied herself in a position similar to this, her present one, and she was not altogether unprepared for the emergency. She had had no forewarning of the ballet mistress, of course; but she had thought it possible that she might be traced, even to a mad-house; and she had fancied herself as she was now, wandering alone, and asking for some secure hiding-place. She had even prepared her "little story," and now, with a few impromptu alterations, she must tell that story to the mistress of this, the flabbiest abode she had ever entered.

"Does Mrs. A. Harris live here?" she asked of the woman who had been looking from the window, and who now beamed on her from the half-open doorway; not quite half-open, either, for the woman's form filled up the opening, and it was a very meagre form indeed.

"I am Mrs. Harris," replied the woman, opening the door an inch or two wider, and scanning her visitor closely. "Do you want to see me?" This last, after having assured herself that the young lady's plain garments were of rich material, and that she was not one of the "profession."

"Yes, madame," and now the woman observed that the veiled stranger spoke with a slight foreign accent, "if I may talk with you alone."

"I am alone," said Mrs. Harris, stepping away from the opening; "come in, please."

Lenore was only too glad to get out of the street, and she glided in quickly.

"I understand that you want some pupils for the stage, madame?" she said, without lifting her veil.

"I take a few pupils," replied the ballet mistress, loftily, and at the same time removing some show bills and papers from the only really safe-looking chair in the room; "take a seat, miss."

Lenore seated herself and took a rapid survey of her surroundings. There was, first, a very dirty and much worn carpet; and a table, that creaked when you touched it, covered with an ink-stained scarlet cloth, and littered with old play-bills, older looking letters, two or three play-books, a quantity of photographs of the "profession," one or two shabby bound volumes, and a pile of printed business cards, that looked as if fresh from the press; pens and ink, and a big ledger completed the contents of this table. Above it hung a few cheaply framed pictures of scantily-clad actresses, and one larger than the rest, and better framed, of Mrs. Harris, herself, arrayed as the goddess of Liberty.

A rusty stove that looked like an elongated barrel, and gave out a little more heat than does a refrigerator, stood nearly in the centre of the room. A piano, the smallest and eldest, and most hopelessly tuneless of its kind, stood opposite the table, and six cane chairs, all more or less disabled, were ranged along the walls. And this was the drawing-room, receiving-room, and private office of "Mrs. Harris, Ballet Mistress."

Mrs. Harris herself was a little ferret-eyed woman, with sandy hair, sallow complexion, sharp features, and figure to match; and was apparently on the border land of her fortieth year.

An observer of ordinary intelligence could hardly fail to interpret aright some of the characteristics of Mrs. Harris. Her surroundings gave evidence that she was not overburdened with riches, while Lenore, who was something more than an ordinary observer, quickly decided that she was keen, cunning, and avaricious. A woman whose affections and sympathies would be quickly drawn toward a full purse. Having taken a hasty inventory of the lady and her surroundings, Lenore began where she had left off.

"I called in response to an advertisement, madame," she said, as if duly impressed with the majesty of Mrs. Harris. "Have you—room for any more pupils?"

"I have a pretty large class on hand," she said, as if her large class were at present securely packed in sawdust, and carefully put away. "What branch do you want to study?"

"Really! I hardly know," replied Lenore, flinging back her veil, as if she had just thought of it. "I am quite ignorant regarding these matters. What do you teach, Mrs. Harris?"

"Everything!" With a comprehensive flourish of ten bony fingers. "Acting, singing, burlesque, song and dance, clog, jig, club swinging, ballet dancing, trapeze."

While Mrs. Harris was running through with this list of "branches," she had been mentally cataloguing Lenore, after this fashion:—

"Handsome, educated, no fool, little feet and hands, nice form, lovely voice, dressed awful dowdy, but rich; may have a little money, but green—one could make a fortune off her, if one could catch her."

All unconscious of this mental review and ultimatum on the part of Mrs. Harris, Lenore sat struggling to recall the list of accomplishments as given by her, and wondering vaguely if she taught them all herself; this question shaped itself into words.

"Do you teach all these—branches yourself?" she asked.

"Oh, no. I can teach everything but trapeze and club swinging, I have several teachers; but some of my pupils do not care to have a gentleman teacher, and so I take them myself."

"I should not like a gentleman to teach me," said Lenore.

"No, I suppose not." With a nod of approval. "What do you think you would like to study?"

"I—I think I would prefer acting."

"Oh! dramatic lessons."

"Yes."

"Let me see. How is your elocution?"

"I am a graduate, madame, and am considered a fair elocutionist."

"Oh," suddenly losing her animation on this subject. "Well, you can do as you like. May I ask your motive for taking lessons; do you want to go on the stage?"

"Why—oh, yes, of course, Mrs. Harris. The stage is my ambition," adding, sotto voce, "for the present."

"Well, then, I'll tell you frankly that dramatic acting is poorly patronized and worse paid. You can make double the money in some other branches, that you can in dramatic business."

"Indeed—then perhaps you can advise me what to study."

"Can you sing?"

"Yes—that is—a very little."

"Do you play the piano?"

"Not much."

Mrs. Harris, being a close observer, here made this mental note:—

"I believe she lies"—then aloud:—"You have a fine stage presence, and a nice form; I think you would make a decided success as a song and dance lady."

"I—I'm afraid I don't quite understand," hesitated Lenore.

"Why! It's a branch of the variety business, you see, and variety is the only business that pays in these times. In fact, it is the rage. I presume you could sing enough for that, and the steps are very easy. You would look splendid in a song and dance suit."

"What kind of a suit is that?"

"Why—knee breeches, you know, and a cut-away coat—"

"Do you mean dressed like a boy?"

"Well—yes, similar; only you wear satin, etc."

In spite of the shadows of her past, and the uncertainty of her future, Lenore almost laughed; she had a keen sense of the ludicrous, and as is the case with all frank, fearless natures, a decided taste for adventures of the odd and absurd sort. But she saw that Mrs. Harris had quite set her heart on the song and dance business, and she was desirous, above all things, to propitiate Mrs. Harris. So she said, after a moment's reflection:—

"I will leave it with you, Mrs. Harris. Your judgment is better than mine. If you really think that I will do nicely in that line I will try and learn. But I may prove stupid."

"If I didn't think so I should not say so," replied Mrs. Harris, with her lofty air, at the same time drawing her chair to the table, opening the big ledger with much alacrity, and taking up the pen. "Do you wish to give me your name to-day, and begin immediately?"

"Yes," looking curiously at the big book. "My name is Lena Voss."

Mrs. Harris bit the end of her pen, and sat as if waiting; finally she said:

"Then, ahem—I suppose you will wish to make a payment?"

In all times and among all people beauty and love are associated. We all believe that Eve was beautiful.

Rather found favor because of her comliness. Love and jealousy caused by Helen of Troy made historic trouble for two nations. Nobody ever conceived an ugly Juliet. Heroines of romance are always beautiful.

Ideas of beauty differ but the one sort of loveliness that all agree upon is the beauty of health. No matter what her features, no sickly woman can be attractive. Sallow skin, sunken cheeks, pimply face, hollow eyes, lifeless lips—these are repellant. And they can nearly always be traced to the one cause—womanly weakness or disease. Almost all the ills of womankind are cured if you put the feminine organism into healthy, vigorous condition. All sickness of women seems to involve these delicate organs and so no matter what the symptoms may be it is best to look there for the real trouble.

All such disorders are completely and permanently cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is designed for just this one thing and is the only preparation of the sort produced by a regularly graduated physician—a skilled specialist in the diseases of women.

Miss Maud Kenyon, of 1533 Orange St., Los Angeles Cal., writes: "I had been afflicted with my eyes for over a year with such a dreadful itching and inflammation that I could not use them for anything. Physicians had given me many different remedies which were like using so much water; they measured my eyes for glasses; the glasses did not benefit me in the least. My mother desired me to write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, at Buffalo, N. Y., and explain the condition of my eyes. I did so, and after following his advice, and using eight bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' and eight of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' can say my trouble is entirely removed. My health was never so good as it is now."

A NEW INVENTION

The Newcombe Piano Has It.

It consists of a Patented Practice CLAVIER or STOP which diminishes the tone when required and saves wear on the Piano; it also does away with the old way of having to press down the pedal with the foot in order to soften the tone when running the scales or practicing. Oftentimes the young pupil on the piano cannot press down on the pedal without throwing themselves out of the proper position when they should sit erect. This invention in the NEWCOMBE PIANO will enable children to begin two years earlier on the piano. In addition to the above, the NEWCOMBE PIANO is the finest made in Canada. Children often complain about practicing; they like it if they have a NEWCOMBE PIANO. 1898 styles are gems of art, containing every late improvement; they possess that beautiful full sweet tone which delights the singer, and so pleases every musical ear. Organs of every description at Wholesale Prices.

Big Bargains now on hand in slightly used, Upright and Square Pianos of the various makes taken in part exchange for the famous NEWCOMBE PIANOS. Mr. J. M. Donovan Tells how Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Him.

Peterborough, Dec. 26.—This town is famed throughout the Dominion as the most go ahead, progressive, wealthy and up to-date on the continent. This reputation is thoroughly deserved, and was earned by the quickness of the residents to see and to take advantage of a "good thing" when it comes our way.

One especially good thing that our people have benefited by is the king of kidney cures—Dodd's Kidney Pills—a household remedy in Peterborough.

Among those cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills is Mr. J. M. Donovan, who reports that this remedy cured him completely of Urinary troubles, indicating the first stage of Diabetes.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only remedy that has ever been known to cure this disease. They never fail.

THE BEEHIVE.

Too much stimulative feeding often tends to induce robbing.

Colonies having defective queens are always the foundation of trouble.

Be sure that the entrances are kept open. Bees must have fresh air to breathe.

The queen matures in 16 days, the worker bee in 21 and the drone in 24 days.

When robbing once gets started in the apiary, it is very troublesome and hard to check.

Except during the winter the entrance should be large enough to admit of the bees passing in and out readily.

If any of the combs are moldy or full of dead bees, hang them in where the bees can get at them, and they will clean them up.

It is the young bees in the hive that do the proper nursing and the feeding of the young brood. This is the first work they perform.

When the queen goes up into the surplus boxes, she selects drone comb if possible in which to deposit her eggs.—St. Louis Republic.

All forms of scrofula, sores, boils, pimples and eruptions, are quickly and permanently cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

HE WANTED THE SHIP

THOUGHT HE WAS ELIGIBLE TO COMMAND A CRUISER.

The Shabby Trick Played Upon a Patriotic Greek Boiler Maker by Some of Uncle Sam's Sailors With Whom He Had Shipped.

"About four years ago the cruiser on which I was serving shipped a boiler maker while we were on the Mediterranean station," said a Washington chief petty officer of the navy, now on leave of absence. "Our former boiler maker's time expired while we were at Gibraltar, and as he was not in good physical shape he wasn't re-enlisted, but took his discharge and returned to the United States by mail steamer. So the ship was shy a boiler maker, a very important and necessary petty officer down below in the engineer's department, and when the ship pulled into Naples harbor the chief engineer went ashore to see if he couldn't dig up a boiler maker.

"There's a clause in the enlistment regulations permitting commanding officers to ship necessary men on foreign stations in short handed emergencies. The chief engineer brought back to the ship a Greek named Charlie Maro. The man couldn't speak any English—to speak of—but he was a good man at the boiler making business, and he was duly shipped aboard of us for three years. He was a wild, hairy looking lot, Maro was, and he got a good deal of a laugh at the hands of the crew, especially the younger fellows, from the time he first came over the side.

"Maro thought that there wasn't any other country on the map except Greece. He thought that the 'Greeka man' was the hottest kind of a tamale when it came to scrapping by land or sea, and after he got hold of enough English to make himself understood he used to take some of the young apprentice boys up into the eyes of the ship and tell them with many gesticulations and furious words of the different kinds of tar Greece would knock out of Turkey if the two countries ever came to an open rupture.

"The ship was around on the Pacific station when the war broke out between Greece and Turkey. When the news of the outbreak of the war got to Maro, our boiler maker, he nearly had heart disease and a whole lot of other sudden things from pure excitement. He just couldn't hold himself in, he looked so tickled.

"'Da Greeka man willa bim! bim! bim! da Turka man,' was Charlie Maro's way of putting it, and he didn't see that the Turk had a ghost of a show. All hands forward encouraged him in the belief. They all acquiesced in expressing the belief to Maro that Greece would simply eat Turkey up. Then a bo'sun's mate who knew how to crack the most impossible kind of steers with a face as solemn and wooden as an Indian's took Charlie in hand and told him some things. He told Maro that the United States was so much in sympathy with Greece in the struggle with Turkey that the navy department had decided to turn over all of the ships of the American navy to Greek commanders.

"'Here's a big chance for you, Maro,' the bo'sun's mate told Maro. 'You just want to work your edge. Here you are already shipped on this cruiser, and it's dollars to doughnuts that if you ask for the command of this ship in order to take her over to Greece to mix it up with the Turks you'll get it hands down. Better try it on.'

"That idea impressed Maro a heap. He asked the bo'sun's mate whom he'd have to apply to to get command of the cruiser.

"'Why, to the commanding officer, of course,' was the reply.

"Maro was tremendously important for a day or so while he let this huge idea grow within him, and he bullied the men detailed to work with him down below in the boiler room a good deal. The bos'n's mate kept working him up to it, and finally Maro appeared on deck one morning togged out in his very best mustering suit of bluejacket clothes and went up to the officer of the deck and asked permission to see the commanding officer at the mast. The officer of the deck was rather surprised to see the man all done up in his mustering togs when all hands were at work, but, as he is obliged to do when an enlisted man requests permission to see the commanding officer, he sent word to the skipper, who soon emerged from his cabin and appeared at 'the stick.'

"'Well, my man?' said the skipper to Maro, who stood bolt upright and saluted with a flourish.

"'Sare,' said Maro to the skipper, 'I have-a da honor to her-a-by take da command of a da ship.'

"'Hey?' said the commanding officer, putting his hand to his ear and looking as if he hadn't heard aright.

"'Da ship,' repeated Maro. 'For-a da navee of-a Hellas—da Greeka navee—I have da honor to take da command.'

"All hands among the enlisted men were up on the to'gallant fo'c'sle taking the thing in, and they broke into a roar that you could have heard five cable lengths' distance. Maro heard it, and, suspecting that his confidence had been abused, got red and flabbergasted. He suddenly bolted for the engine room hatch and made his way below, and it took three marines to drag him aft to the sick bay, where the surgeon, at the skipper's command, gave Maro a half hour's examination as to his sanity. Maro was game enough to decline to give the name of the enlisted man who had told him he was eligible for the command of the ship upon its being 'turned into the navy of Greece,' but the thrashing he gave that bos'n's mate when he got him 'on the beach' was certainly savage."—Washington Star.

THE NEW DRUG CLERK.

A Prescription That He Filled and the Effect It Had.

My faith in the efficacy of medicines has had a fearful shock—a stunning blow—from which it will be long in recovering. In one of the apartment houses here in town there is a drug store. Its proprietor is a young man, recently graduated from whatever it is druggists are graduated from, and he keeps the shop with the assistance of a very young man, a brash young man.

One evening not long ago an irascible man came in with a prescription. He wanted it put up at once, and he was one of those men who want whatever they do want very much indeed. The assistant was alone in the shop, and when he began to explain that delay would be unavoidable the quick tempered man made ready to leave in a rage. The assistant couldn't let the chance slip. He took the prescription, stepped behind the screen, dashed out the back door and ran to the next drug store.

Hideous mockery of fate! That drug store on the next corner was closed because of somebody's death. Back ran the assistant. He simply couldn't lose the customer now. He looked at the prescription. Only two words were on it intelligible to him. "Aqua Pura" he made them out. Quickly he held a bottle under a cold water faucet, filled it, added a few drops of two or three harmless drugs, pasted a label on and a moment later presented the bottle to the waiting customer. Ninety cents was what he charged for it. To himself he argued that the doctor, seeing no improvement in the patient, would change the medicine in a day or two. In the meantime aqua pura could not do any harm. He hadn't run the risk of poisoning anybody, and possibly the second prescription would be presented later—the thought of another 90 cents cheered him up considerably. Three days later the irascible man came in again.

"Say," he said to the proprietor, "that medicine you put up for my wife the other day was great stuff—acted like a charm. She wants another bottle of it to keep on hand."

Then the assistant said a few words in private to the proprietor and showed him the prescription. He had not judged it wise to refer to the matter before. The customer carried home a bottle—a bottle of the $1.25 size. The proprietor himself filled it, and—well, I shan't tell what was in it. Come to think of it, I believe the proprietor left out that part of the story.—Washington Post.

Machinery in the Navy.

It is a fundamental principle that every navy should be organized to secure the greatest fighting efficiency, and therefore, other things being equal, that navy will be most efficient where the largest percentage of officers and men are able to take their place in the fighting line. I would not be understood for a moment as depreciating the value of officers or men whose duties do not call them to the actual work of handling the battery; but, as the primary object of the ship is to fight, the more men she has who can work with the guns the less chance there is of her being compelled to run away through a large percentage of the men at the battery being disabled.

Before the advent of steam in our naval vessels nearly every officer was trained to take his place in the battery, and every man had this training. With the growth of the machinery department of the vessel a larger and larger percentage of the ship's crew, together with a considerable percentage of the officers, were specially employed for the propulsion of the vessel. This has at last reached a point where, in some of our ships, the engineers' force forms nearly 50 per cent of the crew, and the officers whose duty lies entirely with the machinery form at least 30 per cent of the total number of officers.—Commodore John W. Philip, U. S. N., in North American Review.

The Force of Gelatin.

The immense force exerted by gelatin in its contraction is remarked upon by The British Journal of Photography, this fact being specially notable in the collotypist's art. Thus, if a collotype plate be over dried, the power of the gelatin, in its contraction, is so great that it tears away the surface of the glass itself, breaking it up in peculiar farnlike fashion or pattern—in a word, the surface of the collotype plate being always ground it is this which gives so firm a hold to the gelatin that the glass is torn away. A curious fact appears in this connection—namely, that different characters of gelatin produce a different pattern fracture, a brittle kind of the material exhibiting a different one from that yielded by the tough and horny variety. This property has been taken advantage of commercially, and on a considerable scale, in the manufacture of what is commonly known as "crystalline" glass.

Mollified.

He kissed her boldly on Market street opposite the Phelan building.

"Sir," she shrieked, "you are an utter stranger to me! What means this familiarity?"

"Miss," he replied, bowing low, "though we never met before, you must excuse me. I bet my friend that I would kiss the prettiest girl I saw on the block."

A soft, forgiving smile replaced her wrathful glance.

"You are forgiven this time," she said sweetly, "but please don't let it occur again."—San Francisco News Letter.

Would Be Useful.

He—I'm working on a flying machine, dear.

She—It's too bad you haven't got it with you. I hear papa coming down stairs.—Pick Me Up.

THE BEEHIVE.

It is seldom that if a colony is in proper condition there is any danger of robbing.

A colony may be very weak, but if it possess a laying queen and brood it will protect a large surplus of honey.

If bees have protection in some manner during the winter, no one need be afraid to let them winter on fall honey.

Italian bees adhere to the comb in a very quiet condition. It is a rare thing to find an Italian queen off the comb.

Food given at this time should be of good quality. Granulated sugar makes one of the best that can be supplied.

So far as can be done, bees should be crowded up in small quarters, so as to economize their natural heat during the winter.

A cellar intended for wintering bees should not be used for anything else and care should be taken to see that it is perfectly dry.

All empty sections and even those partially filled should be removed before severe winter sets in. There is no advantage in leaving them in.

Combs of all descriptions should remain unmolested during cold weather. They are at that time very brittle and will not stand rough usage.—Exchange.

LOSS BY GREAT GALES

Great Britain Severely Storm-swept Thursday and Friday.

CUT OFF FROM THE CONTINENT

Mighty Winds and Waves Shut the Tight Little Island Off From the Rest of the World—Lives Lost Around the Coast—Trains Derailed and Passengers Injured—Cable News.

London, Jan. 14.—This city has been practically isolated all day long. No news or messages have been received from the continent since early yesterday morning, and communication with all parts of the provinces is seriously interrupted. There have been many wrecks of minor importance and several lives have been lost around the coast. The gale, generally, has subsided, but another is approaching the Irish coast.

While the storm was at its height yesterday a train for Llanfairfechan, Wales, dashed into the sea, owing to the fact that the tracks were washed away. The fireman and engineer were drowned.

Rigo, the winner of the Stoke Steeplechase at Windsor yesterday, was killed at Bewick Station. The horse box in which the racer was travelling, was hurled from the track and completely smashed. Folkstone pier and station have been almost demolished.

Devastation in England.

Widespread devastation on land and sea has been the result of the recent storm, and the aggregate losses of property are immense. Last evening reports were gradually filtering through from the provinces, telling of dismantled streets and fields, buildings flooded, cattle and sheep drowned, and disasters to life and limb from falling debris.

London's parks and buildings have suffered heavily. The Thames has overflowed along the upper reaches, with serious loss to the dwellers on the banks.

Most of the coast towns have suffered severely. Promenades have been swept by the sea and harbors and piers damaged. Parts of Southampton are under water. The schools were closed yesterday afternoon and last evening the tide was overflowing all boundaries and threatened serious results.

In many parts of Portsmouth boats were employed in the main streets yesterday to take the school children home.

Numerous small wrecks are reported, and all the lifeboats are kept exceedingly busy.

Three men who were returning from a funeral near Castle Island, Ireland, were lifted by the wind, hurled into a pit and killed.

The Channel steamers have had terrible experiences. The pier at the entrance to Dieppe, France, which was recently damaged, has been completely demolished, and great havoc is reported along the Normandy coast, though details have not been received.

Another train has been derailed near Clare, County Clare, Ireland, several of the passengers being injured.

Train Blown Off the Rails.

Cork, Ireland, Jan. 14.—A serious railway accident occurred between Ballrush and Kilkee Light, on the southeast coast, yesterday. A passenger train was blown clean off the rails, and a number of persons were injured, none, however, fatally.

WAR AGAINST LABOR UNIONS.

Employers in Britain Organize to Preserve "the Freedom of Contract."

London, Jan. 14.—The English Railway Review is out with a decripton of a gigantic combine called the Employers' Parliamentary Council, the design of which is to crush trade unionism.

Two hundred and ninety-one firms have agreed to a declaration preserving the freedom of contract between the employer and the employed, and promising mutual support in the event of strikes. Unions will not be recognized in any way, shape or form. A fund of £35,000 has been contributed to conduct the fight against unionism, which augurs wide industrial disturbances during the coming year.

Reciprocity With the Old World.

Brussels, Jan. 14.—The Belgian Foreign Office has arranged a provisional agreement with Great Britain, extending reciprocity to the products of the colonies of Ceylon and Lagos, the latter a British protectorate on the Bight of Benin, in West Africa. This agreement is tentative, and it is expected that it will be but preparatory to a hard-and-fast commercial treaty on the same lines.

The products of Ceylon are chiefly coffee, tea and spices, its vast rice crop being for the most part consumed at home. The principal exports from Lagos are palm oil and palm kernels, while the annual imports of the two colonies are valued at not far from $35,000,000.

Congo Stock Is Booming.

Antwerp, Jan. 14.—A new Congo commercial company has just been formed at Brussels, with a capital of $7,000,000, its object being the development of all the commercial, financial, industrial and agricultural enterprises of Congo Free State. The chairman of the new company is Col. Thys, who is also chairman of a Belgian railway company.

This new enterprise is but an indication of the remarkable development remarked of late in the Congo trade. Promoters have no difficulty in launching new enterprises, and so strong is the popular confidence in the future of the Free State that shares in all Congo companies now listed on the Belgian market are rising rapidly.

How It Is Done in Ireland.

Dublin, Jan. 14.—When the Nationalist conference met yesterday at Ballymote, County Sligo, to select candidates for the various county offices, the county sheriff refused to allow the delegates to meet in the Court House. Major McHugh of Sligo, an anti Parnellite member of Parliament, secured a sledge hammer and burst open the door. The delegates entered in orderly fashion and the conference proceeded.

Alluvial Gold in Vale of Avoca.

Dublin, Ireland, Jan. 14.—The lovely Vale of Avoca, in County Wicklow, made famous by Thomas Moore's melodies, may prove to be the Klondike of Ireland. For some time past alluvial gold in an appreciable amount has been found in the neighboring streams, and the Government is setting seriously to work to investigate. A South African expert has been sent to explore for the mother lode, and geologists believe there is a chance of finding a rich auriferous vein. County Wicklow is noted for its mineral deposits. Copper, lead and silver have been profitably worked in the past.

HURTS BRITAIN AND AMERICA.

The Restrictions Imposed by the French Exposition Company—Effect May Be Disastrous.

London, Jan. 14.—The private meeting of the British commission to the Paris Exposition held under the presidency of the Prince of Wales, according to the morning papers, was entirely harmonious. I hear, however, that this was hardly the case, some of the members, though in a hopeless minority, espousing the cause of the discontented exhibitors, to whose grievances reference has been made. Owing to the miserably inadequate space allotted to England at least two-thirds of the applicants as yet have no assurance that they will have an opportunity of showing their goods, while the plan ingeniously devised by the French of not allowing nations to mass their exhibits is considered iniquitous. The British commission is blamed for not vigorously protesting at the outset, when it could have carried its point under a threat of withdrawal.

Now a more serious blow is struck, equally affecting British and American interests. James Dredge, who is doubtless remembered in Chicago as one of the leading British commissioners at the World's Fair, and who was a British representative at the Brussels Exhibition, said to me to-day: "I hope my friends in Chicago realize what it means to transfer the overflow from the Exposition to Vincennes, as was decided recently. Vincennes is practically six miles away from the main show, entailing a journey of an hour and a half to reach it. Here will be buried in obscurity at least one section as important to America as to us. That is the transportation section, including locomotives, motors, motocycles and bicycles.

"So strongly do the English manufacturers feel on this point, now that they realize what it means, that they are considering withdrawing altogether. Among most of the large exhibitors there is a general feeling of exasperation against the French for the way they have grabbed all the advantages themselves, including an absurdly large portion of the limited space at their disposal. Their greed contrasts most unfavorably with the temper displayed at Chicago, where all that was possible was done to place the visitors on more than an equality with the native exhibitors.

"In details of organization, too, the French already have fallen short, to the surprise of everyone, and general interest here in the exposition is being crushed out of existence."

Steel and Wire Trust.

Trenton, N.J., Jan. 14.—Articles of incorporation of the American Steel & Wire Company, with an authorized capital of $90,000,000, were filed with the Secretary of State yesterday. The articles of incorporation provide that the stockholders shall not have the privilege of seeing the books of the company, except as may be directed by the statutes of New Jersey, or permitted by the directors of the company.

An Awful Death Rate.

Washington, Jan. 14.—The death rate in Washington last week was unusually high, being 24.12 per thousand of the population. For the whites the rate was 18.74 and for the blacks 35.73. The average was brought up much beyond normal by 23 fatal cases of grip out of a total of 120 deaths.

Chair of Theoretical Chemistry.

Toronto, Jan. 14.—Dr. W. Theophilus Stuart of Spadina avenue has been appointed to the chair of theoretical chemistry of Trinity Medical College, made vacant by the death of Dr. Kirkland. Dr. Stuart retains his chair of practical chemistry and metals.

John Langan Gets the Job.

Georgetown, Ont., Jan. 14.—The position of sub-collector of customs at this place, rendered vacant by the death of Sub-Collector Ryan, has been filled by the appointment of John Langan, who will have a salary of $400 per annum.

THE MAN FROM MAINE

Death of the Hon. Nelson Dingley, on Friday Night.

APOSTLE OF HIGH PROTECTION.

Sketch of the Career of This Great American Public Man—First a Teacher, Then a Newspaper Man, Lawyer and Statesman—His Congressional Record and Detailed Account of His Work.

Washington, Jan. 14.—Hon. Nelson Dingley of Maine, leader of the Republican side on the floor of the House of Representatives, and representing the Second Congressional District of Maine in that body, died here last night at half-past 10, of heart failure, resulting from extreme weakness due to double pneumonia. He was unconscious during most of the day, and death came quietly without consciousness being regained. There were present at the time Mrs. Dingley, Miss Edith Dingley, Messrs. E. H. and A. H. Dingley, sons of the deceased; Mr. James C. Howe, an intimate friend of the family; Mr. Deale, one of the physicians who have been attending him, and two nurses. To within a few hours before his death the family firmly believed, as they have throughout his illness, that Mr. Dingley would recover, and it was only when it became apparent that he was dying that they gathered at his bedside.

Sketch of His Career.

Nelson Dingley, jr., Governor of Maine, 1874-75, and member of Congress from the Second Congressional District of Maine since 1881, was born in Durham, Maine, in his grandfather Lambert's farmhouse, on the banks of the Androscoggin River, Feb. 15, 1832, son of Nelson and Jane (Lambert) Dingley.

At 17 he taught a winter school in the town of China, 14 miles from home, and he continued to teach winters while fitting for college. Entering Otterville College, now Colby University, in 1851, he remained there a year and a half, and then became a student at Dartmouth College, from which institution he graduated in 1855. After leaving college Mr. Dingley studied law in 1855-6, and in the latter year he was admitted to the bar. Instead of entering upon the practice of law, he decided to become a journalist, for which profession he always manifested a decided taste. In September, 1856, he purchased The Lewiston Journal, of which he had been practically the editor, while studying law, and to which in 1861 he added a daily edition.

In 1861, at the age of 29, he was elected representative from Auburn to the State Legislature, in which body he at once took high rank; was re-elected in 1862, and chosen Speaker of the House at the session of 1863. In 1863 he removed to Lewiston, where a few months after he was elected to the Legislature, and with the opening of the legislative session of 1864 was unanimously re-elected Speaker. He was elected to the House twice subsequently, but declined the Speakership, preferring to be on the floor.

In 1873 Mr. Dingley was elected Governor of Maine by about 10,000 majority. In 1874 he was re-elected by over 11,000 majority, declining a third nomination in 1875.

In 1881 Mr. Dingley was nominated by the Republicans of the Second Congressional District of Maine. He was elected by a majority of over 5000, nearly twice as large as ever before given to any candidate in that district. He was re-elected nine times. His first speech in Congress was made April 25, 1882, on "Protection to American Shipping."

President McKinley tendered the position of Secretary of the Treasury to Mr. Dingley, but he declined the offer, preferring to remain in the position as Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee and floor leader of the Republican majority of the House.

Under his leadership the House, within 16 days after the 55th Congress was convened in extraordinary session, passed a bill revising the tariff.

Mr. Dingley was a Congregationalist in religion. He was married June 11, 1857, to Miss Ramone McKeenny of Auburn, Maine. They have had six children, of whom five survive.

WAS THE MARRIAGE FEIGNED?

A Bigamy Case at London May Yet Take Another Turn.

London, Jan. 14.—The examination of John W. Drennan, alias Harry Johnston, who is charged with having married Georgina Griffith, daughter of Colborne Griffith of London Township, while his lawful wife was alive, was continued yesterday.

But one witness, a sister of the girl who is alleged to have been misled, was examined, when Deputy Crown Attorney McKillop asked for a further adjournment to enable him to procure additional information bearing on the case. The case was in accordance with the request of the Crown adjourned for two weeks, and the prisoner bailed for that period.

Mr. McKillop said that it would in all probability be necessary to change the information from bigamy to feigned marriage.

ONE TRUST BEGINS TO SQUEEZE.

Standard Oil Company Now Charges More for Coal Oil and Gasoline.

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 14.—The Standard Oil Company since Jan. 1 has advanced the price 1½c a gallon on gasoline and coal oil. Coal oil is now sold at 9c and gasoline at 10c a gallon. The advance came without warning and the reason for it is not given. The retailers told customers yesterday that the trust had simply put up the price on them and that was all they knew about it. Cincinnati housewives in January alone will pay $12,000 more to the Standard Oil trust than they would if the price of oil had not been raised.

All Covered With Eruptions—Could Not Work, the Suffering Was So Great—Hood's Has Cured.

"I was all run down with complaints peculiar to my sex, and I broke out in sores on my body, head, limbs and hands, and my hair all came out. I was under the doctor's treatment a long time without benefit. They called my trouble eczema. Finally I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and after I had used three or four bottles I found I was improving. I kept on until I had taken several more bottles and the sores and itching have disappeared and my hair has grown out." Mrs. J. G. Brown, Brantford, Ontario.

NEAR THE BOILING POINT.

The Emperor of Germany is fast bringing himself within the scope of the proverb—"Whom the gods would destroy they first make mad. He has recently issued an order to his army officers to fight duels when the "honour" of the army is concerned. A gentleman who was shoved off the sidewalk by one of these bullying officers of the army, administered a reasonable castigation with his stick. The case was one for the police court, which probably have brought the officer into disgrace. The matter was taken before a military court of honour, by whom it was decided that the civilian, who had nothing to do with that court, must fight. The police were appealed to, but would not interfere, thus virtually recognising the authority of the barbarous tribunal singularly misnamed a court of honour. Under the directions of this court of honour the regiment selected one of their number to murder the man, and he murdered him, of course, a la carte, and the Emperor no doubt stands by and approves.

A little more of this sort of thing will be a little more than the people will stand. If Saxon blood is anything like Anglo Saxon blood, it won't stand tyranny beyond a certain point. It may be slow to boil, but when it reaches the boiling point oppressors are very likely to get a pretty strong dose. No nation can be permanently great whose people are not free—whose personal liberty is not as sacred as the divinity-hedged personality of a king.

CLAIMING CREDIT CHEEKILY.

The Montreal Gazette gives credit to the National Policy for the growth in recent years of Canada's bacon export trade. We are accustomed also to hear the cheese trade fathered upon the Conservative tariff. In both cases the claim is without a particle of foundation. Our bacon curers owe their success to the same cause to which the cheese curers owe theirs—to their own skill and intelligence in suiting the taste of the British public with a superior article. And for our part, says the Herald, we prefer to think that Canada's trade is based upon this lasting foundation, rather than upon the shifting sands of protective tariffs. If the bacon exports are due to the National Policy, then it is clear that that policy works better under Liberal auspices than it did for its originators. In the last year of the Conservative Government the exports of bacon, hams, lard and pork amounted to 55,253,568 pounds. During the first year of Liberal rule those figures were increased to 70,128,452 pounds. A still further increase of 41 per cent. occurred during the shipping season of 1898. This is ingratitude. The tariff ark of the covenant appears to be fighting against the old party.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

We suppose two January thaws in one year, and an epidemic of la grippe is to be credited to retroaction of Conservative beneficence.

Under Imperial penny postage the volume of mail matter passing between Canada and Great Britain has been about doubled.

Montreal is applying to have its charter amended. The Legislature can do that, but the people can do a better thing—amend the city council.

The Conservatives claim the life of the Senate, because that venerable body is a check on hasty legislation. This is a well-taken point—there's nothing hasty about the Senate. During eighteen years of Conservative rule it forgot its function and didn't check a hasty piece of legislation worth mentioning in all that time. It simply made anti-Hoyle plays of trumping its partner's trick.

"TELL THE TRUTH AND SHAME"—

The Review of Jan. 12th says:

"Mr. Hardy presents a bold front for a leader of a discredited Government which has only thwarted the will of the people by the system of officialism and by the most flagrant corruption—a corruption that allows a Crown Land officer, a servant of the Government, to remain in office after it has been proven that he spent his time corrupting the electorate by the wholesale distribution of whiskey. Mr. Hardy should indeed shout loud and long of his victory."

This is supposed to refer to the Nipissing election. It certainly takes the Review a long time to get at the truth. Not a surprising matter when it only reads the Mail and Empire. The fact is that the offending official who made the alleged "wholesale distribution of whiskey," had his head chopped off as soon as evidence that the change was well founded reached Hon. Mr. Hardy, instead of, as the Mail and Empire asserted, being retained in the service with an increased salary. The facts are that the report of the trial judges in the Nipissing election case was not made until the 16th December, though the trial had been held upon the 7th. On the 14th, and before the report of the Judges, the Crown lands agent referred to was written to by the Commissioner of Crown Lands requiring his resignation. On the 21st of December Mr. Gilligan forwarded his resignation to the department. Still nearly a month after justice has been done upon an official who abused his trust, our fair-minded local contemporary revives a slander with the hope of discrediting a government which has the confidence of the people. Its no wonder the Opposition in Ontario lingers so long in the "cold shades." Trickery, lying and false accusation are not credentials that commend a party to the confidence of the people.

A Substantial Gain.

"I was very weak and hardly able to walk. My blood was thin and I was as pale as death.

Being told about Hood's Sarsaparilla I began taking it and in a few months I had gained twenty pounds in weight. I kept on with it until I was as well as ever." Arthur Mills, Dresden, Ontario.

THE FILIPINOS' FORCE.

It Now Numbers 30,000 in the Vicinage of Manila—Posters Calling for Independence or Death.

Manila, via Hong Kong, Jan. 14.—The situation here becomes hourly more grave. The New York Herald correspondent visited General Aguinaldo's outposts around Manila on Saturday and Sunday. The native troops seemed enthusiastic at the idea of an attack upon Manila. On all houses are displayed flaming posters bearing this inscription: "Independence or death."

It is said that the native troops in the environs of Manila number 30,000. All profess great hatred for the Americans. The correspondent was arrested frequently on the suspicion of being an American, but was released upon showing his consular passport.

General Aguinaldo's soldiers, one and all, are longing to attack Manila. They declare they will accept no terms except absolute independence.

A steamer just arrived at Hong Kong from Manila brings a large number of rich and influential Filipinos and their families, who have left the Philippines owing to the situation there.

The refugees state that the landing of American troops at Iloilo would be treated as a casus belli, and that the Filipino army thereupon would attack General Otis at Manila.

The Filipino Government has offered an asylum in the provinces to foreign families, including Spaniards, who are now inhabiting Manila.

SITUATION IS CRITICAL.

The Philippine Insurgents Are Concentrated and Ready to Fight.

Manila, Jan. 14.—The situation here is undoubtedly critical, but Major-General Otis has it well in hand, and there is no such certainty of trouble as many believe. The rebels are concentrated on the outskirts of the town, but their leaders have issued strict orders that the Filipino forces are to act only on the defensive.

An accident might precipitate trouble, but the idea of a rebel attack upon Manila is ridiculous and suicidal, as the Americans absolutely control the position.

From Spanish Sources.

Madrid, Jan. 14.—The Government has received the following official despatch from Manila:

"The American troops here, which were ordered to Iloilo, mutinied and refused to start. General Miller has been ordered to abandon Iloilo and to return to Manila. All the American troops have been ordered to concentrate here, the situation being of the gravest character."

They Like Aguinaldo.

Captain-General Rios cables General Correa, Minister of War, that the Visayas Islands, including Panay and the central islands of the Philippine archipelago, are in complete revolt against American authority. The natives, he says, are determined to have independence. Aguinaldo is in high favor at Iloilo; the insurgents in that city declare that they are ready for a battle whenever the Americans wish to attack them, and it is by no means certain that the Luzon natives may not act on the offensive.

Discovered by a Woman.

Another Discovery has been made, and that too, by a Lady of this Country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly, and could not sleep. She finally discovered a way of recovery, by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking first dose, that she sleept all night; and with two bottles, has been absolutely cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz.' Thus writes W. C. Hamnick & Co., of Shelby, N. C. Sold by all Druggists at 50 cents and $1 00. Every bottle guaranteed.

He Took the Bank's Money.

Montreal, Jan. 14.—The Mussen case has assumed a very grave character, as the defaulter now admits having appropriated $55,000 of the funds of the Merchants' Bank of Canada during his connection with the savings bank. In the meantime Mussen is kept under lock and key in his own house, Dorchester street, while the bank has filed a demand for a writ of attachment. Mussen's family are wealthy and the bank will not probably be a loser.

Death of Judge Muir.

Hamilton, Jan. 14.—Judge Muir died at the residence of his son-in-law, Ernest S. Ball, 115 Madison street, Toronto, on Thursday afternoon. John Muir, M.A., B.A., LL.B., was born in Grimsby, Lincoln County, on June 18, 1843, his father being Andrew P. Muir, and his mother was a daughter of a U. E. Loyalist, Isaac Smith. He was called to the bar in 1869, and was appointed junior judge of Wentworth in June, 1888. Judge Muir was superannuated last year.

BY A FRIEND'S TIMELY ADVICE

A Toronto Lady Was Released From a Monster's Grip.

She Suffered From Terrible Nervous Headache—Headache Powders Did Her no Good—Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Cured Her as They Have Cured Thousands.

"Just as sure as I eat a hearty meal I have a splitting, nervous headache an hour or so afterwards," said a lady to one of her friends a few days ago.

"What do you take for it?" asked the friend.

"Oh! I take a 'headache powder.' But nothing else does any good. I have to grin and bear it for three or four hours, when it begins to get better and gradually passes away."

"You will never get any benefit from headache powders of any description," said her friend, "for the simple reason that they don't remove the cause of the headache.

"What you need, and the only thing that will cure you, is one of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets after every meal."

"Why should I take dyspepsia medicine for nervous headache?" queried the sufferer.

"Simply because Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are a positive cure for every case of Indigestion, and your nervous headaches are caused by Indigestion.

"I can't explain the why and wherefore to you, but I know that Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will positively cure Nervous Headache, for I have proved it by personal experience.

"I used to suffer terribly, just as you do. Every hearty meal was sure to be followed by headache. I had to call in our doctor at last, and he told me that Indigestion was the cause of the trouble. He advised me to take Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets and I did so (they cost fifty cents a box at the drug stores.)

"I haven't had a headache since I began taking them. I only used one box, too. You try them. I know they'll cure you."

And they did—as they always do.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

What does it do?

It causes the oil glands in the skin to become more active, making the hair soft and glossy, precisely as nature intended.

It cleanses the scalp from dandruff and thus removes one of the great causes of baldness.

It makes a better circulation in the scalp and stops the hair from coming out.

It Prevents and It Cures Baldness

Ayer's Hair Vigor will surely make hair grow on bald heads, provided only there is any life remaining in the hair bulbs.

It restores color to gray or white hair. It does not do this in a moment, as will a hair dye; but in a short time the gray color of age gradually disappears and the darker color of youth takes its place.

Would you like a copy of our book on the Hair and Scalp? It is free.

If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the use of the Vigor write the Doctor about it.

Address, DR. J. C. AYER, Lowell, Mass.

Victoria, B.C., Jan. 14.—The East Lillooet election case was called yesterday, but upon a copy of the bill passed the day before by the Legislature to prevent the hearing of the case being presented to the judge, that gentleman refused to proceed or make any order as to costs until the time specified therein.

With its return was sent a letter explaining the reason for this action and a copy of the resolution passed yesterday.

IN PETERBOROUGH.

Mr. J. M. Donovan Tells how Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Him.

Peterborough, Dec. 26.—This town is famed throughout the Dominion as the most go-ahead, progressive, wealthy and up-to-date on the continent. This reputation is thoroughly deserved, and was earned by the quickness of the residents to see and to take advantage of a "good thing" when it comes our way.

One especially good thing that our people have benefitted by is the king of kidney cures—Dodd's Kidney Pills—a household remedy in Peterborough.

Among those cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills is Mr. J. M. Donovan, who reports that this remedy cured him completely of Urinary troubles, indicating the first stages of Diabetes.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only remedy that has ever been known to cure this disease. They never fail,

A RUSSIAN-AFGHAN ALLIANCE.

Treaty Said to Have Been Signed a Couple of Weeks Ago.

London, Jan. 14.—The Paris correspondent of The Morning Post says: "According to news from St. Petersburg, from a source usually trustworthy, a treaty of alliance between Russia and Afghanistan was signed on Jan. 3, despite the strenuous opposition of Great Britain, whose representatives, it is alleged, offered the Ameer money and troops, with a view of inducing him to enter upon hostilities against Russia.

"According to the same source of information, the Ameer, a few days before, had issued a proclamation, assuring the Afghans of the Czar's friendly disposition and of the benefits likely to result from Russia building the Kushk Railway, adding: 'Let us not listen, therefore, to certain evil-disposed foreigners, who are in the habit of uttering calumnies, but let us be friends of the Russians, as we are of their Emperor.'"

The Naming of British Warships.

London, Jan. 14.—The announcement that the Government has christened a battleship with the absurd title of "Venerable" has raised a storm of expostulation. To-day a strong plea is made for following what is termed the sensible plan of the United States in naming warships after districts, towns and naval heroes. It is not likely that the Admiralty will consent to abandon its plan of naming ships by moral qualities, however incongruous. This is mainly on the ground, so an Admiralty official says, that the requisite change in signalling and in signal books would be so costly and difficult. The agitation, however, is likely to be kept up, so obviously preferable is the American system.

New Cardinals in March.

Rome, Jan. 14.—It is now given out on reliable Vatican authority that the consistory at which new cardinals will be created will be held in March. It was expected that at the consistory held last month the Holy Father would announce the additions to the sacred college, but the business of the consistory was limited to the preconizing of bishops to new sees.

Infants and young children are peculiarly subject to this terrible disorder, and if not promptly arrested it will eventually become chronic. Dr Chase made a special study of eczema and diseases of the skin, and we can confidently recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to cure all forms of eczema. The first application soothes the irritation and puts the little sufferer to rest.

Liverpool Wheat Market Showed Improvement and Chicago Responded Early Only to Fall Back Again.

Friday Evening, Jan. 13.

Liverpool wheat futures to-day advanced ¾d to ⅞d per cental for all deliveries.

Paris wheat declined 30 to 50 centimes to-day and flour went off 20 centimes. Antwerp closed unchanged.

Chicago futures showed some strength at one time to-day, advancing three-quarters of a cent per bushel. There was a decline later, and the May and July options closed at yesterday's final quotations. This month's delivery made a net recession of ⅛c per bushel. The early strength was based on the improvement at Liverpool, and the later reaction was due to heavy realizing by recent bulls. At the decline good takings for export were reported.

From Kidney Disease Prevented by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Only.

"Kidney Disease." Do you know what it means? Have you Kidney Disease? Is your skin hot and dry; memory failing; breath short; urine, reddish, or pale colored; does it scald when passing; is your appetite changeable; do your ankles swell; have you bitter taste in the mouth on getting up mornings; is there a brick-dust deposit in your urine?

Any of these signs is proof positive of Kidney Disease. Will you be cured, or will you die? Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only means on earth that will cure you. They never fail.

A NEW INVENTION

The Newcombe Piano Has It.

It consists of a Patented Practice CLAVIER or STOP which diminishes the tone when required and saves wear on the Piano; it also does away with the old way of having to press down the pedal with the foot in order to soften the tone when running the scales or practicing. Oftentimes the young pupil on the piano cannot press down on the pedal without throwing themselves out of the proper position when they should sit erect. This invention in the NEWCOMBE PIANO will enable children to begin two years earlier on the piano. In addition to the above, the NEWCOMBE PIANO is the finest made in Canada. Children often complain about practicing; they like it if they have a NEWCOMBE PIANO. 1899 styles are gems of art, containing every late improvement; they possess that beautiful full sweet tone which delights the singer, and so pleases every musical ear. Organs of every description at Wholesale Prices.

Big Bargains now on hand in slightly used. Upright and Square Pianos of the various makes taken in part exchange for the famous NEWCOMBE PIANOS. Every NEWCOMBE PIANO has a new registered scale and the warranty is cast in the plate. Have you tetter—salt rheum—scald head—ring worm—eczema—ulcers—blotches on the skin—chronic erysipelas—liver spots and what not else of these distasteful and aggravating disorders which disfigure and discourage? Dr. Agnew's Ointment allays the distressing itching, burning, stinging sensations which are part and parcel of such troubles, and in a thousand cases where internal treatments have failed to heal and eradicate them it has worked wonderful and permanent cures—and no skin disease, no matter of how long standing, has baffled its curative qualities. In cases of chronic eczema it has proved its great worth, and cases are on record where this dread affection has been the birthright of its patient and constant companion until past middle life, and Dr. Agnew's Ointment has cured speedily and permanently. It is a boon to mothers because it is a boon to babyland—scald head and its irritations, which are accompaniments to the teething period, are quickly driven off and restlessness passes away—and where torture reigned with baby this balm brought rest and a cure—it affords instant relief from the itching distress. . . .

Do you suffer from piles—itching, blind, bleeding or ulcerated?—No remedy has brought so quick relief, spared painful surgical operations as Dr. Agnew's Ointment—it has proved itself an absolute cure for piles in all forms and at all stages—one application will relieve the itching, irritating sensations in an instant—and long standing cases disappear after from three to five nights' treatment—the pain and soreness quit you and the tumors vanish.

A lady living in a northern County town writes that for seventeen years she was troubled with salt rheum. She took doctors' treatments and used many lotions without any permanent relief. Reading of the cures made by Dr. Agnew's Ointment, she decided to try it. The first application allayed the irritation and she continued using it—the disease rapidly disappeared and now for two years there has been no sign of a return of it.

The baby of another lady living on Pacific Ave. in Toronto, was terribly afflicted with scald-head and eczema—she tried washes prescribed by her physician, and soaps advertised for such purposes, but the disease remained—Dr. Agnew's Ointment was her good friend; half a box cured the baby and saved herself of troublesome piles which had been the bane of her life since baby's birth.

TO SAVE THE QUAIL.

An Appeal to Farmers to Prevent the Extinction of the Bird.

Chief Game Warden Tinsley and some other prominent naturalists are making an effort to save for this country the quail bird which is becoming extinct. In a letter in Forest and Stream, the warden points out that the quail is an invaluable assistant to the farmers, as the bird when young lives on worms, which are destructive, and the quail also has a ravenous appetite. In the winter, when the snow is on the ground, the quail has difficulty in making both ends meet. Farmers are requested to feed the birds at this season of the year.

THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

Mr. R. B. Rogers' Important Paper Read Before the Society of Canadian Engineers, Montreal.

Mr. R. B. Rogers, C.E., read a most interesting and elaborate paper on the Trent Valley Canal before the Canadian Society of Civil Engineers, in Montreal, whose annual meeting closed yesterday. Mr. Rogers' paper was illustrated by about 150 sterieopticon views of the canal works and scenery on the route of the canal from one end to the other. Apart from the intrinsic value of the paper, its chief merit was in giving information in regard to an important public work which had never before been called to the attention of most of the members. The paper was well received and great interest taken in it, especially that portion relating to the new hydraulic lift lock, which was amply illustrated by a full set of drawings, showing the construction and working of the lock. Mr. Rogers' paper will bear good fruit later on.

AN IMPORTANT PRESENTATION.

Mrs G. A. Smith Made the Recipient of a Life Membership of the Woman's Auxiliary and the Gold Badge of the Society.

At a meeting of the St. John's branch of the Woman's Auxiliary yesterday afternoon an event of unusual interest took place—the presentation to the president, Mrs. G. A. Smith, of a life membership in the society.

In spite of the difficult walking there was a large attendance at the meeting.

The presentation was made by Rev. J. C. Davidson, who referred to the honour of membership in a society which had become so widespread and important as the Woman's Auxiliary, with so choice a list of life members on its roll. This honour would be particularly appreciated by Mrs. Smith, whose devotion to the society and Church has been abundantly proved.

The presentation of the society's gold pin was then made to Mrs. Smith by Mrs. Vernon and suitably acknowledged by Mrs. Smith, who was evidently taken intensely by surprise.

Mrs. Smith has been the devoted president of St. John's branch for several years and has done much to build up the society in Peterborough.

The removal of herself and Mr. Smith to Bobcaygeon will be severely felt in St. John's church, as well as in the town at large.

The St. John's Branch of the Auxiliary has now three life members—Miss Wallis, Mrs. James Sent and Mrs. G. A. Smith. Mrs. Smith's life membership was announced at a large meeting of the Women's Auxiliary in Toronto, and Mrs. Williamson, the president, expressed the affectionate interest which Toronto members felt in the new life member.

A PLEASANT EVENING.

The Choir and Orchestra of the George Street Church Entertained.

The members of the George street church choir and Sunday school orchestra were entertained on Thursday evening last at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William Belleghem by the Misses Belleghem and Mr. Walden, the organist and choirmaster. The orchestra provided excellent music. Mr. Stubbs presented his stereopticon views, illustrating the life of Christ from the manger to the throne. Familiar tunes, suitable to the views presented, were sung at intervals during their presentation. Refreshments were served and a general social time was enjoyed by all present.

THE PETERBOROUGH'S STILL WINNING.

OSGOODE HOCKEY TEAM DEFEATED LAST EVENING.

The Score was Eighteen to One—The Visitors Were Never in the Game From Start to Finish.

The Peterborough's had "a dead easy thing of it" with the Osgoode Hockey team last evening, and without exerting themselves in the least, ran up a score of 18 to 1 against the visitors.

The game was not one which would tend to increase interest in hockey in the town nor was it of any benefit to the players, as, with victory attained with such ease, a false sense of strength is created, which might have the effect of making the boys over-sure of their prowess.

The occasional pieces of pretty combination work last evening show that the Peterborough's this year are capable of putting up a very fast game, and it is a regrettable circumstance that they were not given an opportunity of fully testing their strength by running up against foemen more worthy of their steel on the occasion of their first senior match of the season.

The Osgoodes have had no opportunity for getting into shape, the players having only just returned from their holidays. They claim they can put on when the return match is played in Toronto, and a week's practice will mean a great deal to the team. It would be an impossibility, however, for them to now win out the series, and Peterborough will enter the second round of the schedule with flying colours. Before the next series of games begin, the local seven should prepare themselves to meet a far swifter aggregation than that which the snowed under so easily last night.

The style of play this season has again changed, and the wisdom of allowing one of the forwards to lag behind the rush line was amply evidenced, when from that position either Davidson or King intercepted many attempts at combination on the part of the visitors and were able on occasion to score a goal by stopping and quickly returning a relief shot from the Osgoode defence.

The teams were composed as follows:

Osgoode.		Peterborough.
Flynn	goal	E Wasson
Burns	point	H Reynolds
Goodwin	cover	A A Hollingshed
Myers	forwards	King
White		Davidson
Scott		Crossley
Graham		Belleghem
F Lynch	umpires	Keiste Hall

The manner in which Harry King watched the offside plays and called down any attempt at rough play won him golden opinions from the spectators.

The puck was faced off at 8.41 o'clock and was taken by Osgoode. Hollingshead interrupted, and with a rush and quick lift on the visitors' goal scored first blood for Peterborough in a quarter of a second. The next game lasted for 3½ minutes and the two teams "mixed it up" considerably, the play not being of a very high order of merit. On a closely followed up lift of Hollingshead's Belleghem took the puck and scored.

A bit of pretty combination play between King and Crossley resulted in the latter scoring for Peterborough. Time, 2 minutes.

King and Belleghem worked out the next piece of play, which was responsible for the score being raised to 4—0. In the next five minutes three more goals were scored by the Peterboroughs. The monotony was relieved when Myers, of the Osgoodes, made a great dash up the length of the rink and, dodging through the defence, put Wasson of his feet and scored amidst loud applause from the spectators, who appreciated the play. This, however, was Osgoode's last as well as first tally. They never got another chance, and before the whistle sounded for half time the score stood 11—1 in favour of Peterborough.

In the second half the visitors appeared badly fagged, being unable to stand the hot pace set by the local seven. Even when two of the Peterboroughs were ruled off for too vigourous checking, the visitors were unable to score with seven men against five.

The goals were tallied in the following order:

Scored by.	Scorer.	Time.
1—Peterborough	Hollingshead	1 min
2— "	Belleghem	2½ min
3— "	King	3 min
4— "	Belleghem	3 min

REMOVING FROM PETERBOROUGH.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Smith Leave Town on Monday for Bobcaygeon.

It will be learned with regret that Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Smith will on Monday, cease to be residents of Peterborough. Mr. Smith has received an important appointment in connection with the management of the Mossom Boyd lumber business. If Mr. Smith's health permits—he has been somewhat ill but is now better—he and Mrs. Smith will leave for Bobcaygeon on Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Smith has been residents of Peterborough for many years, and were held in great esteem in the social circles in which they moved, and particularly in St. John's church, where both Mr. and Mrs. Smith's zeal in Church work, though very highly valued, will be more fully appreciated when they shall be necessarily withdrawn. Mrs. Smith's kindly devotion of her unusual musical abilities to the promotion of good works, will also be greatly missed.

ASTHMA Can be Cured

And is being Permanently Cured Daily by Clarke's Kola Compound—Here is What a Hamilton Lady Says:

Mrs. Gilbert, 105 Rebecca street, Hamilton, writes: "I suffered from a bad form of asthma for nine years, and notwithstanding all the doctors could do for me, got worse and worse, so that my neighbors looked for my death at any time. I spent money lavishly in the efforts to get relief, but all to no purpose. For six weeks at a time I could not get up or down stairs, and was in a miserable condition. My daughter, who clerks in a drug store, had heard a good deal of Clarke's Kola Compound and urged me to get it as a last resort. I paid $2 for a bottle, but that is nothing, for it is worth more than that for every teaspoonful. Two doses gave me a splendid relief, and after using only one bottle I am a marvel to all who know me. I am doing my own work, can get around as well as ever, and feel like a new creature. Clarke's Kola Compound has been a God-send to me, and I look on it as a marvellous remedy. You may use this testimony as you see fit, and I shall be glad to give fuller particulars to any one enquiring. I gratefully endorse Clarke's Kola Compound.

FALSE REPORT CONTRADICTED

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—I desire through your columns to contradict some false statements that have been made public regarding me, and have been circulated among a considerable number of your readers. On the 9th February, 1897, I sold my photographic gallery and business to Mr. R. M. Roy, and the written agreement between us contained the following provisions: "The vendor shall not during the period of five years from the date thereof, either directly or indirectly pursue the occupation of studio photography within the County of Peterborough." Now it has come to my knowledge from many sources, that Mr. Roy has accused me of violating this clause of the agreement. I wish to state publicly that I have not violated any of the terms of said agreement; that I have not since the above date engaged, nor do I intend to engage, directly or indirectly, in the business or occupation of studio photography in the County of Peterborough, during the time mentioned above; that I have not now, and since the above date of sale have not had the slightest financial interest in any shape or form in the business that is about to be established by my brother at No. 148 Hunter street, or in any other photographic business in the town of Peterborough, which I can easily prove. Mr. Roy has wilfully circulated the above report concerning me, and which report is untrue, as he has long since been informed to the contrary by my brother and myself—at the time when my brother decided to engage in business here. It is quite clear that it would not have been possible up to the present time for me to violate the above clause of the agreement with reference to the premises referred to by Mr. Roy, as they are not yet ready for business in that line.

Now, Mr. Editor, if I have, as Mr. Roy says, violated the agreement between us, he can have ample redress through the courts, rather than by endeavouring to injure my reputation in an unmanly, cowardly manner.

I regret that it is necessary for me to resort to this method of setting myself right before the public, but there does not appear to me to be any other way of doing so.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space, I am,

Yours truly,
P. H. GREEN.

BULLS AND BEARS.

Letter First.

CLUXTON.

SIR,—In a conversation with an estimable local professional gentleman last summer we touched on the subject of bulls and bears. He said he could not understand the meaning of the term. I promised I would endeavour to explain it in the newspaper.

Mark Twain—"More Tramps Abroad"—says: "There are two times in a man's life when he should not speculate—when he can't afford it, and when he can."

United States Senator, Mark Hanna, says: "I have seldom speculated. It does not pay."

Bulls and bears are speculators who generally buy and sell, what they have not got, for future delivery.

The man who buys for future delivery is called a BULL. He wants to toss up the prices. The man who sells is a BEAR. He wants to press the prices down. The buyer is called "long" on the commodity, and the seller is "short." A bull buys 100,000 bushels of wheat for future delivery—he is "long" on wheat. The man who sells is "short" on wheat. If the price rises ten cents a bushel the buyer makes ten thousand dollars and the seller loses the money. He pays the difference between the sold price and the market price on the date named, in the sold note, for delivery. The buyer and seller may never have seen the wheat. It was, perhaps, all on paper.

Joseph Leiter, of Chicago, the great plunger, controlled at one time last spring 14,000,000 bushels of wheat. He sent agents to New York and Liverpool to manipulate the markets there. He would have bought all the wheat in the world if he could. But the banks put on the curb, the bubble burst and the poor had a chance to get a loaf of bread at a moderate price.

When Leiter commenced operations he was—like other young gamblers—successful. He made, it was said, $8,000,000 When he failed his millionaire father and Phil Armour—the latter the greatest merchant in the world—came to his rescue and shouldered the loss—$4,000,000.

When things were booming Armour sold Leiter several millions of bushels of wheat, to be delivered in December. Leiter bought and locked up all the wheat in sight, hoping to make Armour buy of him at $1.20, to be delivered back to him at 80 cents. Here was a chance, if the corner held, for Leiter to make from one to three millions out of Armour; or, if the corner broke, and wheat fell below 80 cents during December, for Armour to make from half a million to a million out of Leiter.

Armour performed the most marvellous feat of bringing 5,000,000 bushels high grade cash wheat to Chicago in defiance of all settled values of commerce and filled his contract. The Armour-Leiter incident illustrates the danger in dealing in futures.

SNOW AND SIDEWALKS.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—I notice that the Review in answer to a "Pedestrian," advocates a bylaw to provide for the "cleaning of walks by property owners by nine o'clock each morning following a snow storm." This might do very well for Germany or Russia where there is little or no respect for the private rights of the people. But how would it work in Peterborough? Suppose a man is the owner of a 25 ft walk frontage with a limited income. He is sick in bed at the time of the snow fall, and has not the means to employ labour to clean his walk. Would the Review compel him to rise from his sick bed and clean his walk, or subject him to a heavy fine. This would be nice law. No wonder the Review pleads for the Senate—such crude and hasty legislation as it proposes should be promptly checked. Law making with a goose quill absorbs a good deal of the mental brilliancy of the noble bird which furnishes the quill. If the Review would advocate a nine o'clock bylaw to apply to the business streets, where plenty of help is always available, there would be some sense in its proposition.

Yours truly,

The total collections amounted to $114.92, a decrease of $1.70 on last year. The highest collection during the year amounted to $3.96 in June; lowest collection was in August, $1.22. The average collection per Sunday was $2.19. Number of scholars on roll, 213; highest attendance during the year, Feb. 13th, 191; smallest attendance during the year, August 7th, 95. Average attendance of scholars, 154. Teachers and officers on roll, 23. Average attendance 18.

During the summer months of July and August our school held its session in the morning. The change of time did not affect the attendance or interest of teachers or scholars.

Twice during the year all the teachers and officers were present—on Sunday, October 23rd, and Nov. 6th. Number of visitors to our school during the year, 351.

Our school has contributed to missions $120.32, an increase of $31.99 on last year. The special class collections for Foreign, Home and Grande Ligne Missions are not as large as they might be. The amounts respectively are $5.12, $5.97 and $7.33—no advance on last year.

The number of scholars on the roll is larger this year than former years, but the average attendance remains about the same.

Two of the scholars have been converted and united with the church.

We are very much in need of an increase on our teaching staff. Two classes have been ready for promotion from the infant room for some time, but as yet we have not been successful in getting teachers.

The past year has been a successful and prosperous one in many respects, yet as we cast a glance backwards we must feel it has not been accomplished that might have been. We are thankful that we have acknowledged Jesus in baptism but why not more? Is not this the object for which we are working? There is much need that we be much in prayer. That the word taught from Sabbath to Sabbath may fall on prepared hearts and that the coming year may result in our whole school being brought to Christ. This is not too much to expect. "According to you faith be it unto you."

Respectfully submitted,
MARY STRATTON,

ALL SAINTS' CHRISTMAS TREE.

A Delightful Entertainment Last Night.

The Christmas tree in All Saint's Sunday school last night was most successful, there being a large attendance, a splendid programme and presents for everybody. Each scholar in the school received a present and a candy-bag. Prizes were given in all the classes and several teachers received presents from classes and individual pupils.

The programme consisted of Mother Goose's Waxworks, prepared and put on by Miss McCollum, assisted by Master Holden Blackwell, choruses by the children and individual numbers by Miss Geraldine King, Miss Mabel Young, Holden and Walter Blackwell and Fred Hooper. A drill and wand exercise by a number of girls in comic costume was quite amusing.

The regular attendance and the steady growth were encouraging features in the school during the year just closed.

The Parkdale team is a strong one. Jack Clemes, of last year's senior Waterloo team, playing on the forward line. However, the Colts are going to Toronto to win. SKATING.

Keene carnival was held last night, and the committee in charge advertised a mile race for a silver medal, open to the world. Mr. Harry Bell, of town, entered, with Messrs. W. Andrews, W. Campbell, Albert Welsh, Fred Welsh and another skater, all of Keene. Mr. Bell was somewhat surprised when the other contestants asked for two laps in the race, which meant a skate of 18 laps to their 16. Harry refused to skate on these conditions, but in order to satisfy those concerned, he reluctantly entered. In the second round he was tripped up by one of the skaters and retired from the ice. W. Andrews won the race.

FALSE REPORT CONTRADICTED

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—I desire through your columns to contradict some false statements that have been made public regarding me, and have been circulated among a considerable number of your readers. On the 9th February, 1897, I sold my photographic gallery and business to Mr. R. M. Roy, and the written agreement between us contained the following provisions: "The vendor shall not during the period of five years from the date thereof, either directly or indirectly pursue the occupation of studio photography within the County of Peterborough." Now it has come to my knowledge from many sources, that Mr. Roy has accused me of violating this clause of the agreement. I wish to state publicly that I have not violated any of the terms of said agreement; that I have not since the above date engaged, nor do I intend to engage, directly or indirectly, in the business or occupation of studio photography in the County of Peterborough, during the time mentioned above; that I have not now, and since the above date of sale have not had the slightest financial interest in any shape or form in the business that is about to be established by my brother at No. 143 Hunter street, or in any other photographic business in the town of Peterborough, which I can easily prove. Mr. Roy has wilfully circulated the above report concerning me, and which report is untrue, as he has long since been informed to the contrary by my brother and myself—at the time when my brother decided to engage in business here. It is quite clear that it would not have been possible up to the present time for me to violate the above clause of the agreement with reference to the premises referred to by Mr. Roy, as they are not yet ready for business in that line.

Now, Mr. Editor, if I have, as Mr. Roy says, violated the agreement between us, he can have ample redress through the courts, rather than by endeavouring to injure my reputation in an unmanly, cowardly manner.

I regret that it is necessary for me to resort to this method of setting myself right before the public, but there does not appear to me to be any other way of doing so.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space, I am,

Yours truly,
P. H. GREEN.

BULLS AND BEARS.

Letter First.

CLUXTON.

SIR,—In a conversation with an estimable local professional gentleman last summer we touched on the subject of bulls and bears. He said he could not understand the meaning of the term. I promised I would endeavour to explain it in the newspaper.

Mark Twain—"More Tramps Abroad"—says: "There are two times in a man's life when he should not speculate—when he can't afford it, and when he can."

United States Senator, Mark Hanna, says: "I have seldom speculated. It does not pay."

Bulls and bears are speculators who generally buy and sell, what they have not got, for future delivery.

The man who buys for future delivery is called a BULL. He wants to toss up the prices. The man who sells is a BEAR. He wants to press the prices down. The buyer is called "long" on the commodity, and the seller is "short." A bull buys 100,000 bushels of wheat for future delivery—he is "long" on wheat. The man who sells is "short" on wheat. If the price rises ten cents a bushel the buyer makes ten thousand dollars and the seller loses the money. He pays the difference between the sold price and the market price on the date named, in the sold note, for delivery. The buyer and seller may never have seen the wheat. It was, perhaps, all on paper.

Joseph Leiter, of Chicago, the great plunger, controlled at one time last spring 14,000,000 bushels of wheat. He sent agents to New York and Liverpool to manipulate the markets there. He would have bought all the wheat in the world if he could. But the banks put on the curb, the bubble burst and the poor had a chance to get a loaf of bread at a moderate price.

When Leiter commenced operations he was—like other young gamblers—successful. He made, it was said, $2,000,000 When he failed his millionaire father and Phil Armour—the latter the greatest merchant in the world—came to his rescue and shouldered the loss—$4,000,000.

When things were booming Armour sold Leiter several millions of bushels of wheat, to be delivered in December. Leiter bought and locked up all the wheat in sight, hoping to make Armour buy of him at $1.20, to be delivered back to him at 80 cents. Here was a chance, if the corner held, for Leiter to make from one to three millions out of Armour; or, if the corner broke, and wheat fell below 80 cents during December, for Armour to make from half a million to a million out of Leiter.

Armour performed the most marvellous feat of bringing 6,000,000 bushels high grade cash wheat to Chicago in defiance of all settled values of commerce and filled his contract. The Armour-Leiter incident illustrates the danger in dealing in futures.

[The foregoing is the first of a series of letters on commercial subjects to appear in the EXAMINER from time to time from the pen of Mr. Cluxton, who is exceedingly well qualified for dealing with such subjects authoratively and with interest, from the fact that he has had in Peterborough an active business experience of sixty years and for forty years was the largest dealer in produce between Toronto and Montreal.—ED. ALL SAINTS' CHRISTMAS TREE.

A Delightful Entertainment Last Night.

The Christmas tree in All Saint's Sunday school last night was most successful, there being a large attendance, a splendid programme and presents for every body. Each scholar in the school received a present and a candy-bag. Prizes were given in all the classes and several teachers received presents from classes and individual pupils.

The programme consisted of Mother Goose's Waxworks, prepared and put on by Miss McCollum, assisted by Master Holden Blackwell, choruses by the children and individual numbers by Miss Geraldine King, Miss Mabel Young, Holden and Walter Blackwell and Fred Hooper. A drill and wand exercise by a number of girls in comic costume was quite amusing.

The regular attendance and the steady growth were encouraging features in the school during the year just closed.

The Colts go to Toronto Monday to play the first game in the second round with Parkdale, winners of the Hamilton victories and the Parkdale series. The game will take place in Prospect Park rink, and the result will be awaited with interest. The Colts will have their strongest team on. Both Harry King and Stanley Bradd will be on deck. The Parkdale team is a strong one. Jack Clemes, of last year's senior Waterloo team, playing on the forward line. However, the Colts are going to Toronto to win. SKATING.

Keene carnival was held last night, and the committee in charge advertised a mile race for a silver medal, open to the world. Mr. Harry Bell, of town, entered, with Messrs. W. Andrews, W. Campbell, Albert Welsh, Fred Welsh and another skater, all of Keene. Mr. Bell was somewhat surprised when the other contestants asked for two laps in the race, which meant a skate of 18 laps to their 16. Harry refused to skate on these conditions, but in order to satisfy those concerned, he reluctantly entered. In the second round he was tripped up by one of the skaters and retired from the ice. W. Andrews won the race.

TWIN TORTURERS!

Lumbago and Rheumatism made Harmless by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Lumbago and Rheumatism cause endless pain and suffering. Every man and woman who runs chances of getting wet, or catching cold, is liable to suffer from one or both. Our hospitals are full of sufferers from these diseases; none are more painful. Every nerve is on fire; every joint is a centre of agony; every muscle an area of torture. To move hand or foot makes the victim shriek with agony.

Rheumatism makes more cripples than all the railroad accidents that ever happened. Twisted, mis-shapen caricatures of humanity, who cannot walk without misery, are to be seen every day. The kidneys are to blame. If they are healthy you needn't fear Rheumatism or Lumbago. Dodd's Kidney Pills keep the kidneys healthy and cure Rheumatism and Lumbago.

Dodd's Kidney Pills ALWAYS CURE.

THE GENTLE ART OF POISONING.

It Became a Positive Mania in the Seventeenth Century.

The art of poisoning, if we are to believe an eminent authority, must be reckoned among the lost arts. It is not because we are less coarse than our ancestors, and carry our refinement even into our crimes—we are less unscrupulous or cruel than our forefathers were. Though the toxicology of the ancients was necessarily incomplete, there is every reason to believe that antiquity was acquainted with the use of arsenic, opium, henbane and prussic acid. The oldest poison in use was probably an importation of serpent venom. Theophrastus speaks of a poison made from aconite, with rapid or slow effects in accordance with the operator's wishes. During the empire, the removal of inconvenient people by means of poison had become so common that the emperors had a number of men in their service whose duty it was to taste all dishes put upon the imperial table, and no dinner was partaken of without one of the court physicians being present.

One of the most notorious poisoners of the day was Locusta, the murderess of Claudius and Britannicus. About the year 831 B. C. large numbers of women belonging to the higher classes of Roman society were indicted for poisoning their husbands (a modern instance of the epidemic occurred of late years in Hungary). One hundred and seventy were convicted and condemned. The sixteenth and seventeenth centuries were the halcyon days of poisoning. There is no doubt that La Spara and the if possible still more wretched hag La Toffana were as bad as you make them. The latter is said to have caused the death of over 600 persons. She used a preparation of arsenic which she sold under the name of "aequa Toffana." It was a slow poison, the victim growing daily weaker and gradually dying from physical exhaustion. In France the most notorious female poisoners were Mme. de Brinvilliers, who was taught the secret of the "succession powder" by Sainte Croix, which she successfully administered to her father and brothers, and the still more notorious Lavoisin and Lavigoreux, who, being ostensibly midwives, carried their poisons to high and low—married couples anxious to hasten the dissolution of the irksome tie, or needy heirs wishful to accelerate the departure of rich relatives. A veritable mania for poisoning appears to have set in toward the middle of the seventeenth century.

In England poisoning was declared by an act passed in the reign of Henry VIII to be high treason, and those guilty of it were to be boiled alive. The most notorious case (the poisoning of James I by Buckingham is only a surmise) of poisoning was that of Sir Thomas Overbury, in the year 1618. He had incurred the displeasure of Lord Rochester and his wife, and they had both vowed to be revenged on him. So after they had got him committed to the Tower they set themselves to poison his food by mixing arsenic and cantharides with it. For many months, though suffering intensely, he appears to have lingered on. At last a stronger dose than usual put an end to his miserable existence. The guilty couple, to the king's everlasting disgrace, were released after five years' imprisonment.—Church Gazette.

WONDROUS REMEDY,

Is what a London Doctor Calls Dodd's Kidney Pills.

London, Jan. 9.—A large decrease in the number of cases of Kidney Disease has been noted in this city during the past year.

"There's only one thing to be said about it," said a prominent physician speaking on the subject the other day.

"This falling off is due solely to the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills by the people. Dodd's Kidney Pills are the most wondrous kidney remedy ever known. They are used in nearly every household, which accounts for the great decrease of Kidney Complaint."

What Is a Signature?

When Constable was requested to put his signature to one of his pictures, he answered, "Why, my dear sir, it is signed all over." Let the preacher preserve his personality, and his sermon also will be "signed all over." A number of Thackeray's pen and ink sketches were sold not long since in London, and, although they bore no monogram or signature, no one disputed their genuineness. A true preacher also cannot be hid.

That which John had seen and with his own hands handled of the word of life could never be to any other person just what it was to him. A preacher who puts himself into his sermon is as readily detected in his sermon as anywhere else. Even his apprehension of truth, his way of looking at it, his fashion of delivering it, is all his own. Let us repeat it. His sermon will be "signed all over."—Homiletic Review.

MUSSEN UNDER A CLOUD.

A Montreal Bank Clerk's Net Results at Speculation.

Montreal, Jan. 13.—Mr. A. E. Mussen, who has had charge of the uptown branch of the Merchants' Bank of Canada, has admitted that he had appropriated to his own account a large sum of money. Mussen had accounts open with at least three brokers, and had evidently been speculating at a loss. When confronted with his wrongdoing Mr. Mussen admitted the corn and quite a large sum of money was returned to the bank. He had in fact about $50 to his credit with one of the leading brokers. Mussen belongs to a wealthy family, and he will probably be given a show.

MR. BAWDEN'S CASE

Told by Himself that Others May Benefit by it.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are the Great and Unfailing Cure for Lumbago, and all Other Kidney Complaints.

Hamilton, Jan. 13—All over the Dominion the newspapers last week dwelt on the wonderful escape of Mr. Harry Bawden, foreman of the Simcoe Canning Factory here.

An idea of the widespread and genuine interest taken by the people in this case, may be gained from the fact that letters of inquiry have been pouring in ever since the occurrence was noted.

To satisfy the natural curiosity of those who are not familiar with the remarkable powers of that world famed remedy, Dodd's Kidney Pills, Mr. Bawden has given the following statement of his case, for publication:

"I have suffered for six long years with Lumbago and Kidney Disease. No medicine I ever took did me the slightest particle of good until, about a year ago, a friend advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I did so.

"The first box I used gave me such relief that I was greatly encouraged, and bought four more boxes. When I had used these my cure was complete. You may publish this so that other sufferers may benefit by my experience."

This is the honest, straightforward story of a case in which Dodd's Kidney Pills effected a rapid and thorough cure after other medicines had utterly failed.

Dodd's Kidney Pills can always be depended on to cure the very worst case of Kidney Disease, no matter what other remedies have failed.

Lumbago cannot withstand the powerful influence of Dodd's Kidney Pills for more than a few hours. The worst case is positively cured in a few days.

Dodd's Kidney Pills cost only fifty cents a box; six boxes $2.50. Sold by all druggists or sent, on receipt of price, by the Dodds Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto.

Prepared to Telephone.

Of course it is really nothing to Jack Lawson's discredit that he is a beauty man of the ultra British type, but the other riders of polo ponies and wielders of golf sticks at Burlingame don't exactly like his exceeding popularity with the girls, and they tell an illustrative story about him with great gusto.

"Some one wishes to speak to Mr. Lawson at the telephone," said a servant at the club in respectful accents to the tall Liverpool product.

"Aw! Who is it?" was the languid inquiry.

"A lady, sir." And then Lawson moved the lower button of his double breasted waistcoat, which, of course, like the Prince of Wales, he always wears open when he sits. Squaring his shoulders he rushed over to the nearest mirror, adjusted his necktie and pulled down his coat.

"Here, boy," he called. "Brush me off! Look sharp now! I can't keep a lady waiting."

Then, thoroughly spruced up, he dived into the telephone room, conscious that he looked well enough to talk to any lady in San Mateo county.—San Francisco News Letter.

The Tailor and His Wall.

A tailor who used to jot down his customers' indebtedness in lead pencil on the whitewashed wall of his shop, says a writer in Chambers' Journal, was taken ill with smallpox and was removed to the isolation hospital. On his recovery he found that the sanitary authorities had disinfected his house and used lime wash to such good purpose that all his accounts had disappeared. In this case, however, the authorities were forced to compensate the man, and it was evident he seized his opportunity, judging by the amount he received.

Belshazzar II.

"But think of your health!" urged the physician. "Read the handwriting on the wall!"

The merchant prince buried his face and wept.

"Long ago," he exclaimed bitterly, "I made it an inviolable rule of business not to read anything unless it was typewritten or printed!"

And business is business.—Detroit Journal.

Glorious News.

Comes from Dr. D. B. Cargile, of Washita, I. T. He writes: "Four bottles of Electric Bitters has cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula, which had caused her great suffering for years. Terrible sores would break out on her head and face, and the best doctors could give no help; but her cure is complete and her health excellent." This shows what thousands have proved—that Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It stimulates liver, kidney and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion builds up the strength. Only 50 cents. Sold by all druggists, every bottle guaranteed.

Children Cry for CASTORIA.

"Probably no single drug is employed in nervous diseases with effects so markedly beneficial as those of cod-liver oil."

These are the words of an eminent medical teacher.

Another says: "The hypophosphites are generally acknowledged as valuable nerve tonics."

Both these remedies are combined in Scott's Emulsion. Therefore, take it for nervousness, neuralgia, sciatica, insomnia and brain exhaustion.

50c. and $1.00, all druggists.

ROMAN WEALTH AND WASTE

Pearls Dissolved in Wine and a Relay of Dinners For Mark Antony.

E. H. House, writing on "Bright Sides of History" in St. Nicholas, tells this story of ancient extravagance:

"The pearl which Cleopatra drank to Antony's health was valued at nearly $400,000, so at one mouthful she disposed of as much as the cost of Caligula's supper. I suppose that was the most valuable pearl we have any knowledge of. Though Julius Cæsar owned one worth $250,000, which he gave to the mother of Brutus—the same Brutus who afterward helped to kill Cæsar. Pearls seem to have held out particular temptations to people who took pleasure in wasteful follies, perhaps because no other jewel could be so easily swallowed.

"Cleopatra's prank was not the first of its kind. The same absurdity had been committed by a silly fellow in Rome named Æsop—not your favorite fable teller, for he lived centuries earlier, and was a very wise man. The Roman Æsop was the son of a rich actor, and, just to make himself talked about, he took a pearl from the eardrop of Cæcilia, the wife of the tyrant Sylla, and, according to writers of that age, drank it in vinegar. I believe that the possibility of dissolving this kind of gem is disputed by many modern authorities, but the ancients appear to have had no doubt on the subject, for the instances recorded by them were numerous and were attested by men of scientific standing. A Japanese naturalist, who has studied pearls minutely, states that he has found them of such various quality and structure that the existence of specimens which might be melted does not seem to him inconceivable. But whether Æsop liquefied his pearl or not the performance certainly cost him a sum equivalent to $40,000—quite enough, though nothing in comparison with what Cleopatra squandered. Hers was the wildest piece of extravagance that I can recall.

"It was the fashion to be extravagant then. Mary Antony was not far behind the Egyptian queen in that respect, though his fancy was not for beverages flavored by trinkets. Substantial food was more in his line. A visitor who once went into the kitchen of his palace in Alexandria saw eight wild boars roasting at the same time and thought there must be an immense number of guests expected, but the cook told him only 12 persons would dine that day, and the reason of the extensive preparations was that no one could say exactly when Antony would go to the table. But whenever he gave the signal the meat must be just in proper condition at that moment. So it was the rule to get ready a series of dinners, overlapping one another, you might say, at intervals of 15 or 20 minutes. Only one could be eaten, and the rest were wasted, but the waste did not matter. Antony was never kept waiting, and that, in his opinion, was the thing to be considered."

His suffering from Ulcerating Piles Cured.

He says:—I was troubled with itching piles for five years, and was badly ulcerated. They were very painful, so much so that I could not sleep. I tried almost every remedy heard of, and was recommended to use Dr. Chase's Ointment. I purchased a box, and from the first application got such relief that I was satisfied a cure would be made. I used in all two boxes, and am now completely cured.

Every remedy given by Dr. Chase cost years of study and research, and with an eye single to its adaptation for the ailments for which it was intended. Dr. Chase detested cure-alls, and it has been proven ten thousand times that not one of his formulas leave a bad after-effect. Dr. Chase's Ointment is based on lanoline, and the best physicians prescribe it.

Permanent Cure of An Itching Eruption.

Burdock Blood bitters has long held the foremost position as a positive and permanent cure for rashes and eruptions of all descriptions.

It is wonderful the way it takes out the burning, smarting, itching and stinging when applied externally. It never fails to cure skin diseases—from the simplest to the severest. Eczema or Salt Rheum, Tetter, Psoriasis, Shingles, Scald Head, Ringworm, all yield to its beneficent action. The cure, too, is permanent, and the skin is left clear, soft and smooth as a babe's.

Miss Annie E. Rutter, Germania, Ont., writes as follows concerning her case:

"About a year ago I had an eruption on my face which was of a very itching and burning nature and greatly inclined to spread. I used two bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters, which cured me so completely and permanently that there has never been any sign of it returning."

A Woman's Crime.

A THRILLING STORY OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE.

By LAWRENCE M. LYNCH.

Author of "John Arthur's Ward," "The Diamond Coterie," "Against Odds," Etc., Etc.

Lenore at once saw her cue. Of course this ballet mistress must have money. She promptly drew out a well filled purse, and did not fail to mark the hungry look in the eyes of Mrs. Harris as it appeared.

"This woman wants money, needs it, too, I should think," thought Lenore. "So much the better for me." Then she said:—

"I had neglected to ask your terms, Mrs. Harris. What am I to pay you?"

"I shall charge you twenty-five dollars for a course of twelve lessons," said Mrs. Harris, rising unblushingly from her usual price of fifteen dollars. "And I find it necessary to require at least ten dollars in advance."

Lenore promptly opened her purse and took out a roll of bills, from which she drew a crisp ten-dollar note and passed it to Mrs. Harris.

"Now, Mrs. Harris, I may be intruding upon your time if I talk too long, and I want to consult you, or ask your advice, when we have settled about the lessons," she said.

Mrs. Harris wrote out a receipt for the ten dollars with a flourish, and handed it to Lenore before she replied:—

"There is nothing to settle except when you will take your first lesson. You must get the steps the first thing. So I am ready to hear whatever you wish to say."

"The truth is, Mrs. Harris," began Lenore, insinuatingly, "I am in want of a friend and advice very much just now. I am alone and an entire stranger in the city, and I want a quiet boarding place. I shall be glad to pay you for any extra trouble I may cause in asking advice or aid from you. I am not without income, but I am in a little trouble at present."

Mrs. Harris began to look interested. It was not unusual, by any means, for Mrs. Harris to come in contact with young ladies who were in a little trouble. In fact among the young ladies who applied to Mrs. Harris for "situations" on the stage, those who were in "a little trouble" were the rule, not the exception. But young ladies who were in trouble, and yet carried a full purse, were exceptional characters, and to be treated as such; therefore, Mrs. Harris bestowed upon Lenore a look of beaming interest and her undivided attention.

"I shall have to tell you a very little about myself," went on Lenore, who had not once forgotten her foreign accent. "I am, as you perceive, a foreigner. I am also an orphan; I have a small fortune in my own right, and it is so arranged that no one can prevent my drawing the interest of it, so long as I retain my liberty. But my guardians, who are also foreigners, decided German in fact, have fairly lived upon my income, and have supported, and partially educated, their own son and daughter at my expense, and I have submitted, because I knew no one who could help me—had no acquaintances, in fact. They move frequently, and give me no chance to make friends; and about a month ago they came to this city. Well, last night I overheard them planning to try and make me promise to marry their son, and I found that, to put me more in their power, they had given their neighbours the impression that I was partially deranged; saying that they had only to watch me in order to be convinced of my insanity. Well, to-day I had to draw my money, and my guardian's wife came with me to get it. I had made up my mind to leave them for good, for I knew that they would shut me up if they could not make me marry their Hans in any other way, and I was very unhappy there. I had seen your advertisement, and made up my mind to come to you, and if I could become an actress I could go away somewhere where they would never find me. We went into a store, and while the woman was looking at some silk, I stepped out and found my way here. These people will look everywhere for me, but if I can find a safe place to stay in, I can pursue my studies for the stage unmolested; and the banker who pays my income to me will never reveal my hiding-place—indeed, he need not know it."

Lenore had hurried on, determined to get her story told at once, and by the time it was told, she began to believe herself quite an actress already. It was not a very original story, to be sure, but it was original for Lenore. Meanwhile, the ballet mistress sat listening intently, and her imagination began to lay its greedy hands upon many more ten-dollar bills from the purse of the young lady in want of a friend. She was inwardly regretting that her house was not more commodious, but back of this "place of business" there was only a small kitchen and a smaller sleeping-room; and, compared with the furniture, not to mention the cleanliness of these more private rooms, this front parlour was a palace. But let us not be unjust; poverty is a hard taskmaster, and Mrs. Harris had learned her worldliness while struggling, hand to hand, with fate, for her daily bread. The time had been when Mrs. Harris had been young and pretty; when she had pirouetted behind the footlights, in the pinkest of tights and the airiest of gossamer, and when life had for her some downy places; the down may have been of a somewhat questionable quality, but of that we need not speak. Mrs. Harris had known some generous impulses in her palmy days, and, if she could have afforded it, would have been generous now; as she could not afford to be genuinely generous, she began to evoke from her "inner consciousness" a feeling made up of two parts avarice and one part of admiration: and this combination she termed affection, and promptly proffered to Lenore. She pondered a moment, and her ready wit soon put her in possession of a bright idea.

"Let me see," she said, as if she had not already made up her mind. "Your story has interested me wonderfully, and you may rely on me to do all for you that lies in my power. My place is very small, or I would offer you a home with me. You don't want to go out much, I suppose?"

"Oh, not at all, madame!"

"And you will want to be pretty near me, then?"

"Yes, if possible."

"Then I think I have the idea. There is a lady living on the next street, who has one or two very pleasant rooms: I have been of some service to her, and she will be glad to do me a favour. I can get you in there, I think. But we must use caution, we must not tell her your story."

"Then I must trust you to invent one," said Lenore.

"Well, I would suggest something like this," said Mrs. Harris, becoming very confidential and business-like in her tone and manner. "I will tell Mrs. Horne that your father is a German ball-tosser."

"What's that?" interrupted Lenore.

"A performer who juggles cannon balls with his feet, you ignorant child," laughed the now elated Mrs. Harris.

"Oh! well, my father is a cannon-ball tosser, is he? go on, Mrs. Harris."

"I will tell her that he is travelling with a circus——"

"A circus?"

"Of course? Ball-tossers always go with circusses."

"Oh, do they? Well, I won't interrupt you again, Mrs. Harris."

"I will say that he is away with a circus, and that you have been in a convent school; that now your education is finished, and he intends fitting you for the stage; as he is constantly travelling, he has put you in my charge; don't you see?"

"Oh, yes; that's excellent."

"Well, if you are known to have money, some suspicion may be excited, so, as your guardian, you had better put some money in my hands from time to time, and let me attend to all expenses; this will be safer for you all around."

"And will please me better, too," said Lenore, as if she did not see through this proposition. "You make all the necessary arrangements, Mrs. Harris; I will let you attend to all the business, gladly."

CHAPTER XXX.

PETERKIN'S WARNING.

Doctor and Mrs. Austin were early risers; not content with rising with the sun, they sometimes got up a long time before it. The doctor arose, just a little later than usual, however, on the morning of the fourth day after the departure of John Jacob, for he had been beside a patient until very late, and had driven home after eleven o'clock at night. Mrs. Austin had arisen at her usual hour, she never varied much, and the breakfast was well under way when the doctor entered the kitchen.

"Why did you not sleep longer, Thomas?" asked his wife, looking up from her beef-steak.

"You know I can't sleep when any one is up in the house, mother," replied the doctor, with his cheery smile. "Besides, I am getting rather hungry, to tell the truth. I wonder if the Smiths are up yet."

"Yes, their chimney is smoking; why, Thomas?"

"Why, my trip yesterday took me off before mail time, and I was thinking we ought to have a letter from John, he said he would write. I believe I will run over to Smith's while you are cooking the steak."

"Well, you have time if you hurry. I would like to hear from John," said good Mrs. Austin. And the doctor threw on his hat, and hurried to the post-office. Smith's post-office and dwelling were under one roof, and, so, although it was early, Smith was found at his post. There were two letters for Dr. Austin, and he came briskly back, wondering a little as to their contents.

The first that he opened was from Dr. Burton, and it struck consternation to the heart of its recipient. It contained these few lines:—

Dr. Thomas Austin.—Dear Sir and Friend:—Come to town immediately. Miss Lee has fled from my house. This afternoon a young man calling himself John J. Austin called, and said he had been sent by you to see Miss Lee. I sent for her, but she had seen him, it is supposed, and she was not to be found. Thereupon this stranger declared himself a detective, and said that Miss Lee was accused of some crime. He rushed away in hot pursuit; but so far as I can learn she has not been found. I am at a loss what steps to take in the matter, so pray come up.

Yours in difficulty,
S. P. BURTON.

The other letter was from the perfidious John Jacob himself, and read as follows:—

Doctor Austin.—Dear Sir:—Knowing that Dr. Burton will write you, if he has not already done so, I pen you this. I beg that you will not judge me until this affair has been sifted to the bottom; when, I believe, in spite of the fact that I won your confidence by practising a ruse, you will admit that I have been as much as I could be, your friend. Do not seek to move in this matter; believe me, I am speaking for your good when I say that by so doing you will injure yourself and your ward as well. Also remember my warning against Mr. Brady. I am a detective, but I am neither your enemy nor Miss Armyn's. Mr. Brady is.

Yours,
JOHN JACOB AUSTIN.

It is impossible to describe the feelings with which Dr. Austin read these lettere. His wife, who knew little or nothing of the actual state of Lenore Armyn's affairs, must not be alarmed or enlightened. So he sat in silence until he could speak with tolerable calmness, and then rising, he said:—

"Mother, I must start for the city this morning, and it's a blessed thing the stage goes to-day. Just wait breakfast while I run and tell the driver to wait or call for me, and meanwhile toss a few things into my small valise." And before Mrs. Austin could open her mouth to ask a question he was out of the house.

As he closed his door a man who was passing the gate at the moment looked up quickly.

"Goot morninks," he said, affably. "I hobes I sees you vell?"

"Quite well, Peterkin," replied the doctor. "Going to the hotel?"

"Yah; shust took a shtroll before eading."

"Then, Peterkin, won't you just tell Marks, the stage driver, that I want him to call for me this morning? It will oblige me very much." said the doctor.

"Ton't vant oplige! To it ver nodings, mooch bleasure, ferry." And the Teuton resumed his march toward the hotel.

Peterkin was a pack-peddler, who had made his appearance in the neighbourhood a little more than a month before, since when he had made Fairlie his headquarters, tramping off bright and early mornings, and usually returning at night.

While Doctor Austin returned to his wife and breakfast, Peterkin trudged on toward the little hotel. The breakfast bell was sounding when he reached the place, but Peterkin went straight up to his room, where he remained fully ten minutes. Then he lumbered downstairs and noisily entered the breakfast-room.

Everybody was at breakfast—even Mr. J. B. Brady. Peterkin sat down and began to eat ravenously. Then he looked up and bawled out suddenly:—

"Shay! you mishter vip shnapper, how soon pefore your vagon stards?"

"Half an hour, Dutchy. Want to go?"

"Vell, den, I told you do shop vor Dogdor Austin; he said so." And Peterkin made a lunge at a huge potato.

Five minutes afterwards Mr. J. B. Brady arose and quitted the room.

"Vonder vot mate him losht his abbedide," said the German, gazing after him wonderingly.

Mr. Brady's "abbedide" had failed rather suddenly.

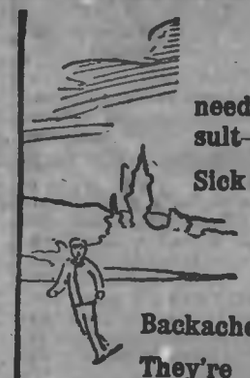
TWO MISTAKES.

There are two mistakes that people with weak lungs are liable to make; and both are about equally bad: One is to not give attention quickly enough to the little coughs and bronchial troubles which so rapidly undermine the delicate lung tissue and plunge you into consumption almost before you are aware of it; the other is when the trouble is at last discovered and fully realised to give up hope too soon.

Begin with these bronchial and throat ailments the instant they appear; never wait till to-morrow. The right remedy taken now may save months of severe illness. On the other hand if the illness has already come upon you; and you find yourself weakened, wasted and discouraged, do not lose hope. There is a medicine that will certainly restore you to health and strength.

"My boy was in a very bad way when I commenced to give him Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery," writes J. W. Price, Esq., of Ozark, Monroe Co., Ohio, in a recent letter to Dr. R. V. Pierce of Buffalo, N. Y. "The doctors claimed he had consumption and we doctored with them until he was past walking. After using five bottles of the 'Discovery' he is now all right. It has been ten months since he stopped taking your medicine and he is still in good health. We are very thankful to you for saving our son."

Hundreds of similar cases are described in one chapter of Dr. Pierce's great thousand page illustrated book The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser which will be sent free for the bare cost of customs and mailing, 21 one-cent stamps. It is a veritable family library in one volume;—the fruit of Dr. Pierce's life-long experience with, the severest types of obstinate chronic diseases. Any one may write to him for opinion; which will be sent in a plain sealed envelope, free of charge.



A Drowning Man

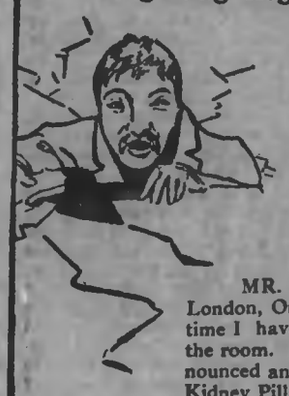
needs help—and needs it at once—delay can have but one result—Death—

Sick kidneys are very much like a drowning man—their cry for help is just as imperative—their need just as vital—

May be simply a case of backache first—but backache is the warning note of the more serious trouble to follow.—

Backache is the cry of the sick kidneys for help—

They're not able to do the work demanded of them—system is getting clogged up with poison—



There's only one way out of it—only one never-failing cure that reaches out after sick kidneys, as the life-line reaches for the drowning man—

Doan's Kidney Pills—

Take a London citizen's word for it:

MR. JAMES JACKSON, the well-known carpenter, lives at 646 Maitland Street, London, Ont. He says: "I had a bad attack of la grippe four years ago. Since that time I have suffered severely from pain in my back, so that I could scarcely walk across the room. My sleep was fitful and uncertain, and gave me no rest. I had other pronounced and painful symptoms of kidney disease, and until I commenced taking Doan's Kidney Pills had almost despaired of a cure. It was a happy day for me when I got these pills, because they removed all my distressing kidney troubles, drove out the pain in my back, restored restful sleep, and have made me a strong, healthy man."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all druggists at 50c. a box or 3 for $1.25.

"IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY."

DEAR SIR,—Your official notice came duly to hand, apprising me of the results obtainable upon my 15 year endowment Policy in your Company for $1,000, which matured on the 8th inst. Of the various options you have given me viz.:

Cash value	$1,564 00
Paid-up Policy, payable at my death, for	2,560 00
Yearly Income for life of	166 20

I have decided upon the cash value; and it gives me pleasure to testify that, as I anticipated it would be when I took out the policy, IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY. This returns me the full premiums of the 15 years and over 4½ per cent. compound interest, in addition to which you have carried the risk upon my life. In view of the lowering rates of interest which have been obtainable during the latter portion of the period, it is difficult to see how this excellent result could have been surpassed.

Yours sincerely,

HARVEY.

The Clerk of Harvey Has an Exciting Experience.

Mr. J. S. Cairnduff, clerk of Harvey, had a rather exciting experience on his way to Bobcaygeon from the town hall, Harvey, where the first meeting of the council was held. He struck thin ice at Little Bob, and himself, pony and cutter went into the water. The pony was drowned. By the Messrs. Walsh and Wally Van Norman coming to his assistance, Mr. Cairnduff was rescued from a position of peril, from which he would have been unable to escape unaided. The cutter, robes and harness were afterwards saved. Mr. Cairnduff suffered no lasting bad results.

AN EXCITED LAWYER

A CASE THAT WORKED HIM UP TO THE BURSTING POINT.

The Outrageous Conduct of Juror No. 6 and the Explanation Which Changed the Counsel's Anger to Limp Bewilderment.

"In my 30 years' experience as a practicing lawyer," said a well known member of the bar at the Lawyers' club the other day, "I don't believe I ever went through a more exciting trial than one I took part in out at Freehold, N. J. When I say exciting, I mean exciting for me, for I was the only one who appeared to be concerned about the conduct of the man who occupied the sixth seat in the jury box.

"The case was a civil action, and I represented the plaintiff. It was a small matter, and we were suing for only $500, but as my client happpened to be a personal friend, and he was more anxious to establish a principle than to collect any money, I was out to win.

"The judge was a sedate individual, who slept most of the time, and the jury looked as though it had been drafted from the hayfields. I scored well for my client with the first witness and was looking out of the corner of my eye to see what effect the point had had with the jury, when I noticed the man in No. 6 scowling furiously at me. When I continued to make headway with the next witness, he shook his head, scowled and looked as though he'd like to eat me up. The rest of the jurymen kept watching him, and I began to think I was up against a pretty stiff proposition.

"Finally I threw a question at a witness, which if honestly answered I knew would establish our claim to damages. No. 6 evidently thought so, too, for he rose from his seat, shook his head vigorously at the judge, and leaning over the rail waited for the judge's decision, for by this time the defendant's counsel had made an objection.

"The judge ruled against me, and No. 6 fell back into his seat and laughed as though it was the funniest thing he had ever heard. I was mad clean through by this time. Such outrageous conduct I had never seen in court.

"'Your honor,' I began protestingly.

"'Go on with the case,' roared his honor.

"'But, sir,' I began, 'this is the most extraordinary'—

"'Go on with the case,' interrupted the judge once more, and seeing it was vain to protest I went on.

"Well, this thing went on all through the trial. Every point I made brought a scowl to the face of No. 6. Every point my opponent made brought smiles to his face. When I summed up, he kept shaking his head vigorously and saying things in an ugly tone, but under his breath. Once he threw his hands up in the air in protest, and I got so mad that I could have hauled him out of that box and thrashed him with pleasure.

"When the defense summed up, the fellow grinned with delight. He shook his head approvingly at all the lawyer said, and once, when the lawyer indulged in abuse of me, he clapped his hands together as though he was dying to applaud. During the judge's charge he scowled and smiled alternately, according to which side his honor favored.

"'We're gone,' I whispered to my client, 'and I never engaged in a better case than this. Rather than submit to such a barefaced steal I'll fight this case through every court in the state, and without a cent of fee too.'

"The judge had finished by this time, and the jury had risen to go out. To my utter astonishment, No. 6 jumped over the rail of the jury box, and going over to where the defendant and his lawyer sat clapped the former on the shoulder and said in a loud voice, 'You'll win sure.' Here my indignation got the better of me. Rushing over to No. 6, I took him by the arm and wheeled him aronnd.

"'See here, sir, the jury has retired, and you might better be with them than talking to the defendant and his counsel.'

"'Why should I be with 'em?' he replied.

"'Why, good heavens, man, can the jury deliberate while you're in the courtroom and they're elsewhere?'

"'Don't know why not,' he replied. 'I ain't no juror.'

"'Then who the devil are you?' I demanded.

"'He's my hired man,' put in the defendant.

"'Then what was he doing in the jury box?'

"'Why, consarn it, there warn't another seat in the room,' said the hired man. 'Didn't suppose I was goin ter stand up, did yer?'

"I went back to my seat, completely bewildered, and as I sat down the jury came in, having been out five minutes. They gave me the verdict, and I was truly the most astonished man in the state of New Jersey at that moment.

"I found out afterward that before I began active work in the case juror No. 6 had been sick for a week and that the other 11 jurors had been acting without him under instruction from the court."

A Binding Chinese Oath.

We are accustomed to all manner of swearing—that is, of course, legal oath taking—in this country, but we do not recollect hearing of so queer a medium of attestation as a "guillotined black cockatoo." That is what the police of a country district in New South Wales had to provide the other day for a finicking Chinaman, who obstinately declined to swear on anything else. Headless fowls were brought, but in vain. Even a black swan, a luxury surely for a Chinese witness, was declined.

After many days a dead cockatoo of the required hue was discovered in a hut of one of the other "heathen," as they call the Celestials, who mulcted the officials 10 shillings for a fast decomposing bird. Then the solemn and peculiar oath was duly administered, when the difficult witness blandly declared that he knew nothing about the case and sat down smiling.—London Chronicle.

Cuban Planters Terror-Stricken.

Santiago de Cuba, Jan. 14.—The headless body of Manuel Hernandez, the wealthy planter of Sabanilla, was found yesterday in the outskirts of the town. Other planters are terror-stricken at this proof that the guerrillas who have organized for the purposes of robbery will not hesitate to murder. Many of the haciendados near Santiago are planning to send their families into the city, and all of them keep an armed guard over their homes.

A REVERSE IN EGYPT.

The 10th Soudanese Battalion Entirely Destroyed.

EMIR FEDIL'S DERVISHES WIN.

The Egyptian Forces Sustain a Very Serious Loss on the Blue Nile—Reinforcements Are Being Hurried to the Scene—Another Battle Is Only a Question of Time.

London, Jan. 16.—The Morning Leader publishes the following despatch from Cairo: "Rumors are in circulation here that on Dec. 28 the Dervishes under Emir Fedil, on the Blue Nile, defeated the Egyptian forces, the 10th Soudanese Battalion being entirely destroyed. It is reported that reinforcements are being hurried up to the scene and that another battle is imminent."

According to a despatch from Cairo, on Jan. 5 Col. Lewis, with a Soudanese regiment and a detachment of irregular troops, attacked Fedil, the last remaining formidable Dervish chief, while he was crossing the Blue Nile on Dec. 26, at the cataract south of Hossiro, storming the island on which Fedil took up his position and capturing 1,500 Dervishes. Fedil, however, escaped with 800 followers.

The Expulsion of Danes.

Copenhagen, Jan. 16.—In the Lower House of the Danish Parliament on Saturday a Deputy questioned the Government regarding the expulsions of Danes from North Schleswig. The Minister of Foreign Affairs replied that Denmark's relations were friendly with all the powers, adding that during the Danish expulsions, which created a painful impression throughout Denmark, the Government asked the German Government whether wholesale expulsions were contemplated of those Danes who, by virtue of the peace treaty of 1864, chose in favor of Danish nationality. Since that enquiry, the Minister continued, none of these had been expelled, and the Government hoped that the expulsion of other Danes would now cease, in the interest of mutual good relations.

Badly Scared All Round.

Berlin, Jan. 16.—The story that a fireman was found in the bedroom of the Empress at Potsdam has been completely verified. He was curious to see the interior of rooms as to the outside of which he was well informed. Believing that everybody was abed, he went into one room, and, hearing footsteps, fled through the two rooms adjoining. Somebody awoke, screaming. The fireman was struck dumb with terror; shivering, he saw the Empress abed. Her cries brought a rescuing party, headed by the Kaiser, attired in his sleeping toilet. The delinquent was arrested and imprisoned.

To Teach the Chinese Language.

London, Jan. 16.—Mr. Robert A. Yerburgh, a rich Lancashire M.P., and leader of the so-called China party in the House of Commons, has provided money to found a professorship of Chinese economics in one of the great English commercial centres, with a view to promote the success of British traders in the far east. Manchester and London are both putting forward claims to the chair, which, however, seeing Lancashire's large trade with China, probably will go to Victoria University, Manchester.

Cecil Rhodes in London.

London, Jan. 16.—Mr. Cecil Rhodes, the former Premier of Cape Colony and managing-director of the British Chartered South Africa Company, arrived in London from Cape Town on Saturday. There is considerable interest in his visit, which is connected with the scheme of joining Cairo and Cape Town by railroad. He will endeavor to get the Government to guarantee the interest on the bonds of a railroad from Buluwayo to Lake Tanganyika.

Power of Trades Unions Gone.

London, Jan. 16.—The power of trades unions is gone, so far as Great Britain is concerned. The British employers are forming a gigantic combination to fight the workmen with their own weapons. The Engineering Federation, which proved so powerful in the recent strike, has invited employers in all the trades to "crush the tyranny" of trades unionism. One object of the combination is to secure legislation favorable to employers.

Germans Are Indignant.

Berlin, Jan. 16.—[illegible]

emanating from London concerning the economical and financial conditions of Germany, especially the statement that the leading English banks recently declined to accept Prussian bills for a large amount. This statement is declared to be utterly untrue, and calculated to unfavorably impress the German bourses with respect to the impending loans.

A Murderous Lieutenant.

Vienna, Jan. 16.—The Neue Freie Presse publishes a telegram from Krakow saying that Lieut. Pakkarevics, who was recently sentenced to a term of imprisonment for neglect of duty, on Saturday shot and killed Colonel Zelinski. The murderer was arrested, and later made a statement in which he said he intended to shoot all the members of the court-martial under whose conviction he was sentenced.

Just What Uncle Sam Wants.

Berlin, Jan. 16.—The manufacturers in this country of cotton velvet, eau de cologne and chocolate have appealed to the Government to try to induce the Washington authorities to rescind the latest interpretation of the tariff appraisement of those articles, which they claim is unfair and will ruin their export trade to America, and compel them to erect special factories in the United States.

Bullseyes Are Too Big.

London, Jan. 16.—In consequence of the very high scoring, the National Rifle Association has decided to reduce the diameter of bullseyes at 900 yards ranges at Bisley from eight to seven inches, the inner ring remaining the same.

Revolution Near in China.

Moscow, Jan. 16.—A cablegram just received in Moscow from the Chinese seaboard indicates that a revolution is brewing throughout the Empire.

DRIVEN FROM HOME.

Levees in Ohio and Further South Are in Danger of Breaking and Repeating Last Year's Disasters.

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 16.—The heavy rains of the past 48 hours have raised the Scioto River to the danger point, and the levee south of Columbus has already broken. Thirteen families have been driven from their residences by the water, some making their escapes in boats. There is great danger of a repetition of last year's flood, and the residents of West Columbus are greatly alarmed. The river was still rising a noon.

Portsmouth, Ohio, Jan. 16.—A terrific wind storm destroyed two large steel buildings of the Burgess Steel Company, wrecked the Art Hall at the fair grounds and blew eight dwellings from their foundations. The largest building was 600 by 290 feet. James Larkin and Daniel Collins received injuries that will likely prove fatal, while Matt. Adam and John Giles were badly crushed.

Little Rock, Ark., Jan. 16.—Reports received yesterday from Benton indicate that a great deal of damage has been done in Saline County by rain, which has been falling there steadily the past four days. The Saline River has risen several feet, and it is expected that it will rise higher than in 1883. Thousands of cattle and hogs are drowning in the bottoms and fences are being washed away.

MUSSEN ARRESTED.

Charged With Stealing Money From the Merchants' Bank, Montreal.

Montreal, Jan. 16.—A 10 o'clock on Saturday morning Detective Gross of Gross's secret service walked into the Police Court, having in charge Albert E. Mussen, a clerk employed in the Merchants' Bank of Canada. The arrest was made on a warrant issued by Judge Desnoyers, who charged Mussen with having, while a servant of the bank, stolen the sum of $5,000 on or about the 3rd of September last. In the Police Court Mussen entered a plea of not guilty, and the case was enlarged.

The total amount of the money stolen is not far short of $60,000, it is understood, taken right along in large or small amounts. Mr. Mussen was asked for an explanation at the very outset, but it was not satisfactory, and the subsequent discoveries in the books only made an explanation more imperative. In the end, it is said, Mr. Mussen admitted that he had retained some moneys belonging to the bank, and this allegation is set out in the affidavit in the civil suit.

It has just transpired that Mussen had all the chances in the world to become the defaulter he is alleged to be. Those who understand the ins and outs of banking will be surprised to learn that Mussen was not only paying and receiving teller in the savings department in the Merchants' Bank of Canada, but he was ledger keeper as well. There was in reality no check upon his operations, and this is why it was possible for him to appropriate at least $50,000 or $60,000 of the bank's money in so short a time. Allan formerly held this triple position.

The vault of the Merchants' Bank was opened, and [illegible] found all safe.

STRONG COMMISSION

Appointed to Thoroughly Study the Philippine Problem.

DECISION OF THE PRESIDENT.

A Strong Personnel—Admiral Dewey Will Preside—Senator Hear Against the Expansion Policy—He Introduces a Resolution in the House of This Tenor—The Late Mr. Dingley.

New York, Jan. 16.—The Washington correspondent of The World says:

President McKinley has decided to send a commission to the Philippines to make a thorough study of the situation and advise him as to what the policy of the United States should be regarding those islands. He has asked these gentlemen to serve on the commission:

Rear-Admiral Dewey, commander-in-chief of the Asiatic squadron.

Major-General E. S. Otis, military governor of the Philippines.

Professor J. G. Schurman, president of Cornell University.

Colonel Charles Denby, former minister to China and now a member of the War investigation commission.

Brigadier-General Charles B. Whittier of New York, recently on duty at Manila.

Admiral Dewey will be president of the commission.

It is now only a question as to whether or not the gentlemen named will consent to serve, and as to the date when the commission will start for the Philippines.

Filipinos for Washington.

San Francisco, Jan. 16.—Among the passengers who arrived here yesterday on the steamer Nipon Maru, from Hong Kong and Yokohama via Honolulu, are three emissaries of Aguinaldo, en route to Washington on a secret mission. The Filipinos are intelligent and speak English fluently. They will probably stay in the city for a day or two and then will go to Washington direct.

SENATOR HOAR

Declares the People of the Philippines of Right Ought to Be Free.

Washington, D.C., Jan. 16.—A resolution of more than ordinary significance was introduced in the Senate on Saturday by Mr. Hoar of Massachusetts. It declares the people of the Philippines of right ought to be free and independent; that they are absolved from political connection with Spain, and that they have full power to establish a government for themselves, with which the United States does not propose to interfere. Mr. Hoar desired immediate action upon the resolution, but under objection by Mr. Davis, the chairman of the foreign relations committee, it went over.

In the midst of a speech by Mr. Allen of Nebraska the death of the Hon. Nelson Dingley of Maine was reported to the Senate.

After adopting fitting resolutions of respect to the memory of Mr. Dingley and listening to a brief eulogy of the distinguished statesman by Mr. Hale of Maine, the Senate adjourned as a mark of respect.

STATE FUNERAL FOR MR. DINGLEY.

Ceremony Will Be Held in the Hall of the House of Representatives.

Washington, Jan. 16.—In view of the long and distinguished services of Mr. Dingley, the funeral ceremony will be in the hall of the House of Representatives and will be in the nature of a State funeral. It will be held at 12 o'clock noon to-day, Rev. S. M. Newman officiating, assisted by Rev. Dr. Couden, chaplain of the House.

The President sent a very feeling letter in his own hand, expressing his grief and that of Mrs. McKinley to Mrs. Dingley.

Will Not Replace Him.

Washington, Jan. 16.—It has been practically concluded not to make an appointment of a commissioner on the Canadian joint high commission to fill the place vacated by the death of Representative Dingley.

Grand Trunk Is Busy.

Montreal, Jan. 16.—Business on the Grand Trunk is booming. Mr. F. H. McGuigan, general superintendent, arrived back yesterday from a trip over the western division, and he says they have handled over 70 cars daily at Black Rock. We are handling, added he, from 35 to 40 per cent. more business at Niagara Falls than at any period since I have been connected with the Grand Trunk. For instance, at that point, we handled 17,000 more cars during the months of November and December than during the corresponding months of 1897. He also states that the company have no less than 2,500 loaded cars at Portland awaiting shipment, besides from 1,800,000 to 1,400,000 bushels of grain in the company's elevators at that port.

Did He Burn the Boy?

St. Hyacinthe, Que., Jan. 16.—Joseph L'Heureux, accused of attempting to murder his stepson, a 7-year-old boy, by saturating his bedclothes, some time previous to the boy's retiring for the night, and then setting fire to the bed while the lad was sound asleep, was brought here on Saturday morning in charge of High Constable Marchessault. After a few preliminaries the prisoner was removed to jail till Thursday next. Bail was refused.

Fight in Woodstock Jail.

Woodstock, Jan. 14.—Paddy McKay, a six months' sentence vagrant, and William Payne, an aged cook, both prisoners in the jail at Woodstock, had an encounter in the kitchen on Thursday. McKay was overpowered and locked up. The weapon McKay used was a club. McKay was brought before the magistrate yesterday morning and was committed to the asylum. He came from England.

HONOUR TO WHOM HONOUR.

The picayune Conservative press have done, and are doing, everything in their power to belittle the achievements of Mr. Mulock, Postmaster-General, in the matter of postal reform, and to embarrass him in his efforts to bring about further reforms. All good Canadians are proud that a Canadian took a prominent, and, indeed, a foremost, part in bringing about Imperial Penny Postage, but Conservative journals of the small-bore calibre of the Mail and Empire, persistently deny him any credit. We would be glad to credit any Canadian, be he Conservative or Liberal, with anything that would reflect credit on the country Old Country journals are fair-minded and judicial in their pronouncements, and are not swayed by the petty considerations that animate the pigmy-souled partisan Conservative press of Canada. Three of them have been testifying to Mr. Mulock's share in the Penny Postage achievement. The London Times speaks thus :

> It was Mr. Mulock, the Canadian Postmaster-General, with the aid and support of Mr. Chamberlain and the Duke of Norfolk, who at the last hastened on the matter to a successful issue.

The next to that great leader of public opinion, the Thunderer, in weight the Daily News publishes the following compliment to Mr. Mulock :

> We ought all to remember, without in any way forgetting or detracting from the credit due to anybody else for bringing about this reform, that the Empire owes its accomplishment, as it owes so much else, to Canada. To Mr. Mulock, the Postmaster-General of Canada, is due the real initation of a Colonial penny post.

And the Daily Chronicle adds to the chorus as follows :

> Let us put Canada first, for she was the first to take up the idea and carry it through.

A PLEASANT ANNOUNCEMENT.

What better new year announcement could possibly have been made to the people of Canada than that of the Minister of Finance last week in Montreal, when he stated that not only was the surplus of the last fiscal year $1,722,712, but that for the first half of the current year the surplus was $2,855,000 and still growing in rapidly increasing ratio. It is further announced that the financial statement for the same period shows an improvement in the revenue on consolidated funds account of $4,179,000, the figures being $22,113,378 as against $17,983,974 for the corresponding period in 1897. With the single exception of the post office every revenue-earning Department shows a substantial increase both for the six months period and for the month of December. The Customs Department is $2,286,000 better and the excise $1,445,000 better; Public Works $360,000 and Miscellaneous $217,000. The expenditure in the same period is $14,611,037, as against $13,488,170 for the same period of 1897, an increase of $1,122,000. On capital account there has been paid out for public works, railways and canals, $2,680,216, as against $1,634,428 and in railway subsidies $2,284,716 as against $686,219 in 1897. In spite of these necessary increases incurred in the active prosecution of permanent public works recognised as necessary and desirable by all sections in the community, the public debt was reduced during the month of December alone by $771,644.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Review will persist in referring to "the discredited Hardy Government." Does our contemporary for a moment imagine that the public takes any stock in the false and absurd reports the Opposition organs print from day to day in order to "discredit the Hardy Government"? One would think that it was Mr. Whitney that was discredited—with a barricade between him and the power that is enjoyed by a government that is not discredited.

"West Elgin has given Mr. Hardy a supporter by electing Mr. McNish, but the manner of his election only adds greater odium to the Hardy Government and its campaign methods. The Premier and ministers," says the Review, "went into the constituency and made promises of what would be done if the Liberal was elected." Will the Review favour us with a list of the promises? Rash statements are easily made. Now, what were the promises?

Canada's revenue last year was the largest in the history of the country, and the Conservative journals are growling because the expenditure has increased. Yes, the enlargement of the canals to complete imperatively demanded transportation facilities, has added to the expenditure. If in their eighteen years of power the Conservative Government had attacked the transportation problem with half the vigour of the present Administration, this present expense would have all been past. And, besides, the country would have been enjoying the benefits of the transportation facilities the enlarged canals would afford.

THE FRENCH AND NEWFOUNDLAND.

A French journal, trying to put the Newfoundlanders in the wrong in their dispute with the French lobster canners, alleges, untruly, that the contention of the Islanders is that lobsters, being crustaceans, cannot be taken as fish under the treaty. This is not the point at all. When the Treaty of Utrecht was under negotiation, no point was insisted on by England with more determination and perseverance than that she must have the whole island of Newfoundland. It was so decided in the end. That treaty is the starting point of the existing French rights and the extensive and untenable claims that have been grafted upon them. The French obtained the right to erect stages of boards on which to dry fish, and temporary huts for shelter. When lobster canning became an industry France went into it on the coast of Newfoundland, and for that purpose erected permanent buildings on the land, contrary to the terms of the treaty. The English King undertook that the French fishermen should not be interfered with in following their treaty right to fish on a designated shore, a guarantee which these fishermen have known how to draw from all sorts of complaints, made in a spirit of defiant opposition to the inhabitants. The lobster factories were permitted a toleration to which they had no valid claim, with the result that the intruders lorded it over the inhabitants of the soil till their pretensions became unbearable. A day of settlement was bound to come, and the sooner the French realize that it has arrived the better it will be for all concerned.—Monetary Times.

NINETEEN MEN WERE LOST.

The Nova Scotian Ship Andelina Capsizes at Tacoma on Saturday.

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 16.—The British ship Andelina, which arrived Friday night in ballast, capsized and sank in 22 fathoms of water early Saturday morning. Captain G. W. Slating and a crew of 19 men were lost. Eleven sailors were discharged on Friday and came ashore. The Andelina was a 2,400-ton four-masted barque, from Annapolis, N.S., and came from Shanghai for wheat. The captain leaves a wife and three children in Nova Scotia.

The vessel capsized in a terrible squall. She had a boom log on each side, and one got adrift, causing the other to upset the vessel. The ballast had been discharged.

YARMOUTH HAD A FIRE.

A Number of Stores and Dwellings Fell a Prey to the Flames.

Halifax, Jan. 16.—The town of Yarmouth had a narrow escape yesterday from a repetition of the fire disaster which befell Bridgewater. While a high cold wind was blowing, shortly before noon, flames broke out in the Victoria Block and raged for over three hours, burning out T. B. Dane & Son, clothing; Victoria Cafe and J. H. Hurlburt's residence overhead, Sullivan's building, occupied by Moody & Leblanc, tailors, and the S. C. Hood Company, jewellers. From Cook & Stoneman's to Bingay's Block, four fine stores, with two residences above, were destroyed.

Arctic Ice Down Early.

St. John's, Nfld., Jan. 16.—The schooner Delight, Captain McDonald, from Sydney for this port, has been driven ashore at Trepassey and seriously damaged.

The Arctic ice floe is driving southward along the Newfoundland coast, completely blockading the northern bays. If the inshore winds continue, the floe will probably blockade this port within a week. This is exceptionally early in the year for such a state of affairs, similar ice conditions not having prevailed within the last decade.

Eight Passengers Hurt.

Corning, N.Y., Jan. 16.—The Fall Brook Railway passenger train, No. 6, was wrecked at Pine Station, Pa., on the Pine Creek division, at 3.30 o'clock on Saturday afternoon. A huge tree came down the mountain side, which rises almost perpendicular with the track, and struck the train, sweeping it from the track. Three cars were hurled down a 20-foot embankment to the side of the river. Eight passengers were slightly injured.

At Last!

A Remedy Has Been Discovered that will Permanently Cure Catarrh.

JAPANESE CATARRH CURE CURES.

This is not merely the words of the makers of this remedy, but the assertion is backed up by leading physicians and the honorable testimonies of hundreds of cured ones. And more, there is an absolute guarantee to cure in every instance or money will be refunded. We will send a two weeks' trial quantity free to any person suffering from this dangerous disease. Japanese Catarrh Cure is a new discovery, being a prescription perfected by one of America's most successful specialists in treating this disease. It is a soothing, penetrating and healing remedy, prepared from balsamic compounds of Iodine and Eucalyptol oils, to be inhaled up the nostrils. The heat of the body vaporizes it and the very act of breathing carries it to the diseased parts. It reaches, soothes and heals every part of the mucous membrane, curing invariably all forms of catarrh of the nose and throat and all forms of catarrhal deafness. Mr. Joseph Little, the well known mill owner of Port Essington, B. C., writes: "Japanese Catarrh Cure completely cured me of catarrh, which had troubled me for 25 years, during which time I had spent over $1,000 on remedies and specialists in Toronto and San Francisco. About two years ago I procured six boxes of Japanese Catarrh Cure, and since completing the treatment have not felt the slightest symptom of my former trouble. I was highly benefited by it. Relief came from the first application. We always keep a supply in the house for cuts and sores and consider it the purest balm extant for healing."

Mr. J. M. Donovan Tells how Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Him.

Peterborough, Dec. 26.—This town is famed throughout the Dominion as the most go ahead, progressive, wealthy and up-to-date on the continent. This reputation is thoroughly deserved, and was earned by the quickness of the residents to see and to take advantage of a "good thing" when it comes our way.

One especially good thing that our people have benefited by is the king of kidney cures—Dodd's Kidney Pills—a household remedy in Peterborough.

Among those cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills is Mr. J. M. Donovan, who reports that this remedy cured him completely of Urinary troubles, indicating the first stage of Diabetes.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only remedy that has ever been known to cure this disease. They never fail.

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA

To Gain Flesh, to Sleep Well, to Know Perfect Health and Good Digestion Means.

MAKE A TEST OF STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS.

No trouble is more common or more misunderstood than nervous dyspepsia. People having it think their nerves are to blame and are surprised that they are not cured by nerve medicines. The real seat of the mischief is lost sight of. The stomach is the organ to be looked after.

Nervous dyspeptics often do not have any pain whatever in the stomach, nor perhaps any of the usual symptoms of stomach weakness. Nervous dyspepsia shows itself not in the stomach so much as in nearly every organ. In some cases the heart palpitates and is irregular; in others the kidneys are affected; in others the bowels are constipated, with headaches; still others are troubled with loss of flesh and appetite with accumulations of gas, sour risings and heartburn.

It is safe to say that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure any stomach weakness or disease except cancer of the stomach. They cure sour stomach, gas, loss of flesh and appetite, sleeplessness, palpitation, heartburn, constipation and headache.

Send for valuable little book on stomach diseases by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich. All druggists sell full-sized packages at 50 cents. Prof. Henry W. Becker, the well known religious worker and writer of St. Louis, Secretary of the Mission Board of the German Methodist church. Chief Clerk and Expert Accountant for the Harbor and Wharf Commission. Public Secretary for the St. Louis School Patrons' Association, and the District Conference of Stewards of the M.E. church; also takes an active part in the work of the Epworth League, and to write on religious and educational topics for several magazines. How he found relief is best told in his own words:

"Some weeks ago my brother heard me say something about indigestion, and taking a box from his pocket said 'Try Stuart's Tablets.' I did and was promptly relieved. Then I investigated the nature of the tablets and became satisfied that they were made of just the right things and in just the right proportions to aid in the assimilation of food. I heartily endorse them in all respects, and I keep them constantly on hand."

One More Seat Vacated.

In view of the several resignations which have taken place and the heavy penalties attached to sitting and voting illegally, he decided to resign and stand for re-election.

She finally discovered a way of recovery, by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking first dose, that she slept all night: and with two bottles, has been absolutely cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz.' Thus writes W. C. Hamnick & Co., of Shelby, N. C. Sold by all Druggists at 50 cents and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed.

MOONLIGHT IN MUSIC.

Story of How Beethoven Created His Wonderful Sonata.

Beethoven's famous composition, the "Moonlight Sonata," is said to have been composed under the following circumstances:

One evening, as Beethoven and a friend were hurrying through the streets of Bonn, they heard the familiar notes of the "Sonata In F." Something in the musician's touch attracted the attention of Beethoven, and he stopped and listened. Suddenly the music stopped, and the despairing words of the musician came to them through the open window, "Oh, if I could but hear some really good musician play this wonderful piece!" and the words ended in a sob.

"Let us go in," said Beethoven. They entered and found the player a young girl, poor and blind. Beethoven sat down at the old harpsichord and played as he had never played before. His listeners were spellbound. "Tell us," they begged, "who are you?" For answer he played the opening bars in the "Sonata In F." "It is Beethoven!" they exclaimed in awe and admiration.

Suddenly the candle flickered and went out. Beethoven ceased playing and bowed his head upon his hand. His friend threw open the shutters. A flood of beautiful moonlight entered the room. Its transfiguring light touched up the poor old instrument and rested upon the noble figure bowed before it. The profound silence was broken at last by the musician, who said: "Listen! I will improvise a sonata to the moonlight." Then was created this wonderful sonata, beginning in a sad, tender movement, the embodiment in sound of the gentle moonlight transfiguring and glorifying the dark earth.

Suddenly the music ceased, and with a brief farewell Beethoven hurried home to put upon paper this famous composition.—Philadelphia Saturday Post.

HUMAN SACRIFICES

On the Altar of Diabetes, Saved by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Only.

Hardly a family in the country is free from Diabetes. Great thirst, failing sight, numbness in the thighs, bleeding gums, swollen ankles, emaciation, nervousness, pale or turbid urine, loss of sexual power, decaying teeth, pains in the loins or small of the back, are all positive signs that Diabetes is in the system.

Do you know how it ends? In Death. A premature, horrible, agonized, pitiful death. The victim has no peace, no ease in life. His days are filled with tortures. His nights are waking dreams of agony. He longs to die, yet fears the terrors of his end. He dies, a bloated, fetid, repulsive mass of corruption. That is the only end of unchecked Diabetes. Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it. They drive it out of the system thoroughly, create new, clean blood, rebuild the diseased kidneys, and restore robust health.

A NEW INVENTION

The Newcombe Piano Has It.

It consists of a Patented Practice CLAVIER or STOP which diminishes the tone when required and saves wear on the Piano; it also does away with the old way of having to press down the pedal with the foot in order to soften the tone when running the scales or practicing. Oftentimes the young pupil on the piano cannot press down on the pedal without throwing themselves out of the proper position when they should sit erect. This invention in the NEWCOMBE PIANO will enable children to begin two years earlier on the piano. In addition to the above, the NEWCOMBE PIANO is the finest made in Canada. Children often complain about practicing; they like it if they have a NEWCOMBE PIANO. 1898 styles are gems of art, containing every late improvement; they possess that beautiful full sweet tone which delights the singer, and so pleases every musical ear. Organs of every description at Wholesale Prices.

Big Bargains now on hand in slightly used. Upright and Square Pianos of the various makes taken in part exchange for the famous NEWCOMBE PIANOS. Every NEWCOMBE PIANO has a new registered scale and the warranty is cast in the plate. STARVING IN A BED UPHOLSTERED WITH GOLD.

AN ASHBURNHAM WIDOW'S ABJECT AVARICE.

She Prefers Money to Comfort in Life—Starving Amidst Squalor—Abundant Money—Over $2,000 Concealed in Her Bed—Fixed Income of $300 a Year.

We have often read incidents which we are prone to regard as largely romances, of avaricious persons dying of starvation in the possession of large wealth, but it is not often that such a case turns up at our very doors, as in the case of Mrs. John Clifford, Lake street, Ashburnham.

A few days ago the tenant who occupies half of the tenement in which she resides or rather stays, reported her apparently destitute condition to Mr. Alex. Fitzgerald, village constable. He in turn reported the matter to Reeve Adams, who proceeded to investigate. On Saturday night the poor woman was found sick and starving in the midst of the utmost squalor and destitution. She was living alone, with hardly any furniture, without any food in the place, and with no fire to cook it nor any one to prepare it, if there had been any. The was indescribable, which was no new revelation to the village, for last year, the Board of Health found it their duty to have the place cleaned and disinfected.

Messrs. John Collins and Alex. Fitzgerald visited the place and upon investigation found concealed about the bed the large sum of $2,032 10. Of this sum $180 was in gold, consisting of guineas, sovereigns and odd foreign gold coins, $300 in ten-dollar bills and the balance in twos and ones and silver. The money was brought to Mr. Adams, the reeve, who took legal advice, and the money has been deposited in the bank to Mrs. Clifford's credit. Mrs. Clifford is at present very ill and old—about 85 years—and to all appearances cannot live long—unless she takes a fancy to pay off a church mortgage with an annuity attachment, which has previously had the effect, apparently, of prolonging her life. Over twenty years ago her late husband, to the Murray street Baptist church to assist in lifting the mortgage, on condition that ten per cent. be paid to his widow during her life, which at that time, according to human calculation, was likely to last only a few years. But she has lived over twenty years, and judged by her vitality which has withstood the effects of her wretched surroundings so long, she is likely to live many years yet. At any rate the bequest has cost the church over $4,000, which has been paid in interest since it was made. Mrs. Clifford either had no pressing need, or an unlimited faith in the solvency of the church, for the cheques representing the interest, generally made in May or June, would frequently not be cashed till the following October.

JOHN CLIFFORD BEQUEATHED $2 000

HOCKEY.

The Colts-Parkdale match, which was to have been played in Toronto to-night, has been postponed till Wednesday on account of soft ice.

The two games played between Waterloo and the Toronto Rowing Club resulted in a tie, which is to be played off on Wednesday next on neutral ice in Guelph. Peterborough will play the winners the following week, and if Waterloo wins, a big excursion will be run from here to that town by the hockey club.

Norwood plays here to-night in the return game with the intermediates. The local team will line up as follows: Goal, Wasson; point, Reynolds; cover point, Roger Davidson; forwards, B Bellecheem, W Crossley, H Morgan and R Watt, capt. An attack of la grippe has incapacitated Glover, who will not be able to play.

It is expected that Osgoode will default to the senior team not rendering it necessary for them to go to Toronto to play a return game. The score of 18 to 1 is too large for the legalities to attempt to overcome it. As Waterloo will probably win out from the Toronto Rowing Club team, the western boys may be expected here to play the first game of the second round on Thursday, January 26th. The Peterboroughs will then go to Waterloo the week following.

Lindsay will play here on Friday evening in the event of the intermediates winning from Norwood to-night. The return match will be played in Lindsay on the Wednesday following.

The Colts have arranged to have a special practice after the intermediate game to-night. All members of the Colts are requested to be on hand.

TOWN TOPICS.

The Council should not delay long in turning up the correspondence upon the subject of securing the water front south of Charlotte street for the town. As is well known, there were difficulties in the way of bringing negotiations to a successful completion at the time of the deputation's visit to the Commissioner of Crown Lands. It is well known that he acquiesced in the desire of the deputation, but he cannot be expected to take the initiative. It remains for the council to take the action necessary to remove the impediments that stand in the way of the conveyance of the water front to the town. It's in the power of the council now.

The people expect from the new council that they will leave no effort unemployed to bring about every condition that will contribute to the advancement of the material interests of the town. Even, apparently, minor matters should not be ignored. One matter that bears upon the settled policy of the people, to encourage and attract ouside organization and outsiders to the town, is involved in the terms of the contract to be made under the market bylaw. A clause should be inserted in the contract with market lessee, reserving to the town the right to grant the use of the market hall for important public occasions and gatherings, such as the recent bench show, which was the means of putting no little amount of outside money in circulation in the town as represented by the money left here in the shape of the expenses of visitors, their purchases, etc., which from the fact of the prizes being paid here represents about all of the money paid out in prizes. Then the coming exhibition of the Poultry Association, and the grand Provincial Poultry Show to be held here next year are instances affording reasons why the market should be available for such occasions. This may be thought by some a small matter, but it is not the amount of compensation that has to be made to the market lessee, that is the chief consideration. It is the spirit of spontaneous welcome which, under the conditions suggested, the town can extend to visitors, and the knowledge that the town through its representatives is prepared to heartily welcome outsiders, that makes the chief merit of the propositions. We want to be in a position to put aside every possible impediment, however small, to the bringing of gatherings, great and small, to the town. Visitors to the town are not only a direct benefit, but their visit will help to make the beauty and attractions and advantages of the town known over an area in proportion to extent of the district from which such gatherings are convened.

Another matter, and one of the first importance in relation to the advancement of the town, is that of making arrangements for the securing of power for manufacturing purposes, which the town can use as a bait to attract industries. The importance of this cannot be over-estimated, nor the necessity of prompt action. As was pointed out in these columns a short time ago, we should have had now established in the town, a substantial and important industry, if, a month ago, the town had had a few hundred horse power to put at its disposal. And similar chances will pass us by so long as we are without available power to offer to manufacturers seeking a site and cheap power. There are between Peterborough and Burleigh Falls water powers without number, almost, some of which may be secured by the town and used to convert water energy into easily transmitted electrical energy, equal to all the needs of the town. We now pay nearly $6,000 a year for electric street lighting—$5,880. This amount capitalized at 5 per cent. represents nearly $120,000. For this sum a water power could, doubtless, be purchased and equipped that would furnish light to the town to the value of $6,000 and leave a large supply of power to be disposed of to the encouragement of manufacturers. This matter is not a difficult one—the chief thing is to act, and act promptly.

Another subject that should also receive consideration is legislation required by the town. We have to go to the Legislature this session to secure special enactment. While we are at it we should make one act cover all our needs—one that would give us power to deal with all the problems that will be likely to confront an energetic council in its efforts to advance the interests of the town, so that if special power is needed, as it will surely be from time to time, expense need not be incurred and valuable time wasted in seeking special legislation. Let the broadest legislation needed be secured at this session, and then, in this respect, the council will be equipped with power to deal with any emergencies that are likely to arise. To this end special attention and mature consideration should be given the legislation the town should seek.

We have confidence that the present council is prepared to grapple with public business and keep it in hand—to push public business and not have public business push them.

SERIOUS DAMAGE BY WATER.

C. B. Routley's Fancy Goods Business Suddenly Interrupted by an Overflow From a Waterpipe.

Trouble comes in more ways than one, but in no more aggravated form could it come than in the serious damage by which Mr. C. B. Routley's store has sustained since Saturday night. When the store was opened early this morning water was pouring down through the ceiling upon the goods in the front portion of the ground floor, and pools of water were formed all over this part of the store. The damage is very heavy and Mr. Routley says the goods flooded are almost all rendered useless by water. They consist of school books, stationery, leather goods, albums, dolls, etc., etc. Large portions of the plaster from the ceiling had also became detached by the great flood of water, and fell upon the china goods, glassware and fancy articles, completely ruining whole tables full of such stock and smashing a new cash register and many other articles.

Under the circumstance Mr. Routley has been compelled to close his store for two days to repair the store and adjudge his damage.

The loss will fall heavily on Mr. Routley as, of course, he had no protection against water damages of this nature. The loss will reach about $1,000 as far as could be ascertained. Mr. Routley will have the sympathy of his customers and the public under such harassing circumstances.

LA GRIPPE.

And a Simple Suggested Remedy.

Grippe literature is now in order, and the American papers are full of it. As the unpleasant visitor is with us, it may be well to note that the New York health authorities are publishing directions as to the best means of fighting the pestilence, and suggesting simple remedies within the reach of all. The public is informed that during the great influenza epidemic in London in 1889 the board of health of that city advised the public afflicted with the disease to make an abundant use of hot lemonade. The perspiration caused thereby is in most cases sufficient to remove severe colds and the consequent complications, thus doing away with quinine or other drugs, which often leave unpleasant results. In bronchial troubles the acid of lemons relieves the irritation of the throat, acting at the same time as a natural disinfectant. Fresh lemon juice, even when diluted in small proportions with water, will kill any therein contained cholera bacillus; hence it is not surprising that it will also destroy the so-called influenza bacillus. A very simple, and, according to his own showing, potent remedy, is suggested by Mr. Angell, of Boston, the editor of "Dumb Animal," who calls attention to the fact that recently, when it was known that there were 100,000 cases of grippe in New York, he found that not one of the employees of a large match factory were troubled with the disorder, and he advances the theory that if people place half a teaspoonful of powdered sulphur in their shoes they will escape the pestilence. Mr. Angell says:—

I have at various times told how many at Memphis, Tennessee (including the agents of "The Howard Benevolent Association") escaped the terrible epidemic of yellow fever there, by wearing powdered sulphur in their shoes,—also the evidence of a distinguished German medical writer, translated into English, that wearing sulphur in this way has proved a complete protection against cholera and other epidemic diseases,—also that those working the sulphur mines of Italy escape the malaria which prevails all about them,—also that sulphur in the shoes has cured various cases of rheumatism.

A BAILLIEBORO WEDDING.

Marriage of Miss Edith Waterman and Mr. G. Whittington, of South Monaghan.

At Christ church, Baillieboro, at four o'clock, Wednesday, January 4th, a happy wedding was celebrated, when Miss Edith Waterman, eldest daughter of Mr. Wm. Waterman, South Monaghan, was united in marriage to Mr. Geo. Whittington, also of South Monaghan. Both bride and groom are well known and highly popular, and considerable interest was attached to the nuptials.

Ven. Archdeacon Allen, of Millbrook, performed the ceremony. The church was artistically decorated with flowers and green foliage and the scene was a very pretty one. About thirty of the immediate friends of the contracting parties were present. The bride was given away by her uncle, Mr. F. Waterman, of Baillieboro.

The bride was attired in an elegant wedding gown of cream crepeline, trimmed with pearls, ribbon and lace, and was assisted by her sister, Miss Alice, who was becomingly attired in Cuban blue, trimmed with silk chiffon. Mr. H. B. Wood, of Benefort, assisted the groom.

After the conclusion of the ceremony the wedding party repaired to the residence of the bride's father, where after felicitous congratulations the guests sat down to a rich and bountiful wedding repast. After spending a very pleasant social evening the happy couple left for their future home, followed by the good wishes of their many friends.

The many costly and useful presents indicate the high esteem in which the bride was held by her numerous friends.

OBITUARY.

Mr. W. C. McCrea, of the Business College, Passes Away after a Brief Illness.

The death occurred this morning of William Clarence McCrea, aged 22, of an acute attack of inflammation.

The deceased was teaching in the business College on Thursday, but shortly after returning to his residence in Ashburnham was prostrated by an attack of the illness referred to. After suffering intensely for three days he succumbed on Sunday morning.

Mr. McCrea was born in the county, being a son of the late Dr. McCrea of Keene. About five years ago he espoused Miss Mein of that village, and shortly afterwards purchased the Peterborough Business College with Mr. Pringle. He was of a quiet and retiring disposition, but amongst his friends held a high place in their esteem through his strict integrity and uprightness of character.

The funeral will take place from his late residence, Ashburnham, to the Grand Trunk station at noon on Wednesday. Interment will take place in Keene with Masonic honours.

CHURCH CHIMES.

Rev. O. C. Elliott of the Park street church, occupied the pulpit of the Murray street church last evening.

The morning anthem in the Murray street Baptist church was entitled "Saviour, Source of Every Blessing." The solos were taken by Miss Hutchinson and Mr. Martin.

Rev. Mr. Bullock of Buxton Pond, Quebec, conducted services yesterday morning in the Murray street Baptist church and in the evening at the Park street church. His addresses were on the subject of the Grand Ligne Mission, and proved most interesting.

The morning anthem, entitled "Nearer my God to Thee," Lask, was sweetly rendered by the George street choir, Miss Clara Bellegham taking the solo passages in excellent style. During the offering Mr. Frank Turner sang the solo "Tolling Bells."

Sunday evening the hymn-anthem, "To Prayer," was excellently sung by the choir of the George street church, the shading and expression being especially noticeable. Mr. Aitken of Rochester, sang very sweetly the solo "Guard while I Sleep."—Warrington.

ST. JOHN'S.

At the conclusion of the evening service in St. John's church last night a large congregation remained to listen to the well rendered programme of sacred music, the same as that printed in Saturday's EXAMINER except that Mrs. Seward, having a bad cold, did not sing. Solos were given by Miss Lily Jackson and Messrs. Harold Clinton and H. Murphet and an anthem by the choir.

ST. LUKE'S CHURCH.

Preaching in St. Luke's yesterday morning from the text "Here have we no continuing city, but we seek one to come," Rev. H. Symonds said:—"I have brought these thoughts before you this morning, because we have been reminded once more of the uncertainty of life by the death of Rev. J. W. McCreary, a former rector of this church. Like its first rector, he has been taken away in the prime of his life. Of his work here I have not sufficient knowledge to speak fully, but I have not seldom heard members of this congregation speak of him in terms that prove his pulpit ministrations to have been helpful to the people. He was a man always in delicate health. None but those who are of frail constitution can estimate the burden involved in the performance of the daily task in constant ill health. Surely in such cases it is not a sad, but a hopeful, thought that 'Here we have no continuing city, but that we seek one to come,' when under other circumstances and free from the burden of the flesh, the work of ministering may be carried on. Let us, too, extend our warmest sympathies to the faithful partner of his health and sickness. We are sure that Divine consolation will be vouchsafed to one who has so truly accepted the yoke of Christ."

CHRISTIAN CITIZENSHIP.

At the afternoon lecture to men in St. John's church yesterday, Rev. Mr. Stevenson referred to the "Privileges and responsibilities of citizenship." He counselled his audience to value and uphold the privileges which modern citizenship confers. It might be asked, why should such a subject form the topic of discussion in a Christian pulpit? The answer to this was that it must be recognised that the work of Christianity was for the development of the individual, and for the improvement of the conditions of life generally. The force which promotes this must be profoundly religious and the religion which does not involve that idea is not a religion upon which we can rely. But Christianity is a social force. Some essentials of the ideal citizen mentioned by the speaker were:—

I. Patriotism—the love of our country, loyalty to its sovereigns, a confidence in the principles underlying its institutions, and all this without any necessary reflections upon other nations, or forms of government. There is a form of pharasaic loyalty much to be deprecated, which not only appreciates its own privileges but despises all who are beyond the wave of the nation's flag,

II. A value and reverence for the privilege of citizenship, chiefly the franchise. We express our opinion of public questions and public concern by the use of the ballot yet men seek to prostitute that privilege by buying and selling the franchise of the subject. Or again, we are too much inclined to keep out of politics altogether. "They are not for us." "Let some one else do all that," "Public life is too bad." All the more reason, then, that the Christian should be found there. If the decent, respectable, upright and honourable citizens of any community are not willing to share the responsibilities of the government of their community, then God help that community.

III. A good citizen must be a producer for the community. If he is an idler, the community must be the poorer, not the richer, for his presence.

IV. Above all, the Christian citizen shall carry Christ and the principles of Christ into the life of the community, and strive to see both reflected in its government.

MARK STREET CHURCH NOTES.

On Sunday morning a very impressive memorial service was conducted by the pastor, in memory of the late Mr. Jas. A. Dixon, a highly respected member of the congregation and of the trustee board. Mr. Moore chose as his text, "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His Saints," and gave a very instructive and helpful discourse. There was a large attendance at the service. In the evening Mr. Moore again occupied the pulpit.

A pleasing incident took place at the Sunday school on Sunday afternoon, when Mr. Joy, one of the church trustees, presented a handsome platform desk to the school. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Joy for his kind interest, manifested in such a thoughtful and tangible manner.

The E. L. meets this evening at eight o'clock. The newly-elected president, Mr. C. Crowe, will conduct the meeting and as an interesting topic will be presented.

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid will be held at the parsonage on Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 18, at three o'clock.

A meeting of all the teachers and officers of the Sunday school will be held in the basement on Saturday evening, at 7 o'clock sharp, to arrange the library, select books, etc. It is hoped all will be on hand.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Demise of Mr. William J. Hazlitt—Relatives Received Word of the Sad Event.

Mr. John Hazlitt, of Otonabee, received word Saturday of the sudden death of his second son, Mr. William J. Hazlitt, at the hospital, Winnipeg. Mr. Hazlitt has been in the West for some years and sudden death from la grippe will be a severe shock to his friends and family. The body will arrive in Peterborough early in the week and will be interred in the Little Lake Cemetery. The funeral will be private.

MY LADY NICOTINE.

The Alleged Effects of Tobacco and Its Enormous Consumption.

Probably no pleasure of life has had its praises so much sung as smoking.

Here is the other side. Doctors say tobacco used in excess produces:

Palpitation of the heart, muscular tremblings, weakness and paralysis of the legs, dizziness of the head, noises in the ears, cold perspiration all over the body, colicky pains in the stomach, inability to exert the mind, congested and sore throat, furning of the tongue, dry and parched mouth, tartar and blackness of the teeth, confusion of sight, catarrh of the stomach, catarrh of the throat and nose, sallow complexion, very bad dyspepsia, lopsided mouth, nervous anxiety, cancer of the lips, diminished appetite, pale and anæmic gums, loss of memory, omission of every fifth pulse beat, ruin of the will power, irritability of temper, extreme and incurable melancholy, restlessness and sleeplessness, blindness and deafness, apoplexy and paralysis, convulsions and death.

In the case of children it stunts their growth, when a person is consumptive it hastens his death, when the heart is weak it almost completely stops the beating, when you have a cough tobacco keeps it going for weeks, and it interferes with singing and swallowing.

Yet about 1,500,000,000 pounds of it are smoked every year.—New York World.

Worthy of Whistler.

As an artist Jack Gamble is considered as independent as he is successful. He possesses an unlimited quantity of candor, upon the expression of which he places no restraint. He is much liked notwithstanding, and was not long ago offered a commission to paint the portrait of a certain wealthy man, whose features are more remarkable for their bloom than for their refinement. Jack critically scanned the broad features of his proposed subject.

"Upon one condition will I paint you," he declared dramatically.

"What!" gasped the amazed Croesus, speechless at the effrontery of this poverty stricken artist.

"Yes," pursued Gamble, with easy grace. "Upon condition that I shall be allowed to put in a little intelligence."

And the funny part of it was that Jack got the commission.—San Francisco News Letter.

ROBERTS' WOES.

Congressman Roberts is generally known as "That Husband of Ours" to Mrs. Roberts in the plural number.—Los Angeles Times.

It must be rather embarrassing to a Utah politician to have his wives get to debating over which of them made him the man he is today.—Washington Star.

American women will oppose the efforts of Brigham Roberts to take his seat in congress as a representative from Utah. They probably feel that a man with a plurality of wives cannot retain the serenity of mind necessary to lawmaking.—St. Louis Republic.

WOMEN'S WAYS.

Never contradict a woman. Give her time and she'll contradict herself.—New York World.

Every woman has a vague idea that all her husband does every day is to open his office, read, smoke and count his money.—Atchison Globe.

A writer on dancing estimates that 12 waltzes are equal to about 14 miles of heel and toe work. And yet many a girl who is too frail to walk down into the kitchen can cover about 16 miles of ballroom floor per evening.—London Judy.

Early Accidents

Cause Lifelong Suffering. A Case that is Causing Talk.

When a lad about eight years of age I fell into a cellar a distance of ten feet, striking on my head, and causing concussion of the brain. I was taken to a London, Eng., Hospital, the first seven days not recovering consciousness. I am now 35 years old and from the time of my accident until I began taking Dr. Ward's Pills five months ago I had been subject to fainting spells, never being more than two weeks without an attack of fainting. As I grew older these spells became more frequent, lasted longer, and left me with less vitality. I was weak, had no strength or stamina, always very low-spirited and down-hearted; imagined that every thing and every person was going against me, and life only had a dark side for me. My appetite was poor most of the time, but I am now happy to say that, since taking Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills, I have only had one fainting spell, shortly after I began taking them, so I have no hesitation in saying that Dr. Ward's Pills cured me. Before taking these pills I always looked for a fainting spell not more than two weeks apart; now, I would be greatly surprised at a recurrence of these spells. Life is now bright—the constant, morbid, down-hearted feeling is gone, being replaced by a contented, hopeful feeling. I feel like working. My appetite is good, and in every respect I have experienced the health and strength restoring properties of Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills. They certainly have proved a great blessing to me. Yours truly, (Signed), Thomas Stanton, Brighton, Ont.

Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills are sold at 50c. per box, 5 boxes for $2.00 at druggists, or mailed on receipt of price by The Doctor Ward Co., Limited, Toronto.

ONE WORD AN AGGRAVATION.

Many of Us Have Bumped Against It, Much to Our Sorrow.

They had been smoking in silence for some time when the one in the corner by the window finally spoke up.

"If I had my way," he said, "there is one word in the English language that I would entirely eliminate. I would yank it out and put a charge of dynamite under it and blow it into fragments. Then I would bury the pieces and put a two ton slab of granite over the grave."

"Has some girl been saying 'No' to you?" asked the facetious man with the pipe.

"I would have no grudge against the world if she had," answered the man by the window. "'No' is a straightforward, honest word that commands respect, however much it may thwart us at times."

"Some of the slang words that become popular are excessively annoying," suggested the man by the fireplace.

"It's not a slang word," was the answer. "It's a word in good and regular standing and always has been. It is not a word that is often misused either. But it is an underhanded, roundabout, deceitful combination of three letters."

"What is the word?" they demanded.

"'But,'" was the prompt answer. "Just the contrary, intrusive little word 'but.' It's always getting in the way and interfering with a man's plans without showing any of the boldness that commends other words to us even when they do us a bad turn. Take it when a man proposes. If the girl says 'no' he may be pretty badly broken up, but he has no feeling of resentment against the word. But if she says, 'Mr. Jones, I esteem you very highly; I may say that I have a deep affection for you, but'— why, he instantly has a strong desire to get an ax and chop the word out of the dictionary. 'But' is the word that stands between me and success; that always has stood there. I once had a chance to make a deal that would have netted me a large sum of money, but it required more of a preliminary outlay than I could provide. I stated my needs to a friend with cash and after due consideration he said, 'My boy, you know how high a regard I have for you and how much I would like to help you out in this matter, but'— And there I was again!

"Another time I wrote a story and sent it to a magazine. The editor held it up for about two months and then sent it back with a personal letter in which he said that 'the story was one of great merit, having an excellent idea underlying it and being well told, but'— Same old thing, you see. If he had merely said he could not use the story I would have had no grudge against the word. Again, a rich uncle came to see me just about Christmas time one year, and before leaving he remarked, 'By the way, I intended to bring you a check for $100 as a sort of reminder of the season, but'— I tell you, the meanest, most disappointing word in this language is spelled b-u-t."

There was a silence when he ceased speaking. Every one seemed to be buried in thought. Then one of them said, "I guess that's right," and all the others nodded.

WONDROUS REMEDY.

Is what a London Doctor Calls Dodd's Kidney Pills.

London, Jan. 9.—A large decrease in the number of cases of Kidney Disease has been noted in this city during the past year.

"There's only one thing to be said about it," said a prominent physician speaking on the subject the other day.

"This falling off is due solely to the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills by the people. Dodd's Kidney Pills are the most wondrous kidney remedy ever known. They are used in nearly every household, which accounts for the great decrease of Kidney Complaint."

Pulse Alarm.

Wife (time, midnight)—Hark! Husband, wake up! I hear the rustling of silk and the clang of chains.

Husband—You do? Horrors! Then the reports are true. I was told this house was haunted.

Wife (much relieved)—Oh, is that all? I was afraid that Fido had broken loose and was tearing my new ball dress.—London Fun.

Green is the color most beneficial to the eye in diffused light and reds and pinks the most harmful. In a strong direct light, however, blue and neutral tints are the best for the eyes and pure white the most harmful, as is proved by the phenomenon snow blindness.

THE GOLD IN THE ORE

HOW IT IS SEPARATED FROM THE BASER METALS.

Details of the Interesting Processes. Alike the Wide World Over, By Which Gold Is Assayed and Mine Values Are Determined.

Imagine a gold mine. You may select many climates—Siberia or Africa, Klondike or Australia, California or India. Situate your mine where you will. So long as it be a gold mine the procedure of assaying is the same all the wide world over. Select a mass of ore weighing, perhaps, 50 pounds, and smash it up. Do not expect to see any gold in it because the precious metal is probably so thinly and uniformly scattered through the quartz that it is impossible to spot a grain together. Continue grinding the ore till it is in the form of powder. This powder is heaped into a cone, which is divided into four parts, of which the sampler takes two whose angles are opposite to one another. Mix these two parts thoroughly and again divide into four; take two portions again, and so on till a sample of convenient bulk is obtained. By this logical method the sample yielded is, on any ordinary calculation of probability, certain to represent accurately the original mass taken.

A certain quantity of this sample is now weighed out, two equal amounts being taken as checks upon each other. The weighing may be done in denominational values of either grams or assay tons. The assay ton is a most convenient invention and is very simply explained. The ordinary ton contains 32,666.6 ounces; if, then, we make a unit (an assay ton) weighing 29.6667 grams, each .001 of a gram will equal one ounce per ton. Thus, no calculation is needed at all to estimate the gold richness of an ore per ton.

Say we weigh out, then, two separate portions of the ore of one assay ton (A. T.) each. With each mix thoroughly bicarbonate of soda, litharge, borax, glass and flour in varying proportions; when thoroughly uniform in color empty the mixtures in fire clay crucibles and screw on the top a thin layer of salt. Put on the lids of the two crucibles and surround them with living coal, coke or burning vaporized bensoline in a crucible furnace. The crucibles are heated till the masses of ore and fluxes are in a state of tranquil fusion—that is, not bubbling or boiling. The white hot fluid is then poured into iron molds and allowed to cool.

On examination, after cooling, the fused masses will be found to consist of: (1) A layer of white substance, which is salt. (2) A slag. This is usually dark in color, often resembling malachite, and is formed by the fusion of the borax and soda with the worthless or earthy matter (gangue) in the ore. (3) A lead button, produced from the litharge, or lead oxide, originally mixed in the charge.

This lead button contains all the silver and gold in the ore. The heat of the furnace drives off from the lead oxide its oxygen, so that pure lead is left; this, in virtue of its weight, percolates downward through the slag during the heating in the furnace, collecting all the gold and silver present, and eventually forms a button weighing, if a proper amount of flour has been added originally, about 16 to 20 grams. The flour has the effect of varying the size of lead button produced and is said to possess a reducing action.

The next step in the process is to get rid of the lead without also losing the gold and silver. This is done by an operation known as cupellation. The cupel is a small round, bone ash cup, which is placed in a sort of fire clay tunnel with one end closed up, known as a muffle. The muffle is heated from the outside, either by burying it with coals or by playing burning gas on every part of it. When the cupel has attained the heat of the interior of the muffle, the lead button is placed in it and the door of the muffle shut, so as to procure the greatest amount of heat possible. When the lead is seen to be melted and fuming, the muffle door is opened to admit the air, which is sucked in by the intense heat.

The oxygen contained in the air oxydizes the lead into lead oxide, and the bone ash cupel absorbs lead oxide like a sponge, but refuses to absorb the gold and silver, so that at length there is left in the cupel only a button of the two precious metals. It is to be supposed that two ore samples have been treated similarly both in the crucibles and cupels, but for the sake of convenience it is better to explain the treatment of one only. The bead of gold and silver obtained weighs, let us say, .0016 of a gram. This is noted down. The bead after weighing is flattened out in a flatting mill, so as to expose as large a surface as possible to the nitric acid which is then added to it. On heating the silver is dissolved, but, of course, the gold is untouched by the action of any single acid. The remaining pure gold is treated with stronger acid, called "parting acid," to drive off any suspected trace of silver, and then washed with water.

If the "parting" of the gold from the silver has been successful, the gold is left as a thin, small sheet. From this all moisture is driven off by heat. On weighing, the gold may be as heavy as .0007 of a gram. Then, as it has previously been noted that the total gold and silver bead had weighed .0016 of a gram, the weight of silver present must have been .0009 of a gram—that is to say, in one assay ton of 29.6667 grams there are .0007 gram of gold and .0009 gram of silver. It has been stated at the commencement of this article that in an assay ton each .001 of a gram represents in a real tone one ounce. Therefore we have seven-tenths of an ounce of gold—that is, 14 pennyweights (20 dwt. equal 1 oz.)—and nine-tenths of an ounce of silver—that is, 18 pennyweights—to the ton. Quod erat faciendum.

Many minor processes, such as roasting, scorification and inquartation, enter into the work done in an assay; but it has been desirable to make the process as clear and free from complication as possible, and for this reason a simple ore has been selected. Of course the results obtained from two assay tons assayed simultaneously ought to be coincident with one another, and this is why two assay tons have been supposed to be treated together in the above explanation.—Chambers' Journal.

Glorious News.

Comes from Dr. D. B. Cargile, of Washita, I. T. He writes: "Four bottles of Electric Bitters has cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula, which had caused her great suffering for years. Terrible sores would break out on her head and face, and the best doctors could give no help; but her cure is complete and her health excellent." This shows what thousands have proved—that Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for tetanus, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It stimulates liver, kidney and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion builds up the strength. Only 50 cents. Sold by all druggists, every bottle guaranteed.

DYING BY INCHES!

But Dodd's Kidney Pills will Yet Renew Life.

Thousands of persons die in the prime of life because doctors think Bright's Disease and Diabetes incurable. But Dodd's Kidney Pills cure them both. They have cured thousands of cases.

These diseases and other Kidney complaints are as common as ordinary colds. But people don't realize that they are afflicted till the disease has eaten deep into the system. Even then, Dodd's Kidney Pills will positively cure.

Thousands of people are dying on their feet, but do not realize it. They notice one or more of these symptoms: shortness of breath, loss of memory, failing sight, ravenous appetite, pale or reddish urine, with brick-colored deposit, scalding when urinating, constipation, nervousness, pains in the loins. Their only hope is Dodd's Kidney Pills. They won't fail. They never do.

GLEANINGS.

A society has been formed in Paris whose business it will be to furnish a fourteenth guest for dinner parties numbering 13 guests.

On the cover of a prairie wagon which passed through Manhattan, Kan., the other day was painted this notice: "Not bound for Missouri. Not busted. Not going to wife's folks. Just doing this to beat the railroads."

The word sirdar, which has been so frequently seen since the exploits of Lord Kitchener of Khartum, is, according to the Paris Figaro, a contraction of the Arabic words "sayer ed dar." Sayer means inspector or watcher and dar means palace. Sayer ed dar would therefore mean "inspector of the palace."

What Might Happen.

Lord Blessington, the husband of the celebrated Countess of Blessington, had a horror of a draft. He was able—Count d'Orsay used to declare—to detect a current of air caused by the key being left crossways in the keyhole of the door. He and his wife and a youth were one day walking on the banks of the Thames. The boy, skipping backward and forward, went several times dangerously close to the edge of the bank.

"Take care! Take care!" cried Lord Blessington, exhibiting a degree of solicitude most unusual where another person was concerned. "For heaven's sake, mind what you are about, boy, or you'll certainly fall into the river!"

After two or three repetitions of his alarm in this fashion for the lad Lady Blessington, losing patience, said: "Oh, let the boy alone! If he does fall into the water, he swims like a fish."

"Yes, yes," said his lordship in injured tones, "that's all very well, but what about me? I shall catch my death of cold driving home in the carriage with him."—Argonaut.

A LITTLE PESSIMIST.

The sad little princess sat by the sea.
"Alas," she sighed, "and alackaday!"
And she rested her book upon her knee,
And her eyes gazed dreamily far away.

"All of my fairy tales end the same—
They lived, and they loved, and then they died—
The wicked enchanter's always to blame.
Oh, for something quite new!" she cried.
"I'm sick of my dolls with their china eyes,
I'm sick of reading of giants and things,
I'm tired to death of candies and pies,
I hate my crown and my golden rings."

And then her nurse felt of the royal head,
Looked at her tongue in a knowing way.
"Your highness had better come home to bed.
You've eaten too many plum tarts today."
—Isabel de Witte Kaplan in Ladies' Home Journal.

A Married Man's "If."

"If I were only half as smart as my little daughter thinks she is or as my wife thinks I am," mused the Benedict, "I'd be a pretty conceited individual. Now, last evening I played a game of checkers with my little girl, and, of course, I let her win. The result was that she grew about three inches in as many minutes and went to bed firmly convinced that she was the smartest girl in the whole city. Then I played a game with my wife, and when she saw she was getting the better of me she began to get cross.

"'Why don't you go ahead and beat me?' she asked. 'Do you think I'm an infant and you have to give me the game to keep me in good temper?'

"I tried to convince her that I was doing my best to win, but she wouldn't have it that way, and when she finally beat me she was mad clear through.

"'You know you could have beaten me if you wanted to,' she said, 'but you thought you had to humor me. I don't like it a bit, and I won't play another game with you tonight.'

"Yes, indeed," went on the Benedict, reverting to his preliminary statement, "if I were only as smart as my daughter thinks she is or as my wife thinks I am we would all wear diamonds and have a box at the opera."

"IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY."

To Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, North American Life Assurance Co., Toronto:

DEAR SIR,—Your official notice came duly to hand, appraising me of the results obtainable upon my 15 year endowment Policy in your Company for $1,000, which matured on the 5th inst. Of the various options you have given me viz.:

Cash value	$1,564 98
Paid-up Policy, payable at my death, for	2,560 00

I have decided upon the cash value; and it gives me pleasure to testify that, as I anticipated it would be when I took out the policy, IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY. This returns me the full premiums of the 15 years and over 4½ per cent. compound interest, in addition to which you have carried the risk upon my life. In view of the low ruling rates of interest which have been obtainable during the latter portion of the period, it is difficult to see how this excellent result could have been surpassed.

A Woman's Crime.

A THRILLING STORY OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE.

By LAWRENCE M. LYNCH.

Author of "John Arthur's Ward," "The Diamond Crescent," "Against Odds," Etc., Etc.

When Marks drove out of the stable-yard with the rickety old coach, Mr. Brady stood, with a huge travelling-bag beside him, ready for a start, and just as he took his seat Peterkin came scrambling downstairs, pack and all.

"Vait!" he shouted; "ton't you see me gomin'?"

Marks both saw and heard him, and soon Peterkin, too, sat within the coach, grinning complacently at Brady the while.

"I vill haf goompany on de vay," he said, affably; "ferry pleasand, ferry." But Mr. Brady scorned to reply.

When Dr. Austin came out to take his seat, great was his surprise, not to say annoyance, to find that Brady was his fellow-passenger. He wondered, too, that Peterkin had not informed him of his intentions to be his companion on the journey. He nodded stiffly to Brady, and then, as the coach rumbled off, addressed the German:—

"So you are going away, Peterkin; going far?"

"Koink do te pig down, sir. I haf god oud of everydinka."

"Oh, going to fill up your pack," said the doctor, and then he relapsed into silence. Presently he looked up, as if he had evolved an idea out of a medley of thought, and addressed Brady.

"You are not quitting Fairlie for good, Mr. Brady?" he enquired.

"Oh, no," said Brady, carelessly; "only taking a little run into the city. Do you go as far?"

"Why, yes. To-night is the first of Darley's famous course of medical lectures, and I would not miss them. Shall you attend, sir?"

"Hardly. I'm not much in that line."

"Too bad, really! I should like to have you attend to-night with me, it would seem social like."

"Oh! since you are so kind I may avail myself of the invitation. Where do you stop, doctor?"

"At the Sherman. Happy to see you there." Then the doctor took from his pocket a medical pamphlet and began to read.

When they arrived at the station, which they did, of course, half an hour too early, Doctor Austin watched for an opportunity to whisper to Peterkin:—

"Follow me to the platform; I want to speak with you."

He sauntered away in the direction indicated, and presently Peterkin lounged along.

"When you gave my message to the diver, Peterkin," said the doctor, gravely, "did anyone else hear you Think, now."

Peterkin looked down at his boots and up at the sky, and then said, slowly:—

"Vy, so help me gracious? I vend righd strighd in mid de dable, and dold dot tam vool so effery poty coot hear. Dit you dinks I vorgat him?"

"No," replied the doctor, smiling slightly. "Did—Mr. Brady hear you, Peterkin?"

Peterkin reflected. "Yaas," he said "I reggoleed, pecause I said id just before Mishter Prady god up und lefd de dables, und I sait he had lost his abbedide. Ho, ho, ho!"

"Just after you told Marks, he left the table, did he? Well, it's all right, Peterkin."

"Yah! id's all righd!" then in a lower tone still, "Loog here, to you lige Mishter Prady?"

"Do you, Peterkin?" retorted the doctor, somewhat taken aback by the enquiry.

"Nix! I ton'd. Und, loog here, he'sh a pad man, ton'd you haf nodinks to do vid him," and before the doctor could frame a reply, Peterkin waddled away, and never came near him again during the entire journey.

"Good heavens," muttered the doctor, "that's just what John—I mean that rascally detective—said. What can Peterkin know about Brady?"

But Peterkin gave him no chance to ask that question; neither did Brady appear over anxious to converse; and so they hurried on toward the city, the doctor busy with his own thoughts, Brady wrapped in a cloud of smoke, and Peterkin smoking and jabbering with every one who would talk or listen.

"Have a carriage, sir?" said a slouching looking fellow, appearing at Brady's elbow, as soon as his feet had touched the platform of the depot. "Carriage to any part of the city, sir." But Mr. Brady turned impatiently away, and seemed to be looking for some one in the crowd.

"Going my way?" asked Doctor Austin, affably, coming to the side of the Englishman.

"Well—no, doctor—I'm looking for a friend to meet me," replied Brady, still gazing about him.

"Carriage, sir," said the slouching man, pressing up to the doctor's side; but Doctor Austin grasped his little valise firmly, and hurried on. As he walked quickly away, Mr. Brady seemed to have abandoned all hope of finding his friend, for he set his face in the same direction, and followed in the wake of the doctor.

"Carriage, sir," said the slouching man to Peterkin, who now came shuffling along, not far behind Brady. "Carriage to any part of the city, sir." But Peterkin trudged along, and never heeded him.

Doctor Austin was the first to emerge from the depot. He looked up and down at the waiting hacks and brawling hackmen for a moment, and then motioned to one of the men, whispered an address in his ear, and entered the vehicle. Before the driver could mount his box, Mr. Brady stepped out from a sheltering doorway, and seizing the arm of a second driver, pointed to the first:—

"Do you see that man? follow him, quick; don't lose sight of that carriage an instant," he said, and springing into the carriage, closed the door behind him. At the same moment the slovenly man, who had clambered upon his box minus a fare, stooped to gather up his reins.

"Sthop till I gid in," cried a voice beside him. And looking down, the man beheld Peterkin, gesticulating strangely. "Loog here," said Peterkin. "To' you see dat hack? follow it like tam." And Peterkin pointed to the hack containing Mr. Brady, and then sprang within this one, so unceremoniously chartered by himself.

Away rolled the carriage containing Doctor Austin. Away rolled the second and pursuing carriage, containing Mr. Jason Bradwardine. And away rolled the third carriage, driven by Rob Jocelyn, who sat whistling upon the box, all unconscious that his passenger was the man of all others whom he most desired to see, Francis Ferrars, the English detective.

CHAPTER XXXI.

IN THE GREEN BOUDOIR.

Neil Bathurst had been baffled at the outset, in his search for Lenore. From the moment when she had passed out of the grounds of the asylum, not a trace of her could be find. He felt almost inclined to accept the statement of the insane girl, that she had flown "up, up, up," as truth. All the street-car conductors had been interviewed, but no one could remember having carried a passenger answering to the description of Lenore. The man who had carried Lenore, being the most obtuse of his kind, never once connected the handsome, well-dressed girl described by the detective with the passenger he had mentally set down as a "dowdy schoolgirl," for each man sees with his own eyes, and ever will. And so the first and only clue to Lenore's whereabouts was hopelessly lost. But the detective was far from being discouraged. One thing was now certain, Lenore Arnyn was in the city somewhere, and—she would not be apt to escape from the city. He had promptly summoned Rob Jocelyn to his assistance, and they had set themselves the task of cutting off the retreat of Lenore; if she presented herself at any depot, if she attempted to leave the city by any of the public thoroughfares, her arrest was certain. And, now, having made sure that she was within their circle, they began the narrowing process, a systematic search of the city must sooner or later unearth their game. Having decided upon this course of action, they commenced their work, vigorously.

Neil Bathurst had written the doctor, knowing that he would immediately be notified by Doctor Burton. He knew now that Lenore must rely upon her own resources. Doctor Austin was as ignorant of her whereabouts as was Bathurst himself. But he, Neil, did not doubt but that the doctor would come immediately to the city; and he felt equally sure that Jason Bradwardine would follow him as fast as possible. So Rob Jocelyn had stationed himself on the lookout, with what result we have seen in the last chapter.

Doctor Austin had driven straight to the asylum, followed of course by the other two carriages, and, as he had dismissed his carriage there, and entered, valise in hand, Bradwardine had very sensibly concluded that he would not be found at the "Sherman," and then had ordered his driver to take him to his Wabash avenue boarding-house, whither he was closely followed by Rob, and his eccentric fare.

When Peterkin had seen his game safely within the walls of his boarding-house, he had ordered Rob to drive him to the nearest German hotel; and this Rob did at once, wondering much what this "old Dutchman" could have in common with the elegant Jason Bradwardine.

"It's a queer lay-out," mused Rob, as he drove his horses stableward. "I shall run around and look after little Dutchy, as soon as possible."

But when Rob looked in at the "lager-beer house," "little Dutchy," with his pack, had vanished.

Of course Neil Bathurst was now satisfied that Lenore Arnyn had seen him, and his thoughts, naturally, reverted to his interview with Jess Warner when stating that Lenore had seemed to desire not to meet him. At his earliest opportunity he called upon the blonde widow, and a few judicious arguments convinced the lady that it would be to her interest not to attempt throwing any more straws in the way of Mr. Bathurst. She admitted that Lenore had seen him and described the occasion. Neil was not slow in making another discovery, which, although it was a side issue, at present, was interesting to him, namely, that Rob Jocelyn and Kate Seaton, during the three months of his absence, had become wonderfully good friends. One day, during a call at Mrs. Arteveldt's, Kate Seaton had put a note into Neil's hand, saying:—

"Here is a note, Mr. Bathurst, which Miss Durand gave me the last time she was here, and requested me to give to you."

Neil took the note from her hand, feeling not a little surprised, and he said, carelessly:—

"So Miss Durand and yourself are on very good terms, Miss Seaton?"

"I! N—No. Not exactly. Mr. Durand is a great friend of Miss Durand's; she calls here very often to see her."

Neil said no more, but he made this mental comment:—

"Miss Seaton and Miss Durand do not approve of each other."

Miss Durand's note was brief; it contained Miss Durand's compliments, and a request that Mr. Bathurst would call on her at his earliest convenience; the note was written on the daintiest of perfumed paper, and Neil thought that the handwriting was characterless and insipid in the extreme. Neil was a believer in the individuality of penmanship. On the day following the receipt of this note the young detective turned his steps in the direction of the Durand mansion.

"It's just as I expected," he muttered to himself, as he ascended the steps. "This Arteveldt affair has published me; now every one here will know me for the detective who tried at Durand's burglary case."

He entered the house, and was about to send his name up to Miss Durand, when Mr. Durand, the host, came down the stairs, and extended to him a warm welcome.

"Nonsense; he should not go up to Miss Aura's boudoir until he had chatted with him. Miss Aura could wait a little; he must come in and see Mrs. Durand. She was quite an invalid at present; nothing serious, of course, but a little company now and then cheered her."

There was no help for it. Neil was ushered into the presence of Mrs. Durand before he could frame an excuse. He was startled at the change in her. She was at best a fussy, nervous body, given to indulging in harmless maladies, but now she looked really ill.

Mrs. Durand belonged to that class of women who are fond of regaling their friends with a detailed account of their symptoms and sufferings; and she found Neil Bathurst an attentive listener. He even asked one or two questions, and when he arose to leave the invalid's room, his face seemed a shade graver than when he entered it. When they were safely out of hearing of the invalid, Neil turned to Mr. Durand, and said, in a low tone:—

"Mr. Durand, I must request a private interview with you as soon as I can find time for it. I am working night and day now. But there is a matter that must be put before you at the earliest possible moment. I called to-day by appointment with Miss Durand, I will not come here to see you, but I beg you, when I send for you, to meet me promptly, and without fail."

Without stopping for a reply, he signalled to the waiting servant, and requested to be shown to Miss Durand's presence.

A woman is never so womanly, so beautiful, so happy as when she is a mother. Yet motherhood is denied to some women and feared by others.

The fear of motherhood is rapidly passing away and nothing has done so much to drive it away as the record of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Dr. Pierce has held that danger and pain at the time of parturition were really unnecessary and unnatural, and that if every woman were healthy and strong as Nature meant her to be this function would be performed painlessly and safely. The abuse of centuries of corsets—of health destroying inactivity—of debilitating artificial life have made it impossible for some women to fully return to the perfect healthfulness of a natural state but every woman may be helped to a large degree. The organs directly involved may be strengthened, purified, invigorated for the time of trial and for this purpose Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been used with success by hundreds of thousands of women. It is the product of the skill and experience of a regularly graduated physician—a skilled specialist who for over thirty years has successfully treated the diseases of women.

Unlike many modern medicines Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription contains no whisky, alcohol, sugar, syrup, opium or narcotic of any kind and its use does not, therefore, create a craving for stimulants.

Mrs. Amelia Stanley of 1st Dundas St., Byron, Ont., writes: "I was troubled more than a number of years. Two years my health was very poor. I had three physicians, but none gave me relief. I was taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets.' I have much better health, and I now know a few words to say."

Revised Geography.

A correspondent reports an occurrence which took place at a night school.

"Williams," asked the instructor, "which is the largest island in the world?"

"It's either Asia or Africa," replied the young man to whom the question was addressed.

"I am speaking of islands, Williams. Those are continents."

"I think not, sir," drawled Williams. "When the Suez canal was cut, it made islands of both of 'em, sir. Come to think of it, sir, the largest is Asia and Europe. It's all one piece of ground."—Youth's Companion.

His First Client.

In an address delivered at Hartford the Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale told the story of James Russell Lowell's first client as Lowell had told it to him. Lowell had hardly opened his law office when a stranger appeared. The young lawyer deferentially offered him a chair, took out his notebook, talked of the weather, and when he finally came to business found the stranger was a bill collector.

"What will be the cost of the war?" asked Queen Augusta when French and Germans grew belligerent. "Only a Napoleon," replied Bismarck.

Belgium Will Fight Booze.

Brussels, Jan. 16.—Efforts in opposition to the increase of alcoholism in Belgium hitherto have been left for the most part to private initiative, and they have made little progress, although often patronized by the Government. The Archbishop Got the Lady In.

We all know the Archbishop of Canterbury as the strong man whose will is like iron, and "M. A. P." tells a capital story concerning this aspect of Dr. Temple's character. Some years ago he was due to preach at a fashionable church in Regent street, when, on arriving at the door of the building, he was astonished to find Mrs. A., an intimate friend of his, in the act of returning to her carriage.

"What!" asked Dr. Temple. "Going away?" "Only because I cannot obtain admittance—the place is full." "Do you really wish to stay?" "I came on purpose." "Then take my arm," Dr. Temple said, and pressing against the crowd the strong figure of the future archbishop was soon before the beadle at the door. In the blandest manner Dr. Temple said to that functionary, who evidently did not know him, "You will be so good as to give this lady the best seat in the church."

"Impossible, sir," said the surprised beadle. "The church is quite full." Dr. Temple merely repeated his request, only more emphatically. "Utterly impossible, sir," replied the guardian of the door. "I tell you the church is quite full." "Oh, but," was the crushing rejoinder, "I won't preach if you don't!"

This threat at once showed the beadle how the land lay, and his manner at once changed. "Oh, I beg your pardon, my lord!" he said. "This way, ma'am." And Mrs. A. secured a seat in the churchwarden's luxurious empty pew, while Dr. Temple ascended one of the [illegible]

CARLYLE AS A TUTOR

AN AMUSING ANECDOTE OF THE GREAT AND GLOOMY MAN.

He Had a Frown That Terrified and a Laugh That Startled His Pupils. The Day the Donkey Came to School Against His Will.

A writer in The Scotsman has unearthed an amusing anecdote of Thomas Carlyle as a country "dominie," for the accuracy of which he vouches. It was told in 1858 by a Cupar Fife lawyer and provost who had been one of Carlyle's pupils at Kirkcaldy, to the writer and Hugh Miller. The interest of this gentleman's reminiscences of his schoolmaster was heightened by his utter unconsciousness that his old dominie was the Thomas Carlyle who was then beginning to be known to fame.

The old gentleman described the older race of Scottish schoolmasters as always during school hours wearing their hats—at least keeping their heads covered—and many of the boys, viewing the peculiar angle at which the hat stood upon the head and how near it came to the eyebrows, could conjecture if the savage mood were to be that day predominant.

"But my teacher," said the provost, "a strict and gloomy disciplinarian with the name of Carlyle, never wore his hat in the school, and indeed his brow was so overhung with dark threatening that no extra expression to alarm us was needed from his lum hat! He did not thrash us either very often or very severely, but we had a fear that, if provoked, he would go great lengths in punishment. I have seen his mere scowl hush at once the whole school."

Hugh Miller here interposed by asking, "Did your teacher ever burst into a strange laugh in school?"

"That is a very odd question," returned the provost. "Why do you ask? But now that I remember, he had at times a very extraordinary laugh that made us all stare. It had a train of queer chuckling which exploded in a succession of loud and deep guffaws that shook his whole body and displayed all his teeth like the keys of a piano. He then clapped his hands on the book he held against his knees. Yet none of us never knew at what he was laughing. He had a grim smile in reproving pupils and a habit of tapping their heads with his knuckles as he told them that the heads would never be worth the price of hats or the charge of a barber, though mammas and aunts had that morning combed, kissed and blessed them, as if they were teeming with the sublimest inventions and designs!"

The provost saw that Hugh Miller and some other guests were listening eagerly, and he proceeded:

"One morning, a few minutes before the school hour, when most of the pupils had arrived, and, as rain was falling, they had gone into the school, a donkey, which had broken loose from its tether on a grassy spot near, was entering the playground. Bill Hood and I were so far on our way, and Bill, who was a stout and frolicsome lad—the ringleader in many sports and tricks—rushed to mount the animal and began to guide and force it into the school.

"With desperate spurring the donkey was induced to carry its rider over the threshhold, and what a reception both of them got from the juvenile crowds! Bags of books were at once fastened to the tail and around the neck of the ass, and so busy were Bill and half a dozen companions in urging the animal to a canter around the school and to ascend the short stair of the master's desk that they did not notice how time was speeding, and before they could remove the stranger Mr. Carlyle appeared.

"We expected a tremendous explosion of wrath, but he burst into a roar of laughter—such a roar, however, as, instead of tempting us to join in it, produced a sudden and complete hush, and that roar was renewed again and again when the ass, withdrawing its forefeet from the first step of the desk stair and turning round, took a pace or two slowly toward the master as if to salute him.

"'That,' exclaimed Carlyle, 'is the wisest and best scholar Kirkcaldy has yet sent me. He is fit to be your teacher.' He tapped the donkey's head as he was wont to do ours and said, 'There's something here far more than in the skulls of any of his brethren before me, though these skulls are patted in fond admiration by papas and mammas, and though that far grander headpiece meets only with merciless blows.'

"He then gave some hard taps on Bill Hood's head, and would not allow him to dismount, but for a penalty ordered him to ride up and down the school for an hour, while those boys who had been most active in helping Bill to go through the farce had to march in pairs before and behind the perplexed looking ass. He did not require the other scholars to attend to their several school lessons, but silently permitted them to stand as spectators of the grotesque procession. Then he himself, seated within his pulpitlike desk, surveyed Bill and his company.

"I have not for years thought of this scene," continued the provost, "but it has now come back to me freshly, and I remember that my old master had a very strange laugh. I don't know what has become of him, nor indeed have I heard of him since I left Kirkcaldy school."

"You have an elegant and spacious home," said the pastor. "You have books, a piano, a daughter who can sing and play and everything to make home alluring. Why don't you throw your house open some evening in the week for the benefit of the homeless young men? You might save many a one from the club and the saloon."

"Young men?" said the wealthy member. "There's one of them who comes to my house six evenings in the week. What are you talking about, anyway?"

NEW STAMPED ENVELOPES.

Government Turning Out Very Creditable Ones at $2.20 Per Hundred.

Ottawa, Jan. 16.—A very creditable piece of work is the new 2c stamped envelope being turned out by the Government Printing Bureau. The first few hundred were printed in purple, but, in deference to a general agreement among the nations belonging to the Postal Union, the issue is now being struck off in red. The stamped envelope is entirely the product of the Bureau, being manufactured there throughout and embossed on a printing press which Superintendent McMahon has had specially constructed for the purpose. Both as to stock and workmanship it compares favorably, be it said to the credit of the Bureau, with the best quality of stamped envelopes supplied in any part of the world, and, as the 2c stamped envelopes are sold at $2.20 per hundred, or at the postoffices at the rate of five for 11c, it is likely they will come into very general use.

JUMPED FROM A MOVING TRAIN.

Constable Greer's Prisoner Escaped and He Got a Broken Ankle.

Parry Sound, Ont., Jan. 16.—J. A. Gilmour of the firm of Moffat & Gilmour skipped out to avoid charges of theft, forgery, fraud, obtaining money under false pretences and other crimes. He escaped the police at Sundridge, North Bay and Sudbury, but was captured at the Canadian Soo, and Special Constable Greer was sent to bring him back. He got his man, and all went well on the return trip until near Sudbury, when Gilmour made the excuse of going to the lavatory, and, on coming out, made a break for the car door, and jumped from the moving train. Greer quickly jumped after his prisoner, and in doing so broke one of the bones of his ankle. The train was stopped and Greer picked up, but Gilmour escaped.

Melrose Had a Hard Time.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 16.—The British steamer Melrose arrived here on Saturday from Barry, Scotland, which she left on Dec. 28, after a most tempestuous trip, during which she narrowly escaped foundering in mid-ocean, owing to a leak in one of her ballast tanks. As it was, the steamer came into port with all her pumps working and three inches of water in her hold, the pumps being just able to keep the water down to that point, but no lower. She now lies in the Roads, leaking about six inches an hour, and as soon as the Lloyds' agent makes his survey will be docked for repairs.

Point Edward Boy Drowned.

Point Edward, Ont., Jan. 16.—About 5.30 p.m. yesterday a boy named McArthur, about 14 years of age, and son of John McArthur of this place, while walking across the ice bridge which has formed across the mouth of the lake, broke through and was drowned. There were several other boys with him, but they could do nothing to get him out on account of the dangerous condition of the ice from the thaw of the last few days.

A MONOMANIACAL WITNESS.

How His Phase of Lunacy Was Developed During a Trial.

"That calls to mind a queer experience of my own," said a lawyer who had listened to a story. "Some years ago I defended a fellow for murder in a little southern town, and the worst witness we had against us was an old German who was a stackbuilder by trade. A stack, by the way, is merely another name for a big chimney.

"The old fellow was perfectly honest and gave his evidence in such a clear, straightforward manner that I felt my client was doomed unless I could think of some way to break him down. While I was cudgeling my brains a friend whispered to me to ask him how high he could build a stack. 'What do you mean?' I asked, in surprise. 'Never mind,' said my friend. 'Just slip in that question and see.'

"So at the tail end of the cross examination I paused, as if struck by an afterthought, and said, 'You are a stackbuilder, I believe?' 'Yes, sir,' replied the witness. 'Well, sir,' I continued, 'about how high can you build'— I never got any further. A swift, inscrutable change flashed over the German's face, and he rose excitedly from his chair. 'As high as der sky!' he roared. 'So high dose angels come around it like birds!'

"In five seconds he was raving. You see, the man was a monomaniac—mad on every subject but one, and my friend happened to know his weak spot. It is hardly necessary to say that his evidence in regard to the homicide was promptly ruled out by the judge, and as there was no other witness of importance my man was cleared. The rascal should have been hanged and would have been but for the lucky reference to the stack."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

TWO OF THEM.

Private O'Mara's Tart Retort to His Unaccommodating Colonel.

Here is a story told of Patrick O'Mara, a private in the Ninth regulars. Not long ago he went to the colonel, who was a severe disciplinarian, for a two weeks' leave of absence.

"Well," said the colonel, "what do you want a two weeks' furlough for?"

Patrick answered, "Me woife is very sick, and the children are not well, and if ye didn't mind she would like to have me home for a few weeks to give her a bit of assistance."

The colonel eyed him for a few minutes and said: "Patrick, I might grant your request, but I got a letter from your wife this morning saying that she didn't want you home; that you were a nuisance and raised the devil whenever you were there. She hopes I won't let you have any more furloughs."

"That settles it. I suppose I can't get the furlough then?" said Pat.

"No, I'm afraid not, Patrick. It wouldn't be well for me to do so under the circumstances."

It was Patrick's turn now to eye the colonel as he started for the door. Stopping suddenly, he said:

"Colonel, can I say something to you?"

"Certainly, Patrick. What is it?"

She Studied French.

Four young women were walking together on Charles street today and engaged in animated conversation.

"What do you think I done today, Clara?" said one. "I translated 40 pages of French exercise. Wasn't that fine?"

"Fine," said the other, "I should say it was. I wish I had done as good. I only translated 20."

Comment is unnecessary, but one feels like asking, Is this a sign of the times? Is what Mme. Butterfly called "United States American English" being neglected for the so called accomplishments?

One can forgive the woman who, gazing at some renaissance lace, blandly remarks, "Ah, that is the 'Rennysant,'" but for the girl who assiduously studies French and murders English meanwhile, as Macbeth murdered sleep, there seems no possible excuse.—Baltimore News.

DR. CHINIQUY IS DEAD

The Peaceful Closing of a Most Strange Career.

THE TALE OF HIS CONVERSION.

The Famous Ex-Priest Passes Away in Montreal in His 90th Year—Great Temperance Reformer and Colonizer—Strife Marked His Earlier Days—Succinct Sketch of His Career.

Montreal, Jan. 17.—Rev. Dr. Chiniquy died yesterday forenoon, and it goes without saying that the event has created widespread regret in this city. The most noticeable feature is the marked respect paid to the memory of the deceased by the French-Canadian population. No one now refers to the "Apostate Chiniquy," and all appear to follow in the lines of Christian charity laid down by Mgr.

THE LATE REV. DR. CHINIQUY.

Bruchesi. When Renan died as he had lived, outside the fold, the present Pope remarked: "I am very glad that it is so, for it shows his good faith," and so it is in the case of the ex-priest. The French newspapers publish the deceased's photograph and accompany the same with sympathetic biographical notices. In a word, nothing was heard in the streets but sympathy and regret when the bulletins announced that the old man's life work was over.

The Rev. Dr. Chiniquy died at the residence of his son-in-law, Rev. J. L. Morin, 60 Hutchison street. The honorable divine passed away peacefully, at his bedside being his wife, two daughters, his son-in-law and the Rev. R. P. Duclos, the latter of whom held the hand of the dying man till the end. Although he had suffered much during the last day of his illness, he appeared to be quite free from pain when death came.

Dr. Chiniquy was conscious for a time about 9 o'clock in the morning, and recognized his son-in-law, Rev. Mr. Morin, although no words were spoken; the dying man bowed his head in token of recognition.

The funeral of the late Dr. Chiniquy will take place on Thursday next, leaving the house, 65 Hutchison street, at 1.30 p.m. Services at the house will be conducted by Rev. I. Bruneau and Rev. R. P. Duclos just previous to leaving for Erskine Church, Sherbrooke street, where the public funeral service will take place. Rev. A. J. Moffatt will conduct this service, at which Rev. Dr. Mackay will read the Scripture and Rev. James Fleck will offer prayer. The exercises in French will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Coussirat; an address in French will be given by Rev. Dr. Amaron, and in English by Principal MacVicar.

The late Dr. Chiniquy was a past grand chaplain of the Orange Association, and a life member of Boyne Loyal Orange Lodge, No. 401, of this city.

HIS LIFE WORK.

Early Career as a Priest and His Change of Creed.

Rev. Charles Pascal Telesphore Chiniquy was born at Kamouraska on July 30, 1809. After his father's death, in 1821, a rich uncle, named Amable Dionne, a member of the Canadian Parliament, took him in charge and sent him to the College of Nicolet, where he remained till 1833, attaining high honor as a linguist and mathematician. He was ordained a priest by Bishop Signay at Quebec in 1833 and began his ministry in St. Charles. He was subsequently chaplain of the Marine Hospital. He was then made parish priest at Beauport. He was soon transferred to the larger parish of Kamouraska, but he shortly gave up his parish duties and transferred his headquarters to Montreal, to devote his whole time to the cause of temperance, from 1846 to 1851. His services in this respect received many public acts of recognition, the first being the address of the Independent Order of Rechabites of Canada in 1848.

The Canadian Parliament voted him an address and £500 as a public token of the gratitude of a whole people. The fame of his labors in the cause of temperance reached the Pope, and, through a priest who visited Rome about that period, the Pope's blessing was sent to Father Chiniquy.

In Charge of a Colony.

His position in the church was now widely acknowledged and recognized. He was chosen by the dignitaries of the church of Rome to take possession of the Valley of the Mississippi and form a Roman Catholic colony in the very centre of the United States. He accepted the offer. He went and surveyed the land, selected the territory, and, returning to Canada, took over to the new colony a first company of 5000 emigrants, all zealous for the church in this new movement. He left Canada in the highest repute with the hierarchy of the church.

Trouble With the Bishop.

The colony expanded rapidly, and within a very few years it spread over 40 square miles. Thousands still poured in, not only from Canada, but from the Roman Catholic population of Europe. But a day came when Bishop Vandeveit was removed, and an Irish bishop, Dr. O'Regan, took his place, and he inaugurated, Father Chiniquy says, a regime by the obstruction and oppression of the French settlers. This drove Father Chiniquy into resistance, and to appeals to the outside Roman Catholic world for redress and deliverance.

Persecutions.

Father Chiniquy accused the bishop to his face of the offences alleged against him. The bishop determined to interdict him. He was charged with being a schismatic priest, and the sentence of excommunication was levelled at him by the bishop.

The persecution to which Father Chiniquy and his people were subjected was brought under the attention of the Pope, who sent Cardinal Bedori to Chicago to investigate the question. He declared Bishop O'Regan in the wrong. The prelate was deposed, and Bishop Smith of Iowa took his place.

Opinions Undergoing Change.

About this time Father Chiniquy's opinions were undergoing a change regarding the doctrines of the church. Such questions as the immaculate conception of the Virgin Mary and auricular confession were troubling his mind. Conversations with his parishioners caused him to ponder over doctrinal points which the Church of Rome holds to be essential.

He arrived back at his colony of St. Anne on a Sabbath morning at the hour of morning service, and at the conclusion of his address asked all those who wished him to remain and preach nothing but the Word of God and the Gospel of Christ to tell him so by rising up. All, without a single exception, rose, and begged him not to leave them.

Then followed in quick succession the giving up of the church's doctrines.

Becomes Presbyterian.

In the year 1860 Pastor Chiniquy and his congregation became members of the Presbyterian Church. He was ordained as a Presbyterian minister. For 30 years he ministered to this congregation, and preached and lectured in all parts of the United States and Canada, and in England and Australia. He received the degree of D.D. from the Presbyterian College, Montreal, in 1903.

He visited Great Britain in 1860, and again in 1874, lecturing in all parts of the country. On his return to the States he was pressed by the Canadian church to preach in Canada for a time at least, and came to Montreal, where he remained for four years, working for the conversion of French-Canadian Roman Catholics.

In his younger days he was a contributor to The Melanges Religieux and to L'Avenir. Among his published works are : "A Temperance Manual," "Fifty Years in the Church of Rome," "The Priest, the Woman and the Confessional," "Papal Idolatry," "The Church of Rome the Enemy of the Virgin Mary and of Jesus Christ," and "The Perversion of Dr. Newman in the Light of History, the Scriptures, Common Sense and of His Own Obligation."

He married, January, 1864, Miss Daphenne Allard of Ste. Anne, Kankakee. His residence lately has been at 65 Hutchison-street, Montreal.

Other Invitations to Return.

Repeated attempts have been made in recent years to induce Dr. Chiniquy to return to the Church of Rome. On several occasions ladies of high social position, wealth and influence in society, one titled lady in particular, have endeavored to get Dr. Chiniquy to go back to the church, but he steadfastly refused to respond to the advances made.

His Habits.

Dr. Chiniquy all through has life was a man of abstemious habits, careful in what he ate as well as drank, and to the attention he paid to the matter of diet he attributed the fact of his having attained the ripe old age of 90 years, with his physical and mental faculties unimpaired. Fish and light foods were his favorite dishes, and he ate very little meat. Up to the time of his final illness he was engaged writing a new book—a companion volume to "Fifty Years in the Church of Rome," entitled "Forty Years in the Church of Christ."

Queen Victoria in France.

Paris, Jan. 17.—In the event of the Queen coming to France extraordinary precautions will be taken by the Surete-Generale. Not only will she be accompanied by detectives disguised, but a battue of suspected persons will be carried out before her arrival, and a veritable cordon of detectives will prevent Anarchists arriving in her neighborhood.

The French system of registration of visitors and residents enables the work of security to be more easily performed. The French detectives will be aided by experienced officers from other countries, and the movements of suspected persons will be signalled.

An Irish Peer Dead.

London, Jan. 17.—John W. Plunkett, Baron Dunsany, representative peer for Ireland since 1898, died yesterday in his 46th year. The deceased peer at one time sat in the House of Commons for the Thornbury division of Gloucestershire, in the Conservative interest. He is succeeded by his son, Hon. Edward John Moreton Drax Plunkett, now in his 21st year.

Do Not Believe It.

London, Jan. 17.—The officials of the Foreign Office do not credit the alleged defeat on Dec 28 of the Anglo-Egyptian forces on the Blue Nile by the Dervishes under Emir Fedil, and the total destruction of the 10th Soudanese Battalion.

TOLSTOI SOFTENED

As the Czar Jollied Him Along About Disarmament.

THE COUNT WILL CO-OPERATE.

The Czar's Proposal as Described in a Circular From Count Muravieff Looks Towards the Mitigation of Land and Naval Warfare—The Document Contains Ten Important Points.

London, Jan. 17.—The Daily Mail prints the following despatch from Odessa:

"While journeying north from Livadia, Emperor Nicholas, during a break for luncheon at Toolah (capital of the government of the same name in Central Russia,) sent a delicately worded message expressing his desire to see Count Leo Tolstoi. Contrary to expectation, Tolstoi accepted the invitation and soon appeared at the railway station. In his peasant's garb he presented a striking contrast to the richly-dressed entourage of the Czar. Emperor Nicholas kissed him on the mouth and both cheeks. Tolstoi readily responded.

"Then a conversation commenced, the Czar asking his guest for an opinion upon the Imperial proposal for the limitation of armaments. Count Tolstoi replied that he could only believe in it when His Majesty should set the example to other nations.

"On the Czar mentioning the difficulties of the problem and the necessity for the united aid of the great powers, the Count softened somewhat and expressed the hope that His Majesty would be able to attain some definite results or, at any rate, to formulate some workable plan at the conference. The Czar, thanking him for his good wishes, said he would be pleased if Tolstoi could be induced to lend his genius to the solution of the question, and the Count rejoined that the Emperor might count upon his co-operation, for he was already engaged upon a work dealing with the question in point, which would soon see the light."

THE CZAR'S TEN POINTS

Which He Hopes Will Lead to the Disarmament of the Nations.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 17.—The circular issued by Count Muravieff, Minister of Foreign Affairs, regarding the coming meeting of representatives of the European powers, in answer to the Czar's appeal for disarmament, suggests that it is desirable to arrive at an understanding on the following points, namely:

First—To agree not to increase naval or military forces, and the corresponding budgets for a fixed period.

Second—To endeavor to find means of reducing the forces and budgets in the future.

Third—To interdict the use of any new weapon or explosive more powerful than now made.

Fourth—To restrict the use of the most terrible of existing explosives, and thereby forbid the throwing of any explosives from balloons or similarly.

Fifth—To forbid the employment of submarine torpedoes and similar contrivances.

Sixth—To undertake not to construct vessels with rams.

Seventh—To apply the Geneva Convention to naval warfare.

Eighth—To neutralize vessels, saving those wrecked in naval battles.

Ninth—To revise the declaration concerning the laws and customs of war elaborated at Brussels in 1874.

Tenth—To accept the principle of mediation and arbitration in such cases as lend themselves thereto.

The circular reaffirms that nothing touching existing political relations shall be discussed.

The Emperor Trains Goats.

Pekin, Jan. 17. — Palace reports describe increasing ill-feeling between the Dowager Empress and the Emperor. On several occasions recently the Emperor, it is claimed, disobeyed the Dowager Empress. The chief amusement of the Emperor at present, the palace reports also say, is training goats and donkeys.

Reports from Shan Tung Province say the populace there is almost in a state of rebellion. The missionaries anticipate trouble. It is added that French warships have been ordered to Foo Chow. Li Hung Chang is suffering from swollen legs.

An Insane Man's Suicide.

Hamilton, Jan. 17.—There was a singular suicide at the Asylum for the Insane yesterday afternoon. William Breton, a farmer who lived near Simcoe, put his head in a pool of water on the lawn and died from suffocation. He was quite dead when found by the keeper. Breton had been in the institution about six weeks. He was about 50 years of age. An inquest was opened last evening by Coroner Griffin.

The Andelina Disaster.

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 17.—Of the crew of the ship Andelina, which capsized here Saturday morning, three were Canadians—Captain G. W. Stalling of Annapolis, N.S., E. H. Crane of Londonderry, N. S., and Memey Jossaim of Victoria, B.C. The vessel is 138 feet under water, and she will probably be raised, and the bodies of the dead sailors recovered.

WELL KNOWN VIOLINIST

Traveled Extensively Throughout the Provinces—Interesting Statements Concerning His Experience.

STELLARTON, N.S.—James R. Murray, a well known violinist, of this place, who has traveled extensively throughout the Provinces, makes this statement:

"I was running down in health and my weight fell off from 175 to 150 pounds. Prescriptions did me but little good. My trouble was called nervous dyspepsia. I resorted to Hood's Sarsaparilla and after taking five bottles I was greatly benefited. I feel as well now as ever in my life, and have increased in flesh so that I now weigh 177 pounds. I am well known in this part of the country, having followed my profession, that of a violin musician for the last 26 years. I gladly tell my friends what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for me. Before I began taking the medicine I did not have any ambition, but now all is changed and my dyspeptic trouble perfectly cured." JAMES R. MURRAY.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, do not be induced to buy any substitute. Be sure to get Hood's.

WEST YORK LIBERALS.

Touching and Generous Recognition of a Faithful and Courageous Leader—W. J. Hill, M.P.P., Honored.

Weston, Jan. 17.—The Liberals of West York gathered here in force from all parts of the riding yesterday on the occasion of the annual meeting of the Liberal Association of the riding. From north and south, from east and west they came flushed with the enthusiasm born of victory, won not only at the polls but at the more searching and keenly-contested struggle in the courts. They came to sing their song of triumph, to congratulate the standard-bearer who had so courageously carried the banner of Liberalism through the fight, and triumphantly planted it in the halls of the Legislature, to renew the expressions of their confidence in the Liberal leaders and in the Administrations at Ottawa and Toronto, and, as the crowning act of a memorable day, to present to their representatives in the Legislature a most striking and magnificent proof of their confidence and esteem, and of their appreciation of the manly courage with which he sustained the assaults of his opponents, and the firmness and tenacity with which he defended in the courts the seat he had honorably won at the hands of the electorate. Never in the history of the riding have there been more enthusiasm, greater harmony and a firmer determination not only to hold what they have gained but to win further victory, displayed by the Liberals of this historic riding, and with confidence they look forward to the next Dominion election.

After the election of officers, the association expressed its confidence in the Dominion Government in the following resolution: Moved by E. C. Pearson, seconded by H. Wardlaw, that the Liberals of that portion of West York not included in the City of Toronto, in annual meeting assembled, again express their confidence in the Hon. Wilfrid Laurier and his Government, and their appreciation of his progressive and practical administration of the affairs of the Dominion. We regret that the measures taken to retain for Canadians the benefits of the possession of the richest gold fields of the world were obstructed by a partisan Senate, to the great advantage of the trade and commerce of the United States, and we believe that the time has come when the power to legislate should rest solely in the hands of the elected representatives of the people.

The sentiments of the association with respect to the Local Government were expressed as follows: Moved by A. J. Anderson, seconded by William C. Grubbs, that the Liberals of West York record their great satisfaction at the provincial elections held since our last annual meeting, the Province of Ontario having again declared for patriotic and progressive government by continuing the honest and faithful administration of Hon. A. S. Hardy, Premier, and his able colleagues, to whom we again pledge our united support.

At the annual meeting in the afternoon the speakers were Mr. Arch. Campbell, M.P., and Mr. W. J. Hill, M.P.P.

At the banquet in the evening there were 600 guests. In response to the toast, "Our Province," the Hon. G. W. Ross, who was received with long-cont'nued applause, delivered a grand speech, and Mr. Hill's speech in reply to "Our Member" was a manly deliverance. The reception accorded Mr. Hill was a magnificent tribute to his worth.

BLISTERED BY DOCTORS

For Heart Disease Without Help—Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart Relieves in Fifteen Minutes.

Mrs. O. Ward, of Massey, Que., was a great sufferer for years from heart disease. Physicians blistered her and gave her other treatments without relief. She read in the papers of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart. She procured a bottle of it. Fifteen minutes after the first dose I had relief. Before taking this remedy she had constant spells of suffocation, fast and distressing, and severe pains about the heart, and was so weak that the act of ascending the door caused her to faint. She continued using the remedy until she had taken six bottles, and to-day she is as well as ever she was. Sold by H. S. Mastenan and Cornish & Walsh.

EDUCATION IN QUEBEC.

Provincial Secretary Robidoux Introduced His New Bill.

Quebec, Jan. 17.—Hon. J. E. Robidoux, Provincial Secretary, reintroduced yesterday afternoon in the Legislative Assembly the Ministerial bill for the improvement and further diffusion of primary education in this province. According to the explanations given by the author of the bill on its principles there is no provision in the new bill for a Minister of Public Instruction. The superintendent of the Council of Public Instruction remains or is maintained, and with all his actual powers. The teaching of agriculture and design is imperative instead of being facultative, as in the bill of last year. Provision is also made for free and uniform text books. There is a clause enacting that in case of dispute between local school boards and taxpayers, appeal shall not be to the superintendent, as at present, but to the judge of the local Circuit Court, and in order to ensure prompt settlement of such disputes, provision is made for special sittings of the court.

SPOILED MATERIALS.

A Well Known Druggist Gives His Experience.

A successful and well known Canadian druggist said recently: "I know from experience what it means to sell dyes that have no standing or established reputation. Over a year ago I put in a small stock of ——— Dyes. I had been asked by three or four persons for these dyes which they saw advertised, and I was under the impression the demand would increase. In a year's time I sold probably from twenty to twenty-five packets, and had so many complaints from disappointed women who had spoiled good materials and garments with these new dyes that I banished every one of them to my back storehouse, where they now are. I find the Diamond Dyes give perfect satisfaction to all my customers, and will sell no other make while I am in business. What a tale could be told by women about spoiled goods from using cheap and trashy dyes!"

This statement from an old established druggist has its notes of warning. His long and extended experience is in favour of the Diamond Dyes. There are too, hundreds of other druggists and dealers and tens of thousands of women who could give clear and convincing testimony that Diamond Dyes are far ahead of all other dyes in purity, strength, fastness of colour brilliancy and beauty.

As long as there are imitation and adulterated dyes sold, it is well that all should insist upon getting the "Diamond" when buying dyes for home dyeing. See that the name is on each packet.

A NEW INVENTION
The Newcombe Piano Has It.
It consists of a Patented Practice CLAVIER or STOP which diminishes the tone when required and saves wear on the Piano; it also does away with the old way of having to press down the pedal with the foot in order to soften the tone when running the scales or practicing. Oftentimes the young pupil on the piano cannot press down on the pedal without throwing themselves out of the proper position when they should sit erect. This invention in the NEWCOMBE PIANO will enable children to begin two years earlier on the piano. In addition to the above, the NEWCOMBE PIANO is the finest made in Canada. Children often complain about practicing; they like it if they have a NEWCOMBE PIANO. 1898 styles are gems of art, containing every late improvement; they possess that beautiful full sweet tone which delights the singer, and so pleases every musical ear. FOR PRISON REFORM.

Hon. David Mills Favors Indeterminate Sentences.

MAY YET INTRODUCE BILL.

The Minister of Justice So Expressed Himself to the Prisoners' Aid Association Deputation, Which Had an Important Interview With Him in Toronto—The Various Speeches.

Toronto, Jan. 17.—A deputation from the Prisoners' Aid Association conferred with Minister of Justice Mills at the Walker House last evening, asking for the introduction of the indeterminate sentence and parole system into Ontario.

Warden Gilmour of the Central Prison was spokesman, and behind him were Hon. Senator Allan, ex-Warden Massie, City Relief Officer E. Taylor, Dr. A. M. Rosebrugh, J. Elliott (vice-president of the Montreal Association), City Missionary R. Hall, and Messrs. Hamilton Cassels and F. S. Spence.

Warden Gilmour based his plea on the grounds of the economic and moral advantages; that 27 States of the Union, including New York and Massachusetts, had adopted the system, and that a commission appointed by President McKinley had reported last August to the American Bar Association in its favor. Out of the 3,000 men handled by him at the Central during the past three years, he had recommended commuting the sentence of only eight. His work of reform, he complained, was hampered by the refusal of the county magistrates to take the environment of offenders into account.

Ex-Warden Massie said that his 16 years' experience at the Central, and his knowledge of the work of the Elmira Penitentiary, had made him a firm advocate of the indeterminate sentence.

Vice-President Elliott of Montreal was in favor of the suspensory sentence, and something like the ticket-of-leave system of England. One great drawback in the way of reform, he declared, in Quebec was that penitentiary prisoners were taught the various trades so badly that they were not able to make a living on coming out.

Hon. David Mills said he was in favor of the indeterminate system when safeguarded by the minimum sentence, and if his colleagues approved of the plan he would draft a bill for the measure before the next session.

DINGLEY'S OBSEQUIES.

State Function at Washington Which Was Majestic in Its Impressiveness—Music in the Chamber.

Washington, Jan. 17.—A state funeral, almost majestic in its impressiveness, was given to the late Representative Nelson Dingley at noon yesterday in the House of Representatives, where he has for so long been such a commanding figure. The President, his Cabinet, distinguished members of the diplomatic corps, members of the Supreme Court, Senate and House, distinguished men in military and civil life were ranged about the bier on the floor of the hall, while the galleries, to which admission could be obtained only by card, were occupied by the families of those who sit upon the floor and other prominent personages invited to be present.

The casket was placed on a bier in the area in front of the marble rostrum of the speaker, and for an hour the public had an opportunity to witness the remains as they lay in state. Thousands of people streamed through the main door down past the casket and gazed upon the calm, serene features of the dead during that hour.

Exactly at noon Speaker Reed ascended the rostrum, and called the House to order. The clerk read the resolutions adopted by the House and Senate.

Suddenly out of the left in the rear of the press gallery, the notes of an organ pulsed and echoed through the hall. It was the first time in the history of the House of Representatives that music had been heard in it. A quartette sang impressively, "Crossing the Bar."

The services were conducted by the Rev. S. M. Newman of the First Congregational Church of this city, assisted by Rev. Dr. Coudon, chaplain of the House.

It was a very simple service. Rev. Newman read the xiv chapter of St. John. He reviewed briefly the great career of the dead statesman, who had at last become the pure and highest type of an American citizen, in whom his countrymen reposed honor, trust and confidence.

He concluded with a feeling tribute to the "devoted husband and father, the loving brother and friend, the loyal and true-hearted citizen and legislator and the fearless and faithful statesman and leader of the party."

The body lay in state in the hall of the House till the time for the departure of the special train which conveyed the remains and the party to Lewiston. It was then conveyed to the Pennsylvania station, whence the train departed at 4.10 p.m.

Tribute of the Commissioners.

The meeting of the joint United States and British commission yesterday was very brief. The commissioners, being appraised of the death of their colleague, the Hon. Nelson Dingley, adopted the following note, and ordered that it be entered in the protocol of the day's proceedings and communicated to his family:

"The commissioners have heard with profound sorrow of the death, on the 13th inst., of their distinguished associate, the Hon. Nelson Dingley of Maine. While the death of this eminent and useful statesman is regretted by all his countrymen, the commissioners feel that they have special reason to deplore the loss of one who had rendered valuable aid in their counsels, and whose kindly disposition and friendly sentiments had endeared him to his colleagues. The commissioners desire to express to Mrs. Dingley and to the other members of his family their sincere and heartfelt sympathy in the affliction which has befallen them."

As a mark of respect for Mr. Dingley's memory the joint high commission at once adjourned.

HAMILTON AGAIN

Proves That There is Only One Unfailing Kidney Cure.

And That That is Dodd's Kidney Pills—Mr. William Goodale's Case—Hospital Doctors and Various Remedies Failed—Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Him.

Hamilton, Jan. 16.—One of the most genuinely remarkable characteristics of the social history of this city, is the amazingly large number of Kidney disease cases cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

For two weeks past the Canadian newspapers have been telling their readers of the rescue of Mr. Harry Bawden from the agonies of Lumbago by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Now there comes the report of another case, equally as startling as Mr. Bawden's. This time Mr. William Goodale, 57 John street, North, is the hero of the story.

Mr. Goodale is a skilled japanner and tin worker, and had suffered for five years with Kidney Weakness and Sleeplessness. He, like Mr. Bawden, tried various remedies, before he began using Dodd's Kidney Pills, but they did him no good. He went to the hospital for treatment, but with no good result.

Finally, on the advice of friends, he began using Dodd's Kidney Pills. Before he had used the contents of one box, he felt the benefit. The urinary organs began to perform their duties properly, he began to sleep soundly and the agonizing pains began to lessen.

Three boxes sufficed to restore Mr. Goodale to perfect health and strength.

When we reflect that the physicians on the staff of the Hamilton Hospital could not help this patient, that none of the medicines he used before taking Dodd's Kidney Pills gave him any relief, and that it took only three boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills (at a cost of $1.50) to thoroughly cure him, it is plain that Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only remedy on earth that can cure Diseases of the Kidneys.

Dodd's Kidney Pills have never yet failed in any case of Kidney Disease and they have cured hundreds of thousands.

Her Last Request.

"Be it so," haughtily spoke Harold Higgamore. "Lucretia McGinnis, you have rejected me with contempt and scorn. I meet your rejection with equal contempt and scorn and am ashamed of myself for having stooped to beg for your hand. There are not only as good fish in the sea as ever have been caught, but there are better. Miss McGinnis, I have the honor to wish you good afternoon."

"That's all right, Harold," said the young woman, yawning slightly. "But please don't 'turn on your heel' as you stride indignantly away. It's hard on the carpet."—Chicago Tribune.

High Lights.

A "humble opinion" is generally the opinion of a very obstinate man.

When a woman dreams about going to Europe, she begins saving up clothes in a trunk.

Secrets as a rule are safe only with those people who would rather not hear them.

Our worst misfortunes never happen so long as our imaginations are in good working order.—Chicago Record.

TWIN TORTURERS!

Lumbago and Rheumatism made Harmless by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Lumbago and Rheumatism cause endless pain and suffering. Every man and woman who runs chances of getting wet, or catching cold, is liable to suffer from one or both. Our hospitals are full of sufferers from these diseases; none are more painful. Every nerve is on fire; every joint is a centre of agony; every muscle an area of torture. To move hand or foot makes the victim shriek with agony.

Rheumatism makes more cripples than all the railroad accidents that ever happened. Twisted, mis-shapen caricatures of humanity, who cannot walk without misery, are to be seen every day. The kidneys are to blame. If they are healthy you needn't fear Rheumatism or Lumbago. Dodd's Kidney Pills keep the kidneys healthy and cure Rheumatism and Lumbago.

Dodd's Kidney Pills ALWAYS CURE.

THE OLD CLERK.

A Pathetic Picture Too Frequently Presented In the Business World.

He is a familiar figure in almost every business house—the old clerk. White haired, thin, with clothes that are always of decent black and scrupulously brushed, he has sat behind the same desk or stood behind the same counter for dear knows how many years, growing thinner and older and mustier as the time went by. Sometimes we meet him in the early morning going down to office or store, walking the same route he has trod for 20 or 30 years with a regularity so perfect that the very policeman on the beat might set his watch by his movements. Often, late at night, when we are going home from the theater we see him through the iron grated window, still bending over his ledger, for he works slowly nowadays and must work overtime to make up his accounts. His eyes are growing dim and he fumbles with his glasses, his hands are losing their trick of deft penmanship, and his brain its swiftness. He does not understand it, but the fly boys all about him, young enough to be his sons, rush through their tasks and are out and gone while he is still laboring over his. Slowly but surely it is being borne in on him that he cannot compete with them.

In the manager's office he is already becoming a problem. Customers have begun to complain of his slowness. A man, not intentionally cruel, called out that he wanted somebody who was alive to wait on him; not that old fossil. A woman complained that he had not matched a sample and asked why they kept blind people. The old clerk heard them, and it sounded like the knell of his own foreboding thoughts. He knows that the time is coming when he must go. He has seen it happen before with others. First he will be retired to some other department, with less work and less pay. They will remember for a time the many years of faithful service in which he has seen the firm grow from small beginnings to present wealth.

Then after a time they will forget even that, and one day when he has been slower than usual or some mistake has passed unnoticed by his dim eyes they will send for him to come to the president's room, and he will be told that they think it best to put a boy in that department—somebody who is young and quick and can get about swiftly. Sometimes they give him a little pension, oftener not, but in either case he goes out a poor, heart broken old man. They talk to him of enjoying leisure, but he has never learned the art of idling, and so he hangs about the store after he is dismissed, walking by it through sheer force of habit. To others it is a commonplace enough store or office. To him it is the mausoleum where lies buried his youth, with all its dreams and hopes and ambitions, and there is a tear under the smile on his wintry old face as he says that he has left Blank & Blank's and has got too old to work.—New Orleans Picayune.

A Curious Sight.

In Japan the traveler sees many curious sights. One of the strangest of which is the population washing itself at the corners of streets toward evening. In Yeddo the citizens frequent large bathing establishments. The street doors of such resorts stand open, and a striking spectacle, to say the least, is presented by the inmates sitting washing themselves with the utmost unconcern. This is a general custom, and nothing whatever is thought of it. Such an apparent want of modesty is difficult to comprehend and is not reconcilable with the advanced state of civilization of the Japanese. In many other of the manners and customs do the Japs offer a striking antagonism to those accepted by us.

CURE DYSPEPSIA

A CHICAGO DUN'S WRINKLE.

Use of a Young Woman in Collecting a Bill From an Obstinate Debtor.

"Speaking of collecting bills," said the man from the west, "we have a most effective method in Chicago. There instead of young men they employ young women. I tried it myself, and it worked like magic. A fellow by the name of Green owed me a small bill, a matter, I think, of $17 or so. It seemed impossible to make him pay it, so I engaged the services of a pretty and stylish girl. I sent her around to his office. He was out. She called again. He was still out, but, nothing daunted, she made the third and the fourth call. The fourth time he was in, but he firmly refused to pay the bill.

"'Look here, Mr. Green,' said the girl. 'I will make a proposition to you. If you will pay 5 cents a day on this bill, will call each day and collect that amount until you have paid it in full.'

"But Green was a hard party. He again refused, and the girl left the office apparently crestfallen. The next day she did not call at his office, but she did call at his house. The door was opened by the servant.

"'Is Mr. Green in?' asked the young woman.

"'No, ma'am.'

"The girl left, but it seems that the servant duly reported the call of the pretty and stylish young woman who was so anxious to see Mr. Green to his wife. The next day when the young woman again called the wife hung over the banisters, taking a peep at the caller on her own account. The young woman asked if Mr. Green was in.

"'No, ma'am,' answered the servant, 'but his wife is.' The wife had told her to say this, of course.

"'His wife!' stammered the girl. 'Why, has Mr. Green a wife?'

"The wife, hanging over the banisters, heard this. She turned pale and gasped for air, while the girl, seemingly very much confused and distressed at her discovery, went on down the steps and into the street. It is impossible to say just what happened at that house that night, whether pokers and curling tongs were hurled or the furniture torn from its foundations and flung madly about or the roof was raised skyward, but one thing I do know—the next day Green promptly paid the $17, and the girl didn't call at his office for it either. He came around and handed me the money himself, and he seemed to think he was getting off pretty easy at that."—New York Sun.

Why Suffer

When Your Agony and Torture Can Be Permanently Banished by Paine's Celery Compound?

Neuralgia Surely Cured by the Great Medicine.

Able Physicians Recommend It

Able physicians, after a satisfactory experience with Paine's Celery Compound, have come to the conclusion that it is a true specific for that merciless tormentor—neuralgia.

Neuralgia indicates a low or depressed state of vitality, and nothing so rapidly weakens and exhausts the system as pain that prevents sleep and keeps the body and mind in agony and torture.

Neuralgia being a nerve disease, is most common in the face, and frequently the entire head suffers excruciating pain. Attacks of neuralgia are very uncertain; sometimes they come and pass quickly away; often the pain and agony will continue for weeks and months.

When there is a lowering of vitality, when sleeplessness, anxiety, malaria and debility are at work, and when there is exposure to wet and cold wih rheumatic tendencies, neuralgia is sure to prevail.

Paine's Celery Compound being a nerve medicine and nerve food, it reaches the root of the trouble in a way that no other medicine can do. The most terrible and long standing cases have often been completely cured by the use of a few bottles. Paine's Celery Compound has in thousands of cases saved lives after the best medical exertions failed. If your life is a continued misery from neuralgic tortures, be wise and use at once nature's true nerve medicine, Paine's Celery Compound. Beware of substitutes; "Paine's" is the kind that cures.

Poison Parts of Snakes.

All poisonous serpents have movable fangs, which are found in the upper jaw, and when not in use close up like the blade of a penknife.

At the base of every poison fang there are numerous germs of others, and the fang, if broken or lost, is replaced in a few weeks by the growth of another.

"IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY."

To Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, North American Life Assurance Co., Toronto:

DEAR SIR,—Your official notice came duly to hand, apprising me of the results obtainable upon my 15 year endowment Policy in your Company for $1,000 which matured on the 5th inst. Of the various options you have given me vis.:

Cash value	$1,564 86
Paid-up Policy, payable at my death, for	2,560 00
Yearly Income for life of	166 20

I have decided upon the cash value; and it gives me pleasure to testify that, as I anticipated it would be when I took out the policy, IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY. This returns me the full premiums of the 15 years and over 4½ per cent. compound interest, in addition to which you have carried the risk upon my life. In view of the low ruling rates of interest which have been obtainable during the latter portion of the period, it is difficult to see how this excellent result could have been surpassed.

Yours sincerely,

HOME FROM THE FAR NORTH.

Visit of Inspector Strickland and Family to Peterborough.

Mr. Inspector D'Arcy Strickland, of the Northwest Mounted Police, Mrs Strickland and son, who has passed three and a half of the four years of his life in sub-arctic surroundings, are home on a three weeks' furlough.

Inspector Strickland is stationed at present with a detachment of the force at Lake Tagish, situated about midway between the 60 h and the 61st parallel.

He has many and multifarious duties at Lake Tagish—very much similar to Poo-Bah of the Mikado, showing that "th lot of a police man is not a happy one." He is Inspector of Police, police magistrate, postmaster, collector of customs, coroner, inspector of weights and measures all rolled into one, and almost every other public functionary whose services modern civilization demands.

The hours of a mounted policeman are supposed to be from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m., but Inspector Strickland has to consider himself on duty every hour of the twenty-four. The unreasonable demands made by the public, and the absolute impossibility of meeting many of them, gives rise to many of the unreasonable complaints made against the authorities. For instance, the other night in the wee sma' hours, Inspector Strickland was aroused by a stranger entering his bedroom. Hastily rising and dressing with the idea that murder at least was at the bottom of a visitation at this unearthly hour, he was paralysed by the fact that the "swelling prologue to the act" was only the preface to a request for a three cent stamp.

Mr. Strickland's personal appearance indicates that "life in high latitudes" agrees with him. He says that returning miners give Mr. Ogilvie a very good name for fairness and efficiency of administration in the Klondyke.

The heaviest entries are in Plymouth Rocks, Brahams, Leghorns, Wyandottes and Minorcas and the competition promises to be keen.

P. H. GREEN'S REPLY TO R. M. ROY.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—Mr. Roy states in his letter in the EXAMINER of Wednesday, 11th inst., that he wishes no newspaper controversy with me. And I hope that as he will not make his attacks on me publicly where I can meet them, he will cease continuing to do so on the streets of Peterborough and elsewhere in my absence. There is, however, a statement in his letter that I avoided any reference in my former letter of the 10th inst. in the EXAMINER, to the good will of the business which I sold him. I stated in that letter, I had not since the day of the agreement engaged or do I intend to engage either directly or indirectly in the business or occupation of studio photography in the county of Peterborough during the time provided by the agreement, and I desire to repeat that I have not violated any part of the agreement either in spirit or in letter, I sold Mr. Roy the good will of the business and have not impaired it in any way since. I have nothing whatever to do with my brother's and his son's business either directly or indirectly, and have no financial interest in it whatever, but on the contrary am carrying on my own business at Cobourg, in the County of Northumberland. My brother and his son have removed to Peterborough on their own account, and the business carried on by Green & Son on Hunter street is entirely their own.

Mr. Roy says he will leave the public to judge for themselves how well I have carried out my agreement with him in spirit and letter. He gives them no facts whatever from which they can judge, but simply throws out an insinuation of bad faith, while I have stated my position fully and frankly. I have no doubt my course will be considered a much fairer one than to attack a man in his absence and to back down when confronted.

Now, Mr. Editor, I have kept my agreement with Mr. Roy, both in spirit and in letter, and in perfect good faith. On the other hand, notwithstanding his written agreement with me to assume and complete all unfinished contracts at the time of the sale to him, I have overwhelming proof that he has not done so, and to this I challenge Mr. Roy's contradiction, and it became necessary for me, in justice to all other parties interested, to publish a notice in the EXAMINER asking all persons having unfinished contracts for photos, who have been refused their just rights by Mr. Roy, to notify me by mail here, and I would give them an order on any other photographer in Peterborough they might desire for the work to which they are entitled.

I dislike the necessity for bringing private matters before the public, but I could not allow continued attacks to be made upon my good faith and common honesty without replying to the same in a way which would reach the largest number of citizens, who might have heard these attacks, and, in the absence of such contradiction, might not know they were entirely unfounded.

Yours truly,
P. H. GREEN.

OBITUARY.

The Late John Tangney.

Last night at 9 o'clock Mr. John Tangney, one of our oldest citizens passed away at the family residence, corner of Rubidge and McDonel streets, at the age of 72 years. His last illness—chiefly the infirmities of advanced age—was of about six months duration. Mr. Tangney was a native of Limerick, Ireland, and came to Canada nearly half a century—47 years—ago. After his arrival in Peterborough he was united in marriage to Miss Ellen Kelly, daughter of the late John Kelly. For many years Mr. Tangney was employed in what is now known as Paterson's tannery, at a time when it was conducted by the late James Hall.

He leaves behind him a widow and the following children: Mr. E Tangney, Lindsay; Mrs. W. Barrie, Buffalo; Mrs. John Trombley, Charlotte street, town; Mr. P. J. Tangney, town; Miss Catharine Tangney, who resides at home, and Mr. J. J. Tangney, Cleveland, who is home for the funeral, which takes place to-morrow from the family residence, at 2 o'clock p.m.

Mr. Tangney was very highly respected in the community, where he has passed with honour and esteem, about two-thirds of his life.

The Late Mrs. Clifford.

The death of Mrs. Clifford, whose illness with its peculiar attendant circumstances, was recorded in yesterday's EXAMINER, occurred at an early hour this morning. Rev. H. Symonds, rector of St. Lukes, was with the deceased during her last hours which were made as comfortable as possible. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at three o'clock from her late residence, Ashburnham.

SPORTING PASTIMES.

Interesting Items of Local and General Interest.

HOCKEY.

The Intermediate team from Norwood played the Petesborough II at the rink last evening, but the local boys were unable to score a sufficient number of goals to overtake the big score which the Norwood's ran up against them in their own town last week.

In Norwood the score was 6—1 in favour of the home team, and last evening Peterborough tallied six to Norwood's three. This makes Norwood the winner of the series by 9 goals to seven.

Lindsay will play in Norwood on Friday evening in the second round.

The result is, perhaps, all for the best, and will certainly encourage the sport in Norwood, whilst the fact of the Intermediate team being knocked out in the first round will not materially affect hockey in Peterborough, as the two other teams in the series will give the local enthusiasts all the games they want. It was simply a question of time when the local Intermediates would have to drop out, as with the loss of Crossley, Harry King, Bob Thorne and George Dixon, they could not recruit their ranks sufficiently to hope to do more than get beyond the second round at the outside. Under such circumstances it would have been far wiser not to have attempted to put Norwood out of the running, but rather to given them an opportunity of seeing what they could do amongst other outside teams.

As it is, Norwood has fairly won out the first round of the series and Peterborough can do no less than wish them success in their next effort.

Last night's game was a little on the rough side, owing to the fact that having five goals to the good, at the start, Norwood played four men on the defence in an effort to keep the Peterboroughs from scoring. The players thus became congested at the Norwood end of the rink very often and nice combination work was an impossibility.

Norwood possesses a very strong defence, but the forwards do not play together enough. If they would win, it is team play, not individual work, which will pull them through.

The games last night were scored as follows:

THE KEENE METHODIST PARSONAGE OPENED

FORMALLY MONDAY, JANUARY SIXTEENTH.

An Elaborate and Highly Successful Occasion—Description of the New Building—The Attendant Festivities—Most Gratifying Success Throughout.

From Our Own Correspondent.

The formal opening of the new parsonage in Keene, which took place yesterday, will no doubt be long remembered as an important date in the history of the Methodist church in that village, and the success with which the event was attended reflects the utmost credit and calls for the most cordial commendation of those who worked so faithfully in successfully harmonizing the intellectual, the physical and esthetical features, that is the musical treat in the parsonage, the supper in the hall—emphatically the supper—and the speech-making in the church.

All afternoon visitors thronged the parsonage delighted with the musical renditions and rapt in admiration of the beautiful home of the present and future ministers who may have the happiness to have their lot cast in Keene.

The parsonage exteriorily is a beauty mark in the already beautiful little village. It is of two stories and a half semi-cottage in style and built of red brick. On two sides a commodious verandah runs the entire length, which in front is capped by a pretty balcony, which commands a most magnificent view of Keene, the winding river and the lake and hills in the blue distance. But the beauty of the building presents itself in its true form only when one enters it. The main door opens upon a spacious block hall, running the entire depth of the house, showing to advantage the broad stairway and elegantly finished balcony and landing finished in natural birch. On the left of the hall is a beautiful and spacious reception room, lighted by a double pair of multioned windows. This again is connected by an arch with the commodious dining room. The second story is laid off into a study, bath room, bed rooms, etc., which can only be described as models of comfort and beauty. As a whole the structure excels in beauty and modern appliances, and is one that will be a gratifying remembrance of those who strove so zealously to bring about its completion.

Supper surpassed anything of the kind ever attempted in the village before. From all points and of all denominations the people crowded to the town hall and it was only by the utmost patience and push that an entrance could be obtained. But the bounty of the spread and excellence of the eatables entirely compensated the arduous struggle and the anxious wait. The excellent cooking of fowl that was served, the promptitude and solicitude of the waiters elicited the utmost praise of all. Fully six hundred people were substantially satisfied. The returns will go a long way to reduce the debt on the parsonage. While supper was still in progress—for it lasted from 4 till 10—the feasted part of the many assembled in the Presbyterian church, for the Methodist church could hold not half, where speeches were delivered by local and visiting clergy, among whom were Revs. Messrs. Liddy and Johnston, formerly located here. Rev. Mr. Campbell, of Campbellford, delivered a happy speech, commending the good work done and expressive of good will and Christian concord. The venerable Rev. Mr. Andrews was in his forte in unusually happy speech. A musical programme interspersed the speeches. Altogether the event was gratifyingly successful and all will remember it as a day of advancement in religious harmony.

NOTES.

Turkey and chicken salad were the order of the evening.

Rev. Mr. Joliffe, of George street church, Cobourg, President of the Conference, was the distinguished speaker and made the financial appeal.

Mr. Harold Kindred contributed to the musical programme.

Mrs. (Rev.) Liddy delighted her old friends with her remarkably rich voice during the musical programme with a well rendered solo, "Mount Zion."

The total cost of the parsonage was $1600. The total balance was subscribed at the evening meeting.

THE LITTLE LAKE CEMETERY COMPANY.

HELD ITS ANNUAL MEETING ON MONDAY.

Reports Presented—Officers Elected—Record of the Proceedings.

The annual meeting of the Little Lake Cemetery Company was held in the council chamber on Monday afternoon. Mr. H. Dennis, president, occupied the chair, and there were present, the Secretary, Mr. E. A. Peck, the directors, several shareholders and the superintendent.

THE DIRECTORS' REPORT

was presented and adopted as follows:

To the Shareholders of the Little Lake Cemetery Company:

The Directors of the Company beg to present their report for the past year as follows:

The gross revenue for the year fell somewhat below that for the previous year owing to the smaller amount received from the sale of lots. The receipts from this source, which in the year 1896 were $1,343, have gradually fallen until 1897 they were $887 and last year were only $654. The receipts could no doubt be increased by offering for sale lots in portions of the cemetery which are now reserved therefrom. At present the directors consider it better not to offer these as it would have the effect of increasing the area of ground to be cared for and probably a much better price could be obtained for the reserved lands in the future than at present.

Although the receipts are thus reduced they exceeded the expenditure of the year by the sum of $310.

The directors regret that the considerable balance of cash in the bank at the commencement of the year still remains there on deposit. They have endeavoured to invest the same in a town debenture but none could be had during the year. It is expected that one for the amount available for investment can soon be obtained.

Considerable improvements have been made upon the grounds, etc., during the year, a detail of which is given in the superintendent's report which will be presented to you.

Respectfully submitted,

HENRY DENNIS, President.

THE SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT

was presented as follows:

To the President, Directors and Shareholders of the Little Lake Cemetery Company:

GENTLEMEN,—I beg to submit the following report of the improvements made at the cemetery for the year ending December 31st, 1898.

At the beginning of the year a leather covered register for the single grave plot in Section N, was procured, and the interments entered showing the number of the graves, the names of the proprietor, the date of the purchase and the name of the person interred and the date of interment.

In the spring fifty trees of the silver birch were procured and some planted at the single grave plot, some on Section E and along the river bank at the east side of the cemetery above the riprap, also 100 feet more of the bank was riprapped with large stones. Additional pipe to the water system were laid on Sections A and K, and three hydrant stands erected. The receiving vault has been struck painted, the earth at the back of the abutments was removed, a clay built to the plastered with cement to keep the water from penetrating them, and the coping reset in cement. In Section C, 544 feet of drains, averaging six feet ten inches deep, was made and laid with tile, also two catch basins were built to receive the surface water. The terraces at the entrance each side of the stone steps were re-graded and sodded; in Section G and I where the paths were cut out, leaving high banks on each side it was impossible to keep them in good repair, from the effects of the water during a rain storm and washing them out, they have been refilled and sodded over, which makes an improvement in the landscape and will save considerable expense in the future. On sections A, H, I and G, the grave and lot markers, which were standing out of the ground 2 to 10 in., have been set low enough to allow the lawn mower to pass over them and the letters cut on the top and painted black, also the grave mounds that were high lowered to an even height, an improvement which well repays for the expenditure.

In the fall when the water was lowered in the lake about sixty yards of very fine gravel was secured, which is on hand for future use.

I would recommend that drains be made on the remaining walks not drained on Section G the coming season to intercept the drain on Ravine avenue, and the grave and lot markers on sections B, K and Q, be cut and set down the same as on Sections A, H, I and G, the coming season and that in future no grave markers be allowed any higher than will allow the lawn mower to pass over them.

I append hereunto my financial statement for the year ending December 31st, 1898.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

FASHION AND FABRIC.

Half low necks and long transparent mousquetaire sleeves, much wrinkled from shoulder to wrist frills, appear among many of the evening bodices for the winter.

The graceful, classic, gem set chatelaine has come into favor again among the accessories of artistic evening attire, and the smartest of these are of fine gold filigree, set with many colored real gems.

There is no dressy wardrobe complete this season without at least one handsome gown of black silk dotted net, mousseline de soie, velvet or satin striped etamine or plain brussels net over a satin or silk slip.

Tweeds, cheviots, camel's hair and bourrette materials, the smooth kid finished venetians and French broadcloths are employed in the construction of the most elegant fur trimmed dress costumes of the winter.

There seems to be no end to the variety of long slender chains used this winter, from which is suspended or to which is attached the muff, purse, lorgnette, lavender salts bottle, watch, shopping tablet or cardcase.

Demitrained princess dresses are in great vogue. These are of white or pink India silk, Marie Antoinette satin, faille in plain colors or striped with chenille or velvet, silk dotted henrietta cloth or drap d'ete with velvet accessories matching the color of the tiny dot.

White India cashmere and cream tinted drap d'alma form simple yet elegant toilets, trimmed with very narrow satin ribbon to match; gathered on one edge and applied to bodice, skirt and flounces in showy arabesque designs in applique effects, or in Grecian patterns as borderings to panels, skirt fronts, ruffles, jacket edges, etc.

The new clinging dress skirt so much the rage both here and abroad reaches its climax of sheathiness and slender, willowy grace among the lovely evening dresses formed of soft transparent materials, and the considerable length added to the skirt likewise enhances this long, sweeping effect and imparts not a little additional height to the wearer.

HOCKEY.

The Intermediate team from Norwood played the Peterborough II at the rink last evening, but the local boys were unable to score a sufficient number of goals to overtake the big score which the Norwood's ran up against them in their own town last week.

In Norwood the score was 6—1 in favour of the home team, and last evening Peterborough tallied six to Norwood's three. This makes Norwood the winner of the series by 9 goals to seven.

To the President, Directors and Shareholders of the Little Lake Cemetery Company:

GENTLEMEN,—I beg to submit the following report of the improvements made at the cemetery for the year ending December 31st, 1898.

At the beginning of the year a leather covered register for the single grave plot in Section N, was procured, and the interments entered showing the number of the graves, the names of the proprietor, the date of the purchase and the name of the person interred and the date of interment.

In the spring fifty trees of the silver birch were procured and some planted at the single grave plot, some on Section E and along the river bank at the east side of the Cemetery above the riprap, also 100 feet more of the bank was ripsapped with large stones. Additional pipes to the water system were laid on Sections A and K, and three hydrant stands erected. The receiving vault has been much painted, the earth at the bank of the abutments was removed, a clay built to the plastered with cement to keep the water from penetrating them, as the coping rests in cement. In Section C, 544 feet of drains, averaging six feet ten inches deep, was made and laid with tile, also two catch basins were built to receive the surface water. The terraces at the entrance each side of the stone steps were re-graded and sodded; in Section G and I where the paths were cut out, leaving high banks on each side it was impossible to keep them in good repair, from the effects of the water during a rain storm and washing them out, have been refilled and sodded over, which makes an improvement in the landscape and will save considerable expense in the future. On sections A, H, I and G, the grave and lot markers, which were standing out of the ground 2 to 10 in., have been set low enough to allow the lawn mower to pass over them and the letters cut on the top and painted black, also the grave mounds that were high lowered to an even height, an improvement which well repays for the expenditure.

In the fall when the water was lowered in the lake about sixty yards of very fine gravel was secured, which is on hand for future use.

I would recommend that drains be made on the remaining walks not drained on Section G the coming season to intersect the drain on Ravine avenue, and the grave and lot markers on Sections B, K and Q, be cut and set down the same as on Sections A, H, I and G, the coming season and that in future no grave markers be allowed any higher than will allow the lawn mower to pass over them.

I append hereunto my financial statement for the year ending December 31st, 1898.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

FASHION AND FABRIC.

Half low necks and long transparent mousquetaire sleeves, much wrinkled from shoulder to wrist frills, appear among many of the evening bodices for the winter.

The graceful, classic, gem set chatelaine has come into favor again among the accessories of artistic evening attire, and the smartest of these are of fine gold filigree, set with many colored real gems.

There is no dressy wardrobe complete this season without at least one handsome gown of black silk dotted net, mousseline de soie, velvet or satin striped stamine or plain brussels net over a satin or silk slip.

Tweeds, cheviots, camel's hair and bourrette materials, the smooth kid finished venetians and French broadcloths are employed in the construction of the most elegant fur trimmed dress costumes of the winter.

There seems to be no end to the variety of long slender chains used this winter, from which is suspended or to which is attached the muff, purse, lorgnette, lavender salts bottle, watch, shopping tablet or cardcase.

Demitrained princess dresses are in great vogue. These are of white or pink India silk, Marie Antoinette satin, faille in plain colors or striped with chenille or velvet, silk dotted henrietta cloth or drap d'ete with velvet accessories matching the color of the tiny dot.

White India cashmere and cream tinted drap d'alma form simple yet elegant toilets, trimmed with very narrow satin ribbon to match; gathered on one edge and applied to bodice, skirt and flounces in showy arabesque designs in applique effects, or in Grecian patterns as borderings to panels, skirt fronts, ruffles, jacket edges, etc.

The new clinging dress skirt so much the rage both here and abroad reaches its climax of sheathiness and slender, willowy grace among the lovely evening dresses formed of soft transparent materials, and the considerable length added to the skirt likewise enhances this long, sweeping effect and imparts not a little additional height to the wearer.

APPALLING DEATH

"Kidney Disease." Do you know what it means? It means that the kidneys are either rotten, or rotting; the blood is full of poisonous, death-dealing corruption; that the Kidneys can't do their work; that the victim is a walking charnel-house; that his hours are numbered; that the victim MUST take Dodd's Kidney Pills if he does not want to die.

Have you Kidney Disease? Is your skin hot and dry; memory failing; breath short; urine, reddish, or pale colored; does it scald when passing; is your appetite changeable; do your ankles swell; have you bitter taste in the mouth on getting up mornings; is there a brick-dust deposit in your urine?

Any of these signs is proof positive of Kidney Disease. Will you be cured, or will you die? Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only means on earth that will cure you. They never fail.

A HARD RAILROAD TO BEAT.

One Man In Double Distilled Ill Luck Found It So.

The Southern Pacific is about the worst road in the wide, wide world to fool in the matter of transportation. The Southern Pacific has such a plain monopoly of California business that it is not necessary for it to look for favors, so it closes down very tight. Even the tickets which the scalpers succeed in getting are so hedged about with precautions that it is like taking a civil service examination to beat one of them.

The favorite is a long slip which is designed to be punched to fit the description of the purchaser, so that by no means can it be used by another than the rightful owner. When one of these tickets appears in a scalper's stock, it looks like a porous plaster, being punctured for the color of the eyes, the hair, stature, weight, complexion and other details of the physical make up.

Once Jim Crawford of Laramie found himself stuck in San Francisco with $4 and a fearful hunger for home. But $4 was as nothing to the fare back over the desert. While he was worrying his soul with regrets he came upon a neatly folded slip of paper which had been lost, doubtless by some hurried tourist. It was one of those pieces of organette music representing a ride back to Ogden.

Jim read it over, printed matter, punches and all, and rushed for a drug store. He bought dyes for his hair, a stain for his complexion, got a pair of blue goggles and ran a concealing bandage over his chin. A barber took off his mustache, and for a dollar a cheap oculist made his eyes blue, so that the goggles were re-enforced with corroboration. It took all his money but 40 cents. Then he climbed aboard the train.

He had reached Port Costa when the conductor came around and gave one hurried look at the ticket.

"This thing expired a month ago," he said tersely.

The telegraph poles were pendulous with blue and brimstone for two weeks after Crawford had finished his walk back to Oakland.—Chicago Record.

WONDROUS REMEDY.

Is what a London Doctor Calls Dodd's Kidney Pills.

London, Jan. 9.—A large decrease in the number of cases of Kidney Disease has been noted in this city during the past year.

"There's only one thing to be said about it," said a prominent physician speaking on the subject the other day.

"This falling-off is due solely to the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills by the people. Dodd's Kidney Pills are the most wondrous kidney remedy ever known. They are used in nearly every household, which accounts for the great decrease of Kidney Complaint."

THE SIEGE OF PARIS.

HOW LONDON FIRST LEARNED THAT IT HAD ENDED.

Story of the Reporter Who Got the "Scoop" and Who Then Induced Bismarck to Allow Him to Send Out the News Over His Private Wire.

During the Franco-German war, from Oct. 18, 1870, to March 1, 1871, I was attached to the headquarters of the crown prince, who occupied an unassuming little villa called Les Ombrages, in an outskirt of Versailles, his august father residing throughout the investment and siege of Paris in the prefecture of the whilom "royal burgh," and Count Bismarck, with his staff of councilors and secretaries, in a detached house of the Rue de Provence. I often met the chancellor out of doors, walking or riding, during that long and bitter winter, but sedulously refrained from soliciting audiences, being well aware that the visits of a war correspondent, who had everything to ask and nothing to tell, could not possibly be welcome to so desperately overworked a statesman as Bismarck.

By what means I need not explain in this place, I had been made acquainted with the precise terms of the capitulation of Paris at an early hour of the morning after the conclusion of the armistice, and had, moreover, good reason to believe that the conditions of the surrender had not been communicated to any other correspondent of an English or even a German newspaper at headquarters. Having obtained the supremely important item of news, what was I to do with it? Unless it could be forthwith transmitted to The Daily Telegraph office by telegraph, my chances of forestalling my fellow correspondents would be annihilated, and there was no wire at my disposal—or, for that matter, at that of any foreign journalist—within the vast radius of the lines of investment.

The situation appeared an utterly hopeless one, until suddenly the happiest of "happy thoughts" flashed through my mind. Perhaps the all powerful chancellor, newly created a prince of the young German empire, would authorize the transmission to London of my dispatch over his own official wire, by means of which he was "en rapport" with every European capital except beleaguered Paris. There was no time to lose. Before 8 a. m. I had taken down the articles of capitulation from the lips of my informant, within half an hour I had copied them out, "large, bold and handsome," on two pages of foolscap and had made myself presentable.

At 9 o'clock I presented myself at the street door of the house in the Rue de Provence and sent up my card to Councilor Lothar Bucher, with a penciled request that he would allow me to speak to him in private. Almost immediately he came down to the waiting room on the ground floor, into which I had been shown, and asked me what he could do for me. "Can you procure me a five minutes' audience of the prince?" I replied. "I don't know," was the rejoinder, "but I'll try. The chancellor is extremely busy, but perhaps he'll see you if you can assure me that the matter is really urgent." I declared that for me it could not possibly be more so, whereupon Bucher left me—I confess, in a fever of anxiety—and was absent for about a quarter of an hour, at the expiration of which he reappeared and beckoned to me to follow him up stairs.

In an ex-boudoir on the first floor converted into a sort of office I found the chancellor awaiting me. After the briefest of greetings he said, "Pray, tell me what you want in the fewest possible words, for I have not a moment to lose." I produced my dispatch, handed it to him and asked him if it was substantially correct.

After looking through it he answered: "Yes, it is. I don't know how you got your information, and I don't intend to ask, but these are the terms on which Paris surrenders. What then?" When I besought his permission to forward the message over his wire, he laughed rather grimly, saying, "You must be mad to ask such a thing!"

I urged upon him that the tension of public feeling in England with respect to the fate of Paris was very painful—many people's sympathy being temporarily averted from Germany by harrowing accounts of the sufferings undergone by the population of the French capital. "That tension would be considerably relieved, sir," I replied, "by the knowledge that the siege of Paris is come to an end and that the victors have accorded merciful terms to the vanquished." Prince Bismarck held out against my importunity for about a couple of minutes, but he yielded at last, only stipulating that I should efface my name at the end of the dispatch.

"On no account can I allow you to sign a message sent over my wire. If your people in London do not believe it to be authentic when it reaches them, that is their affair. But it must go unsigned or not at all." It did go unsigned; it was accepted as authentic, and its publication that very afternoon in a special edition of The Daily Telegraph proved to be one of the greatest journalistic coups effected by any London newspaper during the Franco-German war.—London Telegraph.

"NO BOXES SOLD HERE."

A Sign Displayed In Shops Which Guard Carefully Their Reputations.

"No Boxes Sold Here" is the sign that hangs in one of the principal jewelry establishments in the city. The sign made its appearance after the shopping of one Christmas season. But there is no time of the year in which the demand for boxes is quite discontinued, and the sign serves its purpose always.

The demand for boxes was prompted by the amiable desire to deceive some friend or relative into the belief that the article presented to him came from the best establishment in the city. Similar attempts are made at the well known glass and china shops, at one of the well known French confectioners and at all of the establishments which have made a reputation in some particular field.

Nearly all of these answer such applications with the words of the sign, "No Boxes Sold Here," but there are some few which sell them as regularly as they do other objects of merchandise and are quite indifferent to what becomes of them so long as they get their rather high prices for the empty boxes bearing the name of the firm. Similar indifference is shown by a well known English pickle factory, which allows its labels to be sold here and pasted over any sort of stuff that the purchaser of them happens to concoct.—New York Sun.

The Nose Lasts Longest.

Bone and cartilage enter so largely into the structure of the nose and determine its characteristics that it undergoes little perceptible change, as a rule, with the lapse of years. The brow becomes wrinkled, and crows' feet gather round the eyes, which themselves gradually grow dim as time rolls on. Cheeks lose the bloom which cosmetics cannot replace and lips their fullness and color.

The chin, dimpled in youth, develops angularities or globularities, as the case may be, and the eyebrows become heavy with the crop of many years' growth. The nose shows no mark comparable to these familiar facial indications of the approach of old age and practically enjoys immunity from the ravages which time makes on the other features of the face. Next to the nose, probably the ears, as a rule, show the fewest and least obvious signs of old age.

Bagpipe Music.

A Glasgow paper thus analyzes the music of the bagpipe: "Big flies on window, 72 per cent; cats on midnight tiles, 11½ per cent; voices of infant puppies, 6 per cent; grunting hungry pigs in the morning, 5½ per cent; steam whistles, 3 per cent; chant of cricket, 2 per cent."

Women's Worst Enemy

Some hesitate before giving an answer, but those who know best will immediately say HEADACHE.

Thousands of women live in misery day after day, and week after week, suffering untold agony from these dreadful headaches. Husbands are disheartened, children neglected, and happy homes ruined. Most women strive to bear in patience the suffering which they consider part of life without looking into the cause or searching for relief. Food cannot digest without the bile which the liver supplies and hence the necessity of keeping the liver in good working order. To cure the headaches you must cure the liver and thus remove the cause of disease.

Dr. Chase spent years of his life in perfecting a medicine which acts directly on the kidneys and liver. Thousands of grateful women have testified during the past ten years to the effectiveness of this remedy for sick headaches. Many a home has been restored to happiness as a result.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, the greatest discovery of this great scientist, are put up to sell ag doses for 25c. All dealers.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

Now is a good time to prune the grapevines.

If the lawn needs manuring, now is the time to give it.

In mulching, use material that is free as possible from weed seeds.

Rhubarb starts to grow so early in the spring that fall setting will nearly always be found advisable.

In keeping apples, all ventilation is injurious which causes any considerable alteration in the temperature.

While lillies and gladiolas are injured by manuring, tulips, hyacinths and crocuses are benefited by a liberal allowance.

A good tree well taken up and well planted will do equally well whether transplanted in the spring or in the fall.

One decided advantage in fall planting is that the tree is in place ready to grow as soon as the season opens in the spring.

Nearly or quite all kinds of fruits and vegetables keep much better if the temperature in the place where they are stored can be kept even.—Exchange.

A Woman's Crime.

A THRILLING STORY OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE.

By LAWRENCE M. LYNCH.

Author of "John Arthur's Ward," "The Diamond Coterie," "Against Odds," Etc., Etc.

Prettiest of beauties was Aura Durand, as she arose to receive him; and Neil Bathurst could not repress an admiring glance as he looked upon her. How lovely she was, and how wonderfully well the green magnificence of the room harmonized with that loveliness.

Her reception of the detective was as cordial as it was charming; and they chatted very pleasantly; first about the lady herself, and her health, then about Neil; and how cunningly Miss Durand had surmised that he was the detective who had tried to find a clue to "Poor papa's stolen money," then about the Arteveldt tragedy; and while they were upon this subject, Aura said:—

"To tell the truth, Mr. Bathurst, it was, in part, to hear you talk of this that I took the liberty of asking you to call on me. Poor Clarence and I were very good friends, you know. Poor fellow; his love affairs have been most unfortunate."

"His love affairs! Am I to infer that there were other affairs? I had heard that he was once most devoted to you, Miss Durand; did you treat him so cruelly?"

Her eyes dilated; and, just for one instant, her face paled; then she answered, with a rippling little laugh:—

"What an absurd report! Excuse me, Mr. Bathurst, but how our deeds of friendship will be misinterpreted; I will confide this much in you; I was aware of a love affair of Mr. Arteveldt's, one that would have displeased his mother very much, had she known it. Poor Clarence used to confide in me sometimes, and the young lady was, after a fashion, my friend. I was sorry that I had to know anything of the affair, so many people insisted upon mistaking me for the principal figure. But I could not avoid it—under the circumstances."

"Am I to understand, Miss Durand, that your friend or companion, Miss Annin, was the object of Mr. Arteveldt's affections at one time?"

"You are to understand nothing," cried Miss Durand, with pretty pout. "See, now, what a blunderer I am! I never intended to tell you the identity of the lady."

"Well, you did not mention the name of Miss Annin."

Aura became suddenly grave. She leaned toward the detective and said, half beseechingly, "Mr. Bathurst, let us not talk of Miss Annin. She is not with me now. I had to give her up, and I did like her so much."

On the detective's side, at least, there had been an undercurrent to all this conversation, and he now asked, almost abruptly:—

"Are you and Miss Annin divided in friendship?"

"No," said Miss Durand, mournfully, "I want to be poor Nina's friend. But—I could not keep her in this house after—Mr. Bathurst I will trust you thus far, poor Nina had an insatiable longing for dress and jewels. I could bear my own losses, but not to see others losers."

A strange look came into the face of Neil Bathurst.

"Do you know where Miss Annin lives now?" he asked.

"Yes—she lives with a Mrs. Rogers, an aunt, I believe."

"Do you know Mrs. Rogers?"

"I! Mercy, no!"

"Miss Durand," said the detective after a moment's silence, "please be frank with me. Have you any of Miss Annin's handwriting in your possession?"

Again that startled look in the eyes of Aura Durand.

"I—must have, of course, somewhere. Why?"

"May I ask you to give me something, anything, in her handwriting?"

The girl considered for a moment.

"I don't know just wher to put my hand on her writing now, Mr. Bathurst, but I will search for something written by her, and you shall have it."

"Thanks. May I call for it some evening soon?"

"I shall be glad to have you do so. You are always welcome, Mr. Bathurst."

"Then—I may come oftener."

She smiled at this, but made no reply. At this moment the footman entered the room, saying: "Miss Annin is here, Miss Durand. She says she must see you."

A strange look came into the face of Miss Durand.

"Tell her I am not at home," she said, quite sternly.

"Yes miss." The footman turned, and ther in the doorway stood Miss Annin.

"I felt so much at home that I came right up, Aura," she said, entering the room with perfect composure.

"Oh, Mr. Bathurst! I did not know that you were here. I am really glad to see you. I am afraid that I intrude," at the same time seating herself nonchalantly.

"Not in the least," replied the detective, arising. "I was just taking my leave. Miss Annin, when we meet again I hope it won't be to part so soon."

Then he said adieu to Aura Durand, who had not addressed one word to Miss Annin, and followed the servant from the room. At the head of the stairs he halted suddenly.

"I have dropped my glove," he said, and before the servant could perform the office, stepped back to the door of the green boudoir. The glove lay on the very threshold, and as he stooped to recover it, he caught these words:—

"What do you want now?" It was Miss Durand's voice, with all the coo and softness gone out of it.

"One thousand dollars," replied the cool voice of Miss Annin.

"What! More money?"

The detective lifted his head, and came away, the glove in his hand, and a peculiar smile hovering about his mouth.

Half an hour later he burst into the presence of Rob Jocelyn, with these enigmatical words upon his lips:—"The next time my imagination runs off into a nightmare I won't throw cold water on her. I'll run after with all the legs I possess."

Then he closed his mouth, and utterly refused to open it again on the subject. But later Rob might have heard him muttering, as if to some invisible charmer:—

"My dear, wait a bit. I'll teach you to try to outwit a detective!"

CHAPTER XXXII.

THREE SHADOWS.

For nearly a week Lenore, in the character of the "Ball-tosser's daughter," had been domiciled at Mrs. Horne's, and the very strangeness of her quarters gave her a sense of security. Mrs. Horne was a fortune-teller; a reader of the planets; and was altogether a remarkable woman. She was a large, fine-looking person, and her manners and conversation were refined to the last degree. She made a fair living by reading the stars for the benefit of the credulous ones, and made merry at their expense when in the bosom of her family. Between Mrs. Horne and Mrs. Harris there existed an affinity which Lenore recognized, but could not comprehend.

Two very pleasant rooms, in the retired portion of Mrs. Horne's house, had been placed at Lenore's disposal, and here Mrs. Harris came every day, and twice a day, to "show her the steps," and afterwards regale her ears with wonderful tales of stage successes, all tending in one direction.

Mrs. Harris had dreamed a dream; she had fancied herself able to win Lenore's consent to allow her to act as her guardian and agent; she knew that the beauty, grace, and intelligence of the girl would quickly make for her a prominent position among the best of the profession, which, as she averred, was "making all the money in the business."

Lenore was to become a vocalist and dancer; she was to sign an agreement, giving Mrs. Harris full control over her for a year, at least, and that lady was to reap a golden harvest, travelling comfortably with Lenore, drawing her salary, and pocketing the lion's share. This was the dream of Mrs. Harris, and to this end all her arguments tended.

Lenore had but one desire, one thought; to vanish from the world that had known her, to lose her identity entirely. She was not blind to the motive which actuated Mrs. Harris; the keen wit of that lady seemed to react upon her protegee: neither was she dazzled by the allurements of the stage, as pictured by the ballet mistress. But she saw in such a life the opportunity she sought, of losing herself. No one would dream of looking for Lenore Armyn upon the variety stage. And she believed that she could adopt that profession and still be her best self. Let Mrs. Harris reap the benefit; what she wanted was safety.

Mrs. Harris was a tenacious woman, and her shrewdness had its weak points. She was known to nearly every performer in her particular branch of the profession. Mrs. Harris was not a dramatic actress and never had been. Every performer in the city then knew her, as they knew managers, property men, and bill posters, and Mrs. Harris had a certain pride. Lenore had expressed a wish to be seen by no one, and she would not come to the house of Mrs. Harris, to be displayed to the friends of that lady as her new pet and protegee. Mrs. Harris looked upon Lenore as a prize, and she wished to display her as such.

"There's no earthly chance of any of your people seeing you," argued Mrs. Harris, "and it will do you good to see some of these people. I'm going to speak for a box at R——'s to-night, and you must go with me; no one will see you; we will go in at the stage door; of course, it's no such theatre as you will act in. I wouldn't allow you to act there, but R—— is an old friend of mine, and I want you to see the worst side of the life." By which she meant that she wanted to make the poor, half-paid, half-starved, wholly-besotted actors at R—'s stare in astonishment, and wonder "where Harris found a girl like that."

Constant dropping will wear a stone. For three days Mrs. Harris harped upon this theme, and at last Lenore, seeing that the ballet-mistress was preparing tod be actually offended if she did not consent, and feeling that she, Lenore, could ill afford to lose her rather expensive patronage just then, consented to accompany her to R——'s variety theatre. This put the ballet mistress in a rare good humour, and she lavished praise and advice in profusion.

"I'll tell you what you must do," she said, eagerly. "This business all depends on your style. Now your style is good, but you dress too plain. You must dress for effect. Adopt some particular style, and stick to it. Now, for you nothing could be nobbier than a boy's cut-out, have your hair cut short; it would curl all over your head, wouldn't it?—have a tony jacket, double-breasted and all, like a boy's, with a cute breast pocket and bright buttons; then get one of those cute caps, just like a boy wears, only seal skin; and, my, wouldn't you be a stunner! Why, no one would know you for the same girl!"

"Do you think they would not?"

"I know they would not."

Mrs. Harris had not expected that Lenore would so readily adopt this advice, and when the girl drew out her purse and counted out some money, she asked:—

"What do you want?"

"Get me a jacket and cap such as you described, please; and—can you cut my hair?"

"Do you really mean it?" cried Mrs. Harris. "I'll go right away and get the things; but—it's a pity to cut your hair, after all; just cut off the front, and coil the rest on top of your head loose; it's so thick and wavy, it will do nicely that way."

"Just as you please," said Lenore, indifferently.

"I'll get you a cute silk handkerchief to stick in the side pocket," said the ballet mistress, rapturously. "And a sailor collar and tie for your neck. I'll show 'em!" This last, spoken after Mrs. Harris was outside the door, was not intended for Lenore's benefit.

To be Continued.

THE SHOT THAT TELLS.

Do you know what happens when one of our big thirteen-inch shells strikes a fortification? It is fairly lifted off its foundations.

This is the modern way of doing things: concentrating every ounce of power and energy into one tremendous irresistible blow that simply annihilates opposition. This is the method that means success.

It is just the same in the warfare against disease. While all sorts of half-way compromising medicines in the hands of only partially experienced doctors make a feeble, "small-calibre" sort of resistance to the enemy, Dr. Pierce's magnificent "Golden Medical Discovery," with its splendid blood-purifying, liver-toning, strength-creating power, hurls the fortress of disease from its very foundations, and searches and drives out the lurking symptoms of weakness and debility from every secret hiding place in the entire physical system of mankind.

The work of this grand "Discovery" is thorough; it gives the health that is all health; the strength that is solid and substantial and lasting; not flabby fat; not false stimulus; but genuine, complete, renewed vitality and life-force.

"I had been a sufferer for fifteen years nearly all the time," says Mrs. Sarah M. Taylor, of Eureka, Greenwood Co., Kans., in a friendly letter to Dr. Pierce. "In August, 1896, was taken with severe cramping pain in my stomach. The doctor here said it was due to gall-stones. He relieved me for a short time, and then there was a hard lump about the size of a goose egg formed in my right side. It became so sore I could scarcely walk about the house, and I had no appetite. I consulted the best doctors in town and they said medicine would do me no good. I gave up all hope of ever getting well again.

"You advised me to take your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets,' which I did according to directions. I began to feel better, and my appetite came back. Now it is a little over a year since I began to do my own work. I am stronger than I have been for five years."

So much depends upon the purity of the blood that by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla many different diseases are cured.

ELECTRIC SPARKS.

An electric wire that has been rested for three weeks will show an increase in conductibility of fully 10 per cent.

In certain conditions of the atmosphere electricity is so abundant on the top of the volcano Mauna Loa in Hawaii that an English geologist found that he could trace electric letters with his fingers on his blanket.

M. McCartney, Lombard Street Fire Hall, Toronto, dated March 4 th, 1897, states:—"Am subject to very painful conditions of costiveness and other troubles resulting therefrom, but I am glad to say that I have found a perfect remedy in Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I trust this may be of benefit to others."

POULTRY POINTERS.

Roup is produced by neglecting a bad cold.

Do not feed sulphur to fowls in damp weather.

Do not pack dressed poultry until all animal heat is cooled out.

Clean earth is a first class disinfectant and purifier. As long as it is dry it can hardly be used to excess.

Give a variety of both dry and cooked food—a mixture of meat and vegetables. In this way better health and thrift can be maintained.

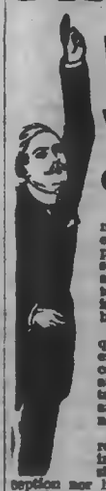
If the fowls have the run of the farm they find the kind and variety of food best suited to them, and the exercise helps to keep them healthy.

Plenty of clover will serve to keep the hens in good laying condition, as it does not fatten so readily as grain. Chop it fine and scald it in winter.

Dead leaves make a good material to scatter over the floor of the poultry house for the fowls to scratch over. Scatter a little grain among them.

The proper way to raise pullets is to feed them a ration that does not contain too much starch and to give them full opportunities for exercise. Pullets should not be too fat.

FREE Medical Treatment FOR Weak Men



Who are Willing to Pay When Convinced of Cure.

A scientific combined medical and mechanical cure has been discovered for "Weakness of Men." The proprietors announce that they will send it on trial—remedies and appliance—without advance payment—to any honest man. If not all that is claimed—all you wish—send it back—that ends it—pay nothing!

This combined treatment cures quickly, thoroughly, and forever all effects of early evil habits, later excesses, overwork, worry, etc. It creates health, strength, vitality, sustaining powers, and restores weak and undeveloped portions of body to natural dimensions and functions.

Any man writing in earnest will receive description and references in a plain sealed envelope. Professional confidence. No C.O.D. deception nor imposition of any nature. A national reputation backs this offer. Address

KEENE'S HALF CENTURY OF PRESBYTERIANISM.

INTERESTING HISTORY OF THE CHURCH AND ITS PASTOR.

A Hint at Keene's Early Settlement—The Past Worship—The Past Church—The Present Church and Pastor—Past and Present Pastor.

Montreal Witness.

A committee of the congregation of the Presbyterian church in the village of Keene, County of Peterborough, Ontario, has written a very interesting history of the church. The township of Otonabee, of which Keene is the chief village, must have been settled between the years 1815 and 1825. Its people were for the most part from the lowlands of Scotland, and soon became most successful as farmers in the very fertile, well-watered, easily drained region north of Rice Lake. One of their number, David Fife, was the original grower in Canada of Fife wheat, to which he gave his name. He brought the seed, supposed to be Russian grain, from Scotland, and from it, in the newly-cleared land, grew the justly celebrated white Fife wheat, which for twenty-five or thirty years was grown so generally and gave such large crops throughout Ontario, and which is still so widely cultivated. On the banks of the Koughnigauseeps (Green Bush) river, now called the Indian river, a mile or two from its mouth, in Rice Lake, sprang up the village of Keene, near a flour mill and saw mill, which were built there by an energetic scion of an old U. E. Loyalist family, established at 'the front' as villages and towns along Lake Ontario, then the means of communication and transport with Montreal, were called by the people in the 'back settlements and townships.' While the soil was new and

LARGE CROPS OF FINE WHEAT WERE GROWN

and sold at high prices, and while lumbering flourished in the country, the village of Keene was prosperous, though the town of Peterborough, with its greater water power on the Otonabee river, its easier communication with the front, attracted most of the trade and became the seat of the chief industries of the region. Though the construction of railways has drained the trade from the villages to the towns, yet a fair amount of the local business of the township continues to be done in Keene, which is the centre of the social and religious life of the eastern part of the township.

During the earliest days of their new life in Canada, the Scotch settlers provided for the education of their children by building a school at Keene. In 1833 they determined to establish a Presbyterian church, and Duncan Drummond, George Gillespie, Peter McFarlane, John McGregor, Duncan McIntyre and George Easson composed the board of management of the congregation; no church building was yet in immediate prospect to warrant their calling themselves trustees, and they stuck to facts. They entered into a bond guaranteeing a stipend of £125 per annum, £50 of which was obtained from the colonial fund of the Church of Scotland. The Rev. Archibald Colquhoun became pastor on these terms, and preached in the school house for nine years to a congregation of a little over fifty souls. In 1842 Mr. Colquhoun resigned, and for a time the services were conducted by the Rev. Mr. Roger, of Peterborough, and others.

In 1845 the congregation determined upon having a church building, and two acres of land were purchased in the village for (which £50 was paid, a transaction which proves that land was by no means cheap in the village in those early days.

KEENE'S FIRST CHURCH.

The church was built in the year 1846 at a cost of £300, of which sum £50 was one share of a donation of £500 from the Hon. Isaac Buchanan to the first ten churches erected after the disruption in connection with the Free Church of Scotland. The first subscription list in aid of the building fund of this church will doubtless be carefully preserved by the congregation, as it reveals the pleasing fact that people of all denominations, both Roman Catholic and Protestant, and all nationalities in the neighbourhood, contributed according to their means. The church was at first seated with boards resting on supports, which were afterwards replaced with comfortable pews furnished at the individual expense of the members.

The Rev. Mr. Wallace, then a young graduate of Queen's College, Kingston, afterwards pastor of Queen street Presbyterian church, Toronto, was the first pastor. The first elders were Duncan Drummond, Duncan McIntyre, Thomas Short and James Fife, and the deacons were Richard Short, John McFarlane, Alexander Wood, John Stark, James Sinclair, James Beckett and Malcolm Cameron. The records of the church show that the furnishing of fuel for heating the building and the care of the church building were voluntarily provided for during some years by members.

A Sunday school was almost immediately started, the first teachers of which were, besides the elders, Mr. Walter Renwick, Miss Gilchrist and Miss Annie Gilchrist. In 1848 a congregational library was established. Owing to illness Mr. Wallace was compelled to resign in 1847, and for three years services were conducted by students.

In the year 1850

accepted a call of the church and was inducted in the year 1851, five of the Presbyterian ministers of the nearest towns taking part in the ceremonies. Mr. Andrews, who after 48 years' constant and unwearied service without a break, is still pastor of the church, is a graduate of Belfast and Edinburgh universities, in the former of which the Rev. Dr. Cook was principal, and in the latter the Rev. Dr. Chalmers. Before going to Keene Mr. Andrews preached for a short time at Grand River, Ontario. At the beginning of his pastorate in Keene the communion roll contained the names of 142 members, of whom 20 are still living and 11 remain connected with the church, namely, Alexander Wood, John Wood, George Wood, James Wood, John Hope, Archibald Davidson, Robert Borland, Thomas Borland, Mrs. Wm. Drummond, Mrs. John Hope and Mrs. David Henderson.

Early in the history of the church there was a male choir, far from usual in Presbyterian churches at that time, but later precentors were appointed—Peter Anderson, Robert Graham, Thomas Lockhart, James Buchanan, William Renwick and John Gillespie, in succession. In May, 1890, an organ was introduced into the church.

In 1851 a female association was regularly constituted and organized, which, as the records show, contributed considerably to the building of the manse, the upholstering of the pulpit, and so forth. This manse was built hard by the church at a cost of about $1,000.

The session met regularly at the manse for prayer every Sunday before service. At one of its meetings a resolution to establish a total abstinence society was passed. Down to the year 1864 were entirely relied upon. Since then the system of renting the pews has been maintained. In 1879 a ladies' missionary society was organized, with the following officers: Mrs. George Read, president; Mrs. Richard Hope, vice-president; Mrs. Alexander Drummond, treasurer, and Mrs. Moscrip, secretary.

In 1883 the congregation decided to build a new church, and the Queen's birthday of 1884 was celebrated by the laying of the corner stone. The cost of this fine large brick church was about $11,000, exclusive of the voluntary labour of members. The board of elders was composed of Alexander Wood, John Miller, Wm. Plunkett, Peter McNeil, Jas. M. Drummond and Wm. J. Miller, and the deacons were Alexander Gillespie, David, Moore, Jas. McNeil, John Lang, David D. Henderson, Peter Comrie, and Peter Drummond. Besides members of these boards, Mr. Geo. Read and Mr. Richard Hope were on the building committee.

The church was dedicated by Principal Caven, of Knox College, on June 24, 1885.

A woman's auxiliary and a mission band in connection with Zenana missions were established, and in 1892 a Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, which has been very active, as the report records that 'its members have assisted the church both materially and spiritually by their prayers, by their contributions to missions, in Sabbath-school work, in beautifying the church with floral tributes and by visiting the sick, bringing them tokens of love to cheer them in their affliction. We also owe to their zeal and successful efforts the sweet-toned bell calling us every Sabbath to worship our God in His holy sanctuary."

A CARD.

SELF-MARRIAGE.

Windsor, Ontario's Marriage Mecca, Now Presents the First Case in Canada's Record.

Toronto, Jan. 17.—A man may not marry his grandmother, but it seems that a man may marry himself.

On file in the office of the Provincial registrar are papers of a most unusual nature, testifying that John William Pfohler of Maidstone Township, Essex County, place of birth Buffalo, aged 30 years, did marry and espouse Lois Markle, 20 years old, residing in Elgin County, the ceremony being performed at Windsor on Oct. 13, 1898, by the groom. He is a Presbyterian and she an Episcopalian. The officiating clergyman is signed by the groom himself.

This is the first time that a man has in Canada performed the ceremony for himself. Accompanying the papers is a plaintive note from the division registrar of Windsor asking for instructions in the matter, as up to the time of writing he has been unable in any way to find evidence that the return was not made in good faith.

The question naturally arises whether the man's solemnization of marriage of himself by himself is legal. The only way, in the opinion of the Deputy Attorney-General, to determine this would be by laying the case before the courts.

Some years ago a similar transaction took place in the Old Country, but was referred to by the papers only as a curious happening.

There seems to be nothing in the Marriage Act to prevent an officiating clergyman being a party to his own wedding, as it reads:

The following persons . . . . may solemnize marriage: "The ministers and clergymen of every church and religious denomination duly ordained or appointed according to the rites and ceremonies of the church or denominations to which they respectively belong."

It appears also that marriages are made in Windsor at an unprecedented rate. Accompanying the particulars of the above case is the report stating that last year out of a population of 10,000, 535 marriages were celebrated, while in Toronto for the same time, with a population of 200,000, the number was only 1,500.

Discovered by a Woman.

Another Discovery has been made, and that too, by a Lady of this Country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly, and could not sleep. She finally discovered a way of recovery, by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking first dose, that she slept all night: and with two bottles, has been absolutely cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz.' Thus writes W. C. Hamnick & Co., of Shelby, N. C. Sold by all Druggists at 50 cents and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed.

Men Laugh at their Wives About Bargains

But What Is Business Life but a Hunt for BARGAINS?

Does it make any difference if the amount involved is large or small? We have raised the idea of "Bargains" at our store during this GREAT CLEARING SALE OF FURS now going on preparatory to leaving town Feb. 19th, next.

A woman who visits our store and invests now would not only please her husband but could only be considered by him as "economy" personfied—prices on Furs are so very low that for anyone who needs them—not to invest, would be like throwing away money.

TAGGART ARRAIGNED.

The Defence Enters a Plea of Insanity at the Start—Story of the Crime Reviewed.

Toronto, Jan. 17.—The Taggart murder trial opened yesterday afternoon in the Criminal Assize Court before Mr. Justice Falconbridge. Mr. J. K. Kerr, Q.C., Crown prosecutor, in his opening address, outlined the facts of the murder. He said that the prisoner had taken a set of harness from his employer the night previous to the tragedy and had purchased a hammer from Mrs. Singer of 149 York street with the proceeds. He then went down to the Victor Mission and slept until 5 a.m., when he left. Taggart's subsequent visit to No. 4 Police Station and his confession of the crime, followed by the finding of Mrs. Taggart's body in the yard of 45 Seaton street, were next related to the jury.

Police Constable Jenkinson, station duty man at No. 4 Police Station, reviewed his evidence as to the confession as given at the coroner's inquest and preliminary investigation. He was corroborated by Sergt. Archer and Constables Allen and Wallace.

At the outset Mr. Riddell urged a plea of insanity. He questioned the officers closely about the actions of the prisoner when giving himself up.

The last witness called before adjournment was Dr. O'Reilly of the General Hospital. He swore to the woman's treatment and her death at 7.40 the morning following the tragedy. To Mr. Riddell Dr. O'Reilly admitted that the prisoner might suffer at times from transitory insanity. At adjournment the jury were locked up for the night.

POULTRY POINTERS.

Damaged grain or fermented food is very apt to induce bowel diseases.

To fatten geese rapidly feed boiled oats with milk two or three times a day.

From this time on through the winter early feeding will give the best results.

Removing to warm, dry quarters will prevent the biggest half of any disease.

It is not a bad plan to keep a nonsitting breed to lay when the sitters are hatching.

On the farm especially the most money is made in variety, keeping chickens, turkeys, ducks and geese.

Begin with a good breed, one that is medium in size, good layers, excellent table fowls and constitutionally strong.

If you will put a pan of whole corn in the oven and let it char, you will be having charcoal in the best form for fowls.

While it is more trouble to dress the fowl before sending to market, in nearly all cases a much better price can be obtained.

One advantage in keeping only one breed of chickens on the farm is that they can have unlimited range and in this way lessen the cost of keeping.

While quality is not always indicated by color of the legs or skin, as a general rule buyers prefer yellow, and producers should not overlook this point.—Exchange.

Some Plain Questions.

Have you catarrh? Have you bronchitis? Have you offensive breath? Have you slight symptoms of consumption? Then send for a free sample of catarrhozone. What is catarrhozone? Not a snuff, wash nor ointment, but an odorous gas, which is carried by air directly to the diseased parts. It penetrates wherever air can go, and never fails to effect a cure. We do not ask you to believe this until you have tested it for yourself. Send for a trial bottle gratis to N. C. Polson & Co, Kingston, Ont.

We are convinced that the Cash System will conduce to the best interests of buyer and seller; and we ask for the hearty co-operation of our patrons in the mutual advantages which will accrue therefrom.

The saving in discounts which we will be prepared to give will be unprecedented, but quite consistent with High-Class Family Groceries.

SITUATION AT MANILA

Official Despatches Bring News That Is Good and Reassuring.

ALARMING REPORTS UNTRUE.

Spain Waiting for the United States to Ratify the Peace Treaty Before Calling the Cortes Together — Right Hon. John Morley Strongly Denounces Imperialism—News by Cable.

Washington, Jan. 18.—Advices were received from Manila yesterday stating that the situation on the islands was very quiet. The despatch proved the most gratifying official news recently received from that quarter. It is announced that the people who have moved out of the city of Manila owing to alarming, but unfounded, reports, were quietly returning to their homes. At Iloilo affairs are progressing satisfactorily, and a gratifying fact recited in the cablegram was that the officers aboard the American ships and the individual insurgents were fraternizing freely on shore, and that there was no sign of trouble.

Waiting on Uncle Sam.

Madrid, Jan. 18.—The Premier, Senor Sagasta, in an interview yesterday afternoon, declared that he only awaited the United States Senate's ratification of the peace treaty to convoke the Cortes.

Thirty Bones Were There.

Cadiz, Jan. 18.—The casket containing the supposed remains of Christopher Columbus, which arrived here yesterday, on board the Spanish cruiser Conde de Venadito, and which were transferred to the auxiliary cruiser Giralda, for conveyance to Seville, has been opened. About 30 bones and some ashes were found in the casket. It was reclosed, and will be received at Seville with great solemnity and deposited in the cathedral. The route of the procession will be lined with troops.

Morocco Is Dangerous.

Madrid, Jan. 18.—News from Morocco is anything but reassuring. The Sultan's forces are not making satisfactory headway against the insurgent tribes, and the instant his inability to restore order—or, what comes to the same thing, his unwillingness to reduce taxation — is demonstrated, it is feared here that the trouble will begin. None of the great powers would willingly relinquish to another the task of pacification, and so Morocco may threaten the peace of Europe.

ANDREE MAY YET BE ALIVE.

Prof. Lachambre, Who Built the Balloon, Thinks So, at Least.

Stockholm, Jan. 18.—Professor Lachambre, the aeronaut who made the balloon in which his friend Andree started from Spitzbergen on July 1, 1897, on his journey to the North Pole, has assured the anxious relatives and friends of the Scandinavian explorer that he does not despair of seeing Andree again, despite the now almost universal belief that he has perished. In a letter the balloon man says:

"I consider it quite possible that Andree reached the North Pole and landed from his balloon on the further side of it, and that he was obliged to winter where the balloon fell. No reasonable conclusion can be formed as to his safety before the expiration of three years. Andree, I believe, is safe, and he has plenty of provisions for three years or more. Andree, it may be remembered, had two companions in his balloon—Messrs. Strindberg and Fraenkel. The balloon was well stored with provisions, consisting of tins of preserved foods of all kinds, chocolate, compressed bread, condensed milk, champagne, claret, alcohol, fresh water and butter.

"The stores, indeed, weighed no less than 2,000 pounds. Sledges were on board the balloon and boats also. There was nothing wanting that was likely to be required, and experts who followed the manufacture of the balloon, step by step, examined minutely all its parts and found everything perfect."

Was It Andree's Balloon ?

London, Jan. 18. — The Norwegian sealer Haanfagen, which has arrived here, reports that in July, 1898, while between Greenland and Iceland, an immense ice floe was encountered, on which was sighted a heap of ropes and rubbish. This was possibly the wreck of Andree's balloon.

THE KAISER'S IDEA.

Britain Would Make Short Work of France in Case of War.

London, Jan. 18.—Dr. Fenner, at the dinner of the Junior Carlton Club last night, made a statement in his speech that the German Emperor, while talking to him in Palestine, when a conflict between Great Britain and France seemed impending, said: "The struggle would not last more than five or six days, as in that time Toulon, Brest and Cherbourg would be in flames and the French fleet would be exterminated"

Chinese Attack a Catholic Mission.

London, Jan. 18.—A Central News despatch from Szechuan confirms the report of an attack upon foreign missionaries at that place by Chinese.

The Church Missionary Society has received a letter from the Protestant mission at Szechuan, which says that a fierce attack has been made by natives upon the Catholic mission there, but at the time of writing the Protestant mission was still unharmed, although the anti-foreign mission feeling was increasing.

The people, the letter says, are taught to believe that the saints' bones displayed in the Catholic relics are really the bones of Chinese, who had been murdered.

Fleet Not to Be Disbanded.

London, Jan. 18.—It is announced that the Portsmouth reserve fleet is not to be disbanded. The ships are to return to their respective ports in order that the crews of the vessels may obtain shore leave, after which they will reassemble in the latter part of February. This action is regarded as evidence that the Government still considers the political situation extremely strained.

Iglesias Visits the Queen.

Portsmouth, Eng., Jan. 18.—President Rafael Iglesias of Costa Rica visited Queen Victoria at Osborne House, Isle of Wight, yesterday afternoon. The warships here dressed ship and fired a salute of 21 guns in honor of the President.

MR. MORLEY RETIRES.

He Will Participate No Longer in the Formal Counsels of the Liberal Party —Denounces Imperialism.

London, Jan. 18.—The Right Hon. John Morley, Liberal member of Parliament for Montrose-Burghs, addressing his constituents last evening at Brechin, said he entirely concurred with the reasons which led Sir William Vernon Harcourt to resign the leadership of the Liberal party in the House of Commons. It was his own intention, he declared, to retire from active and responsible participation in the formal counsels of the heads of the Liberal party, although his zealous and eager co-operation could always be counted upon for the advancement of every Liberal cause.

Mr. Morley proceeded to criticize the "prevailing spirit of jingoism and imperialism." He denounced it as "entirely opposed to all the lessons of Mr. Gladstone—lessons to which he would feel himself untrue were he to allow himself to drift in acquiescence with a course of policy which he believed injurious to our material prosperity, to the national character and to the strength and safety of the Imperial State."

He frankly admitted that he took a pessimistic view of the difficulties threatening throughout the world. "I think," he exclaimed, "we are nearer the beginning of them than the end." It was his firm conviction that "the prevailing spirit of imperialism must inevitably bring militarism, a gigantic daily growing expenditure, increased power to aristocrats and privileged classes, and war."

Liberal M.P.'s to Select Him.

London, Jan. 18.—The Central News confirms the statement that a meeting of the Liberal party is to be held shortly for the purpose of appointing a successor to Sir William Vernon Harcourt, as leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons, and adds that the selection will be made solely by Liberal M.P.'s.

A Franco-German Alliance.

Paris, Jan. 18.—Ever since the much-discussed conference in Berlin on Jan. 8, between Emperor William and the Marquis de Noilles, French ambassador to Germany, a section of the French press has been actively discussing the possibility of a Franco-German alliance. The idea is meeting with approval in certain quarters, now that Frenchmen have come to regard England, rather than Germany, as the national enemy.

M. Ernest Daudet, the novelist, is an earnest advocate of such an entente, which The Courier du Soir considers "quite possible."

Percy Rowlinson to Be Surrendered.

Washington, Jan. 18.—The Secretary of State has issued his warrant for the surrender to the Canadian authorities of Percival F. Rowlinson, charged with forgery, and at present under arrest at Adrian, Mich. He was an insurance agent in London, Ont.

WENT UNDER THE ICE

Rev. Prof. Macadam Drowned in the Bay at Toronto.

THE CAREER OF THE DEAD MAN.

Mr. Macadam Is Supposed to Have Fallen Into a Hole in the Ice on Monday Night—His Faithful Dog Gives the Alarm and Watches Over His Master's Icy Grave.

Toronto, Jan. 18.—The finding of a sealskin cap on the ice near the Grenadier Ice Company's docks, at the foot of West Market street on Monday night, has proved to be but the forerunner of a tale of tragedy. At noon yesterday Joseph Goodwin, jr., of the Island, found the body of the Rev. Professor Macadam in the icy water near where the cap was found and the little spaniel watched.

The body was somewhat mutilated, the finger nails were broken, as if from the victim's struggles to get out of the water. Upon his person was found his initialed watch, which had stopped at 9.25.

The body was removed to Millard's on Yonge street, and an inquest will be held to-day.

For the past three months the deceased had been living at 50 Mutual street, with J. Ogden. It has been his habit to take long strolls in the evening. On Monday he left home at 7.15 p.m., accompanied by his cocker spaniel, saying he would return shortly. He had not returned by midnight, and the household was alarmed. Mrs. Macadam remained up all night.

At 4 a.m. the faithful spaniel came home, dripping wet and shivering with the cold. It is now evident he had been in the water, trying to save his master's life. The dog was admitted to the house, and immediately ran upstairs to his master's room. Then he ran to the side of Mrs. Macadam, and, jumping upon her knees, placed his two front paws on both her shoulders and attempted to kiss her lips.

Mr. Macadam, not having returned with the dog, his wife became suspicious of what had happened. The little dog was soon again missed. He was afterwards found where the fatality had occurred. Mrs. Macadam recognized the sealskin cap in the hands of the police and fainted.

The deceased was born in Scotland, and, on coming to this country about 15 years ago, settled in Strathroy, Ontario, and was given charge of the Presbyterian Church there. Later on he went to Quebec, and was Professor in Morin College prior to his transfer to North Bay. Then he came to this city, and has preached in different pulpits at various times. Last Sunday he occupied the pulpit of Westminster Church at both services. The deceased was also an author, having prepared a book for the guidance of candidates for the communion, which is regarded as a standard work. At the time of his death he had no regular charge, but intended applying for a church.

No arrangements have as yet been made as to the funeral. It likely that Mr. A. Cameron of St. Stephen, N.B., a brother of Mrs. Macadam, will arrive today, but deceased's only two sons are at present in Europe.

DAIRYMEN MEET IN GUELPH.

Between 400 and 500 Butter and Cheese Producers Gathered.

Guelph, Jan. 18.—The annual convention of the Cheese and Butter Men's Association of Western Ontario opened here yesterday afternoon in the Royal Opera House, and will be in convention for the balance of the week. From four to five hundred delegates and officials are present. President Eagle of Attercliffe opened the proceedings with a short introductory address extending welcome, and then read the directors' report, which was adopted.

The financial statement was presented, showing a balance on hand for 1899 of $595.05. The sum of $82.50 was granted by the Government. The instructors received $1,966.30 — Morrison $965.05, Struthers $56. Mr. Eagle commented on the bad season they had just had, and pointed out the desirability of these conventions. He regretted that Mr. T. B. Millar had sent in his resignation as an instructor. They needed more instructors. Good men were hard to get. The work was, however, a stepping-stone to so getting better, and he hoped they would be able to get another good man to accept the position for a year or two.

A BIG MIGRATION.

1,500 Muskoka People Will Move to the Northwest in a Body.

Montreal, Jan. 18.—It will be a surprise to the people of Ontario to learn that a whole community, with their postmaster, counting 1,500 souls, is about to be taken up from the District of Muskoka and transplanted to one of the most fertile districts of Manitoba. This, however, is the fact, and the removal will likely take place in the early spring. Delegates have been sent out to the famous Swan River Valley, and there selected the future homes of the 1,500. This valley is reached by Mackenzie & Mann's railway, the Lake Manitoba Railway & Canal Company, and lies between the Duck and Porcupine Mountains, embracing some ten townships in length and five or six in width, and containing in all about three-quarters of a million acres of the finest soil in the Province of Manitoba. Some 4,000 new settlers went up there last year, and it is expected that 10,000 newcomers will settle down in the Swan River Valley this year.

Perfectly Cured

Weak and Low Spirited—Nervous Prostration—Appetite Poor and Could Not Rest.

"I take great pleasure in recommending Hood's Sarsaparilla to others. It has been the means of restoring my wife to good health. She was stricken down with an attack of nervous prostration. She suffered with headaches and her nerves were under severe strain. She became very low spirited and so weak she could only do a little work without resting. Her appetite was poor, and being so weak she could not get the proper rest at night. She decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, as we had heard it highly praised, and I am glad to state that Hood's Sarsaparilla has perfectly cured all her ailments." G. CHANDOS.

From Our Own Correspondent.

The ratepayers of Chandos have shown their appreciation of the services rendered by their reeve and councillors by again re-electing the entire council by acclamation, and it is safe to say that their confidence has not been misplaced, when on examining the auditors' report we find that instead of borrowing money for current expenses, as has frequently been the case in years past, we have had sufficient money to pay all demands for each year, and, at the same time, find our taxes gradually growing less, which proves conclusively that we have the affairs of the municipality controlled by men worthy of the esteem in which they are held by the ratepayers.

KIDNEY-SICK PEOPLE!

By far the largest army of sufferers in the world are the kidney-sick people—but by far the largest army of the cured ones attribute their release from disease to the great South American Kidney Cure—Cures Bright's disease. Cures diabetes. Cures all bladder ailments.

Kidney diseases are the most insidious of all diseases common to humanity; within the past few years medical science has made wonderful strides in coping with its ravages. South American Kidney Cure has proved rich in healing power, and every day testimony is piled up for its great curative qualities. Where kidney disease exists it is generally indicated by certain changes in the urine, such as mucus, sediment, albumen, brick dust, acid and blood—pain is not necessarily an accompaniment, which only aggravates the insidious nature of it. Testing and experimenting has disclosed the fact that the passing through these organs of the solid particles in the ordinary course of circulation do in a remarkably short while clog up, grind out and impair them so that the functions of these organs are not performed and disease lays hold on the patient with a ruthless hand. Kidney diseases require a solvent—South American Kidney Cure is a solvent—it is a kidney specific—claims to be no more—it has been tested by eminent medical authorities on kidney diseases, and proved and testified to by them as the surest and safest cure for all diseases of the kidneys and bladder. It's a purifier—a healer—a health builder—efficacious alike to man or woman.

Good News from the North Country—A young machinist in a large manufacturing concern in Northern Ontario, fell a victim to the dropsical form of kidney disease through atmospheric changes in following his daily labors—he continued his work until almost commanded to quit by the physician from whom he had been receiving treatment. He visited Toronto and consulted an eminent authority on kidney diseases. The doctor sent him home with as hopeful a story of himself as he could give, but wrote privately to the young man's physician that it was only a matter of time with him until death would claim another kidney victim. When he began to realize for himself that his case was hopeless he took his case in his own hands, determined to fight for his life. He experimented with many so-called cures without relief. South American Kidney Cure was brought to his notice, and like everything else, he tried it—to his astonishment he began to feel better under its use. He continued to gain strength—he took six bottles—and to-day that same young man can be found at that same lathe, working for that same concern, hale and hearty as the first day he went there. He gives all the credit to South American Kidney Cure.

SOUTH AMERICAN RHEUMATIC CURE—Has lifted men off a bed of pain after a few days' use, who have not been free from suffering for years.

HE WORKED THE COMBINATION.

A St. Catharines Local Expert Proves to Be a Gravelle.

St. Catharines, Jan. 18.—A good argument for Ponton was enacted when Mr. John Quinn, proprietor of the Russell House here, changed the combination on his safe about ten days ago and locked it before making note of the numbers. He then wrote to a safe works and asked that a man be sent to unlock it, but the reply came that the combination could not be worked out, it being a five-numbered one and impossible of solution. This fact became known to Mr. Wells, manager of the Electric Light Company, and he volunteered to do the trick, and furthermore, he offered to bet $100 that he could open the safe. He was laughed at, but was given a chance to make his word good. Last night he applied himself at the task and in two hours his efforts were rewarded by the combination working out.

MEN DEVOURED BY WOLVES.

The Howling Brutes Are Numerous in the Lumber Camps.

Ottawa, Jan. 18.—A gentleman from up the Ottawa, who came to this city last evening, states that in the vicinity of the Coulogne limits hungry packs of wolves are ravaging the country, and the shantymen are compelled to go armed in many cases, in order to protect their lives. One of the men employed in Mr. Alex. Fraser's camps went out a few days ago, and a short time afterwards his head and feet were found in the woods, the body having been devoured by wolves, whose tracks were plainly traceable. Two men who left one of the camps at Christmas time to go to Ottawa have not been heard of since, and it is feared that they, too, have met a terrible fate. In no previous year have the wolves been so numerous or ferocious, and hundreds have been killed by the shantymen.

Collision at Mimico.

Mimico, Jan. 18.—A collision of two freight trains occurred here last night, resulting in the destruction of one locomotive and serious damage to the other, as well as damage to some of the cars. Fortunately both crews realized that a collision was imminent before it came, and by jumping from their respective engines saved their lives.

Willing to Oblige.

Smoking a cigarette the other night in the north I heard a story which, so far as I know, is new. A proud old lady swept indignantly up to the door of a railway carriage at York station. A schoolboy was leaning half way out of the compartment, reflectively making a cigarette, and, after the fashion of the English schoolboy, not caring for anybody. "Is this a smoking compartment?" asked the dame, with soothing voice. "No, madam," replied the boy politely, raising his cap. "If you want a smoking compartment, you will find one a little lower down."—London Figaro.

TAGGART ON TRIAL.

Witnesses Swear the Prisoner Confessed the Crime Just After the Murder—A Wholly Useless Vagabond.

Toronto, Jan. 18.—All day yesterday great crowds thronged the corridors of the Court House and tried to gain admittance to the Criminal Assize Court, where the Taggart murder trial is in progress.

Miss Mary Weighell, who lives at 47 Seaton street, next to the yard where the crime was committed, told of hearing three screams. She heard the latch of the gate open and shut, and later the people gathering in the yard. She was too frightened to go out.

Ex-Ald. Foster, in whose yard the crime was committed, told of hearing a knocking, then sighs or moans, and then of the relatives and police coming.

Mrs. Rosina Law, an old lady, Mrs. Taggart's mother, who lives at 14 Sydenham street, was a pitiful sight in the witness box. On the morning of the murder Mrs. Taggart had left the house at 5 o'clock. Mrs. Law afterwards got up and dressed, and was dressed when Taggart came in.

'Mother,'' he said, "I've murdered Rebecca! I've killed her! She's lying in Foster's yard, dead!"

Then he turned his back, and the witness heard him say, "I'm going to give myself up."

"And I didn't believe him," cried the old woman, who broke down completely and had to be carried fainting into a witness-room and attended by one of the doctors present.

Mrs. Rosina Cosburn, a sister of Mrs. Taggart, told of Taggart's worthlessness as a husband. He drank all he made, and his wife kept him until last July. Mrs. Cosburn went to Foster's yard and found her sister there. She broke down in describing her sister's condition. Taggart, she said, had been a regular wandering tramp, and time after time his wife would take him in and clothe him. "She was a good, faithful wife to him," said Mrs. Cosburn.

Several second-hand dealers gave evidence as to Taggart's sale of a set of stolen harness, his attempt to buy a revolver and his purchase of the hammer.

Asa Brown, veterinary surgeon, of 84-85 George street, described how on Thanksgiving morning Taggart, who had been working for him, gave notice that he would leave, and was going to the Northwest, to British Columbia.

"You know the trouble I've had with my wife," he said. "I can't sleep, and when a man can't sleep he can't work. I'm going among strangers."

That afternoon Mr. Brown missed the harness which Taggart afterward sold.

To Mr. Riddell witness said he had had no fault to find with Taggart. His great trouble seemed to be that he could not see his children.

R. J. Cosburn, dairyman, husband of Mrs. Taggart's sister, described Taggart's uselessness and a sound rating he had given him on one occasion about a month before the crime for his indolence. He would follow his wife around her milk route trying to get money.

Evidence as to the granting of the order for protection was admitted.

A NEW INVENTION

The Newcombe Piano Has It.

It consists of a Patented Practice CLAVIER or STOP which diminishes the tone when required and saves wear on the Piano; it also does away with the old way of having to press down the pedal with the foot in order to soften the tone when running the scales or practicing. Oftentimes the young pupil on the piano cannot press down on the pedal without throwing themselves out of the proper position when they should sit erect. This invention in the NEWCOMBE PIANO will enable children to begin two years earlier on the piano. In addition to the above, the NEWCOMBE PIANO is the finest made in Canada. Children often complain about practicing; they like it if they have a NEWCOMBE PIANO. 1898 styles are gems of art, containing every late improvement; they possess that beautiful full sweet tone which delights the singer, and so pleases every musical ear. Organs of every description at Wholesale Prices.

Big Bargains now on hand in slightly used. Upright and Square Pianos of the various makes taken in part exchange for the famous NEWCOMBE PIANOS. Woodstock, Ont., Jan. 16.—Never, in the social history of this town since the Birchall trial, has such great interest been shown as the "Catmore Case" has caused.

Mr. C. J. Catmore, 90 Main street, was crippled by Rheumatism and Lumbago during five years. He couldn't stand straight and had to be helped from his room.

To-day he is straight and strong; sound in every limb, thanks to Dodd's Kidney Pills. Other remedies were used, but did no good. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him. Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure Rheumatism and Lumbago.

The Wrong Man Sentenced.

Berlin, Jan. 18.—Herr Schmidt, a Socialist member of the Reichstag, has voluntarily informed the public prosecutor at Madgeburg that he was solely responsible for the publication in the Socialist Volks-Stimme of the article purporting to be a communication between the Prince of Bagdad and his tutor, on account of which the editor, Herr August Mueller, was sentenced last week to 49 months' imprisonment, on the charge of lese majeste. The whole case must now be reopened.

No Hostility to Britain.

London, Jan. 18.—The French ambassador here, M. Paul Cambon, replying to an address of the International Arbitration Association at the embassy here yesterday, said no feeling of hostility towards the British existed in France. The press on both sides, he added, had exaggerated the little friction over the Fashoda incident, which was only temporary. France cordially supported the Czar's aims, but the ambassador feared that their practical realization would be a long time coming.

Spain Will Sell the Islands.

London, Jan. 18.—The Madrid correspondent of The Daily Chronicle says he is able to confirm the report that the Government intends to ask the Cortes to sanction the sale of the Caroline, Marianne and Pellow Islands, on the ground that Spain is unable to provide the necessary naval and military forces to protect them.

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA

To Gain Flesh, to Sleep Well, to Know [illegible] Good Digestion Means.

MAKE A TEST OF STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS.

No trouble is more common or more misunderstood than nervous dyspepsia. People having it think their nerves are to blame and are surprised that they are not cured by nerve medicines. The real seat of the mischief is lost sight of. The stomach is the organ to be looked after.

Nervous dyspeptics often do not have any pain whatever in the stomach, nor perhaps any of the usual symptoms of stomach weakness. Nervous dyspepsia shows itself not in the stomach so much as in nearly every organ. In some cases the heart palpitates and is irregular; in others the kidneys are affected; in others the bowels are constipated, with headaches; still others are troubled with loss of flesh and appetite with accumulations of gas, sour risings and heartburn.

It is safe to say that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure any stomach weakness or disease except cancer of the stomach. They cure sour stomach, gas, loss of flesh and appetite, sleeplessness, palpitation, heartburn, constipation and headache.

Send for valuable little book on stomach diseases by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich. All druggists sell full-sized packages at 50 cents. Prof. Henry W. Becker, the well known religious worker and writer of St. Louis, Secretary of the Mission Board of the German Methodist church, Chief Clerk and Expert Accountant for the Harbor and Wharf Commission, Public Secretary for the St. Louis School Patrons' Association, and the District Conference of Stewards of the M E. church; also takes an active part in the work of the Epworth League, and to write on religious and educational topics for several magazines. How he found relief is best told in his own words:

"Some weeks ago my brother heard me say something about indigestion, and taking a box from his pocket said "Try Stuart's Tablets." I did and was promptly relieved. Then I investigated the nature of the tablets and became satisfied that they were made of just the right things and in just the right proportions to aid in the assimilation of food. I heartily endorse them in all respects, and I keep them constantly on hand."

GALLERY PACKED BY TOUGHS.

But Joe Martin Was Not to Be Bullied by Them.

Victoria, B.C., Jan. 18.—After the citizens' meeting to protest against the election trials bill, introduced by the Government, the procession which paraded the streets ended up in the gallery of the House. Attorney-General Martin, as soon as the crowd reached the gallery, arose, and, taking out his watch, said to the Speaker that if the gallery was not cleared in 15 minutes he would move that the House adjourn to Vancouver. The gallery was immediately cleared. The Government claims that the gallery was packed with a gang of toughs in an attempt to coerce them to throw out the bill.

Leduc, counsel for Madame Poirier (Cordelia Viau) of his refusal to grant the application for leave to appeal from the decision of the trial judge, who refused to reserve certain questions of law which Mr. Leduc desired to argue before the Court of Appeal.

"IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY."

To Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, North American Life Assurance Co., Toronto:

DEAR SIR,—Your official notice came duly to hand, apprising me of the results obtainable upon my 15 year endowment Policy in your Company for $1,000, which matured on the 5th inst. Of the various options you have given me viz.:

Cash value	$1,564 96
Paid-up Policy, payable at my death, for	2,560 00
Yearly Income for life of	166 20

I have decided upon the cash value; and it gives me pleasure to testify that, as I anticipated it would be when I took out the policy, IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY. This returns me the full premiums of the 15 years and over 4½ per cent. compound interest, in addition to which you have carried the risk upon my life. In view of the low ruling rates of interest which have been obtainable during the latter portion of the period, it is difficult to see how this excellent result could have been surpassed.

Yours sincerely,

A PIANO THAT WILL STAY IN TUNE.

The Wormwith Company Piano Represents This Desirable Condition.

At the entrance of Jackson & Company's piano warerooms, Water street, stands an upright piano made by Wormwith & Co, Kingston. Running the hands over the keys, one notes the crisp, round, fine resonant tone. This is explained by the fact that it is constructed with a continuous iron frame, in which the string pins are firmly fixed, which results in a strong vibrant quality of tone, and prevents the instrument from falling out of tune. The patent tuning pin fastening, a new invention, used only in the Wormwith pianos, is the most valuable improvement ever applied to piano construction. The tuning pin being inserted only in the full iron frame prevents to the utmost the stretching and loosening of the strings, so common a nuisance in pianos with wooden, and not, iron wrest frame.

In consequence of this, Wormwith & Co. declare that their piano will stay longer in tune than any other piano made in the ordinary way.

The iron frame resists damp and the consequent shrinking and swelling, which, operating on wooden frames, throws the piano out of tune. No extremes of heat and cold that a piano in a house can be subjected to, will cause an appreciable expansion or contraction of the iron frame of the Wormwith Piano, which is therefore guaranteed to remain in better tune at the end of five years than the ordinary wood frame piano will do at the end of five months.

The Wormwith Piano, therefore, while it is a great boon and convenience in any place, is especially adapted for use in country places where the services of a piano tuner are not easy to get, and especially adapted to climates like our Canadian Northwest, where extremes of heat and cold play havoc with the wooden frame piano, but have no effect upon the strings of the Wormwith Piano, controlled by a perfect tuning pin fastening in a continuous iron frame.

When the Wormwith Piano is once put in tune it is there to stay and is not affected by use or the effects of damp or dry, hot or cold weather. This quality the company guarantees and anyone wanting a reliable and satisfactory piano that will stay in tune ten times longer than any other should have the Wormwith, which, while in this one particular, it is immeasurably superior, is in all other respects the equal of any other made in Canada, and Jackson & Co., Water Street, are the local agents.

DEATH OF SIX.

Mr. and Mrs. John Morrison Lose all Their Children With the Exception of One.

The appended letter has just been received by a friend in town concerning a sad affliction which has befallen Mr. and Mrs. John Morrison, formerly of Peterborough, who took up residence in the Northwest last fall. The letter reads as follows:

Those in Peterborough who are acquainted with Mr. John Morrison and family, late of that town, will be sorry, indeed, to hear of their recent great bereavement. Mr. Morrison arrived in Glenella in June, 1898, and his family followed in September. The short time they have been here has been sufficient to win for them the respect and friendship of all with whom they came in contact. Financially Mr. Morrison has been doing exceedingly well in this country and was contented and pleased with his choice of a home. But death, the dread destroyer, has within the last ten days been making fearful and heart-rending ravages in the home circle. One by one, beginning with the youngest, that deadly epidemic diphtheria has carried off the children of Mr. and Mrs. Morrison, till, sad indeed to record, only one is left out of seven. Miss Eveline, the eldest, is the only one spared. The whole settlement share in their sorrow and sympathise with the bereft parents. In absolute sincerity and without any suspicion of flattery to the dead I would like to say for myself (and I think that I voice the feeling of all in this vicinity) that very seldom indeed do we lose any of our settlers whom we so greatly miss as we do their oldest boy William, just emerging from the boy into the man. I have known few in my experience who in such a short time have won so warm a place in the hearts of all. Sad indeed must be the hearts of the parents over the loss of such a son. Words are more than useless for comfort in such a sweeping away of their loved ones, and we, their friends, can do no better than leave them in the hands of the Almighty God, whose dispensations are often so mysterious and inexplicable to us. God grant they may all meet above to part no more forever, when all the mysteries and things so hard to understand in this life will be cleared away forever. With sincerest sympathy for the stricken parents, I will just say in conclusion that as all may readily understand, Mr. and Mrs Morrison, worn out with watching and sorrow upon sorrow, are not able to undertake any correspondence at present, and their friends will hear from them personally later on.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

The Executive of the Waterway Association Decides to Take Immediate Aggressive Action.

A meeting of the Executive of the Trent Valley Waterway Association was held yesterday in the town clerk's office. Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., president of the association, occupied the chair, and there were present Mayor Morrison, of Trenton; Mr. W. Boyd, Bobcaygeon; as well as others who have always manifested a great interest in the scheme.

It was decided to have 5,000 copies of the pamphlet issued, containing the latest information in regard to the advantages of canals in the carrying trade of the country, which has been prepared by Mr. John Carnegie, at the request of the Association, with maps showing the route of the canal and other information bearing upon the importance of the work.

It was also decided to send a deputation to interview the Government at once, urging upon them the placing of the balance of the work under contract. It was decided also to communicate with the county councils and reeves of the municipalities asking them to appoint delegates to join a large deputation which will visit Ottawa early after the opening of the session.

Public meetings will be held at Barrie, Midland, Orillia, Peterborough, Lindsay, Trenton and other places between Georgian Bay and Lake Ontario, to secure the active co-operation of the various municipalities to force the government to immediate action. The work undertaken by the committee will cost in the neighbourhood of fifteen hundred or two thousand dollars, and the municipalities along the route of the canal will be asked to contribute towards this sum.

A CATHEDRAL WEDDING.

Nuptials of Miss Jennie Fobert and Mr. John Sullivan on Tuesday Morning.

A quiet but very pretty wedding took place Tuesday morning at St. Peter's when Mr. John S. Sullivan, formerly of Peterborough, but now of Durand, Mich., was united in marriage to Miss Jennie Fobert, youngest daughter of Mr. L. G. Fobert, of Cnemong Park.

The bride looked charming in a travelling dress of grey cloth, trimmed with white silk and ribbons and toque to match. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and smilax. The bridesmaid, Miss Louise Kearney, cousin of the bride, wore a costume of grey blue cloth with picture hat. The groom was supported by his cousin, Mr. Alf. H. LeHane.

After the ceremony the wedding party drove to the Chemong Park Hotel, where a number of friends and relatives were assembled and a sumptuous dinner was partaken of. A large number of presents were received. Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan leave to-morrow for the west, and their many friends in Peterborough and vicinity extend best wishes for their future happiness.

FROM DAWSON CITY.

Mr. Geo. Kempt, Formerly of Peterborough, Writes From the Klondyke.

Mrs. (Dr.) Kempt, George street, has just received the following interesting letter from her son, Mr. George Kempt, who went from Peterborough to the Pacific Coast, and afterwards north to Dawson City some time ago:

My Dear Mother,—Having written you over half a dozen letters and one to Aunt Nell, it seems mighty queer that I have not had a line from you, for all I know you might all be dead and buried. I have no doubt you have written but it seems impossible to get a letter here. When you write you had better put on "Hold till called for." I will tell you something about myself and what I am doing. I am now up the creeks on Gay Gulch, thirty miles from Dawson. We are working a claim there and have just finished our cabin, made of birch logs, and 12x14 feet, no floor but warm and comfortable. Our party is, with one exception, a Lindsay crowd, Jack McSweyn, Charlie Campbell, from Woodville, he went to school with me, and Alex. Cameron, a young Scotchman I knew in Vancouver. Our claim is No. 3 just 1500 feet up the Gulch from No. 36, Eldorado, where Chapel and McDonald took out last spring half a million dollars in gold dust. So far we have only got down about fourteen feet in each hole and have struck pay dirt, which is improving as we go down, and if it keeps on as it is and does not play out on us we will take out from ten to fifteen thousand each at the washup next July. All around us are doing well but we were a little late in starting. Nos. 4 and 5 are held for sale at $75 000. I staked a claim on Bear Creek, a short distance from us, and the prospects are very good. I think I can sell it for a good figure in the spring, if not I will work it myself next winter. On coming down I dropped into a cabin on Eldorado and one fellow was cleaning up a large bread pan full of gold, worth about eighty thousand. It will perhaps interest you to know how the mining is done and you will see it is no child's play.

When you get your claim you are all the way from ten to one hundred miles from Dawson, and in the summer all your grub has to be packed on your back to wherever you are, and on sleds in the winter. Having built your cabin, the next operation is to procure wood. You go up on the hills, which are very steep, and make a straight pathway down. To this you haul your bundles and slide them down. A great deal is used, as the ground is very hard—frozen to bed rock. After taking off the moss, where you decide to sink the hole, you light a fire and thaw the ground, about eight to ten inches at a burning, and it is considered good work to make a foot a day. The earth is taken in buckets and piled in a dump along the stream and in the summer is thawed out by the sun and run through sluice boxes, and the mud and gravel goes off, leaving the gold. Every evening a pan or two of dirt is taken into the cabin and washed out. The gold found is taken and weighed, which gives you an idea of how much gold you are taking out. I have seen pans running from seventy-five to one hundred dollars. Of course you never have your money until after the washup in July; but if we can keep the pay streak as we are doing now we will have from fifty to sixty thousand dollars to divide among us.

This is a very cold country. This morning it was fifty degrees below zero and we have lost sight of the sun and won't see his smiling face again till next April. Daylight begins at about 10.30 a.m. and lasts till 2, but nearly every place keeps the candles going all the time. Tell the girls I have three bracelets made out of small nuggets and will send them out whenever I can get any responsible person to take them. It is impossible to trust the mails and the banks want almost half for a draft. I and Campbell have been buying a sleigh load of grub this morning to bring out to-morrow. Here are some prices: Flour, $15 for 50 lb. sack; sugar, 75c per lb.; beans, 40c per lb.; bacon, 60c per lb.; rice, 40c per lb.; raisins, 75c per lb.; butter, $3 per lb.; condensed milk, $1 per can; tea and coffee, $2 per lb.; everything in proportion, with fresh meat from $4 to $7 50 per lb.

There are about twenty Lindsay boys here and all doing well. I met Ollie Wright about a month ago. He is working his claim on Sulphur Creek.

Now mother I must close, with love to Aunts Nell and Rose, the girls and all and wishing you a happy Xmas and all the blessings and gifts of the New Year, from your loving son,

GEORGE.

P. S.—I am sending this out by dog team and paying $2 for it, so I hope you will receive it. Don't send any papers as they never take them in, but give me all the news by letter. Never worry about me; I will live through this country and go home in a few years with enough to make you all happy. Never let Walter come here as he would not be able to stand the hardships.

Lovingly yours,

GEORGE.

Some Plain Questions.

Have you catarrh? Have you bronchitis? Have you offensive breath? Have you slight symptoms of consumption? Then send for a free sample of catarrhozone. What is catarrhozone? Not a snuff, wash nor ointment, but an odorous gas, which is carried by air directly to the diseased parts. It penetrates wherever air can go, and never fails to effect a cure. We do not ask you to believe this until you have tested it for yourself. Send for a trial bottle gratis to N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

CURLIANA.

The tankard rinks from Peterborough this year will be composed as follows:

GRANITES.

Geo Giroux,	R Nell,
Geo Morrow,	G H Boucher,
Dr Boucher, Jr,	W F Hamilton,
W L Allen,	R M Hamilton.

THISTLES.

J S Knapman,	C N Brown,
C Rutherford,	D Davidson,
T Rutherford,	T Ferguson,
S Ray.	J Conmal.

The Thistles have almost decided to drop out of the tankard series. Each year they are drawn to play off the preliminaries in Toronto which is manifestly unfair, as the expense entailed is considerable, besides the Toronto club derives a certain advantage from playing on its own ice. It is hoped that some arrangement may be reached whereby Peterborough will not have to leave town for the preliminaries every year.

Dr Shaw was up from Keene last night and following draw was made in group 8:

1ST DRAW.

1—Cobourg vs Lakeview (Toronto)
2—Port Hope vs Queen City (Toronto).
Byes:
3—Belleville.
4—Peterborough Granite.

2ND DRAW.

Winner of 1 vs winner of 3.
Winner of 2 vs winner of 4.

3RD DRAW.

Winner of 1 and 3 vs winner of 2 and 4

The second and final draws are to be played in Peterborough on Monday, Jan. 23 d The first draw will also be played here unless the clubs concerned can settle on more convenient ice.

The Thistles are asked to go to Toronto on Thursday to play Prospect Park in the first draw of group 7.

Keene has been notified to play at Belleville this week in the Eastern District cup series.

SMITH.

(From a Correspondent.)

Mrs. Jos. Greer, of Smith, was the recipient of a pleasant surprise on Tuesday evening, January 10th, when she was presented with an address, accompanied by a handsome upholstered rocker, by the members of the North Smith Presbyterian Sabbath school, where she has been engaged as teacher for the last ten years. The address was as follows:

Dear Mrs. Greer:

We have gathered here to-night as representatives of the North Smith Presbyterian church. We come representing especially the Sabbath school and the Bible class, of which you have been superintendent and teacher respectively.

We desire at this time to express to you to some extent, though feeble, our appreciation of your service to our congregation and Sabbath school. We recognize in you a true Christian worker in the Master's vineyard. We feel that the departure of yourself and Mr. Greer from our midst will be a distinct loss to us but we trust it will be so in for you. Your faithfulness, love and zeal will not be without their reward and will leave their mark upon the children and youth of our Sabbath school. They will, we are assured, remember what you sought to do for their instruction in sacred things, and will in great measure, as the result of your labours, become followers of Jesus Christ. We also take this opportunity of expressing our sense of loss in the departure of Mr. Greer. As a member of the sessions of our congregation he has given invaluable and true counsel.

We would now ask you to accept this chair as a token of our love and gratitude. May it be yours to long enjoy its ease and comfort. May health and all prosperity be given you, and in the years to come may you and your husband continue to enjoy the favour of God. May you both continue to be earnest and faithful labourers in the cause of Christ, and may you hear at the close of life the blessed commendation: "They have done what they could."

Signed on behalf of the congregation,

A. C. REEVES,
Pastor.

Signed on behalf of the Sunday school,

J. H. SANDERSON, Supt.,
ESTHER BLEWETT, Teacher,
MAGGIE PRESTON, Teacher.

Mrs. Greer replied briefly, thanking her kind friends for the munificent gift and for the kind wishes both to herself and her husband. She said the years she was engaged in Sunday school work were pleasant ones to her, and that she would always have an interest in the welfare of the people of North Smith.

An illustrated address "From the Manger to the Throne," was given in the Temperance Hall, Smith, last Sunday evening by Mr. Jas. Stubbs. It was the old old story given in such a way as to impress both young and old. The views are grand and of such a nature that all can readily see the lessons to be learned therefrom.

Mr. Stubbs introduced between the views appropriate and familiar hymns, which all could enjoy. The time of closing arrived altogether too quickly. The audience was chiefly composed of young men and women.

Glorious News.

Comes from Dr. D. B. Cargile, of Washita, I. T. He writes: "Four bottles of Electric Bitters has cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula, which had caused her great suffering for years. Terrible sores would break out on her head and face, and the best doctors could give no help; but her cure is complete and her health excellent." This shows what thousands have proved—that Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It stimulates liver, kidney and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion builds up the strength. Only 50 cents. Sold by all druggists, every bottle guaranteed.

HUMAN SACRIFICES

On the Altar of Diabetes, Saved by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Only.

Hardly a family in the country is free from Diabetes. Great thirst, failing sight, numbness in the thighs, bleeding gums, swollen ankles, emaciation, nervou ness, pale or turbid urine, loss of sexual power, decaying teeth, pains in the loins or small of the back, are all positive signs that Diabetes is in the system.

Do you know how it ends? IN DEATH. A premature, horrible, agonized, pitiful death. The victim has no peace, no ease in life. His days are filled with tortures. His nights are waking dreams of agony. He longs to die, yet fears the terrors of his end. He dies, a bloated, fetid, repulsive mass of corruption. That is the only end of unchecked Diabetes. Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it. They drive it out of the system thoroughly, create new, clean blood, rebuild the diseased kidneys, and restore robust health.

CAUSES OF WAR.

They Are So Absurd Sometimes, Are They Not?

"Did you know that the Wiggins family and the Waggins family are no longer on speaking terms?" said the woman who had just run in for a few minutes to be neighborly and sociable.

"No," answered the hostess. "What was it about?"

"The same old foolish story. Their children fell out and grew impertinent, and then the parents took sides, and the first thing any one knew there was a general misunderstanding."

"How foolish! I never could see why people didn't have more intelligence than to do such things. By the way, did you go to the theater last week?"

"Yes. Isn't that new star, Gerald McStiggins, simply grand?"

"I can't say I think very much of Gerald McStiggins."

"Not think much of Gerald McStiggins! Well, I am free to say that I don't believe I ever know what acting was till I saw him. His voice is so melodious and refined and the way he walks is so graceful that I don't see how anybody that is cultured could help admiring him."

"Perhaps he's to the liking of some people," was the rather icy answer, "but I never cared much for matinee actors who had women standing on the curbstone to see them come out after the show was over."

"I never did such a thing."

"Oh, I know you didn't—at least I never heard of it—but you know a great many do. Did you observe the work of Mr. Hamilton Fats? He is my ideal of an actor. He has so much repose. There is never any suggestion of self consciousness in what he does, and he isn't always trying to impress you with his personal beauty, either."

"He's a perfect clown!"

"Can it be possible that you are referring to Mr. Hamilton Fats in such language?" inquired the hostess, who was getting red in the face.

They were both standing in the middle of the floor. One held the parasol with a grasp which threatened to break its ribs and the other was nervously pulling a lace handkerchief into tatters. Just then the hostess' husband entered.

"What's the matter?" he exclaimed. "You seem excited."

"Oh, Mrs. Bingle was just telling me that the Wigginses and the Wagginses had quarreled."

"Yes. I'd heard of it. It was about their children. Wasn't it foolish?"

And both women replied at once, "Perfectly absurd!"

WONDROUS REMEDY,

Is what a London Doctor Calls Dodd's Kidney Pills.

London, Jan. 9.—A large decrease in the number of cases of Kidney Disease has been noted in this city during the past year.

"There's only one thing to be said about it," said a prominent physician speaking on the subject the other day.

"This falling-off is due solely to the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills by the people. Dodd's Kidney Pills are the most wondrous kidney remedy ever known. They are used in nearly every household, which accounts for the great decrease of Kidney Complaint."

Hastily Arranged.

She (to legal admirer)—Now, I always like to hear both sides of a question. Supposing that papa should will all his money to my brothers and sisters and leave me penniless, what should I do?

He—Try and upset the will on the grounds of insanity, undue influence and anything else that might suggest itself.

She—I see; but supposing that he willed it all to me and left them out in the cold?

He—Oh, then I should ask you to marry me at once.

She—But if the others tried to upset that will?

He—I should be your lawyer, and the money would still come to us.—Pick Me Up.

LIFE WITHOUT LIGHT

ANIMALS AND FISH THAT EXIST UNDER THIS CONDITION.

The Effect of Light Upon the Sleeping Sensibilities — The Experiences of Arctic Travelers—Nocturnal Eyes of Fine Construction—Animals and Fish That Really Have No Eyes.

In the long Arctic nights there is considerable difficulty in keeping awake; while, contrawise, the perpetual day of summer indisposes to sleep. At one time I worked thirty-six hours without realizing that the time had passed, until I discovered the fact by my journal, says a correspondent of the New York Times. I had no sense of sleepiness during this time. Last summer the sun set about 11 o'clock, and nobody seemed to be sleepy until it commenced to get dark. Greeley had to make very strict rules to keep his men awake during the Arctic winters. Beds were not allowed to be made, and the men were compelled to get up and move about; otherwise they would probably have slept nine-tenths of their time, getting up only to eat.

A man kept in a dark room for some time will be overcome by drowsiness. In total eclipses animals have been noticed to fall asleep, showing the latter condition due not really to habit, but to actual removal of light, whose absence so acts upon the nervous system as to invite repose.

Animals have been, as concerns their relation to the light, classed as diurnal and nocturnal—a physiological division, yet one holding from the zoological standpoint except the Lepidopters (butterflies, moths, etc.), divided into diurnal (flying by day), nocturnal (moths, flying by night), and Crepuscularia (hawk-moths, flying in twilight). The differences between nocturnal and diurnal animals are very interesting, especially as to coloring, and the eye.

Nocturnal eyes are larger and of much finer construction. They are large in the owl. In a starless night, with an overcast or heavily clouded sky, there is always some light distributed around the firmament. The nocturnal lemur is noted for its very large eyes. The very small eyes of the bats (distinctly nocturnal) are due to the partial replacement of sight by their very highly developed sense of feeling. The vampire has very small eyes, but wings of exceeding sensitiveness.

Some animals live in absolute darkness, of three kinds as to locale—caves deep in the earth (Mammoth Cave in Kentucky, and one in Austria), the parasites, and the deep sea, below 300 fathoms. Here no sunlight penetrates. Animals in absolute darkness have no eyes whatever, the blood shows through the transparent skin and the eyes have practically disappeared. The proteus has no acting eyes, and is practically colorless, living in the mud. Some of them placed in light for two or three years developed pigment in the ocular region. Though concealing themselves as much as possible under the rock, yet being absolutely in darkness, the pigment developed, showing a rudimentary eye. The mole, living just beneath the surface of the ground, is in darkness, the lids are glued together and in the European mole one optic nerve is almost always absent. The skin has grown over them, and they are incapable of sight.

The Mammoth Cave yields some insects not absolutely blind, being supposed recent migrations from the outer world, the absence of light being insufficient to have caused total degeneracy as yet. Mammoth Cave fish have eye sockets, but the eyes have entirely disappeared, owing to disuse.

All true internal parasites are blind, being very safe and without necessity for eyes. We have some that are blind that live part of their existence in the outer world, during which period they have well-developed eyes. The degenerate eyes of the proteus have a very slight deposit of pigment, with retina well developed, but lens entirely disappeared. In the myxine we have another eye in which the optic nerve has entirely disappeared. Where the vitreous humor would be is entirely filled up, with lens disappeared.

The oyster crab is not a true parasite, having well-developed eyes, and it can sit and watch for its prey. The males never go into oysters, only the females. The male is so different from the female you would not recognize it as belonging to he same species.

The Mote and the Beam.

When Lord Morris was chief justice of Ireland, a young junior barrister arose in his court one day to make his first motion and spoke in the hard brogue of the north of Ireland.

"Sapel," said the judge in a low voice to the registrar of the court, "who is this newcomer?"

"His name is Clements, my lord."

"What part of the country does he hail from in the name of all that's wunderful?" asked the judge.

"County Antrim, my lord," was the reply.

"Well, well!" said the judge. "Did you iver come across sich a froightful accint in the whole coorse of yer born loife?"

The White House Design.

The White House is an exact copy of the Duke of Leinster's palace, Dublin. In March, 1792, the commissioners on building advertised for "a plan for a president's house to be erected in the city of Washington." The prize offered was $500, and that of James Hoban, a young Irish mechanic, was accepted. The design was supposed to be original, but when the house was completed it was learned that Hoban had copied it from the duke's palace.

ADELINA AND LILLIAN.

Adelina Patti is to be married again, but Lillian Russell is still several licenses ahead.—Denver Republican.

The difference between Patti and Lillian Russell is that Patti's former husbands are all dead.—Boston Globe.

It is believed that if the proper man can be found Lillian Russell will consent to participate in a farewell marriage.—Washington Post.

Adelina Patti is to marry her third husband next February. This will not worry Lillian Russell. She holds the record safe.—Springfield News.

Mme. Patti is as delighted at entering upon her third matrimonial venture as if it were her first and she were only 20. According to report, she is worth more than $2,500,000.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Mme. Patti-Nicolini announces her engagement to Baron Kederstrom, a Swedish nobleman. This seems a little soon, but an actress or prima donna who waits until her husband is dead before she marries another is doing well.—Champaign Gazette.

The picture of the sweet, lovely, little woman comes plainly when memory looks back a bit, and it seems hard to remember a fraction of the events which have crowded her life. And now to think that she is going to be married again! It is the third time. And it will probably be another farewell performance.—Baltimore American.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

Small fruit plants that are set out late should be well mulched.

Pear trees are much inclined to grow too thick in the center. Trim out well.

Pruning may be done at any time during the winter, when the trees are not frozen.

After the trees have been in bearing for two or three years the orchard may be seeded down to clover.

If you dwarf the top of a young, newly set tree that is making a rapid growth, you are dwarfing the roots.

When trees are set out late in the fall, particular care should be taken to firm the soil well around the roots.

In pruning one of the first things to be done is the removal of all dead or diseased limbs, then others that are necessary.

Newly set peach trees should be gone over and all irregular growth of young wood be taken off before the wood hardens.

Commercial Zeal.

"Claudia, is the young man industrious to whom you are engaged?"

"Industrious? Why, papa, he intended to propose to me a month ago, but was too busy."

An Appropriate Symbol.

"Snagsby is a member of the Vegetarian club, isn't he?"

"I guess he is. I notice he wears an 18 carat badge."—Cleveland Plain

Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment...

Endorsed by Dr. C. M. Harlan of the American Journal of Health

NOT A PATENT MEDICINE....

He says:—Among the proprietary medicines recognized is Dr. Chase's Ointment, compounded by Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto, as a remedy for Piles, Eruptions and Eczematic Skin Diseases, for which it has been used with marked success and has effected remarkable cures. It is not the practice of the Medical Profession indiscriminately to use proprietary medicines, but there are hundreds of physicians throughout this country who are using Dr. Chase's Ointment in their practice. We handed out during the last month 2,700 boxes of free samples of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and the thankful results have been something astonishing. Here is what one of the cures says:

MR. O. P. ST. JOHN, 246 Shaw St., Toronto, in his letter states: I suffered for some years from Itching Piles, at times being unable to sleep for the annoyance caused by them. After trying almost every remedy known, I was induced to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, and can say one box entirely cured me. I cannot speak too highly of it, and have recommended it to several of my friends, all whom have been cured by its use.

FASHION AND FABRIC.

The simple little easy jackets called the "Geisha" are made of plain French flannel lined with China silk.

The dressy and effective toilets regulated on strict principles of black and white or black and gray are still to be commended for matrons.

Sleeves laid in inch and a half folds or tucks are still extremely popular on handsome dresses and fancy waists, and they continue to be used in the heaviest materials.

At receptions, the theater, dinners and similar fashionable gatherings the hair is being dressed very high at the back, the waved pompadour still being greatly affected.

Entire fancy jackets, collars, vests and skeleton blouses are made of chenille in lattice or other patterns, and as a garniture it has many and increasing uses in the season's millinery.

Elegant evening bodices fastened at the back, with long, loose mousquetaire sleeves that flare at the wrists, are a feature of many of the beautiful evening gowns of satin matelasse in tea rose pink, dove gray, mauve and orange yellow.

French designers are using silver gray, cream color, apricot and pale old rose venetian cloths for bridesmaids' toilets, trimming them with fur and opalescent passementeries and lining them with moire or brocade rose color in cream or gray gowns, golden green in apricot or white, etc.

Among minor modes in place of the stylish square collars of velvet worn during the late summer and early autumn fashion now affects the flat, short, rounded or pointed pelerine, with or without stole fronts, cut in one with the flaring medici collar that stands out picturesquely around the face.

The effect of a princess model is given to many of the tailor costumes made in two pieces by cutting both bodice and skirt tight fitting, on the fronts of each of which are placed straps of cloth and tailor buttons that correspond and meet in exact lines, producing a seemingly continuous unbroken length of trimming from shoulder to hem.—New York Post.

Vim Vigor Vitality

DR. WARD'S BLOOD & NERVE PILLS

VIM—to work and to win—to keep a sane mind in a sound body—to laugh at worry.

VIGOR—to ward off disease—to conquer obstacles—to transmit health and strength to your posterity.

VITALITY—to resist the fearful strain and tension of modern life—to make up for the constant drains of overwork. Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills confer all these essential qualities on the user.

THIS EVIDENCE IS AMPLE PROOF.

Before using Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills I felt weak, nervous and run down. I had lost weight steadily for some time; my circulation was poor; hands, feet and limbs were cold. I always felt weak and my muscles trembled. Now, after the use of one box of Dr. Ward's Pills, I feel like my old self. I have gained five pounds in weight and 100 per cent. in cheerfulness. I now walk firmly, my muscular system is strong and my blood circulates vigorously. I have more comfort than I have experienced in years. Dr. Ward's Pills have done more for me than any medicine I ever took.

A Woman's Crime.

A THRILLING STORY OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE.

By LAWRENCE M. LYNCH.

Author of "John Arthur's Ward," "The Diamond Coterie," "Against Odds," Etc., Etc.

A little before the opening of the performance at R—'s varieties—there was no going up of the curtain, because of the absence of that ascending and descending fascination from R—'s stage—Mrs. Harris and a jaunty-looking young lady entered one of the two stage boxes, that were "boxes" in the finest sense of the word; they were just high enough to stand up in, and just wide enough and deep enough to hold four small wooden chairs that might have come from Mrs. Harris' sanctum, so very uneasy were they under a burden. This "box" was fearfully and wonderfully dirty, guiltless of paint, and odorous of tobacco, brandy, and beer.

The nose of the jaunty young lady ascended perceptibly, seeing which, Mrs. Harris said, with a gay little laugh:—

"Oh! don't put on airs, child! I told you that we were not coming to a grand theatre; this is no high-toned place, but you'll see a first-rate performance, and the people here think a deal of me."

This climax brought a smile to the face of the young lady, who readily understood that Mrs. Harris chose to come here where people would do her honour, rather than sit, an unrecognized guest, at a first-class entertainment. Spite of her repugnance for the low, dingy, dirty dive, for such it was, Lenore began to feel amused, and a trifle curious.

"After all," she thought bitterly, as she peered from behind the dingy curtain of the box, out upon the bare stage, "after all, I have been in a worse place," thinking with a shudder of that day at Gentleman Jeff's.

Mrs. Harris darted in and out at the box door, chattering with any and every one behind the scenes, and, after a little, Lenore became accustomed to this. When at last the performance commenced, Mrs. Harris seated herself, prepared to enjoy it, and encore everything.

"You must clap your hands," she whispered to Lenore; "if you don't they will think you are stuck up!"

Smiling a little at the idea of being considered "stuck up," by these people, Lenore clapped her hands in feeble emulation of Mrs. Harris.

The small auditorium was toberably well-filled, with rough-looking men for the most part, who lounged about the deal tables and drank much beer, applauding from time to time with the stout bottoms of their glasses.

There was the usual "First Part," with a coloured individual at either end of the half-circle, composed of the "strength of the company"; and this was followed by a young man with a very red face, who danced a "silver clog," to the entire satisfaction of the audience. Then followed young women in soiled and much abbreviated finery, who sang ballads and comic songs with cracked and tobacco-strangled voices. Next, two lads, eccentrically dressed, who jabbered and howled in broken accents intended for the German brogue, and kicked up their heels at intervals, in a fearful and wonderful manner. Next, a pretty girl executed a very creditable song and dance, after which the young man who had danced the silver clog, "did" a jig, and afterwards a hornpipe. Following him came a stout young lady, who announced in a voice like a fishmonger, and with a fling of the heels, that she was "Good-for-nothing Nan."

From time to time, as the performance went on, Mrs. Harris, no doubt carried away by her enthusiasm, drew back the curtain, so that Lenore, shrink as she might, was exposed to the view of those on the stage, and also of some person or persons who sat behind the curtains in the box opposite. This opposite box was situated very near the dressing-room of the female performers, and from time to time these ladies were seen flitting in and out, but the occupant never once permitted his face to be seen. Presently this personage turned the ladies out with scant ceremony, and sent for R— himself.

"Who are those ladies opposite?" he asked, abruptly, when the portly, red-faced, beer-perfumed manager made his appearance.

R— recognized the stranger as one who had spent money freely there on one or two occasions, and he answered affably:—

"The old woman is a Mrs. Harris, old stager, ballet mistress, and all that, you know. The other is some victim she has picked up to fleece, I suppose; probably the girl fancies that the old woman will make her a fortune on the stage—that's a hobby of Harris'."

"A hobby—or a pretext?"

"No; the woman is really stage-mad; she has starved half her life trying to hang to the tail of some snap company or other. She will get a few girls together, and if a man will come along, and show a little roll of money, off she goes with the girls; she won't be left behind, mind you."

"And—are you sure that this young lady is in her hands?"

"I think she is. Harris told me, when she came down to secure the box, that she had a treasure, a regular beauty, and that she was going to take her East, and bring her out in style. If she does, it will be at some one's expense; she is as poor as Lazarus."

"Ah! will you tell me where this Harris lives?"

R— hesitated. "I don't know, really," he said.

"Nonsense!" interrupted the other, shortly, "of course you do. Look here, R—, I'm willing to make it to your interest to help me a little. Now, I am ignorant of all theatrical business, but if I wanted to play manager couldn't you put me in the way of it? And—if I say I will give you twenty-five dollars to be placed where I can get a fair view of that girl when she leaves here, can't it be done?"

R— thought it could, and the two men fell to talking very earnestly.

Meanwhile, over in the other box, Lenore had been growing nervous over the too frequent lifting of their dingy curtain; and she was growing angry, too. She had expostulated mildly, but Mrs. Harris, who had been behind the scenes, and had there indulged in a glass or two of beer, seemed to have grown quite reckless. Finally the annoyance became unendurable, and Lenore's wrath got the better of her prudence. Leaning forward, as Mrs. Harris was about to pull aside the curtain, she laid a resolute hand upon it, and said with a flash of the eyes that acted like a small shower-bath upon the vivacious ballet mistress:—

"Madame, if you touch that curtain again, I will go instantly. I will not allow you to exhibit me in this vile place, so shamelessly. I very much regret having come with you."

Mrs. Harris was not slow to perceive that she had gone too far, and that she had overrated the influence she believed she possessed over Lenore.

"Why, I declare! how nervous you are," she said, dropping the curtain; "nobody can see you from the audience, you sit so far back."

"I do not choose to be stared at by those stage people," replied Lenore, coldly. And Mrs. Harris did not lift the curtain again.

When they left the place there were no street cars near, and Lenore expressed a preference for walking, so they set off briskly. But they were not unobserved. Scarcely had they emerged into the street, when a tall form came out of the darkness and followed stealthily after them, and behind this a second figure glided, and, on the opposite side of the street a third, and all three moving in the direction taken by Mrs. Harris and Lenore. But the first person was a bungler, or he did not understand the sharpness of Mrs. Harris.

It was not an unusual thing for solitary women to be followed so late at night, and the ballet mistress began to think that she had displayed Lenore a little too freely; she did not want anything to occur to alarm Lenore, and—some of those men might have seen her and attempt to follow. She began to be restless and observant, and before they had reached the street where Lenore lived, she had discovered that they were followed. She was not aware of more than one shadow, however.

"I'll tell you what," she said, suddenly, "I have been thinking that we may as well be cautious. Now I don't suppose any one would follow us to-night, but some time they might, and the sharper we are the safer we will be. Now you just keep right on with me, and go in my house, I will let you out at the back door, and you can run straight through the alley and in at Mrs. Horne's back door, and no one will be the wiser."

"I didn't know there was an alley," said Lenore.

"Well, there is, and no one would ever suspect it. It's the safest thing in the world. While you are supposed to be in my house, you are away on the next street. You had better always go in and out that way. I will run through with you to-night, so that you will feel safe."

Lenore availed herself of the blind alley, and the three shadows saw her enter the house of the ballet mistress.

"She does live there, and I will have her in my power before two suns set," thought the first shadow.

"He has followed those two women; then I, too, must watch them," thought the second shadow.

"He believes he has found his game, and I must secure it first. What the mischief is that other fellow dodging him for?" thought the third shadow, and then the shadows followed each other back to town.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

THE GENTLEMAN FROM CUBA.

Lenore was not inclined to sleep after her visit to R——'s varieties. Mrs. Harris, in spite of her caution, had set them thinking. What if some one had followed them? Where would she go if again compelled to flee?

The fire was very low in her little wood stove; she replenished it from the box, that she perceived was nearly empty, and sat down to think. To think of so many things. Nearly an hour she sat thus, and then she discovered that the room was growing chill. It was useless to try and sleep; she felt as if sleep had forsaken her forever. So she arose and put the last sticks of wood upon the smouldering coals. The very last. She glanced down into the empty box, and something there caught her eye and held her spell-bound. In the bottom of the box she had seen an old newspaper, placed there by some cleanly hand, and her eyes are rivetted to these startling headlines:—

FLIGHT OF A BRIDE ON HER WEDDING NIGHT, AND VIOLENT DEATH OF A BRIDEGROOM!

THE BRIDE BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN THE MURDERESS!

TERRIBLE SCENE AT THE RESIDENCE OF THE MURDERED MAN—SAD FATE OF YOUNG ARTEVELDT!

How long does Lenore sit staring at these terrible lines? She can not tell, then, or after. But, after a time, she snatches at the paper and reads every word of the three or four closely printed columns. She reads that Lenore Armyn-Arteveldt is accused of murder. She reads that a price is set upon her head. And then darkness comes over her, she falls forward; for the first time in her life, she has fainted.

For a long time she lies there, and she will never be whiter, or colder, or quieter when dead. Then, slowly, shudderingly, she comes back to consciousness, and, relentlessly, the truth comes back to her. By her side is the fatal paper still. She takes it in her hand and sinks wearily down again; she lies there prostrate, feeling her misery, her forlornness, her despair. But after a time the fierce brave blood flows back to her heart, and she is Lenore Armyn once more.

"They want me!" she says, scornfully; "they shall find me. I will go to them, and defy them, the fools, the blind—but no. I am bound, bound! bound! I can not free myself from this charge at the expense of a broken oath, an oath to the dead. I will not, I dare not; I must hide like a criminal still. I must live a lie now more than ever."

is dependent upon the health of the wife more than on any other one thing. If a woman is troubled in a distinctly feminine way the most delicate nerves of her body are in a state of chronic irritation. She has headache and backache. She is listless and spiritless. She is cross and blue. She feels that life is not worth living and her temper reflects the condition of her nerves. Poor, suffering wife—poor, distracted husband. If the husband is a cheerful, good-humored man he will sympathize—if he is nervous, tired and irritable himself, he will probably go off to the club or seek elsewhere more congenial company.

A sick woman is to be pitied because she is miserable and because she has not yet learned that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will make her well.

The "Favorite Prescription" was developed over thirty years ago in the regular practice of Dr. R. V. Pierce who is and was then, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. Since then it has been used by millions of women and has brought health, happiness and contentment to as many homes.

"My wife was sick for over eight years," writes Albert H. Fulte, Esq., of Altamont, Grundy Co., Tenn. "She had uterine disease and was treated by two physicians and got no relief. At last I read about Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I sent to the drug store, got one bottle and the first dose gave ease and sleep. She had not slept any for three nights. Being sure that it would cure her I sent for five more bottles and when she had taken the sixth bottle she was sound and well. We now have a fine boy at our house."

The "Favorite Prescription" contains no alcohol and no opium or other narcotic, and is perfectly harmless in any condition of the system.

PERMANENT CURE OF CANCER.

Burdock Blood Bitters cured Mrs. Gilhula, of Buxton, Ont., 12 years ago, and she has had no return of the disease since.

SOME 12 years ago, Mrs. Elizabeth Gilhula, wife of the well-known postmaster at Buxton, Ont., was taken ill with an obscure stomach trouble that baffled for a time the skill of the leading local physicians. At last, after a careful examination, they pronounced it cancer of the stomach, and informed Mrs. Gilhula that in the nature of things her lease of life would be short, as they knew of no remedy that could possibly cure her.

On advice of friends she commenced taking Burdock Blood Bitters. The results that followed were very little short of the marvellous.

Every day she improved in health, her strength and vigor returned and in a short time she was completely cured.

Best of all, though, Mrs. Gilhula is to-day in the full enjoyment of good health, and in all these long years there has not been the slightest return of the trouble, which goes to prove how complete and permanent is the cure B.B.B. always makes.

Here is the letter Mrs. Gilhula wrote at the time of her cure:

"I wish to bear testimony to the good which I have received from the use of Burdock Blood Bitters.

"About four years ago I was taken sick with stomach trouble and consulted several of the leading physicians here, all of whom pronounced the disease to be cancer of the stomach of an incurable nature, and told me it was hardly to be expected that I could live long. Afterward the two doctors who were attending me gave me up to die.

"Through reading your advertisement and by the advice of some of my friends who knew of the virtues of Burdock Blood Bitters, I was induced to try it, and I am now happy to say that after using part of the first bottle I felt so much better I was able to get up out of my bed, which I had not been out of for a long time. I am thankful to state that I am completely cured of the disease by the use of B. B. B., although it had baffled the doctors for a long time. I am firmly convinced that Burdock Blood Bitters saved my life."

MRS. ELIZABETH GILHULA.

Yours truly,
ELIZABETH GILHULA.

Here is a letter received from her, dated March 27th, 1898:

"I am still in good health. I thank Burdock Blood Bitters for saving my life twelve years ago, and highly recommend it to other sufferers from stomach troubles of any kind."

Yours truly,
ELIZABETH GILHULA.

Could anything be more conclusive as to the permanent curative powers of B.B.B.?

The secret of its wonderful success lies in the fact that it goes to the very source and origin of disease and clears it out of the system, root and branch, so that not a trace remains to again cause trouble.

In severe and malignant diseases, such as cancers and cancerous growths, tumors, scrofulous sores, large ulcers, even if to the bone, B.B.B. applied externally and taken internally according to directions never fails to give relief, and in most cases to effect a cure.

ECZEMA

Made Baby Kick and Scream. Had to Wrap Her Hands and Put Her on the Table to Dress. Would Tear Her Face and Arms Almost to Pieces. Grew Worse Under All Remedies.

CUTICURA CURED HER

When my little girl was six months old, she had Eczema. We had used cold creams and all kinds of remedies, but nothing did her any good; in fact she kept getting worse.

I used to wrap her hands up, and when I would dress her, I had to put her on the table, for I could not hold her. She would kick and scream, and, when she could, she would tear her face and arms almost to pieces.

I used four boxes of CUTICURA (ointment), two cakes of CUTICURA SOAP, and gave her the CUTICURA RESOLVENT and she was cured, and I see no traces of the humor left. I can truthfully say that they have saved her life, and any one suffering as she did, I should advise them to give CUTICURA a fair trial.

SHE SAILS THE DOVE.

Countess Schimmelmann, the Distinguished and Philanthropic Danish Lady, Loves All Sailors.

That most distinguished and philanthropic Danish lady, the Countess Adoline Schimmelmann, who visited Toronto late last summer on her steam yacht, the Dove, a steadfast little vessel of thirty-five tons' burden, is still sailing on our great inland lakes in pursuance of her mission. She will likely run into Chicago shortly and may winter there, as her work can go on there all the cold season.

The Countess Schimmelmann moves about from port to port interesting herself in carrying the gospel to the sailors of all nations and doing all that one woman can do to reclaim back into the paths of virtue and rectitude many who for divers reasons have become backsliders. To achieve her purpose she has devoted her entire fortune and time to this meritorious work, and wherever she has gone she has been received with open arms.

Countess Schimmelmann's work is divided into four departments — viz., mission work with the yacht Duen, or Dove, the international sailors' mission, the fishermen in the Baltic Sea, and spreading the gospel by meetings.

As the Countess moves from place to place she has made her yacht a training ship for young sailors and boys, and with her limited accommodations is nevertheless able to give practical instruction to eighteen young sailors. She also holds mission meetings on board in English, Danish and German, and when in Denmark and Germany, in ports where she is accessible to women and children, she holds separate meetings for dockers, for women, for little girls and for boys.

Sometimes her yacht has been crowded with 200 persons at a time, and, to accommodate all who seek to participate, the Countess has held as many as six meetings in a day. A special feature of her gatherings is the good cheer which awaits the people on the yacht, for frequently there are tea meetings, when tea, cooling drinks and cakes are served to all who come.

While in London tied up at the Commercial docks she held meetings for Scandinavian sailors and entertained Mr. Mathews, Secretary of the British and Foreign Sailors' Society, who cordially approved her work, and who, on behalf of his society, presented to the yacht the great Bethel flag with an earnest prayer for the spreading of the gospel among the seamen of all nations through her mission.

The yacht is the Countess Schimmelmann's home wherever she goes. She says herself: "Thanks to an English friend, the cabins have been made as comfortable as possible for me and give me the opportunity of staying on board even in winter when mild.

"This is a great advantage in the saving of my strength, being able after the work to retire to my own little nook instead of staying in noisy hotels. The cabins also afford a home for workers helping me, as well as to the lads staying on board, so that the work is not interrupted wherever we sail. We also carry with us our stores of books and tracts in ten different languages for distribution or for sale."

The International Sailors' Mission is prosecuted by moving about from harbor to harbor, thus coming into contact with ships of all nations. As the Countess speaks fluently six different languages, she readily attracts many sailors by conversing with them in their own tongue, and softens many hearts by her intense sincerity and interest in their welfare.

In 1895 she personally visited about 100 ships, while her assistants visited 411. During that time she distributed 20,000 copies of the gospels and tracts in ten languages, not counting books of her own authorship which are sold after the meetings for the benefit of her mission.

Through these meetings the Countess has been able to find and restore to God and home many wayward sons who have gone adrift.

Another Discovery has been made, and that too, by a Lady of this Country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. She finally discovered a way of recovery, by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking first dose, that she slept all night: and with two bottles, has been absolutely cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz.' Thus writes W. C. Hamnick & Co., of Shelby, N. C. Sold by all Druggists at 50 cents and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed.

MUST WAIT AT HALIFAX.

The Subsidized Steamships Must Connect With Mail Trains.

Ottawa, Jan. 18.—A further proviso has been added to the contract with the Allan and Dominion Steamship Companies for the Atlantic mail service, by which the vessels of these companies will be required to await at Halifax the arrival of the Chinese mail, which, by special contract with the Imperial Government, is carried over the Canadian Pacific Railway. This mail gets into Halifax Monday night, and on Mondays the steamers are scheduled to leave that port, but that the mail may not be over a week in Halifax, the liners will be required to await its coming when it may happen to be delayed.

A conference of the steamboat and railway men controlling the traffic on the lakes will be held here next week, commencing on Tuesday and lasting two days. It is for the purpose of fixing rates for freight and passengers.

THE SALOON A NECESSITY.

Statement of Bishop Potter Which Startled Temperance People.

New York, Jan. 18.—Bishop Potter startled the members of the Church Temperance Society at a meeting in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel last night. In his address he said the saloon was a necessity under the present condition of affairs. Joseph H. Choate, in a speech, took the opposite view. The meeting was held to gather money for the proposed Squirrel Inn, a temperance establishment, for the Bowery, where working people can go and spend their evenings.

The temperance people present were startled at such sentiments from Bishop Potter, but he was thoroughly in earnest. His address had the effect to cause the rich men present to go deeper into their pockets for funds to establish the Squirrel Inn.

IT ENDED IN WARFARE

Sharp Fighting Has Occurred In Samoa Over the Kingship.

CRUISER CLEARS FOR ACTION.

International Difficulties Already Complicate Matters Somewhat—The Circumstances Under Which the British Cruiser Porpoise Got Ready for Action and Landed a Force of Marines.

Auckland, N.Z., Jan. 19.—Samoan advices just received here say that Chief Justice Chambers on December 31 declared Malietoa Tanus to have been elected King in succession to the late King Malietoa. The Chief Justice also announced that Tamasese had been elected Vice-King. Chief Mataafa was disqualified.

The consuls of the United States and Great Britain and the captains of the German warship Falke and the British warship Porpoise met the German consul, who refused to recognize Malietoa Tanus and declined to co-operate in the disposal of the Samoans, who thereupon assembled in large numbers at Mulinu, armed themselves and surrounded the municipality. Malietoa Tanus and Tamasese mustered about 2,000 men, well armed, but supplied with defective ammunition. The British and American consuls endeavored to avert hostilities, but they commenced on January 1. Malietoa Tanus and Tamasese fought bravely, but 500 of their followers were captured. Then, disheartened and outnumbered, the two chiefs sought refuge on the British warship and their followers sought protection under the guns of the Porpoise. Mataafa's loss was 61 men killed and wounded, and Malietoa Tanus lost 12 killed and wounded. The foreign residents were placed under the protection of a detachment of men belonging to the British ship, and Chief Justice Chambers and his family went on board of her.

PORPOISE ON GUARD.

Further Particulars of the Battle Between Mataafa and Malietoa's Men.

San Francisco, Jan. 19.—A cablegram to The Call from Auckland, N.Z., under date of Jan. 15, says: When the Oceanic steamship Alameda left Apia on Jan. 12, a revolution had broken out on the Samoan Islands, and was being waged with much bloodshed and great destruction to property. The warships Falke and Porpoise, the latter under the command of Captain Sturdee, were taking part in suppressing the rising.

On Dec. 31 the Chief Justice determined in favor of Malietoa Tanus, claiming Mataafa was barred by the treaty of Berlin. On Jan. 1 5,000 followers of Mataafa's followers rose in rebellion and defeated 2,000 of Malietoa's men, ambushing them and killing 18 natives and wounding many. The rebels burned 400 houses and razed the town of Upolu. The bread fruit trees were cut down in many places. The foreigners were not injured.

The crew of the Porpoise is guarding the mission as a refuge for Malietoa. The three consuls have signed a proclamation recognizing the Mataafa party provisional government, pending instructions from the powers, with President Rafael as executive head.

On the 6th instant Rafael, Rose concurring, proclaimed the Supreme Court and took possession, declaring himself Chief Justice. He asked Mataafa for 500 men and was refused. The British and American consuls united in a strong protest against the action of the President of the Municipal Council. On the 7th Captain Sturdee of the Porpoise and the two consuls declared the action illegal. The Porpoise cleared for action and landed a force of marines. Her force was unopposed, and took possession of the court. Chief Justice Chambers was reinstated and the British and American flags hoisted over Chief Justice Chambers' house and the Court House.

The provisional governer wrote to Captain Sturdee on the 12th that he would seize Malietoa and take Tamasese off the Porpoise by force if necessary, deprive them of their titles and banish them. Chief Justice Chambers is living on the Porpoise. The British and American consuls have protested against any infringement of the Berlin treaty. British residents have taken refuge in their consulate, and the American representatives have taken refuge in the mission.

THE HAWAIIAN CABLE BILL.

Brought Up in the House of Representatives at Washington—No Action Taken.

Washington, Jan. 19.—In the House yesterday the Hawaiian cable bill was considered in committee of the whole. The bill authorized the Postmaster-General to contract with the Pacific Cable Company of New York at the rate of $100,000 per year for 20 years, for the transmission of Government messages from San Francisco to Honolulu and points on the Japanese and Chinese coasts, the company to deposit $250,000 in Government bonds with the Postmaster-General within 15 days after the passage of the Act as a guarantee of the construction of the cable. The bill fixed the rates for private individuals at not to exceed $1.25 a word to China and Japan, and 35 cents to Honolulu, press rates not to exceed one-fourth of the cable rates.

Mr. Bennett of New York spoke in support of the bill, and said that the cost of a cable to Honolulu would be about $2,500,000, and the annual cost of maintenance $70,000. Beyond Honolulu the cost would be about $14,000 a mile for construction.

Mr. Corliss of Michigan, who was a member of the committee that reported the bill, opposed it vigorously. He charged that the subsidy granted by the Government in this bill, $2,000,000 in total amount, would construct the cable. The company was a gigantic monopoly. Without action the committee rose.

TAGGART INSANE.

Medical Man Testifies That the Prisoner Is Insane and Suffering From Delusional Insanity—He Heard Voices.

Toronto, Jan. 19.—The Crown's case in the Taggart murder trial was very much weakened yesterday by the evidence of Dr. Nelson Beemer of the Mimico Asylum. He was one of four medical men instructed by the County Crown Attorney's Department to make a joint report as to the prisoner's sanity. The report turned out to be in direct opposition to the Crown's contention that Taggart was responsible for his actions in committing the deed.

Just as Judge Falconbridge remarked to counsel that argument would be heard on the medical report, Dr. Beemer, one of the Crown's medical witnesses, entered the court room.

Mr. Riddell quickly called out "Dr. Beemer," and the physician stepped into the box. The witness admitted making a joint report with Drs. R. A. Richardson, Johnston and Primrose on behalf of the Crown. The substance of the report was that the prisoner was insane, and that he was suffering from delusional insanity. There was no shamming on the part of the prisoner, and witness was confident that Taggart had no knowledge of his act.

Mr. Kerr in cross-examination failed to shake the witness' evidence.

Dr. Richardson of Davisville gave evidence during the day for the defence. He attended the prisoner's brother, Carlton Taggart, who had been sent to the asylum. The witness examined the prisoner at the jail. He had a hallucination that he heard voices commanding him to kill his wife. Taggart had no power to resist and was irresponsible at the time for the act.

The other witnesses, Henry Stark, a relative of Taggart's, Emily Burroughs, 19 Lucas street, Alfred Burroughs, James A. Johnson, a drug clerk, and Henry Lemon, Thomas Kenny, Charles Brown, John Beecher and William Brody of the Clyde Hotel, all testified to the prisoner's peculiar actions.

WANAMAKER IS AFTER QUAY.

He Is Determined That the "Boss" Shall Not Succeed Himself.

Buffalo, Jan. 19.—Joint meetings of both branches of the Legislatures in 15 States were held yesterday for the purpose of electing United States Senators. In eight States Senators were chosen, and in seven faction fights prevented an election. Senators were elected as follows:

New York State—Chauncey M. Depew, Republican, to succeed Senator Murphy, Democrat.

Connecticut—General Joseph R. Hawley, re-elected.

Massachusetts—Henry Cabot Lodge, re-elected

Maine—Eugene Hale, re-elected.

Minnesota—Cushman K. Davis, re-elected.

Missouri—Francis M. Cockrell, re-elected.

Indiana—J. C. Beveridge, Republican, succeeding a Democrat.

Michigan—J. C. Burrows, re-elected.

In the States "dead-locked," five are Republican, namely, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Nebraska, Washington and California, and two Democratic, Montana and Utah.

The greatest interest in manifested in the fight for Senator in Pennsylvania, where Matthew S. Quay, the present Senator, and for many years the political "boss" of the State, is seeking re-election. In the balloting yesterday, Mr. Quay was 13 votes short of a majority, and the anti-Quay people, headed by John Wanamaker, claim that they will continue the deadlock for six months rather than allow Quay to succeed himself.

FOREIGN QUESTIONS.

Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain Makes an Important Speech.

FRANCE AND NEWFOUNDLAND.

The French Shore Rights Could Easily be Settled If France Would Act With Reasonable Common Sense—Anglo-American Co-operation at Shanghai—Latest News by Cable.

London, Jan. 19.—The Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, speaking last evening at the banquet of the Wolverhampton Chamber of Commerce, reviewed at great length the various threatening foreign questions confronting the Government.

In connection with the withdrawal of the French demand for an extension of the settlement at Shanghai, Mr. Chamberlain congratulated his hearers that Great Britain's opposition to the French proposal had been strenuously supported by the report of the United States.

"That, I think," he said, "a magnificent and noteworthy fact. Nay, I think and hope it will become history. It shows that circumstances are bringing about the community of interests between Anglo-Saxons, which, in the future, may have far-reaching and beneficial results."

He welcomed the changing tone on the part of France, declaring that if the French Government desired an amicable settlement of all remaining difficulties, Great Britain would meet France more than half way.

French Shore Question.

Dwelling elaborately upon the Newfoundland difficulty, the Minister said: "In spite of charges to the contrary, nobody here has the slightest desire to evade the obligations of the treaty of Utrecht; but we do desire that the rights conferred upon France by that treaty should not be extended and abused to the injury of our pocket. If, when those rights are properly defined, they are found to possess a value for France we shall be perfectly willing to observe them; or if France is willing to arrange for their extinction on fair and reasonable terms of compensation."

Mr. Chamberlain described in detail how the French had been continually encroaching and striving to extend their claims on the French shore, while, at the same time, their interest in the fishery had been continually decreasing. "In fact," he said, "by means of alleged rights, under antiquated treaties, they have strangled our colony of Newfoundland, and have done so without a penny of advantage to themselves. If they are sincerely desirous of amity with England, it will be an easy matter for them to abandon those antiquated rights for a satisfying compensation."

Tribute to Salisbury.

In concluding, Mr. Chamberlain paid a high tribute to the success of Lord Salisbury's foreign policy, remarking: "It is cause for satisfaction that two great nations, Germany and the United States, both protectionist at home, have proclaimed their intention to adhere to the principle of the "open door" in their foreign possessions. We shall regard their expansion without jealousy, and shall welcome their co-operation, and I think, without being too sanguine, we may rely upon their sympathy and assistance in securing the general adoption of a principle to which we attach so much importance."

A Blow at Sugar Bounties.

London, Jan. 19.—It is reported that Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain has induced the Cabinet to agree to strike a blow at the French plan of giving bounties to sugar producers. It is said that if France does not agree to abolish the bounty system England will levy high duties on French sugar.

HARTZELL CONFERS WITH RHODES.

The Great African Declares Himself for Universal Peace.

London, Jan. 19.—The Rev. Dr. Joseph C. Hartzell of Cincinnati, Ohio, sails from Liverpool on Saturday for Africa. He had a long conference yesterday with Mr. Cecil Rhodes, and he has been granted concessions of land and buildings, and has been promised co-operation in their department, especially in establishng industrial missions among the natives.

Discussing Anglo-American relations, Mr. Rhodes said: "What we want is an intertwining of mutual interests in the interest of humanity, upon the part of the English-speaking peoples throughout the world, whereby we can prevent war. We want universal peace."

CARLISTS READY TO RISE.

Don Carlos Himself Said to Be Resolved to Take the Field.

London, Jan. 19.—The Paris correspondent of The Daily Graphic says: One of the principal chiefs of the Carlists here informs me that everything is now ready for a rising in Spain, that Don Carlos is absolutely resolved to take the field, and that all are waiting for the signal.

The King of Liars.

Philadelphia, Jan. 19.—William Rhodes of this city, for years considered a successful operative builder, has decamped, leaving many victims and $1,000,000 unpaid debts behind. The poor and the rich suffer alike. Rhodes was a great borrower, often going down on his hands and knees to win over a victim. He was rather sensational, and worked on the tender feelings of intended victims. One man calls him "not the Prince of liars, but the King of that tribe."

Pains in the Foot and Limb—A Complete Cure Accomplished by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"For a number of years I was afflicted with acute rheumatism in my left side and all the way down my limb into my foot. I live five blocks from my work and had to stop and rest several times in going and coming. I could get no relief from my trouble and was on the point of giving up my job when I happened to hear of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I purchased a bottle of this medicine and a vial of Hood's Pills and began taking them. Before I had half finished them I was relieved and it was not long before I was completely cured. I never lose an opportunity to praise Hood's Sarsaparilla, for my cure meant a great deal to me, as I have a family and must always be at my post." EDITORIAL NOTES.

HIRAM WALKER, the deceased distiller, left an estate of nine million dollars—all good substantial dollars, not the mere ghost of money, as one might expect from its having its origin in spirits.

A chewing gum combine has been formed in the United States with a capital of fifteen million dollars. Let it flourish—it won't do the average girl any harm to be "short" on chewing gum for a few years.

KEEPING faith has been the secret of the success of Canada with her Indian problem, and of England with her dealings with savage peoples. Breach of faith in regard to the rights of his Indians, has given Uncle Sam no end of trouble, and cost him a big pile of dollars. We may naturally expect a similar policy of mala fides pursued towards the Cubans and Filippinos, whose coercion is founded on breach of faith with Spain. A year ago President McKinley declared that "forcible annexation" of the Spanish colonies was "not to be thought of." A few days ago he rather flamboyantly asked, "who will haul down the flag." When possessions are acquired by breach of faith it is not too much to expect that it will extend to the treatment of the peoples concerned.

NORWOOD.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Rev. W. Pear is holding special services in Havelock.

Mrs. Chas. Griffin, Peterborough, is visiting her mother, Mrs. Wood, Belmont street.

The annual meeting of the East Peterborough Association for apprehending and prosecuting felons, which was called for Saturday last, was postponed on account of the storm for one week.

Rev. J. M. Bates, conference evangelist, will conduct services in the Methodist church here on Sunday and hold special services during the week, commencing each evening at 7.30.

The infant child of Jos. Wolstenholm, jr., died on Wednesday morning, aged 10 days.

The inaugural meeting of the village council for 1899 was held on Monday at 11 o'clock. Only three members were present—the reeve, H. G. Buck, and Councillors Isles and Richardson. After subscribing to the usual declaration of qualification and office the meeting was adjourned.

The contract of furnishing ice for the Swift Co's ice house at Havelock has just been completed, and has furnished employment to quite a number of men. Mr. Buck hopes in time to find a market for a considerable quantity of ice, so as to give employment to the men for a much longer period.

The Methodist church anniversary services were held Sunday, Rev. Dr. Galbraith, of Belleville.

A meeting of the Norwood curlers was held on Monday evening, to decide in what way to compete for the curling stones donated to the club by Mr. F. W. Ashe. It was decided that they were to be competed for in two series, each series to consist of matched games of thirteen points each, and the winners of each game to then go in the semi-finals to play off in the finals.

The Norwood Hockey Club played the return match in the O H.A. intermediate series with what might be called the senior team of Peterborough. The boys report a hard game. They deserve all the credit it is possible to give them. They are not so slow after all. They have robbed Peterborough all the well-planned games with Lindsay.

The Lindsay hockey team plays in Norwood on Friday evening at 7.30.

The East Peterborough Agricultural Association hold their annual meetings here on Thursday, January 19th. In the afternoon J. E. Orr will speak on the subject, "Spraying an apple orchard." A. C. Hallman, New Dundee, "Practical hints on swine industry. A good programme is being prepared for the evening session.

The first carnival held in the Norwood Palace skating and curling rink under the new management was a success in every particular. The crowd, however, was not as large as it might have been owing probably to the very threatening weather. The costumes were many and good. The mile race created a good deal of enthusiasm and excitement. Mr. Wills, of Toronto, and Mr. R. Pearce, of Norwood, were the opponents. It was a snap however for Russel, who beat him easily by a lap. The half mile race also created a good deal of excitement. It was won by Master Alex Kempt, after some hard and good skating. The Norwood band furnished music during the evening.

We recommend that the council follow out the advice of this communication and also that the clerk is instructed to notify Mr J Bell that inasmuch as there is not sufficient inconvenience to the public to warrant this council to undertake the survey of this line, and further that this council is not legally under obligation to ascertain boundary lines for private owners, therefore, as regards Mr. Bell's request no action be taken. The clerk also to instruct Mr. Bell that he must assume the responsibility as to the correctness of the line upon which he is about to construct his fence. All ordinance of this municipality prohibiting the placing of obstructions or fences upon public highways must in all such cases govern.

"Moosh la Scoff!"

"A few nights ago," writes a Transvaal correspondent, "I, in company with a chum, took a stroll round the Native Location which lies about 200 yards from the railway station. We made for a row of huts, four in number, in the front of which wood fires were burning.

"On reaching them we noticed the natives were in the act of catching locusts, flying ants and other queer looking insects which were swarming around in hundreds, being attracted by the bright light of the fire.

"After their wings had been singed through coming in contact with the fire, the insects were scooped into a large hole dug in the sand. We waited several minutes wondering what the motive for all this could be, when the niggers formed a circle round this hole and commenced taking out handfuls of these hideous looking things and eating them.

"This, as we ascertained, formed the niggers' evening meal, they informing us it was 'mooshla scoff' (nice food)."—London Answers.

Guelph, Ont., Jan. 19.—The Opera House was filled at the second day's proceedings of the Western Ontario Cheese and Butter Men's Association convention.

BRITONS LAUGH AT YANKEE GALL.

Absurd Idea of Exchanging the West Indies for the Philippines.

London, Jan. 19.—A senseless report from New York that the United States will propose to the English Government to exchange the Philippines for the British West Indies has attracted a great deal of comment and ridicule in official and journalistic circles. It is even stated that the new United States ambassador, Mr. Choate, would be charged with executing this duty.

The Daily News, in commenting on this, says it cannot believe that Mr. Choate would begin his ambassadorial career by making himself supremely ridiculous in the fashion suggested. England's treatment of the West Indies may lead some persons to suppose that she sets no value on their possession. Even so, is it likely, asks The Daily News, that she would exchange these loyal, long-suffering islands for such a group as the Philippines? The mere suggestion of such an exchange takes the palm for sheer impudence.

DERVISHES FINALLY SMASHED.

Ahmed Fedil's Force of 2,000 Men Surrendered to the British.

Cairo, Jan. 19.—The whole remaining force of Ahmed Fedil, the only unconquered Dervish chieftain, numbering about 2,000 men, has surrendred to the British gunboat Metemmeh, on the Blue Nile. Fedil escaped in a southerly direction.

He May Strike an Ugly Snag.

London, Jan. 19.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of The Daily Mail says:

"In the event of disturbance following upon the death of the Ameer of Afghanistan, the Russian General Beguijuhoff, Governor of the Trans-Caspian district, who has a force of 20,000 men, has direct instructions to take Herat, 300 miles west of Cabul, and a post of great military importance."

It was Russian encroachment, with the object of seizing Herat, that caused Britain to take matters in hand during the Afghan war in 1879 80, when Gen. Roberts was sent to relieve Kandahar.

A NEW INVENTION

The Newcombe Piano Has It.

It consists of a Patented Practice CLAVIER or STOP which diminishes the tone when required and saves wear on the Piano; it also does away with the old way of having to press down the pedal with the foot in order to soften the tone when running the scales or practicing. Oftentimes the young pupil on the piano cannot press down on the pedal without throwing themselves out of the proper position when they should sit erect. This invention in the NEWCOMBE PIANO will enable children to begin two years earlier on the piano. In addition to the above, the NEWCOMBE PIANO is the finest made in Canada. Children often complain about practicing; they like it if they have a NEWCOMBE PIANO. 1898 styles are gems of art, containing every late improvement; they possess that beautiful full sweet tone which delights the singer, and so pleases every musical ear. Organs of every description at Wholesale Prices.

Big Bargains now on hand in slightly used. Upright and Square Pianos of the various makes taken in part exchange for the famous NEWCOMBE PIANOS. TACT WOULD SETTLE IT.

Gen. Whittier Suggests a Method by Which the Trouble With the Filipinos Could be Ended Easily.

New York, Jan. 19.—"Nothing in the world is easier of settlement than the situation in the Philippines. It could be settled in three days." Such was the emphatically expressed conviction of Gen. Charles A. Whittier, speaking for publication for the first time yesterday since his return from his official post in the Philippines. Gen. Whittier went to Manila with Gen. Merritt, and there served as collector until the end of October.

"In the first place," said Gen. Whittier, "there is a wide ignorance of the wealth of the Philippines and the character of the Filipinos. The natives are not ignorant; they are not savages. They are adept as manufacturers and as accountants, mariners and railroad operatives. They are quiet, most temperate, and have shown great ability in military affairs.

"With firmness, accompanied by diplomacy and tact, I think it is the simplest matter possible to bring them under our control.

"I saw Aguinaldo on Oct. 27, three days before leaving Manila. He said his people were about equally divided, one-half favoring absolute independence, the other half favoring an American protectorate.

"A confidential friend of Aguinaldo, Ruen Camino, joined the conference at this point, and after talking a while with Aguinaldo, expressed very strongly his opinion that the two could move their people to the acceptance of a protectorate.

"Aguinaldo and Ruen Camino added expressions of pleasure at my visit, as they felt they had been neglected, and rather given the cold shoulder by the Americans since the day after the fall of Manila, when they were assured of our friendship."

Speaking of the existing conditions of affairs at Iloilo, Gen. Whittier said: "The whole matter is greatly exaggerated and I think could have been easily averted. I have seen the statement that the strength of the native army is 100,000 men. I greatly doubt if they have 3,000, as in the early part of October merchants in Manila having business connections with Iloilo said to me that the natives were likely to occupy the place any day, that the Spanish had less than 300 men there, and were prepared to evacuate.

"Any movement after the treaty could have been averted, I think, by an arrangement with Aguinaldo, as I have already suggested.

"There is the greatest necessity for a man of affairs and business methods, combined with military ability, to be appointed as Governor-General of the Philippines."

MANITOBA WHEAT WANTED.

Commissioner Larke Sends a Report to Ottawa From Australia.

Ottawa, Jan. 19.—The Department of Trade and Commerce has received a voluminous report from J. S. Larke, Canadian commercial agent in Australia. He reports that the harvest will not be as good as July anticipations, but better than September fears. Australasia will have wheat enough to supply her own requirements and a surplus of about 10,000,000 bushels. There is still a demand for Manitoba wheat and flour, the latter selling at £11 15s, or £2 15s more than the home article. Potatoes are £10 10s a ton and can be laid in from British Columbia at £7 if the buyers and shippers would speculate. The high tariff in Victoria will not interfere with Canadian trade. A good business is done in agricultural implements, machinery, cotton goods, etc., besides fish, timber, chairs, musical instruments, window shades, woodenware and paints. Though no goods are imported to Victoria direct, yet one Canadian manufacturer is credited with having done business to the extent of $50,000 last year. Canadian clover seeds are imported from France and Germany. Calcium carbide for making acetylene gas is enquired for.

Mr. B. Bryson, St. Johns, Antigua, W.I., reports to the Trade and Commerce Department that the Crown colony has raised its tariff against the views of the business community, and, as a consequence, a strong petition has been sent to Mr. Chamberlain to disallow the tariff bill. The new tariff raises the duty on dry fish four shillings, on flour one shilling and fourpence, and on spirits four shillings per barrel.

The express was due here at 3 a.m., and being a couple of hours late was running at a high rate of speed.

None of the passengers were hurt, beyond a severe shaking up. The escape of the baggageman was miraculous. The wreckage was cleared at 7.30 and the train proceeded eastward at 8 o'clock with two coaches only.

All transportation companies are forbidden to carry cattle without such certificate and permit. No indemnity is to be paid for slaughter of tuberculosis cattle brought into the State without certificate. Violation of the law imposes a fine of $25 to $50 first offence, and six months to one year imprisonment for second offence.

The Address in Reply to the Speech From the Throne Adopted.

Victoria, B.C., Jan. 19.—The Legislature yesterday adopted the address in reply to the speech from the throne without division. Colonel Baker, having found out from his agent at Cranbrook that no transaction had taken place which would disqualify him, again took his place in the House.

Mr. Macpherson, labor representative from Vancouver, has introduced a bill to declare null and void any contract for labor entered into before their arrival in this province, made with persons in other parts of Canada, as well as with persons in foreign countries. This was read a second time without division.

The bill to exclude aliens from placer mines of this province received its third reading, and was immediately assented to by the Lieutenant-Governor, so that it is now in effect.

Attorney-General Martin moved the second reading of the bill introducing the Torrens system of land registration, debate upon which was adjourned.

Mr. Macpherson's bill to render void contracts for labor made by persons in British Columbia with persons residing in other parts of the Dominion, passed through committee, with an addition exempting skilled labor not procurable in this province.

Tossed by the Waves.

New York, Jan. 19.—The Atlantic Transport Liner Marquette has arrived here from London, about nine days late. The long voyage was due to the extremely heavy weather encountered, and to the fact that the steamer had a small cargo. A serious leak, due to the breaking of several rivets, flooded compartment No. 2, forward, and for days the pumps were kept at work to keep the steamer from settling at the head.

When the Marquette was one day out one of the cattlemen, named Louis Thomas, fell through an open hatchway, and was killed. He was buried at sea.

Another Alleged Forger.

Montreal, Jan. 19.—The arrest of Mr. Charles D. Turner on a charge of forgery preferred by the Grand Trunk Railway Company is to be followed by a second arrest. Lately, it is said, the company has been systematically robbed, not only, as they allege, by Turner, but by another clerk, who got away with $1,000. This happened about six months ago, Mr. M. W. Hurst, the clerk in question, escaping to the United States. He is also accused of forgery, and it now appears is implicated in some way in the charge against Turner.

"IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY."

To Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, North American Life Assurance Co., Toronto:

DEAR SIR.—Your official notice came duly to hand, apprising me of the results obtainable upon my 15 year endowment Policy in your Company for $1,000, which matured on the 8th inst. Of the various options you have given me viz.:

Cash value	$1,564 96
Paid-up Policy, payable at my death, for	2,560 00
Yearly Income for life of—	166 20

I have decided upon the cash value; and it gives me pleasure to testify that, as I anticipated it would be when I took out the policy, IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY. This returns me the full premiums of the 15 years and over 4½ per cent. compound interest, in addition to which you have carried the risk upon my life. In view of the low ing rates of interest which have been obtainable during the latter portion of the period, it is difficult to see how this excellent result could have been surpassed.

Yours sincerely,

COLTS CAN'T BE BEATEN

Peterborough's Third Hockey Team Won in Toronto Last Night From the Parkdales.

In reference to last night's match in Toronto, when the local Colts won the first game in the second round of the junior series by 9 goals to 7, the Mail and Empire says:

Parkdale II. were vanquished by Peterborough II. at Prospect Park rink last night by 9 goals to 7. The game throughout was a good one and fairly clean. "Pussy" Darling's work as referee, though difficult at times, was most satisfactory. At the end of the first half the score stood 5 to 4 in favour of the visitors. Parkdale brightened up in the second half and made three goals before Peterborough scored, but the latter then went ahead and made 4 goals before the whistle blew.

The teams lined up as follows:

Parkdale II — Goal, Mingay; point, Parry; cover point, Lennox; forwards, Balfour, Cremes, Ridout and Menzies.

Peterborough II — Goal, Whitecroft; point, Graham; cover point, Armstrong; forwards, Bradd, H King, McBain and Crossley.

Referee—"Pussy" Darling. Umpires—Messrs. Johnston and Bilton.

Captain Hollingshead, of the Peterborough Seniors, and Manager Graham of the second team, accompanied the team and looked after the boys. The return match will be played at Peterborough on Saturday.

The match was not mentioned in either the Globe or World. The Toronto papers do not like to chronicle the defeat of their own teams.

Local enthusiasts who went up to Toronto to witness the match, describe it as being very interesting. The Parkdales far outweighed the Colts, their lightest man being larger than the heaviest of the Colts The latter, however, were faster on the ice and excelled in combination. The match was a case of see-saw from start to finish and was, in consequence, very exciting. In the first half Crossley became ill and went between the flags, Whitecroft coming out on the forward line.

As the ice at Prospect Park is similar in size to that of Peterborough, a hot game may be expected when the Parkdales come down on Saturday evening next.

The defense last evening played a superb game. On the forward line Bradd followed up like a streak of lightning and was successful in taking the puck away from the cover point on several occasions. King was always there to receive the pass, whilst Whitecroft played a close checking game which did a lot to bother the Parkdales. McBain by falling back materially assisted the defense.

The goals were scored in the following order:

1	Parkdale	Clemes
2	Colts	King
3	Colts	Armstrong
4	Parkdale	Clemes
5	Parkdale	Clemes
6	Colts	Crossley
7	Parkdale	Ridout
8	Colts	King
9	Colts	Bradd

SECOND HALF.

10	Parkdale	Clemes
11	Parkdale	Ridout
12	Parkdale	Morris
13	Colts	Bradd
14	Colts	King
15	Colts	King
16	Colts	Bradd

The visitors will be heavier than the Colts and can shoot with greater velocity, so that it is simply their magnificent team play which will have to be relied on to carry the Colts through the series.

If the Colts win out they will play home and home games with the II Frontenacs of Kingston.

Saturday night's game is called for 8.30.

DEATH OF H. J. BURNS.

La Grippe Claims a Victim The Deceased had Only Been Ill Nine Days.

The death occurred this morning of Henry Joseph, age 19 years, eldest son of Mr. John R. Burns, at the family residence, No. 341 McDonel street.

The deceased took ill with an attack of la grippe a week ago Tuesday, and his sickness rapidly developed into cerebro-spinal meningitis, to which he succumbed at half-past five o'clock this morning.

The young man was learning his trade with the Wm. Hamilton Mfg. Co., and devoting his spare hours to studying draughting with such success that Mr. Francis, who conducts the Public Library course in mechanical drawing, declared him to be his most apt pupil.

The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, from No. 341 McDonel street.

DIPHTHERIA'S RAVAGES.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

SIR—Several wishing to know more about Mr. Morrison's children, so many of which succumbed to diphtheria recently, I give the particulars as received from Mr. Fraser. Out of seven children only one is left, and that is Evelyn. Hardly two weeks ago the baby took sick and died very quickly. They had then no idea of the trouble till Gordon took sick, when they sent for the doctor. It proved diphtheria. Gordon died while the doctor was there early Sunday morning. On Monday morning they had the two babies in their coffins just nailed down and ready to start, when little Gracie died, and they had the three to bury. On Wednesday morning Willie died. John was the next victim on Saturday, and on the following Wednesday morning at five o'clock Robert died.

Some Plain Questions.

Have you catarrh? Have you bronchitis? Have you offensive breath? Have you slight symptoms of consumption? Then send for a free sample of catarrhosone. What is catarrhosone? Not a snuff, wash nor ointment, but an odorous gas, which is carried by air directly to the diseased parts. It penetrates wherever air can go, and never fails to effect a cure. We do not ask you to believe this until you have tested it for yourself. Send for a trial bottle gratis to N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

STRUCK BY A TRAIN.

A School Boy Meets With an Accident Whilst on his Way Home to Dinner.

A young son of Mr. Richard Sheehy had a narrow escape from instant death yesterday afternoon, when he was struck by the Belleville express at the G.T.R Lake street crossing, as he was on his way home to dinner from school.

As the train approached he walked close up to the track and, it is thought, did not realize his peril through being unable to see the train on account of the clouds of steam from the engine which enveloped the coaches.

The steps of the first car struck the lad in the head, and but for the presence of mind of Miss McCabe, who was passing, and pulled him from his dangerous position, he might have been caught by the wheels. As it was, a severe cut was administered on the scalp and the lad was rendered unconscious for some hours.

Drs. King and McGrath were summoned and pronounced the wound, though painful, not necessarily dangerous, unless other complications develop. To-day the lad is resting easily and his early recovery is expected.

PETERBORDUGH BUSINESS COLLEGE.

It is Now Owned and Will Hereafter be Conducted by Mr. W. Pringle.

A short time ago Mr. Pringle, of the Peterborough Business College, disposed of his interest to Mr. A. C. Baker, but the sadly unexpected death of Mr. McCrea, put a new aspect upon affairs. Mr. Pringle did not feel that it would be the fair thing to hold Mr. Baker, who was an utter stranger to the town and to the routine work of the college, to his bargain. He also felt that in justice to the pupils of the college his personal supervision of its management would be necessary. He therefore repurchased his interest from Mr. Baker and also the interest of the late Mr. McCrea, and is now sole proprietor of the Peterborough Business College, which he will hereafter conduct with the same energy and ability that have characterized its past management.

In taking this step Mr. Pringle has been actuated by motives that do him honour. He felt that under the circumstances the interests of the pupils and the reputation of the college were to a great degree involved in his again assuming its management. Though as a matter of fact, if he had consulted his own inclinations, he would have taken advantage of the opportunity that presented of bettering his financial position through means that would have meant less arduous work. But he has been loyal to the college and to the moral obligations he recognized, to stand by it under the adverse circumstances that arose and to maintain the reputation for honest dealing and efficient work which the Peterborough Business College has gained.

WITH MASONIC HONOURS.

The Remains of the Late W. C. McCrea Interred at Keene Yesterday.

A large number of the Masonic fraternity of Peterborough accompanied the remains of the late W. C. McCrea from Peterborough to Keene yesterday.

On arriving in the village the cortege escorted the hearse to the Presbyterian church, where a service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Andrews, assisted by Rev. Doctor Torrance, of St. Paul's church, Peterborough.

The many friends of the deceased residing in Keene were then given an opportunity of viewing the remains, after which the body was interred in the Keene cemetery, being followed to the grave by a large number of friends from the surrounding country. The concluding ceremonies at the grave were taken in charge by the Masons.

AN ASPHODEL WEDDING.

Nuptials of Miss Ella May Beavis and Mr. James Stevenson.

A very interesting social event took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Beavis, Asphodel—the marriage of their only daughter, Ella May, to Mr. James Stevenson, of Percy. The marriage ceremony was conducted by Rev. F. Johnston, of Hastings. Miss Etta Weldon, of Lindsay, acted as bridesmaid, and Mr. Joseph Anderson, manager of the Union Bank, Norwood, acted as groomsman. A large number of guests were present. After the ceremony some fifty or sixty sat down to a sumptuous repast. The many presents, both valuable and useful, bore testimony to the high esteem in which the bride was held. The evening was spent with music and singing to the general enjoyment of the whole company.

DANIEL OCONNELL'S PHYSIQUE.

Personality and Physical Characteristics of the Great Liberator.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—In a conversation which took place a short time ago between myself and two gentlemen in town, they maintained the late Daniel O'Connell was a man of only medium or average stature, etc. I, who had the honour of his acquaintance, although a lad, knew him to be a large, powerful man.

To settle the matter, I wrote to the Dublin Freeman, and this is the reply given in the Freeman on Saturday, January 7th, 1899:

"Daniel O'Connell was a big, heavy, powerful man. He was nearly six feet high and very broad. His eyes were gray, his hair a dark brown, his face round, his features good-humoured, but not very regular. He had a powerful voice, which was at the same time sweet, and he spoke with a strong Kerry accent. He was active as well as strong, and fond of hunting the red deer on foot. He had very little ear for music, though his voice was melodious. He spoke Irish fluently, as well as English and French. He was very hospitable and rather careless about money. His bad health towards the end of his life was principally due to overwork."

Knowing very well how dear to the heart of every true Irishman the world over, are the memory and work of the great Liberator, I feel it will not be intruding on the attention of his countrymen in Peterborough, but on the contrary will be gladly received by them—this authentic account of the fearless, matchless champion of justice, not to Ireland only but to every oppressed nation, oppressed and trampled upon and robbed, by tyranny, corruption and brute force.

Would to God we had an O'Connel now and Ireland would soon be free.

Yours truly,
J. W. FITZGERALD.

SOCIAL AT ST. LUKE'S.

It Was Held Under the Auspices of the Men's Chapter of the Guild Last Night.

Under the auspices of the Men's Chapter of St. Luke's Guild, a highly successful social was held in St. Luke's school house last night. The event was intended simply to be a congregational reunion, and no ulterior financial objects loomed up in its background. At the opening of the evening, Rev. H. Symonds spoke of the necessity and duty of every member of the congregation seeking to be acquainted with every other member, and asked those present to make a point of extending their acquaintance on that occasion.

The schoolhouse had been beautifully decorated by Mr. J. J. Turner, jr. In the infant class room a bountiful supply of refreshments was stored. The room was soon entirely filled, very few families of the congregation being unrepresented. A programme, largely of an impromptu character, of which the principal piece was a dialogue by Mr. Geoffry Pratley and his company, was executed. Instrumental music was given by Miss Peck, Mrs. Spence, Miss Nellie Davies and Miss Bertha Symonds. Vocal music was supplied by Mr. W. Edwards and Mr. Young. Much regret was felt that Mr. and Mrs. Parker were prevented by the prevailing colds from taking part in the programme. Bye and bye refreshments were served by the ladies and the schoolroom hummed with conversation like a bee hive. Refreshments being disposed of a huge circle was formed round the school house, hands were joined together, and Auld Lang Syne was sung with a vigour that might have astounded even a Scotch meeting.

At the conclusion of the evening, Mr. Symonds thanked all who had so heartily contributed to the happiness and good fellowship which characterised the evening.

Robbed The Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Olive of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day to day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement, I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents a bottle, every bottle guaranteed, at any Drug Store.

JEYES' GOODS.

One of the features of the show was the very handsome exhibit of Non-Poisonous Disinfectants by Jeye's Sanitary Compound Co. of Canada, who have undertaken the disinfection of the show, as they did at the dog show last week. Jeye's Fluid has now been before the public in Europe for nearly a quarter of a century and still holds the first place as the standard Coal Tar disinfectant. The Company supply it by Special Royal Warrant to Her Majesty the Queen and H. R. H. the Prince of Wales, and its use is authorized by H. M. Government of India, H. M. Board of Trade and other public bodies. For poultry both the Fluid and the Sanitary Powder are unexcelled as they kill all vermin, keep away all bad smells, cure sickness, but do not poison the birds or even burn or stain their feathers. The Company has splendid testimonials from poultry raisers all over the world, and are daily receiving fresh expressions of approval.

The exhibit was handsomely set out on a crimson-covered table, with samples of the various packages of Fluid, Powder, Soap, &c., all beautifully put up; and a striking feature was the handsome scarlet cylinders for use in hospitals and public places.

The company has received the highest praise for the disinfection of the various shows, and visitors to our own dog show last week and the present show cannot fail to notice the entire absence of unpleasant smell which is so general at such places. If Jeyes' Fluid can do wonders in preventing bad smells at shows, it must certainly be a most effective deodorant.

Messrs. Ormond & Walsh had the exhibit in their window between the two shows, where it attracted a good deal of attention and led to business for the enterprising firm.

One of the specialities put up by the company is Sheep Dip, which like, all their other preparations, is non-poisonous and improves the colour and feel of the wool, while killing all insects and healing sores. Enormous quantities of this are sent out to Australia, South America and South Africa, and sheep farmers speak in the highest terms of its excellence.

APPALLING DEATH

"Kidney Disease." Do you know what it means? It means that the kidneys are either rotten, or rotting; the blood is full of poisonous, death-dealing corruption; that the Kidneys can't do their work; that the victim is a walking charnel-house; that his hours are numbered; that the victim MUST take Dodd's Kidney Pills if he does not want to die.

Have you Kidney Disease? Is your skin hot and dry; memory failing; breath short; urine, reddish, or pale colored; does it scald when passing; is your appetite changeable; do your ankles swell; have you bitter taste in the mouth on getting up mornings; is there a brick-dust deposit in your urine?

Any of these signs is proof positive of Kidney Disease. Will you be cured, or will you die? Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only means on earth that will cure you. They never fail.

THE SECONDHAND SHOP.

See here, my friend, upon either hand
Palatial premises towering high,
The homes of trade and her princes grand,
Whose mission it is to sell, to buy.
As the years go round they buy, they sell,
Till a balance is big at the bankers grown,
But spite of the powers against it—well,
The secondhand shop can hold its own.

Away in the dull and dingy street
It nestles with aspect weirdly grim;
You may bargain there for a quaint conceit
Of a distant land, if it suit your whim;
Old volumes there in the dust lie hid,
Old masters stare through a depth of tone,
But the novice will find, who wants to bid,
The secondhand shop can hold its own.

Lo! here is a chair of a style antique,
A relic it seems of days gone by;
Wormeaten wood, could it only speak,
To the word antique it would give the lie.
Those holes were made by a tool at hand,
Not a twelvemonth past, if the truth be known,
Pinholed for age—there's a great demand,
And the secondhand shop can hold its own.

A curio here and a landscape there,
A spurious canvas fitly framed,
The amateur scans it o'er with care
And thinks the thing is a Turner named.
There's a Tur that he faintly sees
Through the dust and dirt that the winds have blown,
Suggestive, eh! Well, of what you please,
For the secondhand shop can hold its own.

There's a great demand for ancient things,
And the "nouveau riche" will gladly pay,
So the dealer chuckles and gayly sings,
As he turns them out there day by day.
And the shams are fashioned and duly stained,
Till the false from true can be scarcely known,
And you see the result in the custom gained;
The secondhand shop can hold its own.

Brethren.

A tinker read a sweet poem about the brotherhood of man.

And later he spied the author of that poem in the market place and ran up to him and grabbed him by the hand and said, "My brother—my dear brother, let us go and pick a bit o' dinner together!"

And the poet answered that he was not in the habit of picking bits of dinner with persons whom he did not have the honor to know,—"Literary Parables," by J. W. M. Crosland.

WONDROUS REMEDY,

In what a London Doctor Calls Dodd's Kidney Pills.

London, Jan. 9.—A large decrease in the number of cases of Kidney Disease has been noted in this city during the past year.

"There's only one thing to be said about it," said a prominent physician speaking on the subject the other day.

"This falling-off is due solely to the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills by the people. Dodd's Kidney Pills are the most wondrous kidney remedy ever known. They are used in nearly every household, which accounts for the great decrease of Kidney Complaint."

A TALK ABOUT SEEDS.

How Plant Life Is Carried Sometimes From One End of the Earth to the Other.

A barren rock in midocean, an unfrequented road or a heap of sand never remains long without inhabitants in the shape of plants of some kind.

Nature does not like unseemly spots, and soon contrives to throw a mantle of green over unsightly places.

Plants have no feet by which they may travel, yet they manage to spread over the world by taking advantage of the wandering propensities of animals, water and birds.

After a ramble through the woods and fields you have had to sit down by the roadside and pick the "stickers" out of your stockings.

The burdock, sandburr and martynia are sharp fellows. They provide their seeds with little hooks that catch hold of anything woolly that chances to brush against them, and thus they steal rides to distant places—sometimes thousands of miles away. Uncleaned wool and green hides are important articles of commerce, and are exchanged between countries on opposite sides of the world. Seeds clinging to the wool of sheep and cattle may thus be carried from Canada to Europe, or from Australia to the Dominion.

When you pick the "stickers" out of your clothing or cut them out of Rover's hair you may cast them on the ground, and if conditions are favorable new plants will grow from the seeds, and, without thinking about it, you thus help nature to weave her garments.

The dandelion, thistle, milkweed and willow have a pleasant way of traveling. Each little seed is provided with a little feathery sail, and is sometimes carried many miles by a stiff breeze.

The seeds of the maple, catalpa, ash and pine are provided with one or two wings instead of sails. They cannot travel as far through the air as seeds provided with sails, but they may fall into a river, and there is no telling how far they may float or where they may stop, take root and grow. Seeds produced along rivers in the interior of continents have been found on the shores of islands in mid-ocean.

Some plants, like the orange, apple and pear, surround their seeds with an edible pulp, but these plants make a very wise provision by giving their seeds a bitter taste, so that the sweet pulp is eaten, and the bitter life germs are thrown away. Like the peach, many plants protect their seeds from being eaten by surrounding them with a hard shell.

The seeds of the raspberry, blackberry and strawberry are so small that most of them do not digest when the fruit is eaten. Owing to this birds and animals assist nature very greatly by scattering seeds.

Wild geraniums and lady-slippers have a curious way. When the seeds are ripe the sides of the seed pod spring open and fling the seeds in all directions.

In studying nature, although it is so full of life, we must not overlook the fact that life is the exception and death is the rule. Very, very few of the seeds produced ever grow into plants, and very few of the plants that spring up ever mature. Were this otherwise, in a short time the world would become an uninhabitable jungle.

CLEAN TOWEL SUPPLY.

Growth of a Business Now Flourishing In Many Cities.

The clean towel supply business, which originated in Chicago, was introduced in New York in 1884. It has thrived here, and there are now about 25 concerns engaged in the business in this city, with thousands of customers whose number is constantly increasing. There are a great many towel users who never dreamed of taking towels from towel supply concerns when the business was first started who now wouldn't think of getting them in any other way.

Cabinets are supplied with a place to keep the towels in, and they are also provided with a comb and brush, a whisk broom, a soap dish and soap. The cabinets are made in a variety of styles and sizes, each having a mirror in the front. Either hand or roller towels are provided or both The minimum supply furnished is four clean hand towels a week, and once a week the used towels are taken up and replaced with clean ones, the soap renewed if it is out and the other articles of the equipment looked after.

Towels are supplied to banks, stores, offices and pretty much all sorts of business places, in many of which a large number are used, the supply being renewed as often as may be required. There is one concern that supplies towels with the customers' initials on them, using a double set for each customer and supplying each with the same towels always. There are now supplied bootblacking outfits, with polishing brush, dauber and blacking, the blacking supply being kept constantly renewed, all for so much a month. The towel supply business has now spread all over the country, and it is established in all the large cities.—New York Sun.

THE ROYAL BOX.

The shah has in his palace at Teheran a 12 inch globe upon which the parts of the world are set out in jewels of various colors—England with rubies, India with diamonds, the sea with emeralds, and so on.

The shah of Persia is styled the "red king" because he wears a red turban. There have been three European rulers upon whom that title has been bestowed—namely, Amadeus VII of Savoy, Otto II of Germany and William II (Rufus) of England.

The small bouquet which the late empress of Austria held in her hand as she lay on her deathbed at Geneva was taken to Vienna and given to the emperor, who had it desiccated by a new method invented by Rodeck, put into a frame and placed above his writing desk.

When in Constantinople, the Empress Augusta Victoria visited the harem of the sultan. The visit lasted longer than three hours, most of which was spent in the library. The ladies of the harem, who were not all presented to the empress, gave her a rug made by themselves as a memento of her visit.

INDIAN SIGNAL TALKS.

Six Methods by Which They Send Long Distance Messages.

American Indians have a universal sign language without regard to tribal dialects. Long distance signals are sent with lightninglike rapidity, and messages go between distant points quicker than ordinary telegraph messages with the messenger boy attachment. The especial war signals are in six divisions—the pony, the blanket, the mirror, smoke, fire arrows, flint and steel, and we might add drawings and sketches. On a distant bluff a pony and rider begin to run around in a small circle or ring, racing for dear life. As if by magic, the plain becomes alive with red men, who seem to come out of the ground with the commotion of an army of ants. The signalman holds up his blanket by each corner, meaning attention; then, wigwagging his blanket, he says: "The enemy is discovered 1,000 strong." At last he holds up his blanket as a sign for the warriors to disperse, and they at once melt into the earth like falling snow in a lake.

Another signalman, on a distant hill overlooking the village, flashes the news with a small mirror to the old men, war women and wives, not forgetting, however, to flash it to the tepee of his sweetheart, who suddenly finds it imperative to go for firewood in the direction of the well known flash. Two straight lines of blue smoke going upward indicate a victory, two being the Indian lucky number, or maybe at night a tenderfoot notices some falling stars in pairs. "Burning arrows," said our guide.

Among the red pipe clay beds and the bluffs of the Big Muddy river strange sketches of tomahawks and broken pipes, drawn with the points of knives in the soft and pliable clay, appear at intervals, letting us know that war is on. Suddenly coming upon a village, we find that the bucks have returned in the night very quietly, the Indian method of admitting an overwhelming defeat.

In speaking of the mirror signals, an Indian said: "Supposing a few of us were at a talk in the lodge. We got hungry. One said so-and-so had plenty to eat. I go to his tepee and hint that it might be well to cook something, and when all is done I go outside and flash to each friend that it is ready. They come in one by one, as if by accident, and, of course, are invited by the host to eat."—Leslie's Weekly.

AN ELECTRICAL EXPERT'S STORY.

What a change has come over the industrial world since the advent of electricity! Telephones, Telegraphs, Trolleys, lights—all adding to the comfort and convenience of society. Not less marvellous the change that has come over the world of medicine since the introduction of

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Day by day they're lifting the burden from aching backs and curing kidney diseases, hitherto considered incurable.

But the Electrical Expert—his name is Mr. Geo. Fox, employed with the Trenton Electric Light Co., Trenton, Ont.

This is what he has to say:

"Some months ago I had Typhoid Fever which left me with badly disorganized kidneys. I had pain in the small of my back, also severe pain over the eyes and was very dizzy. Sometimes I got up in the morning as tired as when I went to bed. I became quite dropsical and bloated and had much pain in the bladder. I have taken two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and I am surprised at their marvellous power in curing kidney trouble. The dropsical symptoms are all gone as also the pain in my back and side. The pains in my eyes and dizziness have left, and I am completely cured."

A Woman's Crime.

A THRILLING STORY OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE.

By LAWRENCE M. LYNCH.

Author of "John Arthur's Ward," "The Diamond Coterie," "Against Odds," Etc., Etc.

The fire had died out now, but she never heeded that. She took up the paper once more and reperused the full and sensational account of her own wedding, with all its horrible after results.

"This is what that detective wanted," she thought, shudderingly: "to arrest me as a murderess! Well, I won't help him to find me. I'll make Harris take me away immediately; fortunately, I am not yet out of funds."

Never once did she give a regretful thought to her murdered husband; she had for him not one thrill of pity.

The day that followed that night of sleeplessness dawned upon a pale, stern-faced girl, who could not even smile at the lively sallies of Mrs. Horne, and who sat at the breakfast table like a ghost at a banquet. She had not closed her eyes in sleep all that long night through; she had been thinking and planning; she must leave the city, and for the first time she began to realize how very difficult this task would be. And yet—they had searched for her three months, and had not found her.

The day wore on, and Lenore began to be anxious for the appearance of Mrs. Harris; but that lady was very busy on that particular morning. At an unusually early hour she had received a caller of an unusual sort. This visitor was a gentleman, the same, by the way, that had occupied the box opposite Mrs. Harris, at R——'s varieties, and his appearance made an instant and favourable impression upon the ballet mistress. He was tall, and what she called a "splendid-looking man," that is to say, he had splendid white teeth, dark hair and whiskers, bold black eyes, and regular features; he was a man of at least thirty-five, dressed in the height of the fashion, and wearing an abundance of costly jewellery. His manner was polished and graceful, and his address simply perfection. Lest the reader should mistake this personage, who has not been described before, let him here be introduced.

Mrs. Harris' visitor, acting a part, as instructed by Manager R——, for a consideration, is none other than Jason Bradwardine. It will be remembered that, according to the discoveries of Rob Jocelyn, Bradwardine had seen Lenore Armyn before she left Fairlie to pay that fateful visit to Kate Seaton. But Lenore had not seen him. All his observations had been taken when the girl was unconscious of his proximity. Her visit to the city was totally unexpected to him, and he had been unable to find any clue to her whereabouts. After a time he found that she had gone cityward, but that was all. He had followed promptly then, and had been seen, as we know, by Rob Jocelyn. The detective had made one mistake: he had underrated the work accomplished by Bradwardine's private enquirer, he had not discovered, at first, that the man had found his prey, only to let it escape him. Through his chance presence at the dive theatre, Jason Bradwardine had again stumbled upon Lenore, and, spite of her boy's hat and sailor collar, had recognized her. And this time he did not mean to let her escape him. He was not aware of the two shadows that had followed him on the previous night, and neither himself nor Mrs. Harris were conscious that they were under constant surveillance. Nevertheless, such was the case, the second pursuing shadow of the night previous, who was no less a personage than the affable Peterkin, or Francis Ferrars, was ever at his heels, while the third shadow, our friend Rob Jocelyn, being more thoroughly informed than was Ferrars, had left Bradwardire to his own devices, knowing well that said devices would soon bring him to the vicinity of Mrs. Harris, and had contented himself with keeping a close watch upon the comings and goings of the ballet mistress, with what result we will know later.

Mr. Bradwardine introduced himself to the ballet mistress as Senor Castro, a Cuban. He had recently bought a fine theatre in Havana, and had come to the States for a company. He was quite new in the theatrical business, he frankly admitted, but he had his own ideas about a theatre, and—he had the means to carry out his ideas. He meant to make his theatre the success of the South. He wanted talent, of course, but—he wanted talent allied to beauty. He wanted new faces, and, if they were sufficiently attractive, their ability would not be called into question. He had already engaged many people, but there was yet something wanting. To be popular in the South an actress should be blonde; unfortunately, his most charming ladies were pronounced brunettes; what he wanted was a blonde lady, who was keen-witted, graceful, and beautiful, and who could be made a feature in some grand "spectacles" he intended to produce upon his stage. He did not care whether the young lady was a novice, or not; she must be beautiful, intelligent, and blonde. Such a one he would pay magnificently, and, finally, could Mrs. Harris put him in the way of finding such a lady?

Mrs. Harris thought she could, if she chose, and then began a skirmish of wits.

The gentleman from Cuba, in obedience to a hint from Manager R—, placed in the hand of the ballet mistress a generous advance fee, and after a little, offered to take her to Cuba as mistress of the wardrobe.

Then Mrs. Harris told him of Lenore, describing her in glowing terms, and taking care to state that she, Mrs. Harris, had complete control over this paragon. Finally the Cuban made a magnificent offer for the services of herself and the young lady—provided she was as charming as described—and Mrs. Harris said that she would consider the matter; which meant, that she would see Lenore, and, if she could be beguiled into taking this trip to Cuba, they would go. Senor Castro was to call at evening for his answer, and if Mrs. Harris had decided to accept, Lenore was then to be exhibited; after which contracts would be signed; the Cuban gentleman assuming control of their movements forthwith; they to draw salary from that hour, and the Senor to assume their expenses.

"I have taken a house, of which my sister has charge," said the Senor. "It is my purpose to assemble my people there, before starting South; if you accept my offer, I shall wish that yourself and charge take rooms there immediately."

Mrs. Harris expressed herself satisfied with this arrangement, and the gentleman from Cuba took his leave. "He had stayed too long already," he said, smilingly, "and he had an appointment for twelve o'clock." Which was very true; he had an appointment for that hour, with that useful personage, the widow O'Neil.

Mrs. Harris closed the door after the retreating form of her visitor, feeling as if the days of downy ease were again dawning upon her.

"If I can only manage that girl," she muttered, "and I think I can; it's time now to try the frightening dodge."

But she was agreeably disappointed; Lenore listened with evident interest to her rapturous recital. Mrs. Harris did not confine herself strictly to the truth; she spoke of Senor Castro as quite an old acquaintance, who had appeared unexpectedly; and then told of his great wealth, his splendid theatre in the South, and last, of his "splendid offer."

"What do you think of that?" she said, triumphantly. "Do you think we can do any better? do you think—"

"I think that you had better accept it," said Lenore, quietly.

"Do you! will you really go?"

"I really will. The sooner the better. When does this Senor—"

"Senor Castro."

"When does this Senor Castro come for our answer?"

"This evening; and he will expect to see you," replied the ballet mistress, hugging herself, in her delight. "When will you be ready to go to his house, where his company is to gather?"

"I will go at any time, and I will meet him this evening. You are sure he will take us?"

"Sure!" with a little laugh. "Yes, I am sure."

Then the ballet mistress launched out into a lecture upon the necessity of certain finery and "wardrobe" appurtenances, and Lenore listened with a preoccupied air. She was to go away, far away; that was settled; that was all she cared to know. Oh, if she need never see or hear of this hateful city again.

A little after two o'clock on that afternoon, a tall peanut-vendor stood at the corner nearest the shabby domicile of Mrs. Harris; it did not look like a particular good stand, but the man seemed quite satisfied, and smoked a short, black pipe with great apparent content, as he piled his rather dull trade. He had been in that vicinity all day, and he looked as if he intended remaining there for a week to come. But now a light carriage, driven by a stylish-looking young man, came around the corner, and stopped before the vendor's cart.

"Give us a light, old fellow," said the young man, leaning forward, with an unlighted cigar between his lips. Then, as the man approached the carriage to comply with this request, he said in a low, quick tone:—

"Pull out, Rob, I hold the ropes, and your time is too precious to put in here. Pull out, and trust the wind-up to the widow O'Neil."

CHAPTER XXXIV.

A TIMELY ENCOUNTER.

After warning Rob Jocelyn to withdraw from his post, Neil Bathurst drove straight to an obscure little hotel where, by appointment, he expected to meet Mr. Durand. His business was of a strange and delicate nature; but it was business that could no longer be neglected. He found the old gentleman already at the rendezvous; they at once took possession of a snug little private room, and Neil opened the conversation by saying:—

"Mr. Durand, a man of my profession thinks nothing strange, no matter how unusual it may be. But you may be—will be—startled by some of the things I am about to say to you. If you feel that you can trust me in this matter, I must beg that you will ask no questions; desire no explanations; and, that you will answer the questions I shall ask of you, fully and freely."

Mr. Durand bowed gravely. "If I am to ask no questions, and as I do not in the least comprehend your meaning," he said, "I can only beg that you will proceed with whatever you have in hand, Mr. Bathurst."

"I will, sir," replied the detective, drawing up his chair. "My time is limited; I can waste none of it. First, then, how long since Miss Annin ceased to be an inmate of your house?"

"Miss Annin!" in marked surprise; "she left, let me see, nearly three months ago; before Aura went to New York."

"Miss Durand has visited New York, then?"

"Yes; she went with the Wendells; was gone some seven or eight weeks."

"Ah! And how long since Mrs. Durand's health became delicate?"

"Mrs. Durand? Let me see; she had a severe cold a week or more before Aura came back, and since then has not rallied as I could wish."

"No!" in a constrained voice; "Mr. Durand, you must take your wife away from the city immediately."

"Indeed! And why?"

"Because she will not live two months longer—with her present surroundings."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean this: Your wife is being slowly poisoned!"

Mr. Durand's face became ghastly.

"You are mistaken," he said; "you must be; such a thing is simply impossible!"

"Listen, Mr. Durand. When you go from this place, I want you to go straight to the doctor you consider most skilled, and ask him to analyze for you the contents of this phial," taking a small bottle from his pocket, and holding it toward Mr. Durand. "Then I want you to take that man to see your wife, and ask for his candid judgment. When you have heard that, you will be more than ready to accept my advice. And then I shall have more to say to you."

"Where did you get that phial?" fairly gasped the old gentleman.

"I took it from the stand near your wife's couch the day I called upon her, sir. Will you have it examined?"

"Most certainly I will! It's past my comprehending. But I can't have any doubt about a matter like this; if it is as you say, where is the guilty one?"

"Leave the guilty one to me, sir. When I have convinced you of the truth concerning your wife, then we will talk about this other matter."

"You have convinced me that you harbour a grave suspicion, and a strange one, sir; and—I want to hear all that you have to say now," said Mr. Durand, with sudden resolution. "Tell me what you propose to do, and then I will go straight to a physician. By the way, how came you to suspect anything of this sort, and to steal my wife's medicine?"

To be Continued.

PREMATURELY OLD.

A man ought not to feel old, or to be old until well up towards the nineties, but now-a-days you don't see many such men. Instead, you hear people no older than 40 or 45 who begin to complain of tired backs and brains, of stomachs giving out, of shattered nerves, of lost energy, of aversion to work. These men have thought more of dollars than of health. They forget that money is almost worthless without health to enjoy it. If men and women will take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, they needn't worry much about old age. The years will go by, but they won't show it. This medicine makes digestion perfect, and changes a disordered stomach into a healthy one that works as Nature intended. It regulates the liver, enriches the blood and tones the nerves. It prevents consumption by curing bronchitis, lingering coughs and bleeding lungs. The "Discovery" contains no alcohol; no false or uncertain stimulus; the power it gives is the power of Nature: deep, genuine and lasting. It does not create a craving for stimulants. In serious cases of sickness, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., will give free advice and counsel to those who write him.

"The reason I delayed writing was because I wanted to wait one year after I had taken the medicine before giving my statement, and now I can send a good, conscientious testimonial," writes Chas. H. Sergeant, of Plain City, Madison Co., Ohio. "During the summer and fall of 1896 I became all 'run-down,' nerves and stomach were out of order. I wrote to Dr. Pierce for advice. He said I had general debility, and advised Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and I used six bottles. Since I stopped taking it about one year ago, I have not taken any medicine of any kind, and have been able to work every day. My appetite is good, I can eat three square meals a day, and I do not feel that miserable burning in the stomach after eating."

Stonewall Jackson at Chapultepec.

The infantry suffered terribly. It was impossible to advance along the narrow track, and when the guns were ordered up the situation was in no way bettered. Nearly every horse was killed or wounded. A deep ditch, cut across the road, hindered effective action, and the only position where reply to the enemy's fire was possible lay beyond this obstacle. Despite the losses of his command, Jackson managed to lift one gun across by hand, but his men became demoralized. They left their posts.

The example of their lieutenant, walking up and down on the shot swept road and exclaiming calmly: "There is no danger, see? I am not hit," failed to inspire them with confidence. Many had already fallen. The infantry, with the exception of a small escort, which held its ground with difficulty, had disappeared, and General Worth, observing Jackson's perilous situation, sent him orders to retire. He replied it was more dangerous to withdraw than to stand fast, and if they would give him 50 veterans he would rather attempt the capture of the breastwork.

CENTRAL EXHIBITION ANNUAL MEETING.

A RECORD OF THE WORK OF THE PAST YEAR.

Interesting Reports—The Election of Officers.

The annual meeting of the West Peterborough Agricultural Society was held on Wednesday afternoon in the town council chamber with President G W Fitzgerald in the chair.

The report of the directors was read by the President as appended:

GENTLEMEN—In submitting the annual report for the year 1898, your directors are able to offer their congratulations on a fairly successful year, though unfavourable weather interfered with the financial success of our Exhibition, which in many of its features was nevertheless successful.

When I entered upon my duties as President I found a note of $1,051.43, which had to be met, with assets represented by 253 members for 1898. The Board deemed it advisable in the interests of the Exhibition to extend the events connected with the speeding in the ring, which while it added to the attractiveness, did not effect a corresponding financial benefit, which, however, might have resulted if the weather had been more favourable. While the weather was fine during the day, the rain at night prevented no doubt a larger attendance from a distance.

The departments of the exhibition were in all respects up to the standard and in some were unusually excellent.

The exhibit of live stock was, it is admitted, the best ever made in this district and the show of poultry was magnificent. Mr. True, of the Ontario Poultry Association declared that the exhibit was the best he had ever judged outside of Toronto.

While financially our last exhibition was not as favourable as could be desired it was as an exhibition a gratifying success, especially in the educative influence its splendid display of live stock of all kinds afforded.

The Board has to acknowledge with gratitude the services of all who assisted in promoting its interests. In the first place our thanks are due to Hon. J. Israel Tarte, Dominion Minister of Public Works, who formally opened our exhibition. Our thanks are also due to the county and town councils and to all those citizens and all others who assisted by way of grants, donations and personal efforts.

The judges who performed their difficult tasks with general satisfaction also deserve our grateful acknowledgment.

For the coming year the Directors relying upon the interests of the members in the promotion of agricultural affairs expect the hearty co-operation which we are sure will be cordially extended to whatever board of directors may be elected.

All of which is respectfully submitted on behalf of the Board.

The adoption of the reports, subject to audit, was moved by Messrs. T. M. Hunter and G. W. Bennett.—Carried.

Mr. G. W. Fitzgerald proffered his resignation as president, stating that he considered the honour should be passed around amongst the directors. He offered his assistance to the new executive head of the exhibition.

Mr. T. M. Hunter was proposed for the chair by Mr. James Davidson, but he declined the honour, urging that Mr. Fitzgerald take the position for another year and feeling sure that the association would benefit from his experience.

Mr. Rightmyer seconded his motion and Mr. Fitzgerald was unanimously returned. The officers were elected as follows:—

President—G W Fitzgerald.
1st Vice-President—T M Hunter.
2nd " —Geo E Elliott.

Directors—H C Garbutt, John Stothart, Dawson Kennedy, Jas Baptie, W C Rightmyer, Robt Vance, G W Bennett Jas Davidson and T E Bradburn.

Mr. J. Crane, of Ontario Bank, who was present representing the general manager, Mr. C McGill, stated that the bank was most anxious to assist the Exhibition, and thinking that the directors would know best in which way to expend the money most advantageously, took pleasure in handing the secretary a cheque for $25.

President Fitzgerald acknowledged the handsome donation in fitting terms.

Before adjournment Mr. Thos. Hall and Mr. H. C. Winch were made honorary directors as an acknowledgement of their many years of service on the Board, and W. J. Hall and W. Collins were appointed auditors for 1899.

The newly elected Board held a meeting immediately after adjournment and Mr. W. J. Green was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

A committee consisting of the president and Mr. Hunter was appointed to wait on Mr. Morrow for the purpose of making arrangements for re-leasing grounds.

The secretary was instructed to write the mayor, thanking him and the town council for the use of the chamber during the past year, and to the Bank of Commerce, cordially acknowledging their generous gift of a valuable silver medal as a special prize for the best stallion of any breed at time of fall fair, and also to heartily thank the Ontario Bank for the handsome donation, received yesterday, of $25 to the funds of the society.

A delegation will attend the Association of Fairs meeting to be held in Toronto on 15th February.

The question of a spring stallion show was fully discussed and it was fully decided to hold an exhibition on Saturday, the 29th day of April, on the market square.

THE POULTRY EXHIBITION.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

SIR,—Kindly allow me space to express my gratification to the management of the Peterborough Poultry and Pet Stock Association for the excellent show they have provided for us, and in doing so I give the opinion of all who attended. The universal verdict is that it is one of the best exhibitions of the kind ever held in Ontario.

The management have gone to an immense amount of trouble and expense in procuring new coops, which are light, clean and uniform and a great improvement on the old ones and in getting entries of choice varieties from distant places. The dressed poultry alone is well worth anyone's inspection. Ladies, and indeed all, were in raptures over the practical and artistic preparation of the poultry for the oven.

One cause for regret, however, is the small attendance, which shows a great want of appreciation, by the public, of the management. Surely we should be interested in a matter that is one of our greatest sources of revenue. The enormous increase in exports of poultry from Canada is a cause for gratification, almost entirely due to the efforts of the Poultry Association.

Next year the great exhibition of the province, that of the Western Association, is to be held in Peterborough, for which our local society deserves great credit for procuring it against great opposition. Citizens, show your appreciation of the local management by turning out in large numbers this evening—the last of the show for this year.

Yours, etc.,
PETERBOROUGH.

BULLS AND BEARS.

Letter Second.

CLUXTON.

SIR,—Oswold Crawford in his noble book "Across the Seas," divides mankind into the spontaneist and automata, but Carlyle scornfully sums us up as "mostly fools."

In my first letter I stated cases showing he danger of speculating in Chicago. In the great corner in wheat last year Leiter demanded actual delivery of the wheat bought, and he paid the cash for same according to contract. In this letter I will deal with speculators in options, who never intended to take delivery of the article bought or sold. The buyer orders through his broker the purchase of 10,000 bushels of wheat for future delivery and "puts up" a margin of five cents per bushel, $50. The seller puts up the same amount to protect his broker. In a day or two after it is ten to one, he will receive a telegram advising that his margin has been "wiped out", and calling for another $50. This is likely to go on until his money has given out, and then comes the great mistake, when he will use other people's money intrusted to his care, hoping he will win back and replace the money misappropriated, which is a miracle if it ever can be done. At last the crash comes! His wheat is "sold out," and the man is ruined financially and morally.

Brokers do not make money out of each other. The operators are too sharp for that. The money is made from outsiders, from greenhorns and speculators who send orders from afar. There is no city or town so distant that it has not dealers who operate in this way. Every mail brings orders from all sorts of people all over the land.

There are 800 brokers in Chicago who live on the fat of the land, like princes—champagne luncheons, twenty-five cent cigars and other expensive luxuries. The money is furnished by their clients all over the United States and Canada.

Speculation is a burning fever hard to cure!

About thirty years ago we had, in Ontario, a great crop of very fine barley, which was in great demand for the brewers in the United States.

A gentleman from Montreal came to Port Hope to operate in barley. He bounced into the arena at once. I found him to be a hard opponent at Millbrook and other points on the Midland Railway. The prices ran high with much excitement in the market. This gentleman sold a cargo, in a schooner in the harbour in Port Hope at $1.20 per bushel, which gave him a large profit. The next day he went to the buyer and bought it back at an advance on the sold price. He lost that year on his operations in barley, $80,000, and failed. I was on the Corn Exchange in Montreal lately. I had a long conversation with him. I was informed he attended 'Change every day, giving his opinion forecasting the future of the market, although he had not a dollar to speculate with. He said that if he had two or three hundred dollars he could make money. I always thought it was a legitimate business to buy produce from the farmer, and that if a man had ability and large banking facilities it was his duty to move the crops of the country. How different is the system of buying now to what it was thirty or forty years ago. Then the buyers on the street ran after every load that came to town like wild men—jumping on the loads and bidding over each other. Those were the palmy days for Peterborough, which was for many years the best market in Canada. Then the streets, especially near the storehouses, were covered with farmers' teams from the neighborhood of Lindsay and other distant points. But now, what a change has taken place! Go on the market square. How quiet it is. A man would be astonished if he heard one buyer bidding over another.

A present there is a combination in the wheat business in Ontario, which employs an experienced dealer in Toronto, who fixes the prices for every town in the province. No buyer dare pay a cent over his limit. This man has autocratic power—his fiat his law. Thirty or forty years ago some people called dealing in wheat "gambling." That word would not be appropriate at the present time—it has become obsolete. Buying wheat in Ontario is now a "sure thing." Dealers can now say to the farmers, "Heads I win, tails you lose."

A RATTLESNAKE IN THE POCKET

Is not More Dangerous than Dyspepsia or Indigestion.

A Blow from an Axe will Kill the Snake Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Will Cure the Disease and Free you from Danger.

No sane man would carry a rattlesnake about with him in his pocket.

Why?

Because he knows he would risk his life by so doing. Because he knows that at any instant the reptile may kill him.

Yet there are thousands of men and women, too, who from day to day carry about with them an enemy equally as venomous as a rattlesnake.

Every man and woman who suffers from Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Constipation, Liver Complaint, or other Stomach Trouble, runs a risk as deadly as though the ailment were a venomous serpent.

Yet it is an easy and simple matter to get rid of any of these complaints.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets were designed and are manufactured for this special purpose. And they cure Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Sour Stomach, Biliousness, Constipation, Liver Complaint, Heartburn, and all other stomach diseases (except cancer), just as surely as the blow of a sharp axe severs the serpent's head from its body.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets cure Stomach Troubles in the only manner in which it can be done, viz., by removing the Cause.

Imperfect digestion is the cause of all Stomach Troubles except Cancer.

A mass of partly digested food in the stomach poisons the entire system. The blood is tainted, the nerves starved, and every organ weakened and diseased.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets digest the food in the stomach, stimulate the stomach, liver and other digestive organs till they are able to carry out the process of digestion, promptly and thoroughly without assistance.

Try them. They cost only fifty cents a box, any drug store,

THE SOUDAN BRITISH.

International Control Is Now Utterly Denied.

TEXT OF THE CONVENTION.

It Prescribes the Future Government of the Re-Conquered Egyptian Territory—The Limits Agreed Upon—Special Privileges Abrogated—British Control Absolute—News by Cable.

Cairo, Jan. 20.—The Official Gazette yesterday published a convention between Great Britain and Egypt relating to the future government of the re-conquered Soudan provinces.

After reciting that the provinces were re-conquered by the joint military and financial efforts of the British Khedival Governments, and setting forth the desire to give effect to the claims that have accrued to Her Britannic Majesty's Government by right of conquest—the claim to share in the present settlement and future working and development of the administration of the territories—and pointing out that the territories of Wady Halfa and Snakim may be most effectively administered in conjunction with the re-conquered provinces, the convention proceeds as follows:

It is hereby agreed and declared between the undersigned, duly authorized, that the word Soudan in this agreement means all the territories south of the 22nd parallel of latitude which have never been evacuated since 1882, or which, having been administered by the Khedive's Government prior to the late rebellion, were temporarily lost to Egypt and have been re-conquered by the British and Egyptian Governments acting in concert, or which may hereafter be re-conquered by the two Governments acting in concert.

The British and Egyptian flags shall be used together on both land and water throughout the Soudan, except in Snakim, where the Egyptian flag alone shall be used.

The supreme military and civil command in the Soudan shall be vested in one officer termed the Governor-General, appointed by Khedival decree, with the consent of Great Britain.

The next clause gives the Governor-General absolute power to make, alter or abrogate, by proclamation, laws, orders or regulations for the good government of the Soudan, and for the regulation, holding, disposal and devolution of property of every kind situate in the Soudan, but all such proclamations must forthwith be notified to the agent of Her Britannic Majesty at Cairo and to the president of the Khedival Council. No Egyptian law, decree or enactment hereafter made or promulgated is to apply to any part of the Soudan, save by the proclamation of the Governor-General.

Regarding the condition under which the other nations shall be permitted to trade, reside or hold property in the Soudan, the condition says: "No special privileges shall be accorded the subjects of any one or more powers. Import duties shall not be levied on goods from Egyptian territory, but they shall be leviable on goods from elsewhere. In the case of goods entering the Soudan at Suakim or any other Red Sea port, the duties must not exceed the amount leviable upon foreign goods entering Egypt. Duties may be levied upon goods leaving the Soudan, the rates to be prescribed by proclamation."

The convention provides that the jurisdiction of the mixed tribunals shall apply to no part of the Soudan except Suakim, and the whole Soudan, except Suakim, shall remain under martial law until the Governor-General proclaims otherwise. No consular agents shall be accredited to or allowed to reside in the Soudan without the previous consent of Great Britain.

The importation or exportation of slaves is absolutely prohibited, and special attention is to be paid to the enforcement of the Brussels Act of July 2, 1890, in respect to the import, sale and manufacture of firearms, munitions and distilled or spirituous liquors.

The convention, which is dated at Cairo, Jan. 18, 1899, is signed by the Khedival Minister of Foreign Affairs, Boutros Pasha Chali, and by Lord Cromer, British Agent and Consul-General in Egypt.

Press on the Agreements.

London, Jan. 20.—The Times, referring editorially to the Anglo-Egyptian convention regarding the Soudan, expresses approval of the agreement, which it describes as "eminently practical and sagacious."

The Standard says: "It is reasonably certain that some diplomatic trouble will follow. The Sultan will probably protest against the ostentatious neglect of his suzerain title, and France, doubtless, will leave nothing undone to nurse the displeasure of the Porte into a serious international ferment.

Placed on the London Market.

London, Jan. 20.—The long-expected issue of stock of the Canadian Steamship Company is now being made in connection with the inauguration of the Milford Haven-Pasphebiac service. The ordinary shares, amounting to £50,000, are not offered to the public, but the 5 per cent. debentures, amounting to £300,000, and £100,000 of 6 per cent. preferred stock, are being offered to the public. The Atlantic & Lake Superior Railway Company guarantee the principal and interest and undertake to provide a half dozen steamers between Milford, Liverpool and Pasphebiac.

The Court of Cassation.

Paris, Jan. 20.—The Senate yesterday indulged in another somewhat noisy debate on the subject of the alleged partiality and slowness of the Court of Cassation.

The Minister of Justice, M. Lebret, defended the court and urged the necessity of maintaining a separation between legislative and judicial powers.

A resolution approving the views of the Minister of Justice was adopted by a vote of 212 to 28.

Christopher's Dusty Bones.

Seville, Jan. 20.—The Spanish auxiliary cruiser Giralda arrived here yesterday morning with the reputed ashes of Columbus on board, which had been transferred from the cruiser Conde de Venadito, on which they were brought from Havana. The municipal authorities took charge of the coffin on board. The Giralda fired a salute, to which the land batteries replied, and the procession was then formed and the coffin transferred to the celebrated Cathedral of Seville.

CAPE TO CAIRO RAILWAY.

Cecil Rhodes' Dream Already Realizing Some Financial Successes.

London, Jan. 20.—Cecil Rhodes' great scheme for a railway through Africa from Cape Town to Cairo is meeting with financial encouragement. The line from Buluwayo, the terminus of the present Cape system, to Khartoum, will be more than 3,000 miles long, and it is estimated to cost $47,000,000. Mr. Rhodes has been assured of $10,000,000 for the section from Buluwayo to Lake Tanganyika, and the remainder can be secured when the surveys from Lake Tanganyika to Khartoum are made.

It is said Germany will consent for right of way through the strip of German territory north of the lake. At Khartoum connection is to be made with the Egyptian line, which the Sirdar has already built up the Nile as far as Atbara.

Another transcontinental railway scheme has been revived in India, to give a route across Asia from north to south. This would make Bombay and Calcutta the outlets for Russian commerce in Asia, and enable travellers from London to reach India in ten days.

PROF. NICHOLSON IS DEAD.

Was Lecturer on Natural History at Toronto University, 1877 to 1882.

London, Jan. 20.—Prof. Henry Alleyne Nicholson, Regius Professor of Natural History at the University of Aberdeen, died yesterday in his 55th year.

The late Dr. Nicholson, who was born at Penrith, Sept. 11, 1844, was educated at Appleby Grammar School, Gottingen, and Edinburgh University. In 1862 he was appointed lecturer of natural history at Edinburgh. Two years later he took the chair of natural history in the University of Toronto, from 1877 to 1882, and again from 1890 to 1894, he was Swiney lecturer on geology in the British Museum.

Among his publications are "Reports on the Paleontology of Ontario," "Tabulate Corals of the Paleozoic Period," "Monograph of the British Grapelitida" and "Monograph of the British Stromatoporoids."

China is Trying to Improve.

London, Jan. 20.—The Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Mail says:

"The Chinese Government will send a commercial mission to Europe and America, starting next March, and returning in November. If it reports favorably, commercial agencies will be established in important cities abroad next year. Two directors of the Imperial Bank of China will accompany the mission to select locations for branches of the bank abroad."

Czar's Talk a Fake.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 20.—The Russian Government has ordered a new cruiser of 6,250 tons, to be constructed at the Vulcan ship-building yards, Stettin, Prussia. It has also been decided to build in Russian yards three battleships of about 12,300 tons each and two cruisers of 6,000 and 8,000 respectively. Numerous torpedo boats are now in course of construction under Government orders.

HE WAS HUSTLED OUT

A German Consul Who Will Probably Be Disavowed.

ANGLO-SAXON WARSHIPS SENT.

Americans Evidently Incensed at the Samoan Crisis—Despatches From the American Consul Kept Secret at Washington—A Flutter at the Embassies—Germany Much Concerned.

Wellington, N.Z., Jan. 20.—It is reported here that owing to the trouble at Samoa, growing out of the election of a successor to the late King Malietoa, three British warships will proceed there, and that one American warship will start for the islands from Honolulu.

GERMAN CONSUL TO BLAME

For the Samoa Disturbance, According to the Latest Reports.

London, Jan. 20.—A special despatch from Auckland, N.Z., says the British and American consuls were compelled to force the doors of the Supreme Court at Apia, Samoa, in which the German consul had established himself, and to push him into the street.

All parties at Apia, the special despatch continues, unite in condemning the German consul for the fighting which has taken place between the rival kings. It is pointed out that in violation of all agreements, the consul accompanied Mataafa's forces when the claimant invaded the town, and encouraged the opposition to Malietoa Tanus.

When the British and American consuls were informed as to the situation, they adjourned the court and locked the building. The German consul then demanded the keys, which were refused him. He then broke open the doors, removed the locks and replaced them with others. He afterwards brought the German municipal president into the chamber, and the latter went upon the balcony and shouted to the British and American marines assembled on the square: "I am the Supreme Court! I am the Chief Justice!"

The crowd replied with jeers, and the British consul demanded the keys of the building, which were refused.

A Scotchman named Mackie thereupon climbed on top of the building and hoisted the Samoan flag, while the British and American consuls and a number of marines invaded the building, forced the doors open and pushed the German consul into the street.

Then the two consuls "formally and legally," according to the special despatch, opened the court and issued a warning against any further interference with its jurisdiction, threatening to promptly arrest and imprison anyone attempting to do so. Matters, the despatch concludes, are now quiet, and the German consul remains in his consulate.

Ambassadors in Conference.

Washington, Jan. 20.—The immediate effect of the publication in the morning papers of the news from Samoa was to bring to the State Department Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British ambassador, and Baron von Sternberg, the secretary of the German embassy. Under the strict rules laid down for the government of diplomatic intercourse, neither Secretary Hay nor the two diplomatic representatives would say anything whatever as to the nature of the conversation that took place between them. The deepest concern is felt by all three parties to the agreement over the outlook. The common belief is that the German representatives in Samoa, in acting in the arbitrary manner they did, completely exceeded their instructions from their Government. It is quite certain that they exceeded the authority with which they were clothed by the treaty of Berlin, and it is expected that the German Government will unhesitatingly condemn their actions as soon as it shall have become officially advised as to what has actually happened. The authorities feel that the greatest element of danger lies in the possibility of trouble before Rafael and Rose can be restrained by Government advices.

Despatches Are Secret.

Washington, Jan. 20.—It was stated at the Department of State yesterday that despatches had been received from United States Consul Osborne at Apia, but as to their nature the officials had nothing to say beyond that they went to confirm the news despatches printed in the morning. Admiral Kantz, the commander of the Pacific station, is now on board his flagship, the Philadelphia, and it was stated at the Navy Department that he would accompany that ship to Samoa.

Germans Show Fight.

Berlin, Jan. 20.—The news from Samoa has been received with foreboding. The Lokal Anzieger says: "All this, doubtless, signifies an appreciable quarrel, and, with the unceremoniousness which the Americans have affected lately toward us, it may easily take a serious turn. The Samoan co-dominion has always involved a lurking danger."

The Vossische Zeitung says: "The situation will become even graver when the American warship arrives at Apia. It is said that the Washington Department of State has instructed the United States consul-general there not to trust the German consul. Evidently the United States, who are the least interested in Samoa among the three powers, do not mean to respect Germany's paramount status. Germany will have to show firmness, all the more so as our position is made the worse by the evident desire of England to help the United States so as to retain the latter's friendship."

A Nervous Toronto Woman Walked the Floor During the Night for Hours at a Time—She Makes a Statement.

TORONTO, ONT.—"I was troubled with nervousness. It was impossible for me to keep still and if the spells came over me during the night I had to get up and walk the floor for hours at a time. My blood was very poor and I was subject to bilious attacks. My feet would swell and I was not able to do my own housework. I treated with two of the best physicians here but only received relief for a time. I became discouraged. One day a friend called and advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I laughed at the advice but I was prevailed upon and procured one bottle. Before I used it all I began to feel better. I took several bottles and also several boxes of Hood's Pills. Now I can eat and drink heartily and sleep soundly. Hood's Sarsaparilla has entirely cured me and also strengthened me so that I now do all my own work. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to all sufferers from nervousness, weakness or general debility." MRS. H. F. PARM, Degrassi Street.

FRIDAY, JANUARY, 20, 1899.

THEIR POWER FOR HARM IS GONE.

When will would-be leaders of public opinion realize that the electorate is about sick of the persistent efforts to stir up racial and religious animosity in the country and set section against section on account of difference in origin or creed? Periodically, like epidemics of measles and la grippe, the distemper breaks out, and just now the Opposition reverses in the Federal bye-elections in Quebec afford an excuse for an outburst. In Quebec and in Manitoba the attempt is once more being made to arouse the worst passions of human nature; our French-Catholic countrymen are declared to be opportunists of the most despicable kind, truckling to the party that is in power for the sake of the loaves and fishes that may be thrown to them.

Opposition papers and speakers should be the best judges of the style of argument which is most likely to be effective with their leaders and hearers, but it is hard to believe that any considerable proportion of an intelligent people can be influenced by such nonsense. It has been tried time and again in the past, and has always ignominiously and deservedly failed, and so far the indications are that the present attempt will meet a like fate. For the credit of our common country and the future of the Canadian nation, it is to be sincerely hoped that such will be the case.

HARD ON THE PARTY.

Says the Toronto World :

The politicians and the contractors in connection with canal enlargement have been been a very queer lot. They seemed to have used the canal enlargement mainly for party ends. Every promise made in Parliament about the completion of these canals has been broken, shamefully broken. And yet the farmers of the west, the people of Toronto and Ontario, and especially the shipping interests of the Maritime Provinces, have a vital interest in securing a fourteen-foot channel.

The World is rather severe, but not too much so, on the chief politicians of its own party. The late Conservative Government had dawdled with the canal enlargement question for years. Then the Liberal Government began its course of attacking canal enlargement in business earnest. And for this the World's journalistic chief has abused the Liberal Government like "burglars" or "antediluvians."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE infallible cable despatches inform us that "the relations between France and England are again revealing a state of tension." Between ex-tension and tension the strain is becoming long drawn-out.

THE Mail and Empire is sadly complaining of the employment by La Patrie of the expression, "fanatics of Ontario." When it is known that the "fanatics" mentioned are represented by the Mail and Empire public interest in the matter disappears.

THE Mail and Empire might print a list of the "hasty" legislation "checked" by the indispensable Senate during the eighteen years rule of the Conservative party. It would not greatly encroach upon the space diurnally devoted to Mr. Tarte.

THE Halifax Herald says the Grit's ideal of a Senate is one that the Government of the day can order about and pull about just as it likes. No, says the Globe; a Senate that the Government of the day can order about as it likes is not a Grit ideal, but a Tory reality. We had that sort of Senate during eighteen years of Tory rule.

TARTE, literally taken, represents the sour grapes that set the Conservative journalistic "children's teeth on edge." Tarte, as a Tory, had a halo round his head as big as a cartwheel. When he Reformed and cut bad political company, the horns were speedily discerned by the Conservative eye, sprouting on the erstwhile haloed head. If Satan regarded—hypothetically, as a "Tory"—should return to his pristine innocence as a 'Grit," in the eyes of the Mail and Empire, he would out-Lucifer Lucifer.

TAGGART'S INSANITY.

A Question of Life or Death Which the Judge Says the Jury Must Decide.

Toronto, Jan. 20.—The interest centering around the Taggart murder trial is increasing daily as the trial progresses. Yesterday Judge Falconbridge ordered that the gallery be opened to relieve the overcrowding in the lower court room. The gallery was crowded all day and two constables were placed there to keep the visitors quiet.

The cross-examination of Dr. Beemer, the Crown's medical witness, called by the defence, was lengthy, but little new was adduced.

Dr. Wilson told of his examination of the prisoner. Taggart said a voice told him to kill his wife. The prisoner went on and told of his family troubles and how he had killed his wife and the reason. Taggart claimed that he was not crazy, but the witness was confident of the prisoner's insanity.

Dr. John Ferguson followed on behalf of the defence. He gave a long story of the conditions which point to a man's insanity. He reviewed his examination of the prisoner and came to the conclusion that Taggart was insane.

Mr. Kerr objected to such evidence on the ground that the jury is to say whether or not the prisoner is insane. The court overruled the objection and the judge remarked: "The jury is to take no one's opinion. If the evidence tended all one way I would not take the case from the jury; it is for the jury to say." It was the general opinion that the case would be taken from the jury, but the judge's remarks yesterday set the matter at rest. The trial will be continued this morning.

SKATED TO DEATH.

Here George C. Ritchie Saved Miss Ward and Sank in Icy Water.

Belleville, Ont., Jan. 20.—George C. Ritchie, correspondence clerk in the Bank of Montreal here, was drowned in the Bay of Quinte last night. He was skating with Miss Mary Ward, and both went through the ice. She clung to the edge, and he told her to keep kicking. Finding he could not save himself, he said: "Good-bye; my God, I am gone." He put his hands up, as though in prayer and sank in 40 feet of water. The body was recovered. He came from Nova Scotia, where two brothers reside. He was 29 years old..

The body of the young man will be buried on Saturday afternoon from the residence of Manager Crombie. He was the son of a Church of England clergyman, and his parents are both dead. His two brothers are at Halifax and Annapolis, Nova Scotia. Mr. Ritchie entered the service of the bank and came to Belleville eight months ago.

BOLIVIAN REVOLUTION.

Insurgents Now in Possession of La Paz, the Capital.

Lima, Jan. 20.—According to reliable advices from the seat of war in Bolivia, the federalist troops (the insurgents), who now occupy the capital, La Paz, have had an engagement with two battalions of President Alonzo's forces, defeating them and taking a large number of prisoners, who have been carried to La Paz.

Great enthusiasm prevails in the capital and the complete victory of the revolution at an early day is expected.

CHARGES AGAINST GEN. EAGAN.

They Have Been Drafted and Are Now in the President's Hands.

Washington, Jan. 20.—The charges and specifications in the court-martial of Commissary-General Eagan have been drafted, and are now in the hands of the President. The charges are conduct unbecoming of an officer and a gentleman, and conduct prejudicial to good order and military discipline. The specifications quote largely from Gen. Eagan's statements attacking Gen. Miles before the war investigation committee.

A DRAMATIC CLIMAX.

The Effect of One Woman's Pathetic Eyes on a Jury.

That juries are affected by handsome and languishing eyes is proved by a remarkable experience of the greatest advocate at the New York bar, the late James T. Brady. He was counsel for a young woman in a case involving an attempt to break a will.

His client sat by his side. She was a very beautiful young woman whose eyes seemed always to rivet the attention of those upon whom her glance fell. There was a pathetic expression which affected every one. She sat watching the jury during the course of the trial, and at last there was some complaint that she was attempting by means of her glances to excite the sympathy of the jury.

Then Mr. Brady arose and in one of the most touching and beautiful of all the addresses he ever made in court he spoke of the blessings which every one who had an appreciation of beautiful things and could see them enjoyed, and dwelt for some moments upon the happy lot of the jury who could see the budding of the flowers—it was then springtime—and the charms of nature; then, suddenly turning to his client, he said, "That blessing is denied my client, for, though she has eyes which seem to look upon you, gentlemen, there is no vision in them, for her sight has been taken from her."

She had been, in fact, the victim of total paralysis of the optic nerve, which had not impaired the beauty of her eyes, but had given to them that singular pathetic expression which she was thus falsely charged with employing that she might secure the sympathies of the jury

A Curious Case of Somnambulism.

The modern novelist is very prone to found his plots on the doings of sleepwalkers and hypnotists, but, as usual, "truth is stranger than fiction," and his efforts are outdone by actual occurrences. Here, for example, is a true story from France of a gentleman missing from his bedroom a packet containing more than £2,000 worth of bonds. The thief could not be traced, but shortly afterward the mistress of the house, who had taken the robbery to heart even more than her husband, was taken to a doctor, for she was suffering from nervous prostration.

The doctor, a firm believer in hypnotism, was told of the robbery and, putting two and two together, hypnotised his patient and extorted a confession from her that she had taken the bonds and buried them in the garden. There, upon search being made, they were found, but the lady is as yet quite ignorant of the fact that she herself was the person who hid them. —Chambers' Journal.

Where Early Planting Is Desirable.

"I tell a well meaning but perhaps not yet perfectly persistent young friend, who asks me about it," said Mr. Staybolt, "that there is no such thing as an incubator that will hatch out eagles from dollars while you wait; that the only way indeed in which a money crop can be raised is by the most careful and constant cultivation, and I venture to remind him, being young and with the world yet before him, that this is a crop in which it is desirable to begin planting early in order to produce the best results."—New York Sun.

A MISTAKE IN THE BIRD MARKET.

A Persian in the market place
Longed for and so took home a wren.
Yes, his was but a common case;
Such always are the ways of men

Once his, the brown bird pleased him not:
Almost he wished it would take wing.
He loosed the cage door and forgot
The dark, unsinging, lonely thing.

Night came and touched with wind and dew
(Alone there in the dim moonshine)
A rose that at the window grew—
And, oh, that sudden song divine!

His children started from their sleep,
Their orient eyes with rapture lit.
Their pale young mother bid to weep:
Their father did not care a whit.

He only heard the impassioned wail
From that small prison overhead.
"My wren is but a nightingale!
I'll wring its noisy throat!" he said.

WHAT A WORK IS MAN!

The Human Body the Most Wonderful Thing In the World.

Human beings are of all sizes, but the tall man is less common than the short. Only one in every 308 exceeds the height of six feet. For every foot of stature a man should weigh from 26 to 28 pounds, a proportion that is not the lot of all in these hurrying, scurrying days. An average sized man weighs 140 pounds; a woman 125 pounds. Curiously enough, the mean weight and height of lunatics are below those of sane people. Another unexpected thing in this respect is that a negro's skeleton weighs more than that of an Englishman.

The vitalizing power is the blood, a drop of which takes but 22 seconds to go the round of the body. There passes through the heart once every three minutes an amount of this precious fluid equal to all that is contained in the body. The mileage of the blood circulation reveals some astonishing and undreamed of truths. It is estimated that, assuming the average speed of the heart to be 69 beats a minute, the blood travels 207 yards in 60 seconds. In other words, 7 miles an hour, 168 a day, or 6,320 per year.

If a man of 84 could have one single blood corpuscle floating in his blood all his life, it would have traversed in that period no less than 5,150,808 miles. The average weight of the brain of an adult male is 3 pounds 8 ounces, of a female 2 pounds 8 ounces. The woman's brain begins to decline in weight after the age of 30, the man's not till ten years later. According to high authorities the nerves, with their branches and minute ramifications connecting with the brain, exceed 10,000,000 in number.

The palms of the hands and soles of the feet are composed of cushions of fat, in order that sudden jolts and violent blows may be successfully resisted and no injury done to the muscles and bones underneath. The muscles—of which the tongue monopolizes 11—and bones of the human structure in combination are capable of more than 1,200 different motions.

The teaching of experience indicates that accidents are far more likely to occur to the right leg and arm than to the left. Further evidence of this fact is supplied by the makers of artificial limbs. They dispose of many more appendages to the right side of the body than to the other. Statistics show that in 54 cases out of 100 the left leg is stronger than the right.

If a man could move his legs proportionally as fast as an ant, he would travel not far from 800 miles an hour —London Mail.

A NEW INVENTION

The Newcombe Piano Has It.

It consists of a Patented Practice CLAVIER or STOP which diminishes the tone when required and saves wear on the Piano; it also does away with the old way of having to press down the pedal with the foot in order to soften the tone when running the scales or practicing. Oftentimes the young pupil on the piano cannot press down on the pedal without throwing themselves out of the proper position when they should sit erect. This invention in the NEWCOMBE PIANO will enable children to begin two years earlier on the piano. In addition to the above, the NEWCOMBE PIANO is the finest made in Canada. Children often complain about practicing; they like it if they have a NEWCOMBE PIANO. 1898 styles are gems of art, containing every late improvement; they possess that beautiful full sweet tone which delights the singer, and so pleases every musical ear. Organs of every description at Wholesale Prices.

Big Bargains now on hand in slightly used. AN OIL TRUST FORMED.

The Imperial Oil Company Gobbling Up Its Smaller Canadian Rivals—The Standard Behind It.

Montreal, Jan. 20.—An important meeting of oil men was in session at the Windsor yesterday, the business being connected with the acquisition of practically all the oil business in the Dominion by the Imperial Oil Company, which is understood to be the Canadian end of the great Standard Oil Trust of the United States. The object is to discuss the situation arising from the absorption of the Bushnell Oil Company and the Eastern Oil Company by the Imperial Oil Company. The various delegates in attendance are directly or indirectly interested in the new corporation, which is controlled by the Standard Oil Trust. The Eastern Oil Company formerly controlled the oil trade in the Maritime Provinces. To effect the arrangement referred to the Imperial Company was recently granted a new charter, and its stock increased from half a million to one million dollars. This enabled the Imperial Company to practically secure a monopoly of the oil business of Canada. The refining and manufacturing at Petrolea and Sarnia will in future be done by the new trust, which will also deal direct with the trade. The head offices, as formerly, will remain in Petrolea. The business for Ontario will remain in the hands of the Queen City Oil Company of Toronto, of which company Mr. F. A. Fitzgerald of London is managing director, and Mr. S. Rogers of Toronto is the president. The branches at London and other points will be made shipping and distributing stations under head office management. Mr. O. J. Mills, the present manager of the Imperial Co. for western Ontario, will be general inspector in Toronto. The directors of the new company will be elected here. Mr. F. A. Fitzgerald is spoken of as the prospective president of the new company.

A Crippled Rheumatic is Restored by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Woodstock, Ont., Jan. 16.—Never, in the social history of this town since the Birchall trial, has such great interest been shown as the "Cutmore Case" has caused.

To-day he is straight and strong; sound in every limb, thanks to Dodd's Kidney Pills. Other remedies were used, but did no good, Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him.

"Did you know," said the tooth carpenter, looking up from his paper, "that the Indians practiced dentistry in the earliest times?"

"I didn't know it," replied the man who had once sat in a dentist's chair, "but I am not at all surprised. The Indians have always been a brutal and cruel race."

Then he laughed gleefully, forgetful of the fact that there was still time for the dentist to add $15 or $20 to his bill. —Chicago Post.

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA

To Gain Flesh, to Sleep Well, to Know What Appetite and Good Digestion Means.

MAKE A TEST OF STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS.

No trouble is more common or more misunderstood than nervous dyspepsia. People having it think their nerves are to blame and are surprised that they are not cured by nerve medicines. The real seat of the mischief is lost sight of. The stomach is the organ to be looked after.

Nervous dyspeptics often do not have any pain whatever in the stomach, nor perhaps any of the usual symptoms of stomach weakness. Nervous dyspepsia shows itself not in the stomach so much as in nearly every organ. In some cases the heart palpitates and is irregular; in others the kidneys are affected; in others the bowels are constipated, with headaches; still others are

THE BOY WAS IN A BLAZE.

Poured Benzine on a Fire and the Result Was as Usual.

Hespeler, Ont., Jan. 20.—A lad named Schlessman, in the employ of Messrs. Zryd & Co., hardware merchants here, narrowly escaped death from burning yesterday afternoon. He poured benzine out of a can on a fire he was kindling in the workshop, the blaze causing the benzine to explode with terrific force. The boy was all ablaze in an instant, and rushed outside through a door, falling about ten feet to the hard ground, rendering him unconscious. Fortunately the noise of the explosion attracted the attention of Mr. Duncan, merchant tailor, in the next building, who saw the lad lying in flames on the ground, and rushed out to his rescue, and enveloped the boy in his overcoat, smothering the flames. The boy was badly burnt about the face, head and hands, the skin coming off as the coat was removed. He suffered intensely, but it is not thought his injuries will result fatally. The premises also took fire, but it was extinguished before much damage was done.
